Written Ministerial Statements

Monday 16 April 2007

TREASURY

UK Debt Management Office

The Economic Secretary to the Treasury (Ed Balls): The UK Debt Management Office (DMO) has today published its business plan for the year 2007-08. Copies are available in the Library and from DMO's website at: www.dmo.gov.uk.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Civil Court Fees

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Constitutional Affairs (Vera Baird): The Department for Constitutional Affairs has published "Civil Court Fees", a consultation paper, which sets out proposals to:

reform the system of fee exemptions and remissions; increase fees for civil business in magistrates' courts; and re-balance the fee structure in the other civil courts.

The purpose of the consultation is to identify in the package of proposals whether—

(1) the new system of fee concessions is well-targeted, simple, transparent and consistent;

(2) the re-balanced structure of civil fees provides a closer match between income and cost drivers within the system; and

(3) the particular increase in an individual fee might have specific untoward consequences.

Copies of the consultation paper have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses and can also be obtained free on the Department's website at: http://www.dca.gov.uk/consult/confr.htm#full. The closing date for consultation is 25 June 2007.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

BBC Chairman

The Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (Tessa Jowell): I wish to announce formally the appointment of Sir Michael Lyons as the new chairman of the BBC. Her Majesty the Queen approved his appointment in Council on 4 April and it will take effect from 1 May for a period of four years. Sir Michael brings a very wide range of experience and skills to the task of leading the BBC Trust in its role of representing the interests of licence fee payers, and in holding to account the executive board, which is responsible for the day-to-day management of the BBC. He and his colleagues on the Trust have a unique part to play in the future of public service broadcasting through their continued delivery of the new model of governance at the BBC and I am confident that, in Sir Michael, the BBC will have a chairman of whom it can be proud.

The process by which Sir Michael was appointed followed the guidance of the Office of the Commissioner for Public Appointments (OCPA), and was scrutinised by an OCPA independent assessor throughout. The post was advertised in the national press and on the DCMS and Cabinet Office websites, shortlisted candidates were interviewed by a selection panel who made recommendations to DCMS Ministers, who then made recommendations to the Queen through the Prime Minister. I am delighted that this rigorous open competition has resulted in the appointment of a very able and enthusiastic chairman who will help to ensure the BBC continues to thrive and adapt to new challenges in a changing environment.

I should also take this opportunity to express my tremendous gratitude to Dr. Chitra Bharucha who has, as acting chairman of the BBC, successfully overseen the launch of the new Trust. She will continue to support the Trust and its new chairman in her capacity as vice-chairman.

DEFENCE

Call-out Reservists (Balkans)

The Minister of State, Ministry of Defence (Mr. Adam Ingram): A new call-out order has been made under section 56 of the Reserve Forces Act 1996 so that reservists may continue to be called-out into permanent service to support military operations in the Balkans. The order took effect on 2 April 2007.

Some 190 reservists were mobilised during the 12-month period ending 31 March 2007. Although the number of UK personnel in the Balkans is reducing, we expect to continue to call-out reservists to support operations in that theatre.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Mine Action Policy

The Secretary of State for International Development (Hilary Benn): On 4 April, the International Day for Mine Awareness and Assistance in Mine Action, I announced that the UK will commit £30 million to mine action over the next three years.

It is now eight years since the UK ratified the Mine Ban Treaty (the Ottawa convention). Since 2001 the Department for International Development has contributed at least £10 million per year on global mine action. Much has been achieved by the international community during this period: mine casualties continue to decline; there is virtually no trading of anti-personnel mines anywhere in the world; over 30 million stockpiled anti-personnel mines have been destroyed; and large areas of land have been cleared of mines and rendered productive again. The UK has made a significant contribution to this in a number of badly affected countries. For example, since 2002 DFID has spent over £6.5 million on demining projects in Afghanistan; during that time the number of casualties has more than halved. Similarly DFID has provided over £2 million in Cambodia where the number of casualties has dropped from over 1,500 per year in the early 1990s to under 500 in 2006. More recently, following the conflict in Lebanon last year, DFID provided over £2.5 million for rapid response to remove cluster bombs and other unexploded ordnance from residential and agricultural areas.

Despite this, there remains much to be done. Casualty rates in the worst affected countries remain unacceptably high, as does the social and economic impact. Many countries are still heavily dependent on the support of the international community to deal with mines that contaminate their land.

Over the next three years, we will focus our assistance on direct mine action, and building developing country capacity to carry out mine action while continuing to encourage countries to ratify the Ottawa convention. We will aim to reduce the impact of mines in developing countries through support to well established and effective demining organisations, and we will help mine affected countries develop the means to manage and deal with the remaining problems themselves.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Companies House Targets

The Minister for Industry and the Regions (Margaret Hodge): I have set Companies House the following targets for the year 2007-08:

To ensure that Companies House Direct, WebCHeck and Web-Filing are available for 99 per cent. of the time between the hours of 7am and midnight, Monday to Saturday.

To achieve 55 per cent. take-up for electronic submission of documents by the end of 2007-08.

To achieve, on average, a monthly compliance rate for accounts submitted of 95.3 per cent.

To ensure that 99.5 per cent. of images placed on the Companies House image system are legible.

To achieve for 2007-08 a reduction, in real terms, of 10 per cent. compared to 2004-05 in the unit cost of the range of transactions covering registration, company search and active register size.

To achieve a score of more than 86 per cent. in each quarterly Companies House customer satisfaction survey.

To resolve 97 per cent. of complaints within five days.

To achieve, taking one year with another, a 3.5 per cent. average rate of return based on the operating surplus expressed as a percentage of average net assets.

To pay all bills within 30 days, or on other agreed credit terms, on receipt of goods or services or a valid invoice, whichever is later.

The chief executive to reply within 10 days to all letters from Members of Parliament delegated to him for reply.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Mental Capacity Act

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Constitutional Affairs (Vera Baird): My noble Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Constitutional Affairs, Baroness Ashton of Upholland, has made the following written ministerial statement:

"I have today laid before Parliament the Mental Capacity Act 2005 (Lasting Powers of Attorney, Enduring Powers of Attorney and Public Guardian) Regulations 2007.

The Mental Capacity Act 2005 provides a statutory framework for people who lack the mental capacity to make their own decisions. It sets out who can take decisions, in which situations, and how they should go about this. It also enables people to make provision for a time in the future when they may lack capacity to make some decisions including through the introduction of a new power of attorney called a Lasting Power of Attorney (LPA). LPAs will replace Enduring Powers of Attorney (EPA) as the main way in which someone can choose a decision maker to act on their behalf, particularly in the event of their loss of mental capacity.

These regulations set out the prescribed forms, supporting forms and other requirements necessary for the making and registration of LPAs and the registration of existing EPAs. They also make provision about the functions of the public guardian and the discharge of those functions.

A consultation process was held from 20 January to 14 April 2006 to seek views on the draft LPA forms, prescribed information and accompanying non-statutory guidance, as well as on the processes for certifying and registering LPAs. These regulations, and the forms contained within them, have been developed in light of the comments received during consultation".

DEFENCE

Military Repatriation Ceremonies

The Minister of State, Ministry of Defence (Mr. Adam Ingram): With effect from April 2007 for a period of two years, RAF Lyneham will be used as the primary location for military repatriation ceremonies instead of RAF Brize Norton.

In the event of fatalities resulting from service personnel killed in operational theatres, a repatriation ceremony is held to mark the return to the United Kingdom which family members of the deceased normally attend. With effect from April 2007, work is commencing at RAF Brize Norton to extend the aircraft servicing platform, (the areas of hard-standing around the airfield that are used for aircraft parking). Given the disruptive nature of the work, it will be very difficult to hold a dignified ceremony at the station. Moreover, it would also be very costly to the public purse to temporarily suspend work each time a repatriation ceremony is due to take place. This work is expected to take up to two years until April 2009.

The transfer of repatriations from RAF Brize Norton to RAF Lyneham means that the Wiltshire and Swindon coroner will have initial jurisdiction instead of the Oxfordshire coroner throughout the period of these works. We are confident that the Wiltshire and Swindon coroner has the necessary resources to take on this workload and he already has considerable expertise in handling military inquests in consequence of the presence of RAF Lyneham in his jurisdiction as well as Wiltshire being regularly used for military exercises. In addition, the Wiltshire and Swindon coroner is also expected to transfer jurisdiction wherever possible to other coroners—normally to the jurisdiction of the next of kin—following the recent practice of the Oxfordshire coroner.

TRANSPORT

Gatwick Express

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Transport (Mr. Tom Harris): My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport announced, on 4 April 2007, the results of the recent consultation on the implementation of the Brighton Main Line (BML) Route Utilisation Strategy (RUS). I would like to take this opportunity to inform Parliament of the announcement.

The key conclusion is that the Gatwick Express will be retained as a non-stop service between Gatwick airport and London Victoria every 15 minutes. In addition, at the busiest times of day, the service will also run beyond Gatwick to Brighton, doubling the number of express trains between Brighton and London Victoria in the high peak. Unused carriages will be taken from storage and reconditioned to provide the extra trains. At least two extra trains will also run between Redhill and London in the peak. These changes will provide more than 3,700 seats into and out of London at the busiest times.

To facilitate this change, the existing Gatwick Express franchise will be ended in May 2008 to allow the creation of a new franchise that will include both the Gatwick Express and Southern services. The new Gatwick Express service will begin in December 2008 under the same branding and with the same frequency to and from the airport. Luggage storage will continue to be provided to accommodate the needs of airport passengers.

A stakeholder briefing document, giving summaries of the responses made by stakeholders to the consultation, and outlining how the key decisions were reached, was also published on 4 April 2007. This document has been placed in the Libraries of both Houses and can also be downloaded from the Department's website at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/consultations/closed/brightonmainlinerusconsultation/briefingdocument

This is the finalisation of the last of the RUSs that were started by the Strategic Rail Authority. All future RUSs, which are designed to show how the best use may be made of existing network capacity and to assess whether the available capacity can meet medium-term demand, will be led and published by Network Rail.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Freedom of Information Act

The Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs (Ms Harriet Harman): My noble Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, Baroness Ashton of Upholland, has made the following written ministerial statement:

"Today I have deposited copies of "The Freedom of Information Act 2000 - Statistics on Implementation in Central Government: October to December 2006" in the Libraries of both Houses. This is the eighth quarterly bulletin produced by the DCA monitoring the performance of central Government and associated bodies under the Freedom of Information Act 2000".

HOME DEPARTMENT

Justice and Home Affairs Council

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department (Joan Ryan): The Justice and Home Affairs Council will be held on 19-20 April 2007 in Luxembourg. The Attorney-General, Baroness Ashton (DCA), the Lord Advocate of Scotland, and I will represent the UK.

Four items in the field of civil legal co-operation feature on the agenda. The first is choice of law in divorce (Rome III). The UK did not opt in to this proposal under the terms of the Title IV protocol because of legal and practical issues relating to application of foreign law in this sensitive area. The presidency intends to seek agreement to various "guidelines" concerning the future of these negotiations. We understand a number of other member states have serious misgivings about this proposal as a whole.

On the proposed regulation on maintenance obligations, the presidency has tabled a paper proposing, among other things, arrangements under which member states could continue to make bilateral agreements with third countries notwithstanding the position as regards external community competence in this area. The Government support the overall aim but see no need for any cumbersome arrangements. The Government did not opt in to this proposal largely because of concerns about its potential impact on external bilateral and multilateral agreements.

On choice of law in contracts (Rome I) the presidency is bringing forward an uncontentious package of "guidelines" for agreement. The Government did not opt in to this proposal because of the likely economic impact of certain changes it would, as drafted, import to the 1980 Rome convention on the law applicable to contractual obligations. The contents of the presidency's package does not address key UK points which need to be resolved if the UK is to accept the measure. Those issues remain on the table for discussion at a future date.

The presidency has circulated a paper concerning the purpose, content and scope of the Common Frame of Reference (CFR) in European contract law. Among other things, the presidency wishes to confirm the status of the CFR as a "toolbox" for the European legislator. The Government welcome the general direction taken by the presidency's paper.

The presidency is expected to seek to reach a general approach on the framework decision on racism and xenophobia. The revised text addresses longstanding UK concerns. In particular it now focuses on combating more serious forms of racism and xenophobia through the criminal law and does not require member states to criminalise conduct that does not incite violence or hatred and is not carried out in a threatening, abusive or insulting manner. The text does not require the UK to amend our criminal law or create new offences. There is no longer a provision on mutual legal assistance, instead the usual EU rules will apply to requests for evidence in relation to these crimes. The Government have explained to the presidency that this remains subject to parliamentary scrutiny.

There will be discussion of the scope of the framework decision on certain procedural rights in criminal proceedings. The presidency will seek support for a binding instrument with a broad scope, covering all domestic and cross-border proceedings. The UK cannot support a binding instrument that applies to domestic cases and has tabled (with five other member states) a wide-ranging non-binding resolution on practical measures. We have said that we could accept a compromise package including a binding measure clearly limited to some cross-border cases accompanied by the resolution.

The presidency will provide a report on negotiations on the Council decision on the Future of Europol. They will outline the progress of discussions so far and will highlight that they hope to achieve agreement on the funding arrangements and staff regulations at the June Council. On the evidence available thus far the UK is yet to be persuaded that there are sufficient benefits to warrant the application of community financing and EC staff regulations.

The Commission will table a report on fighting the pull factors of illegal migration focusing on illegal employment, which will form the basis of the draft directive on illegal employment, which is due to be presented in May. The EU Commission has recently undertaken a survey of member states' measures to tackle illegal employment, within the framework of the Immigration and Asylum Committee. Views among member states do vary, with some seeking the ability to use both administrative and penal sanctions, others recommending the use of one, either penal or administrative, some in favour of a non-binding EU recommendation rather than a directive, and some recommending protective measures for illegally employed third-country nationals who wish to co-operate with the authorities. In its wide-ranging policy plan on illegal migration, which the JHA Council discussed in July 2006, the Commission noted with regard to illegal employment that the main priority should be the adoption of measures on employers' checks and certain penalties for employers by those member states who have not already taken such action, and effective implementation of these measures by all member states.

There will be an information point on progress with regards the forthcoming communications on extending the global approach to migration to the east and south-east, and on better organising legal movements of people between the European Union and third countries. The UK is committed to the development of the global approach to the east and south-east border land countries, although this should be done without reducing the work we are doing with Africa.

In the mixed committee format there will be discussion on the Schengen Information System, Frontex, the Data Protection Framework Decision and the Visa Information System.

There will be an update on the state of play of the SISone4all project, the network and of SIS II. SISone4all remains important to the new member states and they are keen to keep abreast of developments in terms of implementation. They are also interested in having regular ministerial discussions on SIS, to ensure it remains a Council priority, so the presidency has agreed to schedule discussion at this Council.

The presidency will update on the approval by the European Parliament (EP) Civil Liberties Committee (LIBE) of the draft Rapid Border Intervention Teams (RABITs) Regulation on 11 April, plans for the EP first reading plenary vote on 25 April and we expect adoption of the measure at the Council in June. While the UK is excluded from the RABITs Regulation (subject to the outcome of our current challenge before the European Court of Justice on exclusion from the Frontex Regulation which the RABITs Regulation in part amends) we would like UK immigration officers to be able to form part of the rapid pool for RABITs, and to take part in RABITs on a case by case basis, at the UK's request and with the agreement of the management board of Frontex. To this end the UK has proposed a Council declaration, to be added to the protocols when the measure is adopted at the June Council, repeating the UK's support for Frontex, highlighting the participation of the UK in Frontex activities, and inviting the agency and its management board to explore ways in which the UK can likewise practically support the operations of RABITs.

The Commission and Frontex will update on progress to establish a centralised register of member states' technical equipment (tool box), as provided for in the Frontex Regulation, to which member states are willing to donate for a temporary period, on a voluntary basis and upon request from another member state, to ensure that Frontex has the necessary means available to carry out effective joint operations. While the UK is not bound by the provisions of the Frontex Regulation we have nevertheless made available to Frontex certain new detection technology and forgery detection equipment for use in land border checks.

The Commission and Frontex will also provide an update on measures to reinforce the monitoring and surveillance of the southern maritime border of the EU through a European Surveillance System and European Patrol Network (EPN). There is likely to be some discussion on the initial EPN operation areas and clarity is still required on the remit of patrols (for example, in whose waters) and what obligations and operational requirements adhere to each. The UK is supportive of these efforts to co-ordinate activity to deal with the challenges of illegal seaborne migration at the southern EU border. As it is for Frontex and the Southern member states to reach agreement on exactly what they need to strengthen their border management in this region, our involvement has so far been in an observational capacity only.

The draft Council decision concerning access to the Visa Information System (VIS) for law enforcement purposes is also included on the agenda and the presidency will update the Council on progress. The presidency is keen to agree and adopt the Council decision at the June Council. It will present an updated Council decision which will allow for the text to be agreed without the UK and Ireland initially but with a declaration to return to the issue once the outcome of an ECJ case is available. We will reaffirm our position that the UK and Ireland should have access to the database.

The presidency will also report back to the Council on the outcome of the trilogue with the European Parliament and the Commission on 28 March with regard to the VIS Regulation. The UK does not participate in the Regulation.

Finally, I expect the presidency to circulate a council position on an EU response to the Iraqi refugee situation. This is likely to include a commitment to solidarity with those member states—in particular Sweden—under pressure (through technical support), a call on the Commission to analyse current statistics and grant rates in EU member states, plus a call for member states to step up resettlement of displaced Iraqis. The UK is in discussion with the UNHCR to explore ways in which the UK might be able to respond, within its existing Gateway resettlement programme, to the UNHCR's call to assist with the resettlement of displaced Iraqis.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Discretionary Social Fund

The Minister of State, Northern Ireland Office (Mr. David Hanson): I am pleased to announce that the Northern Ireland Discretionary Social Fund budget for 2007-08 will be £64.57 million; £13.62 million will be allocated to grants; £50.85 million to loans and £0.1 million will be held as a contingency reserve. The total gross budget is made up of Net Social Fund Provision from the Treasury of £20.99 million plus the amount of forecast loan recoveries for 2007-08, £43.58 million.

Details of the budget allocations together with a note explaining the basis on which they have been made, have been placed in the Libraries of the House.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Pro Bono Cases (Cost Recovery)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Constitutional Affairs (Vera Baird): My right hon. friend the Secretary of State for Constitutional Affairs and Lord Chancellor has made the following ministerial statement:

"The Department for Constitutional Affairs has published a consultation paper "Cost Recovery in Pro Bono Cases" on proposals for secondary legislation to implement the provisions provided for by clause 185 of the Legal Services Bill—payments in respect of representation provided pro bono. The consultation paper was published on 16 April 2007 and will run for 12 weeks. Closing date is 9 July 2007.

The Legal Services Bill (HL) published in November 2006 is currently before Parliament. Clause 185 (in part 8 of the Bill—Miscellaneous Provisions About Lawyers) is designed to amend civil costs law to enable costs to be recovered in cases where legal representation was provided 'pro bono'.

Pro bono work provides a valuable adjunct to the other forms of legal funding. This proposal will enable costs to be recovered in civil pro bono cases and will help level what has up to now been an uneven costs playing field. Cost orders will be made at the discretion of the courts and when made will be directed to a prescribed charity that will administer and distribute the monies to provide additional legal help and advice for those not otherwise able to afford it.

This initiative is supported by the Attorney-General's Pro Bono Co-ordinating Committee. The Committee was established in 2001 to promote and encourage the ethos of pro bono in the legal professions. Its members include representatives of the Bar, the Law Society, ILEX, the major pro bono organisations (including LawWorks and the Free Representational Unit) and the not for profit sector (including Citizens Advice, the Law Centres Federation and AdviceUK)".

DEFENCE

Iraqi Control (Maysan Province)

The Secretary of State for Defence (Des Browne): The formal transfer of responsibility for security from UK military forces to the Iraq civil authorities in Maysan province took place yesterday. The decision to transfer to provincial Iraqi control was taken by the Iraqi Government in close consultation with the coalition, based on a thorough assessment of the local security situation and the capability of the Iraqi security forces in the province. Maysan is the fourth of Iraq's 18 provinces to be handed over to Iraqi control, and the third of the four within the UK's area of operations in Multi-National Division (South East) (MND(SE)).

This is another important milestone that demonstrates the continuing progress in building Iraq's political institutions and security capacity. It underlines the progress made by the UK forces and our partners in MND(SE) and the growing maturity of the Iraqi security forces. Establishing provincial Iraqi control does not guarantee Maysan is a benign environment in security terms, or that future challenges may not arise, but it does mean the Iraq security forces are judged now to be able to respond effectively to those challenges themselves. The UK will continue to support them as they do so. Other provinces across Iraq will be transferred during 2007, including Basra province in MND (SE).

UK and coalition forces, which withdrew from fixed bases in Maysan province in August 2006, will continue training and mentoring the Iraqi security forces, particularly the Department of Border Enforcement, in order to improve border security. The Prime Minister's announcement on 21 February 2007, Official Report, columns 261-66, that force levels will reduce to around 5,500 by June this year took into account the likely transfer of security responsibility in Maysan.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Iran

The Minister for the Middle East (Dr. Kim Howells): On 24 March 2007, the United Nations Security Council adopted Resolution 1747, on Iran's nuclear programme. The Resolution was adopted by consensus, once again underlining that the international community is united and determined to see that Iran does not acquire the means to develop nuclear weapons.

Iran has not met its legal obligation in Security Council Resolutions 1696 (2006) and 1737 (2006) to suspend without further delay all enrichment related and reprocessing activities, and take the steps required by the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) Board of Governors. Nor has it met the additional obligations in Security Council Resolution 1737 (2006) to suspend work on all heavy water related projects and provide such access and co-operation as the IAEA requests to verify suspension and resolve all outstanding issues.

The latest report by the IAEA Director-General, Dr Mohammed El-Baradei, on 22 February 2007, shows that Iran's co-operation with the Agency remains inadequate, and that far from suspending enrichment related activities, Iran has continued to expand its enrichment operation and press ahead with construction work at the Arak heavy water research reactor.

We have therefore had little choice but to pursue a further Security Council Resolution, which reaffirms the obligations imposed on Iran and adopts further appropriate measures to persuade Iran to comply with its obligations and meet the requirements of the IAEA.

The Resolution imposes sanctions under Article 41 of Chapter VII of the UN Charter, which go further than the non-proliferation measures agreed in Security Council Resolution 1737 (2006). All UN member states have a legal obligation to comply, though not all measures are mandatory. The measures include:

A strengthening of the travel restrictions, so that states are called upon to exercise vigilance and restraint regarding the entry into or transit through their territory by designated individuals.

The designation of a number of new individuals subject to the travel restrictions and individuals and entities subject to the assets freeze, including Bank Sepah and Bank Sepah International

Inclusion of a new sub-category for designating individuals and entities connected to the Iran Republican Guard Corps (IRGC)

A mandatory arms embargo on exports and procurement from Iran

Restrictions on the export to Iran of items included in the UN Conventional Arms Register

Restrictions on financial assistance to the Government of Iran

The EU intends to adopt a revised Common Position covering full and rigorous implementation of the measures contained in the Resolution at the General Affairs and External Relations Council on 23 April.

The resolution requests the IAEA Director General to submit within 60 days a further report on Iranian compliance and affirms that the Security Council will adopt further appropriate measures under Article 41 of the UN Charter in the event that the report shows Iran has not complied with the terms of resolutions 1737 (2006) and 1747 (2007).

A copy of the resolution is available on the UN website at www.un.org/Docs/sc/unsc_resolutions07.htm.

We remain committed to a negotiated solution that would address the international community's concerns. E3+3 Foreign Ministers issued a statement after the adoption of the resolution reconfirming that our June 2006 proposals, attached in Annex II to the resolution, remained on the table. I urge Iran to take the positive path on offer by meeting in full the requirements of the Security Council and the IAEA Board and beginning negotiations with the E3+3 on the basis of those proposals. As the adoption of Resolution 1747 demonstrates, that is the clear and united wish of the whole international community.

HEALTH

Venous Thromboembolism

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Health (Mr. Ivan Lewis): In June 2005 we published the Government's response to the Second Report of the House of Commons Health Committee on the "Prevention of Venous Thromboembolism in Hospitals". At the same time we announced that an independent expert working group would be set up to make recommendations on developing a national strategy on the prevention and treatment of venous thromboembolism (VTE). The report and recommendations of the expert group were presented to the chief medical officer in July 2006.

We have given the expert group's recommendations thorough consideration and published the report today. The report has been placed in the Library.

It is clear from the expert group's report that introducing a VTE risk assessment for all patients on admission has the potential to save thousands of lives every year. We have therefore established an implementation working group which will develop a national risk assessment tool, and will also provide leadership both within the NHS and the wider healthcare sector in order to assess what needs to be done to ensure that a VTE risk assessment of every patient on admission to hospital becomes a reality.

Dental Treatment

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Caroline Flint): Given the national interest in vCJD and its implications for the health of the nation, I report a change in health care practice being announced today in a letter to all dentists in England from the Chief Dental Officer. His letter is about decontamination and reuse of instruments, especially those used in endodontic treatment. This letter reflects precautionary advice from the Spongiform Encephalopathy Advisory Committee and early results of ongoing research indicating a potential risk of vCJD transmission associated with endodontic treatment.

The Chief Dental Officer advises that:

endodontic reamers and files are treated as single use;

the highest standards of decontamination are observed for all dental instruments; and manufacturers' decontamination instructions are followed for all instruments, and where instruments are difficult to clean, single use instruments should be used wherever possible.

A copy of the Chief Dental Officer's letter has been placed in the Library.

TREASURY

Statistics Board

The Financial Secretary to the Treasury (John Healey): The Statistics and Registration Service Bill, which is currently going through Parliament, will establish an independent statistics board that is outside ministerial control and reports to Parliament. The board will have statutory responsibilities to promote and safeguard the production and publication of official statistics that serve the public good, and the quality and comprehensiveness of those statistics.

To ensure that the funding arrangements for the new board reinforce statutory independence, the Government have taken the decision to set funding for the statistics board outside of the normal spending review process, and to guarantee the board funding certainty over a period of five years. The 2007 Budget announced the funding settlement of £1.2 billion over the next five years for the new statistics board. The settlement applies to the years 2007-08 to 2011-12 and provides planning and funding certainty for the development of the new board and the effective discharge of its remit from the intended establishment of the new system by spring 2008.

The Bill provides for the Government's intention that the board will be constituted by a majority of external, non-executive members selected through open competition. As I announced at Second Reading of the Bill, 8 Jan 2007, Official Report, column 35, the Government's aim is—> "to have appointed a shadow chair, with appropriate support for that chair, before the start of the new system, so that many of the crucial aspects of planning for the implementation can be steered and led by that shadow chair. I hope that the appointment will be made during the course of this year."

Given the importance of having these non-executive positions filled at an early stage the Treasury is starting the recruitment process for the chair and non-executive directors of the new board.

Parliamentary approval for additional resources of £305,500 for this new body will be sought in the main estimate for the Treasury. However, no expenditure from within this voted provision will take place until Parliament has also approved the Statistics and Registration Service Bill. Pending that approval, this expenditure will be met by a repayable cash advance from the contingencies fund. This expenditure will be met from within the Treasury's existing budgetary provision and does not imply an increase in its Departmental expenditure limit.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Personal Injury Claims

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Constitutional Affairs (Vera Baird): My right hon. and noble Friend the Secretary of State and Lord Chancellor has made the following written ministerial statement:

"I have today published a consultation paper "Case Track Limits and the Claims Process for Personal Injury Claims."

The paper reviews the case track limits for civil claims as provided for in part 26 of the civil procedure rules. It proposes that the fast track limit should be increased to £25,000, but that there should be no change to the small claims limits, including those for personal injury and housing disrepair claims.

The paper also considers ways to improve the claims process for personal injury cases to make it more timely, proportionate and cost-effective. It makes proposals for a new system based around the principles of early notification of a claim, early admissions of liability, the removal of duplication of work, fixed time periods and fixed recoverable costs.

Copies of the consultation paper have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses and can also be obtained free on the Department's website at http://www.dca.gov.uk/consult/conft.htm#full The closing date for consultation is 13 July 2007."

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

General Affairs and External Relations Council

The Minister for Europe (Mr. Geoffrey Hoon): The General Affairs and External Relations Council (GAERC) will be held on 23 April in Luxembourg. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs will represent the UK.

The agenda items are as follows:

External Relations

World Trade Organisation/Doha Development Round

The Commission is expected to update the Council on its latest contacts, including the G4 ministerial in New Delhi.

Bilateral Mandates for Negotiations of Free Trade Agreements and Association Agreements

The Council is expected to agree mandates for the Commission to negotiate free trade agreements with the ASEAN countries, India and South Korea and Association agreements with the Central Americas and Community of Andean Nations.

Gulf Cooperation Council

Commissioner Mandelson is expected to brief the Council on progress on negotiations between the EU and the Gulf Cooperation Council on a free trade agreement.

EU-US Summit

The presidency is expected to brief the Council on preparations for the EU-US summit on 30 April including plans for a declaration covering political, economic and climate change issues. The Government support the presidency's objectives for the summit, particularly its desire to move transatlantic cooperation on economic and climate security issues forward.

Sudan

The Council is expected to discuss recent developments in Sudan and will be briefed by UN Special Envoy for Darfur Jan Eliasson. Although the Government of Sudan have now accepted the second phase of the UN support for the African Union peacekeeping force, they have yet to accept the third phase, a hybrid African Union/UN force. The Government want the EU to maintain pressure on Khartoum to accept the full African Union/UN peacekeeping force as well as the ceasefire and reinvigorated political process agreed in Addis Ababa last November.

Zimbabwe

The Council is expected to discuss the situation in Zimbabwe and adopt conclusions that the Government will argue should condemn recent and ongoing human rights abuses and extend the EU's visa ban list in response while welcoming the commitment of the Southern African Development Community to engage in efforts to resolve the crisis in Zimbabwe.

Somalia

The Council is expected to discuss the situation in Somalia and adopt conclusions expressing concern about the recent violence in Somalia and stressing the importance of implementing the UNSCR 1744 in addressing the political, security and humanitarian challenges in Somalia. The Government will stress the need for the EU to continue to work for full implementation of UNSCR 1744, particularly for the National Reconciliation Congress in Mogadishu to convene as soon as possible and for the rapid deployment of further elements of the African Union's mission to Somalia.

Central Asia

The Council is expected to discuss the presidency's plans for an EU Central Asia strategy and agree conclusions noting the second round of EU-Uzbekistan expert talks on Andizhan and the decision to establish a regular, results-orientated human rights dialogue with Uzbekistan.

The Government support the presidency's plans to increase engagement in the region, which it will want to ensure reflects the EU's human rights concerns.

Iran

The Council is expected to agree a common position implementing UNSCR 1747. The Government will underline Iran's lack of progress against United Nations Security Council, International Atomic Energy Agency and EU benchmarks and the consequent need to maintain international pressure, which is beginning to prompt debate within the regime.

The high representative for the common foreign and security policy Javier Solana, is likely to brief the Council on contacts with Ali Larijani, Secretary of Iran's Supreme National Security Council, as part of the EU's agreed twin track approach.

Western Balkans

The presidency is expected to update the Council on the situation in the western Balkans.

The February Council conclusions set out the EU's support for former President Ahtisaari's proposals on Kosovo's status and make the restart of stabilisation and association agreement talks with Serbia conditional upon concrete action by a new Serb Government on co-operation with the International Criminal Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia. The Government fully support this position.

Middle East Peace Process

The Council is expected to welcome the Arab League Peace Initiative and to extend the temporary international mechanism for support to the Palestinians for three months while setting out that the EU's long-term goal is to resume direct budgetary assistance once there is a Palestinian Government whose policy and actions reflect the three Quartet principles. The Council should also highlight the importance of building the capacity of Palestinian institutions, a position the Government support as essential in achieving success in political negotiations.

International Moratorium on the Death Penalty

Italy has asked to discuss EU action to promote a global moratorium and eventual abolition of the death penalty. The Government fully support this important EU objective.

HEALTH

Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Caroline Flint): I have received the business plan for the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) which has been placed in the Library.

The agency has an important role to protect public health in the United Kingdom by ensuring that all medicines and medical devices in the UK work and are acceptably safe. The business plan for 2007-08 sets out specific key and high level targets for the agency for the coming year.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Mental Capacity Act 2005 (Code of Practice)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Constitutional Affairs (Vera Baird): My right hon. and noble Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs, Baroness Ashton of Upholland, has made the following written ministerial statement:

"My noble and learned Friend the Secretary of State and Lord Chancellor has today issued the Mental Capacity Act 2005 Code of Practice. Copies have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

In accordance with Section 43 of the Act, the Code was laid in draft before both Houses of Parliament on 23 February 2007 for a period of 40 days. That period has now elapsed and today the Lord Chancellor has issued the Code in its final form.

The Act requires a range of people to 'have regard' to the Code, for example those acting in relation to a person lacking capacity in a paid or professional role. On 1 April 2007, those aspects of the Act relating to Independent Mental Capacity Advocates and the new criminal offence of ill-treatment or neglect came into force. Anyone who is required to have regard to the Code will need to have regard to it in relation to those matters from 23 April. All other provisions of the Act are due to come into force on 1 October 2007. Those with a duty to have regard to the Code will need to have regard to it for all other purposes from that date.

The Code of Practice will be a valuable source of information and guidance on the Mental Capacity Act and I am convinced that it will play an important role in shaping the way the Act is put into practice."

WORK AND PENSIONS

Households Below Average Income

The Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Mr. John Hutton): "Households Below Average Income 1994-95 - 2005-06" was published on 27 March 2007. After publication the production team found an error had occurred because incorrect population estimates were used to generate the dataset for 2005-06, upon which the publication was based.

Most of the key headline figures from the publication are unaffected by this error. Looking at the measures of relative poverty, correcting the error has had no impact on reported child poverty for 2005-06. However, the revised figures do see an increase in reported poverty among working age adults, which is seen on both the "Before Housing Costs" and "After Housing Costs" measures. The revisions see both measures increase by an extra 100,000 under the rounding conventions, from 5.3 million to 5.4 million on the former basis and from 7.1 million to 7.2 million on the latter basis. Furthermore, although the revisions have no impact on the reported level of relative pensioner poverty, the rounding conventions we use now mean that we no longer see a change in measured pensioner poverty between 2004-05 and 2005-06.

Looking at measures of absolute poverty, the correction of the error has similar effects as on the measures of relative poverty, with no increase in reported measures of child poverty or pensioner poverty and a small increase in reported poverty among working age adults.

Key headline results for the number of households in relative and absolute poverty, including changes as a result of the revisions, are being placed in the House Libraries. These revisions have been quality assured and verified by the Institute for Fiscal Studies.

The error does require reproduction of all the statistics and the re-release of the report. The changes to the HBAI statistics also affect other DWP publications, specifically "Pension Credit estimates of Take-up 2005-06", and "The Pensioners' Income Series 2005-06" but both to a minor extent, either in terms of the number of tables affected, or the extent of the change.

We anticipate the full set of statistics to be completed by the first half of May. We will announce a release date through the National Statistical website, in line with National Statistics protocols.

DEFENCE

Iraq

The Secretary of State for Defence (Des Browne): I am pleased to announce that UK forces will today recommence boarding operations in the Gulf that were suspended following the seizure of Royal Navy and Royal Marines personnel by the Iranians on 23 March 2007.

Pending the results of the inquiries set up to identify any lessons we can learn from this incident, we have taken measures, in line with the findings of initial reviews of procedures, to ensure the risk to boarding operations is minimised. This will involve an incremental return to full boarding operations in all areas. This approach in no way affects overall coalition naval operations in the Gulf.

As I announced to the House on Monday 16 April, Official Report, columns 23-26, there will be two inquiries, aimed at learning lessons from the events surrounding the seizure of RN personnel.

First, the Chief of the Defence Staff has initiated an inquiry into the operational circumstances, consequences and implications of the apprehension by Iranians of the 15 Royal Navy and Royal Marines personnel from HMS Cornwall. The inquiry will be led by Lieutenant-General Sir Rob Fulton RM (Retd), currently the Governor and Commander-in-Chief, Gibraltar.

The terms of reference of the inquiry are to establish the circumstances and to examine the policy, strategy and operational frameworks within which boardings were conducted and the way that these were given effect through coalition command and control arrangements. The inquiry will cover the risk and threat assessment, strategic and operational planning, tactical decisions, rules of engagement, training, equipment and resources. The Chief of the Defence Staff has also directed General Fulton to consider specific operational issues, the details of which remain classified. This inquiry is due to report in May 2007.

Secondly, I have asked a small team to conduct a review of media access to individual personnel involved in operations, particularly in such high-profile incidents. This review will draw on all relevant experience, including recent incidents and other high-profile incidents; consider how best to manage the complex issues at play, including in balancing our responsibilities to support our people and their families, to safeguard the security of our people and operations, to protect the reputation of the Services, and to meet the requirements of transparency in a demanding media environment; identify lessons and make recommendations for any necessary changes in policy, regulations, processes and practice, including in relation to media payments to our personnel.

The review team will be led by Tony Hall, the Chief Executive of the Royal Opera House and formerly the BBC's Director of News and Current Affairs, who is also a non-executive member of the Board of Channel 4. He is well qualified to lead this work. The other members will be Patrick Turner, a senior civil servant in the Ministry of Defence, and Major-General Andrew Stewart, Assistant Chief of Defence Staff (Policy) in the Ministry of Defence. I expect this work to report in a broadly similar time-frame.

PRIME MINISTER

Committee on Standards in Public Life

The Prime Minister (Mr. Tony Blair): I am pleased to announce that I have appointed Rita Donaghy CBE as Interim Chair of the Committee on Standards in Public Life with effect from 26 April 2007, following the end of Sir. Alistair Graham's term of appointment. Rita has been a member of the Committee since 1 March 2001.

DEFENCE

Cyprus

The Minister of State, Ministry of Defence (Mr. Adam Ingram): A new call-out order has been made under Section 56 of the Reserve Forces Act 1996 to enable members of the reserve forces to be called out into permanent service and deployed to Cyprus as part of the UK's contribution to the United Nations Forces in Cyprus (UNFICYP). It is planned for the first group of reservists to commence six-month operational tours in October 2007; the exact number involved has yet to be determined but is expected to be about 120. Subsequent groups may vary in size but in all cases the reservists will relieve the corresponding number of regular soldiers involved with UNFICYP to be deployed to other commitments. We envisage that the majority of reservists will come from TA artillery and engineer regiments as these units have a lower proportion of members with recent operational experience. The call-out order has effect until 30 April 2008.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Construction Industry Training Board

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (Maria Eagle): I am pleased to announce the publication of the Construction Industry Training Board Annual Report and Accounts for the 2005-06 financial year.

This document is now available in the Library.

Independent Monitoring Commission

The Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (Mr. Peter Hain): I have received the Fifteenth Report of the Independent Monitoring Commission (IMC). This report has been made under Articles 4 and 7 of the International Agreement that established the Commission and it reports on levels of paramilitary activity in Northern Ireland. I have considered the content of the Report and I am today bringing it before Parliament. I have placed copies in the Library of the House.

The report reaffirms the IRA's continuing commitment to a political path. The IMC welcomes the decision of the Sinn Fein Ard Fheis to support policing as > "clear evidence of the commitment, efforts and clearly expressed decisions of the leadership of the movement as a whole to pursue the political path and of their effective management of the strategy"

At a practical level, there were a number of instances in which republicans had co-operated with the PSNI, giving further evidence that this commitment to support policing and the rule of law goes beyond words. The IMC concludes that there is no threat to the leadership's strategy from any dissenting opinion within the mainstream Republican movement.

However, the threat from dissident republicans remains. Despite some notable successes by the police North and South, these groups are ruthless and dangerous, and their intent to cause harm and destruction is undiminished. They will not, however, deter us from achieving political progress and long-term stability.

On loyalism, the picture is mixed. Violence and criminal activity continue and the pace of change has been slow. The report sends out a strong message to loyalists: they cannot make any argument for paramilitary activity and the retention of weapons. The IMC recognises the efforts of the loyalist leadership and welcomes initiatives in support of community development. However, the time has come to > "move beyond intentions and words to action which is overt and has an identifiable practical impact on the ground".

The Government firmly endorse this message. Society is changing rapidly: there can be no place for violence and gangsterism in this modern, prosperous society. Mainstream republicanism has recognized the changing course of history and taken major steps in response. The last hurdles to political settlement have been overcome and devolved Government will be restored on 8 May following the landmark agreement between the DUP and Sinn Fein to share power together. This is something many people never thought they would see in their lifetimes.

Loyalist paramilitaries must catch up with these transformations before the moment is lost. The onus is now on them to put words into action, place the interests of their communities first and seize this opportunity to secure a peaceful and prosperous future.

Once again, I am grateful to the Commission for its submission of this Report and for its careful analysis. The report offers a clear picture of both the extraordinary progress made and the challenges ahead to secure an end to paramilitarism in Northern Ireland.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Northern Ireland Prison Service Corporate and Business Plan 2007-2010

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (Paul Goggins): I have placed copies of the Northern Ireland Prison Service's Corporate and Business Plan for 2007-2010 in the Libraries of both Houses.

The Corporate and Business Plan contains Key Performance Targets I have set for the Service for 2007-08. These are:

1. No escape for top and high-risk prisoners.

2. No more than three escapes per 1000 medium and low risk prisoners.

3. The number of staff assaulted by prisoners is less than a ratio of three per 100 prisoners.

4. The number of prisoners assaulted by prisoners is less than a ratio of four per 100 prisoners.

5. An average of at least 20 hours constructive activity per week for each sentenced prisoner.

6. An average of at least 10 hours constructive activity per week for each remand prisoner.

7. To ensure 87 per cent. of prisoners serving six months or more are working to a resettlement plan and that 97 per cent. of lifers work to a life sentence plan, including preparation of the plan, within the first six months of sentence.

8. Each member of staff should receive an average of five training days.

9. Reduce the rate of absenteeism to 13 days per head by 2007-08 with an overall reduction to 11 days by 2009-10.

10. Lay the Annual Report and Audited Accounts before Parliament prior to the summer recess.

11. Ensure the average cost per prisoner place does not exceed £82,500.

Northern Ireland Health and Social Services Estates Agency (Health Estates) (Performance Targets) (2007-08)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (Paul Goggins): The targets, which have been set for 2007-08, are based on the strategic aim and objectives of the Agency as set out in Section 4 of its Corporate and Business Plan. The targets are in line with the Department's policy of seeking to improve the service provided to the Agency's clients in terms of both quality and value for money and I am satisfied that they present a demanding challenge for the Agency. A copy of the Corporate and Business Plan will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Quality Targets

1. A total of 95 per cent. of the service provided by the Agency's Client Support staff to external clients to be regarded as satisfactory, of which 35 per cent. of the service to be regarded as either very good or excellent.

2. A total of 95 per cent. of the service provided by the Agency's Project Management staff to external clients to be regarded as satisfactory, of which 35 per cent. of the service to be regarded as either very good or excellent.

3. A total of 95 per cent. of the service provided by the Agency's Specialist Engineering staff to external clients to be regarded as satisfactory, of which 35 per cent. of the service to be regarded as either very good or excellent.

Throughput/Service Delivery Targets

4. Issue all Medical Device/Equipment Alerts with an Immediate Action level of urgency designated initiated by the Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) within three working days on receipt of final MHRA Alert (provided that no further consultation is involved).

5. Issue all Medical Device/Equipment Alerts with an "Action" level of urgency designation initiated by the Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) within five working days on receipt of final MHRA Alert (provided that no further consultation is involved).

6. Issue a High Voltage Alert within four working days from receipt and assessment of an applicable Electricity Network Association Notice or other safety information in relation to High Voltage equipment installed in the HPSS.

7. Complete a review of HPSS Catering Operations by November 2007 and take forward the development of a HPSS Catering Strategy by March 2008.

8. Complete an assessment of the HPSS position against "Essence of Care" in regard to the Council of Europe Statement on hospital food nutrition by 30 November 2007 and lead the exploration of appropriate initiatives to improve nutritional standards by 31 March 2008.

9. Develop a regional strategy for laundry and linen services by 30 November 2007.

10. Publish a Carbon and Energy Savings Strategy in the Health and Personal Social Services Estate by 31 March 2008.

Resource and Financial Management Targets

11. Ensure the Agency meets its commitment to "Fit for Purpose" and DRC reductions and its target of a reduction of 19 posts by 31 March 2008.

12. Ensure that the Agency lives within its running cost allocation for the year.

13. Demonstrate that the full costs of the Agency are recouped, on a notional basis, through the Service Level Agreement with the Department.

PRIME MINISTER

Cabinet Secretaries/Joint Intelligence Committee (Official Histories)

The Prime Minister (Mr. Tony Blair): I have appointed Ian Beesley to write the official history of the Secretaries to the Cabinet. I have also appointed Dr. Michael Goodman to write the official history of the Joint Intelligence Committee.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

"UK Airports" Office of Fair Trading Report

The Minister for Trade (Mr. Ian McCartney): We welcomed this Office of Fair Trading (OFT) report, which was published on 12 December 2006. As part of their statutory role, the OFT actively investigates markets that do not appear to be meeting the needs of consumers and publishes the results of these inquiries. Market studies are undertaken in areas where there are concerns that a particular market is not working well for consumers but where competition or consumer regulation enforcement action does not appear, immediately, to be the appropriate response.

While we note that the focus of the report is related to the functions of the independent competition authorities, we recognise the value of an early response to the three particular issued aimed at Government, namely:

Government should publish criteria for de-designation of airports.

The Civil Aviation Authority (CAA) should advise the Department for Transport (DfT) whether to de-designate Manchester airport before the statutory price control reference to the Competition Commission (CC) is due.

Government should consider transferring decisions on designation to the CAA.

These recommendations are fully in line with Government policy that regulation should only be necessary when a competitive environment cannot deliver benefits to consumers. The DfT published a consultation document on the de-designation criteria on 26 February 2007 and once the outcome of this is known, they will undertake a further consultation on the de-designation of Manchester and Stansted airports. However, we believe it would be premature to consider transfer of decisions on designation to the CAA in advance of a reference by OFT of the supply of airport services to the CC—which OFT also announced it proposed to do in its report. The airport services market could be significantly altered by the outcome of such a reference.

The full Government action plan copies of OFT's report will be placed in the Members' Library. In preparing this response, we have worked closely with the relevant Government Departments, in particular the Department for Transport, which is responsible for policy on airports in the UK.

Post Mortem Procedures (Nuclear Industry)

The Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (Mr. Alistair Darling): Further to my statement to the House on Wednesday 18 April 2007, Official Report, columns 301-02, I am now able to announce the terms of reference for the inquiry that I have asked Mr. Michael Redfern QC to carry out. They are as follows.

(a) Having regard to the provisions of the Human Tissue Act 1961, the Coroners' Rules 1984, the Coroners' Act 1988 and predecessor legislation, to inquire into the circumstances in which, between 1961 and 1992, organs/tissue were removed from 65 individuals, and were sent to and analysed at Sellafield.

(b) In particular, to establish so far as practicable:

(i) when, where, by whom and by what means the taking of organs/tissue was requested and authorised;

(ii) whether the taking of organs/tissue was based on informed consent by the family and/or surviving relatives;

(iii) the purpose to be achieved by the retention and analysis of the organs/tissue removed; the generic results of analysis; and the identity of all publications in which the results were presented and commented upon;

(iv) whether the families or surviving relatives were informed of the results of the analysis, or the identity of the relevant publications;

(v) when and by whom the retention, storage, transportation, analysis, reporting and disposal of the organs/tissue was authorised;

(vi) the circumstances in which the organs/tissue were retained, stored, transported, analysed, reported upon and disposed of;

(vii) the general purpose to be served by such retention, storage, analysis and publication of the results;

(viii) when this activity ceased, and the circumstances in which it ceased.

(c) To consider such other issues in connection with the above matters as the Secretary of State may direct.

(d) To report to the Secretary of State as soon as possible.

(e) To make recommendations.

Since my statement to the House, the UK Atomic Energy Authority (UKAEA) and the Atomic Weapons Establishment (AWE) have begun to examine their records to identify if tests on autopsy tissues were carried out at any of the sites for which they are, or have been responsible, other than Sellafield. The UKAEA tell me that they believe such work was carried out at Harwell, at least until the early 1980s, and possibly at other UKAEA sites, potentially involving work related to individuals who had not been employed at nuclear sites. The AWE believes that there could have been additional testing on their employees. In light of this information, and in line with what I told the House last week, I have therefore asked Michael Redfern QC to make this additional information part of his considerations.

DEFENCE

Board of Inquiry (Loss of Lynx XZ614)

The Minister of State, Ministry of Defence (Mr. Adam Ingram): I am announcing today the findings of a Board of Inquiry (BOI) into the tragic incident in Basra, Iraq on 6 May 2006 when a Lynx helicopter based at Basra Air Station crashed, killing all five of its occupants—Wing Commander Coxen, Lieutenant Commander Chapman, Flight Lieutenant Mulvihill, Captain Dobson and Marine Collins. I pay tribute to them, and to the brave men and women of our armed forces, who continue to face hostile conditions on a daily basis. Our thoughts are with all their families and friends.

I will arrange for copies of the Military Air Accident Summary and the Main Board of Inquiry, redacted in accordance with guidance on the Freedom of Information Act and the Data Protection Act, to be placed in the Library of the House. Both documents will also be published on the MOD website at www.foi.mod.uk

The key conclusion of the BOI is that the Lynx was shot down by a surface-to-air missile using a Man Portable Air Defence System fired from the ground. The next of kin have been informed of the Board's conclusions and have been presented with copies of the relevant documentation. This information has also been provided to the Oxfordshire Assistant Deputy Coroner who is scheduled to hear the inquest into the deaths of these Service Personnel.

The BOI made seven recommendations. Action has been taken to implement all of the Board's recommendations and those arising from the subsequent Technical Investigation, details of which I am not making public in order to protect the security and operational effectiveness of our armed forces.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Veterinary Medicines Directorate (Performance Targets for 2007-08)

The Minister for Local Environment, Marine and Animal Welfare (Mr. Ben Bradshaw): I have set the Veterinary Medicines Directorate (VMD) the following Performance Targets for 2007-08.

1. To authorise veterinary medicines according to legislative requirements and published standards and monitor reports of suspected adverse reactions to identify emerging trends and take appropriate action.

2. To ensure that UK policy objectives are reflected in EC legislation and guidance and that UK legislation and guidance enables veterinary medicines to be used responsibly, effectively and safely.

3. To ensure the regulatory system is effective and contributes to protecting public health by taking risk-based action on the findings from surveillance of residues in food-producing animals.

4. To ensure that the appropriate infrastructure is in place to achieve targets 1, 2 and 3 and provide value for money and VMD achieves full cost recovery.

Further details are given in the VMD Business Plan for 2007-08, copies of which have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

HEALTH

Medical Training Application Service

The Secretary of State for Health (Ms Patricia Hewitt): The Department has been made aware of an incident on 25 April, whereby personal data held on the Medical Training Application Service (MTAS) was made available through unauthorised channels.

The security breach concerned the application details of medical students applying to the foundation programme. This breach had no impact on the current recruitment of junior doctors into specialty training. The data was accessible only for a short period of time on 25 April. Details of the website address were leaked to the media. The MTAS team removed the data as soon as the error was brought to their attention. The Department, of course, deplores such leaks.

On 26 April the Department was made aware of some problems on the MTAS site. We have therefore decided to suspend the site while we perform full independent security tests. We expect the suspension to have minimal impact on the current round of recruitment into specialty training.

We take security very seriously and the breaches are under urgent investigation by the Department. This investigation will seek to establish how the security breaches arose, who accessed any data without authorisation and what steps need to be taken to prevent a recurrence.

I will keep the House updated on further developments.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Government Chemist Review (2006)

The Minister for Science and Innovation (Malcolm Wicks): The 10th Annual Review of the Government Chemist has been received. The Review will be laid before the Scottish Parliament and copies will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses plus those of the devolved Administrations in Wales and Northern Ireland.

TREASURY

Financial Services Authority

The Economic Secretary to the Treasury (Ed Balls): I have laid before both Houses of Parliament a report into the economy, efficiency and effectiveness with which the Financial Services Authority (FSA) has used its resources, when discharging its statutory functions. This review was undertaken by the National Audit Office and is the first to be carried out under section 12 of the Financial Services and Markets Act—the Act that established the FSA, five years ago.

The remit of the review—which was arrived at following consultation with key stakeholders of the FSA—addresses five broad areas of the authority's work:

internal performance management;
external joint-working within the UK;
influencing and representation internationally;
financial crime; and financial capability.

Copies of the report are available in the Vote Office and the Printed Paper Office.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Mental Capacity Act 2005 (Fees for Court of Protection and the Office of the Public Guardian)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Constitutional Affairs (Vera Baird): My right hon. and noble Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Constitutional Affairs, Baroness Ashton of Upholland, has made the following written ministerial statement.

"Today the Government are publishing the Government response to the consultation on the fees for the new Court of Protection and the Office of the Public Guardian both established under the Mental Capacity Act 2005. The consultation ended on 29 November 2006 and 65 responses were received. The consultation response provides a summary of responses and the next steps in light of the consultation. Copies have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

The new Court of Protection will have jurisdiction to deal with decision-making for adults who lack capacity. The new statutory Office of the Public Guardian will maintain registers of deputies and attorneys, supervise deputies in their duties and deal with representations about the way attorneys and deputies are exercising their powers".

DEFENCE

MOD Contracts

The Minister of State, Ministry of Defence (Mr. Adam Ingram): The Ministry of Defence has agreed to lower the threshold for the advertising of MOD contracts. This will give greater encouragement to small and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs) to enter MOD business and is designed to further enhance the visibility and transparency of the UK defence equipment market.

Currently "non-warlike" requirements valued in excess of £93,000 are advertised in the Official Journal of the European Union (OJEU) and the MOD Defence Contracts Bulletin. "Warlike" requirements are only advertised in the bulletin if their value exceeds £500,000. In addition to this, "warlike" requirements exceeding £685,000 (€1 million) are advertised on the European Defence Agency's Electronic Bulletin Board.

The changes to this will be phased in. On 30 April 2007, the threshold for "warlike" requirements will be lowered to £93,000. On 30 June 2007, this threshold will be lowered once more to £40,000. The threshold for "non-warlike" requirements will also be reduced to £40,000 on 30 June 2007. Furthermore, from 30 June, MOD project teams will be encouraged to consider advertising requirements with values as low as £20,000. This change could generate up to 7,000 additional adverts a year.

In line with one of the key themes of the defence industrial strategy, this is one of a range of initiatives aimed at making the MOD easier for small and medium-sized companies to do business with. The MOD is committed to being SME-friendly as these companies play a crucial role in UK defence business and represent a significant core of direct suppliers to the Department. For example, in 2005 just over half of the defence contracts let were placed with SMEs, with a value of over half a billion pounds. Consequently this change has been welcomed by the defence trade associations.

The MOD already leads the way in the transparency of its tender and contract opportunities and procedures. In instigating the change we are being consistent with the general direction of EU policy and the work of the Office of Government Commerce. This change complements the European Defence Agency code of best practice in the supply chain as well as the recently launched electronic bulletin board step 2. It is hoped that this will encourage similar moves by our European colleagues.

It is a significant development and one which it is hoped will promote a dynamic and competitive supplier base.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

General Affairs and External Relations Council

The Minister for Europe (Mr. Geoffrey Hoon): My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary and Sir John Grant (UK Permanent Representative to the EU) represented the UK at the General Affairs and External Relations Council (GAERC) in Luxembourg on 23 April 2007.

The agenda items covered were as follows:

External Relations

World Trade Organisation/Doha Development Round

External Relations Commissioner Benita Ferrero-Waldner briefed the Council on negotiations between the G4 (EU, United States, Brazil and India) and with the G6 (the G4 and Australia and Japan) in New Delhi on 11 and 12 April.

Gulf Co-operation Council

The Commission briefed the Council on negotiations between the EU and the Gulf Co-operation Council (Bahrain, Kuwait, Oman, Qatar, Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates) on a Free Trade Agreement.

The Council also took note of preparations for the EU-Gulf Co-operation Council Ministerial in Riyadh on 8 May.

EU-US Summit

The presidency briefed the Council on negotiations with the US ahead of the Summit on 30 April including plans for a political declaration and proposals for strengthening transatlantic economic relations and those on energy and climate change.

There was a broad-ranging discussion in the Council focusing on energy and climate change and visa waiver arrangements.

My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary intervened to underline the Government's support for the presidency's efforts in taking forward work on climate change, briefed partners on the recent UN Security Council debate on climate security and suggested Ministers look further at ways the EU could take forward work in this area.

Sudan

The Council discussed Sudan on the basis of a briefing by UN Special Envoy for Darfur, Jan Eliasson, who underlined the EU's role in humanitarian, development and peacekeeping assistance, including financing for the African Union Mission in Sudan. Eliasson also welcomed the Government's initiative to discuss the situation in Sudan at the UN Security Council last week.

The Council welcomed the agreement between the Sudanese Government, the UN and the African Union on the implementation of the UN's heavy support package, the second stage of a three-stage plan to restore peace to the Darfur region. The Government and other member states supported the need to continue diplomatic engagement with the Sudanese to accept the third stage, the deployment of a full African Union/UN peacekeeping force, as well as the ceasefire and reinvigorated political process agreed in Addis Ababa last November. However, if the Sudanese Government failed to comply; the EU should be prepared to consider further measures. There was broad support for this approach in the Council.

The Council adopted conclusions expressing concern at the appalling security and humanitarian situation in Darfur and stressing the urgent need for an inclusive political agreement to solve the conflict while reiterating the Council's readiness to consider further measures, notably, in the UN framework, against any party which obstructs implementation of the agreements already reached with the Government of Sudan.

Zimbabwe

The Council discussed the deteriorating human rights and political situation in Zimbabwe while welcoming the mandate given to South African President Mbeki by the Southern African Development Community to mediate between the opposition and the Government.

Following a UK proposal, the Council adopted conclusions extending the EU's visa ban list to include two additional individuals with responsibility for recent violence and human rights abuses.

Somalia

The Council discussed the renewed violence in Somalia and adopted conclusions stressing the importance of implementing United Nations Security Council Resolution 1744 to address the political, security and humanitarian challenges faced in Somalia; expressing grave concern at the escalation of the conflict and urging the Transitional Federal Government to convene the National Reconciliation Congress as soon as possible. The conclusions also reaffirm the Council's support for the African Union Mission in Somalia (AMISOM) while recalling the EU's contribution of €15 million.

Central Asia

The presidency briefed the Council on the draft EU Central Asia Strategy including the Foreign Ministers meeting with the five Central Asian countries in Astana on 27 and 28 March.

The Council adopted conclusions taking note of the second round of expert talks with Uzbekistan on Andizhan in Tashkent on 2 and 3 April and decided to enter into a regular, result-oriented human rights dialogue with Uzbekistan. The Government support these talks as a means of encouraging Uzbekistan to make concrete progress on human rights concerns.

Iran

The Council discussed relations with Iran.

The High Representative for the Common Foreign and Security Policy, Javier Solana, briefed the Council on his contacts with Ali Larijani, Secretary of Iran's Supreme National Security Council.

My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary briefed the Council on the lessons learned from the capture of the naval personnel, emphasising the impact of strong international pressure, and thanked partners for their support.

The Council also adopted a Common Position implementing United Nations Security Council Resolution 1747 and a Council Decision applying the travel ban and assets freeze in the Regulation to individuals and entities who meet the UN criteria in Resolutions 1737 and 1747 but who have not been designated by the UN. The Common Position also introduces a full formal EU arms embargo.

Middle East Peace Process

The Council discussed the Middle East Peace Process and looked forward to further work by the Quartet, including co-operation with Arab partners.

The Council adopted conclusions: stressing the need for continuing support to the Palestinian institutions; endorsing the extension of the Temporary International Mechanism for a further three months; welcoming the Arab Peace Initiative as a major element in moving the political process forward; and the ongoing dialogue between President Abbas and Prime Minister Olmert. The UK supports the Commission's work to build Palestinian institutional capacity as a practical way for the EU to support the political process. The conclusions also demanded the immediate and unconditional release of Alan Johnston.

The Council discussed Lebanon and the Hariri Tribunal.

International Moratorium on the Death Penalty

The Council discussed EU action on a global moratorium and eventual abolition of the death penalty. The Council will assess the outcome of an EU action plan adopted in February before deciding on possible next steps.

AOB: Libya

External Relations Commissioner Benita Ferrero-Waldner highlighted the possibility of renewed talks with Libya on the case of the Bulgarian medics.

HEALTH

EU Health Ministers

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Ms Rosie Winterton): The informal meeting of EU Health Ministers took place on 19 and 20 April in Aachen. I represented the UK. Items on the agenda were health services consultation and pandemic influenza preparedness. The vaccine for the human papilloma virus (HPV) was raised under any other business.

On the health services consultation, the Commission presented a summary of the responses to the consultation on a community framework for health services. Member states reiterated the key points of their own responses. There was broad support amongst member states for some community level action combining both legislative elements and practical measures.

On pandemic influenza preparedness, the Commission reported on the findings of the recent European Centre of Disease Control on pandemic preparedness in the EU. The presidency noted that while important progress had been made, there was still more to be done.

On the HPV vaccine, Luxembourg raised the issue due to concerns that misleading information about the vaccine could jeopardise preventative work. Ministers from Portugal and Spain echoed these concerns. The Commission noted that an expert working group would be looking at the new vaccine.

TREASURY

Air Passenger Duty

The Financial Secretary to the Treasury (John Healey): Budget 2007 stated that the aviation industry had suggested to the Government that the way in which air passenger duty defined different classes of travel could send inappropriate environmental signals and cause market distortions, for example for "business class only" flights and premium economy type seats. We confirmed in the Budget that we are prepared to consider changes to the definition if these could be done on a broadly revenue neutral basis, and we confirmed that we would be discussing further with the industry how this could be achieved.

Today I am taking forward this commitment through the publication of a consultation document, a copy of which is being placed in the Library of the House and made available on the HMRC website.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Justice and Home Affairs Council

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department (Joan Ryan): The Justice and Home Affairs (JHA) Council took place in Luxembourg on 19-20 April 2007. The UK was represented by the Attorney-General, Baroness Ashton (DCA) and the Lord Advocate of Scotland.

The Council started with the adoption of the 'A' points list. Among these were a proposal for the establishment of the fundamental rights and citizenship funding programme. The Council rejected the European Parliament's amendments on the Rome II Regulation on the law applicable to non-contractual obligations.

The presidency presented guidelines to direct future work on the Rome III regulations on matrimonial law. A long discussion exposed a range of views among member states, in particular on the question of setting rules on applicable law in the absence of a choice by the spouses. Following several drafting changes the presidency concluded that its paper had been agreed.

The presidency presented guidelines to direct future work on the regulation on maintenance obligations. Notwithstanding points raised by four member states the presidency noted consensus on guidelines as drafted.

The presidency's package of provisions on the Rome I regulation on applicable law in contractual obligations was agreed subject to a Commission reservation on the removal from article 3 of references to European contract law.

The Council agreed a presidency paper on the purpose, content and scope of the common frame of reference in European contract law, which mandates future work to determine the Council's position.

There was lengthy discussion of the draft framework decision on criminal procedural rights. The UK has no disagreement on the objective of the proposal (to raise standards across the EU). However Lord Goldsmith argued strongly for limiting the scope of the framework decision to European arrest warrant (EAW) cases, with action on wholly domestic cases to be pursued via a package of concrete practical measures, backed by a strong political resolution. The presidency put forward an oral proposal along these lines but including a review clause to re-examine the scope in three years' time. The proposal also contained a commitment to look at whether there could legally be a formal opt-in allowing some member states to apply the framework decision to domestic cases and work to try to define "cross border" more widely than the EAW. The presidency will take forward work on this basis and has set the June JHA Council as a deadline for agreeing the main principles.

A general approach was reached on the racism and xenophobia framework decision, subject to parliamentary scrutiny reservations from several member states, which were acknowledged in the presidency's press release. In order to accommodate the concerns of those member states that wanted the framework decision to cover Stalinist crimes, the Council agreed a declaration that deplores all totalitarian crimes, makes reference to the Berlin declaration of 25 March 2007 and contains a commitment by the Commission to organise a public hearing on crimes of genocide, crimes against humanity and war crimes committed by totalitarian regimes.

Day two of the Council opened in mixed committee format with Norway, Iceland and Switzerland.

First it was reported that implementation of SISOne4All was proceeding according to plan and Portugal's proposal for monitoring arrangements was agreed. The second generation Schengen information system timetable also remains on target for December 2008.

The proposal for rapid border intervention teams (RABITs) was discussed with the presidency urging rapid adoption, in light of the expected summer pressures. A general approach was reached on the current text. The Commission suggested that formal approval could be taken before the June JHA Council so that RABITs could be up and running as soon as possible.

Frontex gave presentations on the European Patrols Network and the Central Record of Technical Equipment, to which the UK has contributed. The Commission also described recent Frontex operations off the coast of Senegal.

Over lunch the presidency updated the Council on the state of play on the data protection framework decision.

On the visa information system (VIS) the Lord Advocate put forward the UK's position that direct access for the UK to the VIS would strengthen work against terrorism and crime across the EU. She underlined that the UK was offering to provide data on a reciprocal basis. The Council understood this need and would work to ensure access for the UK and Ireland. There was a discussion of the presidency proposed compromise package which was broadly agreed subject to further detailed discussion. The presidency and the Commission will have a further political trilogue with the European Parliament with a view to reaching a first reading agreement as soon as possible.

There was some discussion on the future of Europol with the presidency stressing the priority they put on securing operational improvements. The June JHA Council would be invited to agree articles 1 to 9 of the Council decision and to resolve the questions of funding and staffing. Europol director (Max-Peter Ratzel) confirmed that all the Europol protocols were now in force, which should result in more joint investigation teams and greater third party involvement in Europol work files.

Member states discussed the situation of Iraqi asylum seekers in the EU and in Syria and Jordan. There was broad support for the humanitarian effort in the region led by UNHCR (to which the UK has made a significant contribution). This issue was subsequently addressed in the conclusions of the General Affairs and External Relations Council on 23 April.

The Commission informed the Council that the two Communications on the global approach to migration and a legislative proposal on illegal working could be expected before the June Council. Their directive on illegal working would propose a mix of criminal and administrative sanctions.

Finally, the presidency reported that the EU/US/Russia troika meeting had discussed counter-terrorism and operations to combat drug smuggling in Afghanistan. A high-level group would be established to discuss combating terrorism and hopefully agree a common definition of terrorism. Meanwhile EU/US discussions focused on passenger name records (PNR), data protection and visas. A high level group on data protection was working to establish a set of common principles. If no new agreement could be reached by 31 July the existing interim agreement would be extended.

PRIME MINISTER

Assistant Surveillance Commissioners

The Prime Minister (Mr. Tony Blair): In accordance with section 63 of the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000, I have agreed to re-appoint His Honour Lord Colville of Culross QC and His Honour Dr. Colin Kolbert as Assistant Surveillance Commissioners from 1 May 2007 until 30 April 2010.

Lord Colville of Culross and Dr. Colin Kolbert have served as Assistant Surveillance Commissioners since 2001.

TREASURY

Iran (European Community Financial Sactions) Regulations 2007

The Economic Secretary to the Treasury (Ed Balls): The Government are strongly supportive of international efforts to tackle the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction and to prevent the abuse of financial systems. My written ministerial statement of 7 February 2007, Official Report, column 37WS informed Parliament that the Government were seeking the agreement of the Privy Council for the adoption of an Order in Council concerned with giving effect to the financial sanctions against Iran's nuclear programme as required by UNSCR 1737. The Iran (Financial Sanctions) Order 2007 was laid before Parliament on 8 February and came into force on 9 February.

On 19 April, the European Union adopted EC Regulation No 423/2007. This regulation implements at a Community level the sanctions against Iran agreed under UNSCR 1737. It also establishes an autonomous EU financial sanctions list against entities and individuals associated with Iran's nuclear and ballistic missile programmes. The regulation came into force on 20 April and is directly applicable in the UK. Council decision 2007/242/EC establishing the autonomous EU financial sanctions list came into force on 24 April.

In order to enforce the financial sanctions elements of EC Regulation No 423/2007, the Government are today laying before the Parliament the "Iran (European Community Financial Sanctions) Regulations 2007". These establish prohibitions, offences and penalties with regard to persons who are on the autonomous EU financial sanctions list in relation to Iran. The "Iran (Financial Sanctions) Order 2007" continues to apply with regard to persons who are on the UN financial sanctions list in relation to Iran.

As set out in the explanatory memorandum to the regulations, it is necessary that the regulations come into force as soon as possible in order to minimise the risk of asset flight. For this reason, the Government consider it necessary to waive the usual convention that there should be at least a 21 day period between regulations being laid and coming into force. Accordingly, the regulations will come into force tomorrow.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agiculture and Fisheries Council

The Minister for Local Environment, Marine and Animal Welfare (Mr. Ben Bradshaw): I represented the United Kingdom at this month's Agriculture and Fisheries Council in Luxembourg.

The Council ultimately postponed political agreement on measures to ensure the recovery of the stock of European eel. A compromise text was tabled by the presidency during the meeting, taking into account a number of the concerns of interested member states. However, some member states had particular difficulties remaining which proved irreconcilable. This was unfortunate to say the least, given that the Council adopted conclusions calling for urgent measures as long ago as 2004. However, I hope the dossier will return to the Council in May or June for final approval.

The Council also held a policy debate on a proposal establishing a multi-annual plan for the recovery of cod stocks in the Baltic sea. Although the UK has no direct interest in the fishery, it is clearly important that the plan is adopted as a matter of some urgency. On the basis of the discussion, it is hoped that this will be possible in June.

There was an exchange of views on the Community's approach towards eco-labelling schemes for fisheries products, based on a presidency questionnaire. There was a general consensus that European legislation should simply set minimum requirements for individual schemes, whilst allowing member states to introduce adaptations to suit their national circumstances. I argued that consumers had a role to play in supporting the development of sustainability in fisheries, but supported the use of EU legislation, with the proviso that it did not cut across existing successful schemes like those of the Marine Stewardship Council.

The Fisheries Commissioner updated the Council on the progress made in simplifying and improving the operation of the common fisheries policy (CFP). In particular, he confirmed that they would be cutting down on the size of the annual TAC and quota regulation to make its analysis easier and also that they would be conducting a study into the administrative burden placed on member states by the Community's control and enforcement rules. I welcomed these initiatives.

The Council held a policy debate on proposals to reform the fruit and vegetables sector based on a presidency questionnaire covering decoupling of processing aids and the inclusion of crisis management measures within the operational programmes. I intervened to indicate a readiness to accept limited transition arrangements on decoupling and to warn against allowing crisis management measures to prop up structural surplus production.

The Agriculture Commissioner presented a report on cross-compliance rules introduced in the 2003 CAP reform and which form the first stage of the Commission's review of cross compliance due for completion by the end of 2007. In its report the Commission recommended inter alia the removal of disproportionate penalties for minor non-compliance, the introduction of uniform implementation between member states and advance notice of inspections. There was general support for these initiatives.

A number of issues, as follows, were raised under any other business.

The Agriculture Commissioner updated Council on the WTO agricultural negotiations following discussions with WTO partners (United States, India, Brazil and Japan) in Delhi. She said that there had been little in the way of substantive progress but that all parties had agreed to intensify work with the aim of concluding the round by the end of the year. In reply to some member states, the Commissioner confirmed that the EU's position in the negotiations is still its offer from October 2005.

The Council took note without discussion of updates provided by the Commission on avian influenza, and on the EU-Russia veterinary negotiations.

Denmark called on Council to encourage higher standards of animal welfare, in particular during transport, by using voluntary agreements with the industry.

The Council took note of Poland's concerns about the definition of vodka as part of the current negotiations on the definition, presentation and labelling of spirit drinks.

A number of member states raised concerns about the Commission's offer to introduce duty and quota free access to the EU market for all African, Caribbean and Pacific (ACP) country products, with transitional periods for rice and sugar, as part of economic partnership agreement negotiations. The Commissioner confirmed that these developments had already been taken into account in the reform of the EU sugar market (2005). I intervened to support WTO-compatible trade liberalisation with these countries.

Spain expressed concerns regarding recent French activities targeting anchovies.

Veterinary Laboratories Agency

The Minister for Local Environment, Marine and Animal Welfare (Mr. Ben Bradshaw): I have set the Veterinary Laboratories Agency (VLA) the following performance targets for 2007-08.

Service Delivery

1. To meet 85 per cent. of rationale, objectives, appraisal, monitoring and evaluation (ROAME) milestones.

2. To achieve 85 per cent. of surveillance deliverables to time.

3. To achieve a three-year weighted average score of at least 82 per cent. in the VLA customer satisfaction survey.

Quality

4. VLA science audit—achieve a score, which is good or above in the majority of the assessment areas including one excellent rating.

5. Maintain current third party certifications and accreditations.

Financial

6. To achieve full cost recovery.

Efficiency

7. To deliver 2.5 per cent. efficiency savings.

Safety

8. Implement the VLA safety plan 2007-08 to timescales indicated.

Collaboration

9. Establish a formal framework agreement for extending collaboration with the Institute for Animal Health.

Further details are given in the VLA business plan for 2007-08 a copy of which has been provided to the Library of the House along with copies of the VLA corporate plan.

Law on Damages

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Constitutional Affairs (Vera Baird): My right hon. and noble Friend the Secretary of State and Lord Chancellor has made the following written ministerial statement.

"I will tomorrow publish a consultation paper: 'The Law on Damages'. The paper considers issues arising from a number of Law Commission reports. These include recommendations for changes to the Fatal Accidents Act 1976 concerning claims for damages where a person's death has been caused by the negligence of another person.

The paper also seeks views on the principles surrounding the ability of people to claim damages for the cost of private medical treatment under section 2(4) of the Law Reform (Personal Injuries) Act 1948, and on the interface between the public and private provision of care and accommodation services.

In addition, the paper considers the law on claims for psychiatric illness; aggravated and restitutionary damages; and the treatment in damages awards of collateral benefits, gratuitous care and services, and accommodation expenses.

Copies of the consultation paper will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses and can also be obtained free on the Department's website at: http://www.dca.gov.uk/consult/confr.htm#full. The closing date for consultation is 27 July 2007."

NORTHERN IRELAND

Hydebank Wood Prison

The Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (Mr. Peter Hain): I wish to announce that, with effect from 3 May 2007, in accordance with the powers conferred on me by rule 5(1) of the Prison and Young Offenders Centre Rules (Northern Ireland) 1995, the boundaries of Hydebank Wood Prison are hereby altered to exclude Beech House. The area to be excluded is indicated on the site map, which I have today placed in the Libraries of both Houses, by the words "Beech House".

WORK AND PENSIONS

Vaccine Damage Payment

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Mrs. Anne McGuire): I am pleased to announce that we are currently making arrangements to increase the statutory sum of a vaccine damage payment. The change, which will come into force on 12 July, will increase the sum for all new successful claims from the current level of £100,000 to £120,000. This will restore the value of the current payment in today's prices for all new successful claims made on or after this date.

Following a review of the scheme the last increase under this Government took place in 2000 and substantially increased the sum for a vaccine damage payment from £40,000 to £100,000.

Vaccination has been one of the great successes of modern times, and immunisation continues to be the safest way for parents to protect their children against disease. In the event of new awards for vaccine damage, the level of payment has been raised, and this increase shows that the Government remain committed to providing families with financial support.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Orders and Regulations

Mr. McGovern: To ask the Leader of the House what process is used to decide which statutory instruments are to be debated on the Floor of the House. [131300]

Mr. Straw: Under Standing Order No. 118, all affirmative statutory instruments (other than those referred to the Scottish or Northern Ireland Grand Committees) automatically stand referred to a delegated legislation Committee. However, notice may be given of a motion in the name of a Minister of the Crown under sub-paragraph (3)(a) that an instrument shall not stand so referred, in which case it is taken on the Floor of the House. Negative instruments may be taken in a delegated legislation Committee under paragraph (4).

Requests from Ministers or from elsewhere in the House for instruments to be taken on the Floor of the House are considered by business managers, including through discussions in the usual channels.

CHURCH COMMISSIONERS

Clergy Working Group

21. Ben Chapman: To ask the hon. Member for Middlesbrough, representing the Church Commissioners what recent discussions the Church Commissioners have held with the Department of Trade and Industry on the work of the Clergy Working Group. [131442]

Sir Stuart Bell: The Clergy Working Group (on which the Church of England was represented) produced a statement of good practice setting out minimum standards for the terms and conditions of service of ministers of religion. The Church of England has committed itself to these principles and General Synod has drafted legislation which has been sent to DTI officials, with whom we regularly communicate.

Sex Discrimination

27. Dr. Evan Harris: To ask the hon. Member for Middlesbrough, representing the Church Commissioners what guidelines the Commissioners have issued on the question of discrimination against employees on the grounds of sexual orientation. [131448]

Sir Stuart Bell: In November 2003 the Archbishops' Council issued general advice to dioceses and parishes on the effect of the Employment Equality (Sexual Orientation) Regulations 2003 and the Employment Equality (Religion and Belief) Regulations 2003.

ELECTORAL COMMISSION COMMITTEE

Electoral Commission

26. Mr. Hollobone: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission what recent discussions the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission has had on the effectiveness of the Electoral Commission. [131447]

Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission is an independent public body. The Speaker's Committee has a statutory obligation to ensure that any estimate of the income and expenditure of the Commission and accompanying five-year plan which it lays before the House is consistent with the economical, efficient and effective discharge by the Commission of its functions. The Committee discussed the Commission's Estimate for 2007-08 and its five-year plan for 2007-08 to 2011-12 on 21 March and these will be laid before the House shortly. Outside that framework, there is no specific requirement for the Speaker's Committee to discuss the effectiveness of the Commission.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Departments: Postal Services

Mr. Fraser: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister which postal companies handle mail dispatched by his Department. [128254]

The Deputy Prime Minister: My Office is located in a Cabinet Office building and mail for my Office is handled in the same way as the rest of the building.

Departments: Redundancy

Justine Greening: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister (1) how many people in his Department and its predecessor participated in (a) involuntary and (b) voluntary staff exit schemes in each year since 1997-98; and if he will make a statement; [131545]

(2) how many people in his Department and its predecessor who participated in (a) involuntary and (b) voluntary staff exit schemes in each year since 1997-98 were paid between (i) £0 to £25,000, (ii) £25,001 to £50,000, (iii) £50,001 to £75,000, (iv) £75,001 to £100,000 and (v) over £100,000; and if he will make a statement. [131557]

The Deputy Prime Minister: My Office was formed on 5 May 2006. I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave her on 15 March 2007, Official Report, column 253W.

Labour Party: Conferences

Mr. Heald: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister whether civil servants in his Office have been given permission to attend the Labour party conference to carry out official business. [119474]

The Deputy Prime Minister: Special advisers may attend conference as permitted in their terms of appointment. No permanent civil servants in my Office have attended conference in their official capacity or been given permission to do so in 2007.

Post Offices

Mr. Bone: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what recent discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry on the national access criteria for post offices. [131666]

The Deputy Prime Minister: I meet regularly with ministerial colleagues to discuss a range of issues. As the hon. Member will be aware, I also chair the Cabinet Committee on the Future of the Post Office Network.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Civil Servants: Political Impartiality

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster whether there are plans to review the present safeguards of civil servants' impartiality. [130833]

Hilary Armstrong: The requirement to maintain civil servants' impartiality is set out in the Civil Service Code, the Ministerial Code and the Code of Conduct for Special Advisers. Copies of these documents are available in the Library for the reference of Members.

Policy Review

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answer of 20 March 2007, Official Report, column 823W, on the Policy Review, what the cost has been of the IPSOS-MORI contract. [130885]

Hilary Armstrong: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for North-East Hertfordshire (Mr. Heald) on 26 January 2007, Official Report, column 2127W.

WALES

Council Tax: Valuation

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what the administrative cost has been of (a) valuations, (b) appeals and (c) other costs of the council tax revaluation in Wales. [130573]

Mr. Hain: Revaluation was undertaken by the Valuation Office Agency and costs were met by the Agency out of the funding it receives from the Welsh Assembly Government. The total costs up to 31 March 2005 of delivering the revaluation were £5.198 million.

It is not possible separately to identify the cost of appeals from the Valuation Office Agency's other local taxation work except at disproportionate cost.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales whether the 2005 council tax revaluation in Wales was revenue-neutral. [130574]

Mr. Hain: The key aim of council tax revaluation and re-banding was not to increase the yield but to redistribute the council tax more fairly across the population of Wales, on the basis of more up-to-date property values.

The increase in council tax levy at Band D in 2005-06 was 3.8 per cent. This was the lowest increase since the introduction of council tax.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many and what proportion of properties in Wales moved from bands (a) A, (b) B, (c) C, (d) D, (e) E, (f) F, (g) G and (h) H to each other band in the Welsh Council Tax revaluation. [130575]

Mr. Hain: The Valuation Office Agency holds the statistics of the properties in Wales that have moved bands following the council tax revaluation.

At a revaluation, bands are reviewed according to the physical characteristics of the dwelling when the list comes into effect (1 April 2005 in Wales). Therefore, some of the increases in banding will be as a result of physical changes that could not have been taken into account during the life of the 1993 lists because there had been no change of ownership since their completion.

The information requested is in the following table:

	Revised A Bandings	Revised B Bandings	Revised C Bandings	Revised D Bandings	Revised E Bandings	Revised F Bandings	Revised G Bandings	Revised H Bandings

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Bailiffs: Certification

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what guidance the Department has issued to local authorities in relation to their certification of bailiffs on debt enforcement involving the disabled or vulnerable. [130854]

Ms Harman: My Department worked closely with creditors and the enforcement profession to produce and issue the national standards for enforcement agents, available from the DCA website. The standards are a best practice guide intended for use by all enforcement agents, public and private, the enforcement agencies that employ them and the major creditors who use them. The standards have been widely endorsed by the trade associations representing bailiffs and advise that discretion should be used when dealing with those who might be potentially vulnerable, including the elderly, people with a disability and single parent families.

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what estimate she has made of the number of (a) certificated bailiffs, (b) uncertificated bailiffs and (c) bailiffs doing work requiring certification who do not hold current certification. [130855]

Ms Harman: The regulatory impact assessment for the Tribunals, Courts and Enforcement Bill published on 30 January 2007 estimates that there are 1,200 uncertificated bailiffs. As at 30 March 2007 the Register of Certificated Bailiffs maintained by HMCS currently lists 1,482 certificated bailiffs. There should be no bailiffs doing work requiring certification who do not hold a current certificate.

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what the procedure is for complaining about the activity of (a) an uncertificated and (b) a certificated bailiff. [130857]

Ms Harman: Complaints made against bailiffs, be they certificated or non-certificated, can be made by telephone or writing to the firm that the bailiff works for, the organisation who employed the bailiff to act on their behalf or the magistrates court that issued the enforcement order. Complaints against certificated bailiffs can also be made to the court that granted certification to the bailiff and to the Enforcement Officers Association, or the Association of Civil Enforcement Agencies, which are responsible for promoting higher standards within the profession. HMCS leaflet EX345 details the procedure for complaints about bailiffs and recommends seeking legal advice before starting this process.

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what fees are charged by bailiffs for debt enforcement; and by whom they are payable. [130858]

Ms Harman: Bailiffs' fees are included in the sum to be paid by the offender or debtor. There is no single statutory fee structure but different fees depending on the type of debt and where responsibility for enforcing that debt lies.

The Tribunals, Courts and Enforcement Bill, currently progressing through Parliament, will further regulate the activities of bailiffs and introduce a single simplified fee structure designed to support the principles of transparency, consistency and proportionality.

Coroners: Armed Forces

Robert Key: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what new arrangements she plans to make to fund HM Coroners following her decision to transfer responsibility for coroners inquests from Oxfordshire to the home counties of individual deceased military personnel; and if she will make a statement. [129139]

Ms Harman: I will continue to regularly review progress regarding these inquests. I do not plan to make any new funding arrangements where inquests are transferred by the Oxfordshire coroner to coroners nearer to the next of kin.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many inquests into deaths of service personnel killed in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan are still outstanding; and when she expects this backlog to be cleared. [131697]

Ms Harman: There are 42 inquests outstanding relating to service personnel killed in Iraq and 45 relating to service personnel killed in Afghanistan. The timing of individual inquests is a matter for the coroner concerned to determine but I expect outstanding inquests to be concluded without any unnecessary delay.

Courts

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many cases there were of defendants absconding from courts in each year since 2002. [130479]

Ms Harman: HMCS does not routinely collect this information and this could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Courts: Nottingham

Mr. Allen: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs when she expects to lay the Orders relevant to section 178 of the Criminal Justice Act 2003 to enable the community justice court in Nottingham to conduct cases referred to in that section; and if she will make a statement. [130497]

Ms Harman: Responsibility for this legislation rests with the Home Office. Powers under section 178 of the Criminal Justice Act 2003 to enable the review of a community order have been in operation for almost a year, as a pilot at the community justice initiatives in North Liverpool and Salford. We are now assessing their impact, with a view to extending their use to the new community justice courts announced by the Lord Chancellor on 27 November, including Nottingham. This extension will give us further information about the operation of the powers and their impact on offender behaviour, as well as the resources required by the courts and Probation Service. My officials are therefore working with Home Office officials to ensure the affirmative resolution order to extend the powers is taken forward as soon as this assessment is complete.

Section 178 is one element only of the community justice concept however, and the community court in Nottingham will be able to begin operation, just as Liverpool and Salford did, prior to receiving these powers.

Courts: Pay

Keith Vaz: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what steps she plans to take to tackle local court staff application shortages in areas with the lowest band pay under the proposed new pay system for local departmental civil servants. [128609]

Ms Harman: Negotiations with the trade unions on the proposed new pay system are continuing. These focus on important issues such as how the pay system will better support effective recruitment of staff into courts across the country. I will write to my right hon. Friend once negotiations have been concluded.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what discussions Ministers in her Department have had with their counterparts at HM Treasury on the proposed new pay system. [128610]

Ms Harman: Extensive discussions were held with the Treasury about the new pay system. These began in summer 2006 and concluded in January 2007.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs on what basis the pay bands were allocated to different regions in the proposed new pay system for local court staff. [128611]

Ms Harman: Negotiations with the trade unions on the new pay system are continuing. These address crucial issues such as how the pay system will better enable the Department to compete effectively in local labour markets. I will write to my right hon. Friend once the negotiations have been concluded.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what pilot schemes have been carried out to test the proposed new pay scheme for local court staff. [128612]

Ms Harman: Pilot schemes are not an appropriate method of testing a new pay system.

Custody: Parents

Lorely Burt: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what steps she is taking to ensure that parents are treated equitably in terms of access to their children following separation or divorce. [130604]

Ms Harman: The Government believe that where it is safe and in the child's best interests, children ben. from a continuing relationship and regular cont. with both parents, following separation or divorce.

The vast majority of people (90 per cent.) going through a relationship breakdown do not go to court over contact arrangements with their children. This shows that most people are willing and able to come to their own decisions about how best to manage their ongoing relationship with their children.

Where arrangements for contact with children cannot be agreed, any parent can apply to the court for a contact order under the Children Act 1989, enabling them to have contact with their children.

Approximately 10 per cent. of separating families turn to the courts for help in resolving arrangements for contact with their children. The paramount consideration for the court when making an order under the Children Act is the welfare of the child or children concerned. Both parents are equal before the law and the family courts start from that position.

Enforcement Law Reform Group

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs if she will publish the minutes of the Enforcement Law Reform Group meeting held on 16 January 2007. [130853]

Ms Harman: My Department is not responsible for the Enforcement Law Reform Group, which is independent of Government. Minutes from the meeting have already been published and can currently be found online on the Credit Collections and Risk magazine website.

Fixed Penalties

Mrs. May: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what percentage of (a) fixed penalties and (b) fines imposed by the courts in England and Wales were collected in full in each year between 1997 and 2006. [130817]

Ms Harman: Table 1 shows the number of fixed penalties issued and the percentage of those fitted penalties that were paid since 1997. Table 2 shows numbers of penalty notices for disorder issued and the percentage paid since inception of the scheme in 2004.

Table 3 details the fines payment rate for the last seven years. Data are collected on the value of financial penalties (including fines) imposed and outstanding and cannot be separated out to identify the percentage of fines imposed in any year that were collected, be it partially or in full.

Note:
Payment Rate = Amount Paid divided by New Net Amount Owed
The primary performance indicator is the payment rate. It is defined as the amount paid into court as a percentage of the new net amount owed. Methods of calculating the new net amounts owed have changed a number of times and are detailed as follows:
September 1999 to March 2003—New Net Amount Owed includes Legally Cancelled amounts, Civil monies and Confiscation Orders.
April 2003 to December 2003—New Net Amount Owed excludes Legally Cancelled amounts, Civil monies and Confiscation Orders.
January 2004 to July 2004—New Net Amount Owed excludes Legally Cancelled amounts, Administratively Cancelled amounts, Civil monies and Confiscation Orders.
July 2004 onwards—New Net Amount Owed excludes Legally Cancelled amounts, Administratively Cancelled amounts, Civil monies and Confiscation Orders, but includes Amounts Written Back.

From April 2003 onwards, confiscation and civil amounts have not been included in any of the enforcement calculations. It is not possible to separate those elements out from the figures before that date. As a result of these revisions, direct year-on-year comparisons cannot be made.

John Smith Memorial Trust

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what (a) financial and (b) other support her Department gave to the John Smith Memorial Trust in each of the last three years. [127921]

Ms Harman: My Department has provided funding for the John Smith Memorial Trust's Fellowships for young leaders from the former Soviet Union. In the last three years, funding was as follows:

	Amount (£)
2004-05	295,755
2005-06	305,000
2006-07	312,000

My Department also provides short placements for those Fellows with an interest in the Department's areas of work.

Legal Aid

Mr. Fraser: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many solicitors have given notice of their intention to cease to offer (a) criminal and (b) family legal aid services if the proposed reforms of legal aid are implemented. [115637]

Vera Baird: The Government are committed to controlling legal aid expenditure. A small number of practitioners have recently informed the LSC that they do not intend to continue doing legal aid work. This is not unusual, as the number of providers in the market has always fluctuated. There will be no effect on the provision of service to clients in any area. These few solicitors have made this assertion without sight of either the proposed new fee levels (crime and family), or the structure of the process for competitive tendering (crime), both of which the LSC are due to consult on shortly.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what recent representations she has received on the new system of legal aid provision. [131707]

Vera Baird: I meet frequently with legal aid practitioners and other interested parties to discuss aspects of the legal aid reform programme. I also receive correspondence from MPs, representative bodies, practitioner groups and individual practitioners.

Legal Aid: Northamptonshire

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what effect she expects her reforms of the legal aid system to have on legal aid provision in Northamptonshire. [131659]

Vera Baird: The Government's proposals, set out in "Legal Aid Reform: the Way Ahead", will ensure that legal aid continues to be available for those people who require legal assistance. The reforms will ensure that legal aid spending can be placed on a sustainable footing and spending rebalanced between civil, family and criminal legal aid. As part of these reforms, the Legal Services Commission (LSC) will be introducing a new civil help fee scheme from October 2007, under which 68 per cent. of providers in the LSC region, which includes Northamptonshire, will see their fees increase.

Legal Aid: Wales

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how much was spent on legal aid in Wales in each year since 1992; and if she will make a statement. [130586]

Vera Baird: Legal aid expenditure in Wales earlier than 1999-2000 pre-dates the current management information systems and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Legal aid funding is administered centrally and is not granted to specific geographical areas.

An individual based in one area can receive legal help and representation from a legal service provider based in another. The following table shows the amounts paid to legal service providers based in Wales across all areas of legal aid.

Figures for the Crown court are based on the bills paid for proceedings in Crown court locations based in Wales and Chester.

(1) Data not available

Legal Aid: Wellingborough

Mr. Bone: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many firms provide legal aid services in Wellingborough; and what the average number of such firms is per constituency. [131664]

Vera Baird: The Legal Services Commission (LSC) does not hold data based on constituency boundaries. However, in the Wellingborough area there are currently eight contracted legal aid providers. The local need for legal aid provision will vary due to a number of factors, such as population and affluence, and a crude average is unlikely to reflect the true need of the local area. As at 31 March 2006, there were 4,101 legal aid providers in England and Wales.

Prisoners

Mr. Laws: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many and what percentage of prisoners (a) began and (b) completed a course resulting in a (i) educational and (ii) professional qualification whilst in prison in each of the last five years. [129913]

Phil Hope: I have been asked to reply.

Data were not previously collected in a format that would enable the information requested to be provided. However, since the introduction of the Offender Learning and Skills Service (OLASS) across England with effect from 31 July 2006, the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) is collecting information about offender learners and their achievements. The following data relate to full qualifications, or units towards full qualifications, achieved by offenders in custody over the age of 16 since that date.

[1] Individual learners may achieve more than one full/part qualification

Unpaid Fines

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many liability orders for unpaid (a) council tax, (b) business rates, (c) parking charge notices and (d) child support and unexecuted magistrates court warrants for unpaid fines were issued in (i) London and (ii) elsewhere in England in the last period for which figures are available. [130856]

Ms Harman: My Department does not collect management information on numbers of liability orders issued by magistrates courts.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Museum Collections

12. Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport, what steps her Department is taking to encourage museums to share their collections and take them into schools in West Lancashire. [131518]

Mr. Lammy: As a result of our investment in the Renaissance in the regions programme, we have seen a 50 per cent. increase in engagement between school-aged children and museums since 2003. This has come about through more school visits and a seven-fold increase in participation in learning outreach activities.

Freeview

13. Mr. Grogan: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport, what representations she has received on the allocation of sufficient spectrum to Freeview to ensure its ability to offer higher definition television. [131519]

Mr. Woodward: We have received a number of representations about the digital dividend review including some on high definition.

However, issues about spectrum use are the responsibility of Ofcom. We will continue to consider stakeholders' and Ofcom's views.

Racism in Sport

14. Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport, what funding her Department provides towards campaigns to prevent racism in sport; and if she will make a statement. [131520]

Mr. Caborn: Sport England provides an annual grant of approximately £300,000 to Sporting Equals, which champions race equality in sport.

Also through Sport England, the Government provide funding to the Football Foundation, the UK's largest sports charity, which supports anti-racism campaigns in football like 'Kick it Out' and 'Show Racism the Red Card'.

Culture: Huddersfield

15. Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport, what support her Department has provided for cultural activity in Huddersfield in the last 10 years. [131521]

Mr. Lammy: The programmes provided by my Department and its non-departmental public bodies (NDPBs) over the last decade have made a significant contribution to the provision of culture in Huddersfield.

Events such as the Huddersfield Contemporary Music Festival have undoubtedly played an important role in improving the quality of life in the town. In early 2007 the Huddersfield Contemporary Music Festival was awarded £389,500 from Arts Council England; this investment will help to secure the long-term future of one of Europe's leading international new music festivals.

Football Governance

16. Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport, when she last met the football authorities to discuss governance of football. [131522]

Mr. Caborn: I have met representatives of the Football Association to discuss governance of football on a number of occasions, most recently on 7 March 2007.

The proposals outlined by Lord Burns in his review of the FA were passed in October, when the FA Council voted to implement every single reform.

However, The FA shareholders must also approve them and I understand they are due to meet on 29 May.

School Sports

17. Barbara Keeley: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport, if she will make a statement on Government support for competitive sport in schools. [131523]

Mr. Caborn: Through the national school sport strategy the Government are revitalising competitive school sport.

The 2005-06 school sport survey showed that:

97 per cent. of schools held a competitive sports day;

71 per cent. of pupils were involved in intra-school competition; and 37 per cent. of pupils from years 4-11 were involved in inter-school competition; up 12 per cent. on 2004.

We are developing a network of competition managers across school sport partnerships to continue to improve the quality and quantity of competitive school sport. In addition, we have established the UK school games.

Arts: Hartlepool

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much Government funding local artists in (a) Hartlepool constituency and (b) Tees Valley sub-region received in each of the last 10 years. [130888]

Mr. Woodward: The tables show the Arts Council's funding commitments to local artists in Hartlepool and Tees Valley in the last 10 years. Local artists are defined as individual artists living in Hartlepool or Tees Valley. Grant in aid figures exclude grants given to regularly funded organisations.

Departments: Freedom of Information

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what criteria she applies when deciding the information to be included in response to (a) written parliamentary questions and (b) Freedom of Information requests; and if she will undertake an assessment (i) of the volume of information given in response to each category of inquiry and (ii) the reasons for any discrepancies in the volume of information supplied. [129357]

Mr. Lammy: The Cabinet Office guidance on answering parliamentary questions provides advice to officials on answering parliamentary questions. The guidance covers situations where similar information has been requested in a parliamentary question and in a Freedom of Information request. Copies of the guidance are available in the Library. Freedom of Information requests are considered in accordance with the legislation.

Departments: Public Appointments

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will list the former hon. Members who left Parliament in 2005 who have since been appointed to public bodies by her Department, broken down by party; and who was responsible for making each appointment. [130145]

Tessa Jowell: None of the former hon. Members who left Parliament in 2005 have been appointed to a public body by the Department for Culture, Media and Sport.

Departments: Redundancy

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) how many people in her Department participated in (a) involuntary and (b) voluntary staff exit schemes in each year since 1997-98; and if she will make a statement; [131539]

(2) how many people in her Department who participated in (a) involuntary and (b) voluntary staff exit schemes in each year since 1997-98 were paid between (i) £0 to £25,000, (ii) £25,001 to £50,000, (iii) £50,001 to £75,000, (iv) £75,001 to £100,000 and (v) over £100,000; and if she will make a statement. [131555]

Mr. Woodward: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to her by the Under-Secretary of State, the Minister for Culture, Media and Sport, my hon. Friend the Member for Tottenham (Mr. Lammy), on 28 February 2007, Official Report, column 1401W.

Digital Switchover

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the Answer of 3 July 2006, Official Report, column 501W, on digital switchover, what progress has been made on ensuring that additional energy costs of set-top boxes are reduced; and if she will provide details of the special codes that she intends to introduce. [129117]

Margaret Hodge: I have been asked to reply.

Government and Digital UK, the independent, non-profit organisation leading the process of digital TV switchover in the UK, are working to encourage the reduction of energy consumption for digital TV equipment as far as possible:

We are promoting to consumers the use of digital TVs and set-top boxes with low levels of energy consumption. These can be identified by the "Energy Saving Recommended" logo;

Manufacturers are being encouraged to reduce both the "on" and the "stand-by" power consumption of household appliances through the adoption of design improvements and adherence to maximum power consumption levels set out in the voluntary European Code of Conduct on Energy Efficiency of Digital TV Service Systems;

We are continuing to work with retailers on the development of a voluntary scheme to encourage the purchase of energy efficient consumer electronics, as announced in Budget 2006;

Government are committed to using their own purchasing power to bring forward more sustainable products. For example, set-top boxes provided through the Digital Switchover Help Scheme will be expected to meet the European Code of Conduct on Energy Efficiency of Digital TV Service Systems.

Elgin Marbles

Mr. Mark Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent discussions her Department has had with the British Museum on the future of the Elgin Marbles. [129853]

Tessa Jowell: My Department is in regular contact with the British Museum on issues relating to the Parthenon Sculptures. Decisions on the future of the sculptures are a matter for the British Museum trustees.

Mr. Mark Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent discussions her Department has had with the Government of Greece on the Elgin Marbles; what her policy is on (a) ownership and (b) loan to Greece of the Marbles; and if she will make a statement. [129854]

Tessa Jowell: My Department has had no discussions with the Greek Government on the Parthenon Sculptures since December 2004. Items in the collection of the British Museum are vested in the care of the trustees under the British Museum Act 1963. Issues relating to the ownership or loan of the Parthenon Sculptures are matters for the trustees and Government do not intervene.

Energy: Conservation

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what requirement there is for the inclusion of energy saving and energy producing features in the Government's Better Public Building initiative. [131187]

Mr. Woodward: As part of its aim of achieving excellent design for all new public buildings, the Better Public Building initiative promotes the Government's common minimum standards for the procurement of built environments in the public sector. These apply across the public building programme. Energy performance is included within the sustainability section of these standards.

Football: World Cup

Anne Moffat: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment she has made of the likely benefits which will result from bidding to host the 2018 Football World cup. [131119]

Mr. Caborn: No assessment of the likely benefits that will result from bidding to host the 2018 Football World cup has been made by the Government. The Government feasibility study "Hosting the World Cup" acknowledges both the potential for wider economic benefits and intangible benefits arising from hosting such a major sporting event. The study also advises that, should the Football Association bid to host the event, they should commission an independent study into the wider economic benefits of hosting the competition to be published alongside the bid document.

Licensed Premises: East Sussex

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many licensed premises there are in (a) Eastbourne and (b) East Sussex; and how many of these are (i) public houses, (ii) clubs, (iii) supermarkets and (iv) off-licences. [130964]

Mr. Lammy: This information is not held centrally. The Licensing Act 2003 devolved the administration of the licensing regime to individual licensing authorities, who may hold information about licensed premises in their area.

National Lottery: Hampshire

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what total amount was paid in Lottery grants in each Hampshire local and unitary authority for (a) community, (b) leisure, (c) environment, (d) housing, (e) social inclusion and (f) other purposes in each of the last five financial years. [131243]

Mr. Caborn: We are not able to provide the information in the form requested because Lottery grants are not categorised under these headings.

The value of new Lottery grants awarded in each of the good cause areas in each of the last five completed financial years is given in the following tables. This information is derived from the Department's Lottery Grants Database, which uses information supplied by the Lottery distributors and can be searched at:

Olympic Games

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to her Oral Statement of 15 March 2007, Official Report, columns 450-52, on the 2012 Olympics, if she will list the regeneration projects to be financed by the £1.7 billion she announced in her statement last Thursday which are not necessary to stage the London 2012 Olympics. [129381]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 23 March 2007]: The regeneration projects include enabling works (such as site remediation and demolition), utilities, the power lines undergrounding, roads, bridges, tunnels and other structures, landscaping, and legacy conversion.

These are an integral part of our programme to stage the greatest sporting event in our country and act as a catalyst for the most ambitious regeneration programme in recent memory.

Olympic Games: Greater London

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent discussions she has had with colleagues in other Departments on the impact on their budgets of the increased cost of the Olympics. [124603]

Tessa Jowell: We have been engaged in a rigorous review of costs since London was awarded the games in July 2005. Following the conclusion of discussions within Government, I announced on 15 March 2007, Official Report, column 450, a budget for the Olympic Delivery Authority (ODA) and on a number of issues including wider security, tax and contingency provision.

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how the £738 million of private sector funding itemised as part of the public sector funding package for the 2012 Olympics will be raised. [126210]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 8 March 2007]: Private sector funding has never been part of the public sector funding package, but at the time of the bid, we were pursuing options for private sector funding. The bid reflected this potential, but in light of further work and advice after the bid, it seemed incompatible to achieve funding with the sort of time scale that was going to be necessary.

As I said when replying to the hon. Member's questions on 15 March after making my statement to the House

> "We have now allowed for a private sector contribution in the budget, but on a pessimistic basis against the full expectation of what might be raised ... Negotiations are underway ... with different private sector partners so it is possible, but not certain that that may change. [Official Report, 15 March 2007; vol. 458, col. 455]"

This excludes the Olympic village where the major share of funding will come from the private sector.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will break down by main budget heading the Olympic Delivery Authority's planned expenditure for each year until 2012; and if she will make a statement. [128403]

Tessa Jowell: I am not yet in a position to be able to provide this breakdown. This will be detailed in the Olympic Delivery Authority's Corporate Plan which it is currently developing and plans to publish by the end of the summer.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when construction will begin on the Olympic sites at (a) Horseguards' Parade for volleyball, (b) the Royal Artillery Barracks for indoor shooting, (c) the four arenas at the Excel exhibition centre, (d) the temporary Greenwich arena for badminton and gymnastics, (e) Greenwich Park for equestrian events and pentathlon arenas, (f) Hyde Park for the triathlon, (g) All England Lawn Tennis Club at Wimbledon, (h) the Millennium Dome for artistic gymnastics and basketball and (i) Lord's cricket ground; and if she will make a statement. [128404]

Tessa Jowell: The Olympic Delivery Authority (ODA) is responsible for construction at the Royal Artillery Barracks and the temporary Greenwich arena. The ODA is currently working with the London Organising Committee for the 2012 Olympic games and Paralympic games (LOCOG) to finalise each venue's requirements for the games, which will inform the construction programme.

The remaining venues or sites are covered by LOCOG as part of their programme to deliver temporary additional facilities and services (e.g. temporary seating, platforms, signage) required to support all elements of operations during the games. Commencement of the delivery of these facilities is scheduled for early 2012.

There will also be some earlier work to provide for test events in 2011.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assumptions were made of the total level of private investment in the Olympic Village in the (a) Arup report, (b) Olympic bid document, (c) PricewaterhouseCoopers' Olympic Games Impact Study, (d) Faithful and Gould analysis of costs and (e) her evidence to the Culture, Media and Sport Committee on 21 November 2006; and if she will make a statement. [128410]

Tessa Jowell: The Faithful and Gould report was not commissioned by DCMS and we are not aware of any estimates they may have made. All the other reports assumed that the level of private investment in the Olympic Village would be 100 per cent.

After bid win, I instituted a thorough cost review. As a result, it was clear that we would need to compensate private developers for the additional costs incurred in meeting the Olympic specifications and timing. In my evidence to the Culture, Media and Sport Committee on 21 November 2006, I therefore said that we expected the majority of the financing for the development of the Olympic Village would come from the private sector, but the specific arrangements for this had yet to be finalised.

The Olympic Delivery Authority have since announced that they are in talks with Lend Lease for the development of the Olympic Village.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will break down the £1.275 billion of contingency funding for the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games reported in the Regulatory Impact Assessment for the Horserace Betting and Olympic Lottery Act 2004 according to (a) overall programme contingency funding, (b) individual venue contingencies in (i) total and (ii) as a percentage of that venue's budget and (c) other; and if she will make a statement. [128411]

Tessa Jowell: The £1.275 billion reported in the regulatory impact assessment for the Horserace Betting and Olympic Lottery Act 2004 was not broken down in this degree of detail at that stage.

Following London winning the bid I have instituted a thorough review of costs and provisions, as I made clear I would, to the House of Commons on 15 May 2003. I made a statement on funding provision for the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games on 15 March.

As a result the ODA will be given a budget to cover the construction costs as a whole of £5.3 billion up to 2012 comprising:

£3.1 billion for the building of Olympic Park and venues—the core Olympic costs;

£1.7 billion for the Olympic infrastructure and regeneration, linking the park to the rest of the Lower Lea Valley and;

£500 million for programme contingency.

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) whether her revised Olympic budget of 15 March contains an estimate for the potential amount of planning gain supplement tax that may be incurred; [129288]

(2) whether she has received any advice from the Treasury on the likely impact of the proposed planning gain supplement tax on the Olympic Games budget. [129289]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 22 March 2007]: The Government are now carefully considering the responses to the consultations on the planning gain supplement (PGS) which closed recently. If, after further consideration, the Government decide to proceed with PGS then it would be introduced no earlier than 2009.

The Government announced at the 2006 pre-Budget report that transitional arrangements would aim to ensure that developments already formally in the planning process would not be subject to PGS.

The Government propose that for development where planning permission was granted before an appropriate appointed day in the future, including for outline planning permissions, PGS would not apply.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 14 March 2007, Official Report, column 324W, on the Olympic Games: Greater London, what (a) discussions she has held and (b) correspondence she has received from (i) the Great Britain Target Shooting Federation, (ii) the Clay Pigeon Shooting Association, (iii) the British International Clay Target Shooting Federation and (iv) other shooting organisations on the siting of the Olympic shooting competition at Woolwich; what their views were on the decision; and if she will make a statement. [131356]

Mr. Caborn: DCMS Ministers have not held discussions with shooting organisations on the siting of the Olympic shooting events. Ministers have received correspondence from the National Rifle Association, the British International Clay Target Shooting Federation and Southern Counties Shooting Ltd. over the selection of venue for the Olympic shooting events, and suggesting several alternative venues. I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 14 March 2007, Official Report, column 324W, on the selection of the location for the Olympic shooting events.

Radio Frequencies: Licensing

Mr. Fallon: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment she has made of the likely impact on the production of live and recorded entertainment of proposals to sell the radio spectrum. [130804]

Mr. Lammy: Ofcom has assessed the impact of its proposals to auction spectrum released by switchover. They have recognised that there is a risk of business disruption for the above sectors. To address this issue, Ofcom has proposed that spectrum access be guaranteed up until 2012, for professional PMSE uses. After that period, the regulator proposes to ensure that interleaved spectrum is auctioned so as to include packages that will be suitable for PMSE use—though other uses will not be excluded.

Ofcom will publish a further discussion paper specifically on PMSE, in May.

Sports: Finance

Mark Tami: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what support her Department provides for sports at the grass-roots level. [131514]

Mr. Caborn: Since 1997, the Government and national lottery distributing bodies have committed over £3 billion to grass-roots sport which includes over 4,000 new or refurbished facilities, 3,000 community sports coaches and tax relief to over 4,000 amateur sports clubs.

Tourism

Mr. David Hamilton: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment she has made of the outcomes of the recent British Tourism Week; and if she will make a statement. [131517]

Mr. Woodward: I congratulate VisitBritain, UKInbound, and the other organisations which were involved in making British Tourism Week such a success in raising the profile of the sector.

VisitBritain is evaluating the benefits of the programme of events to the industry with a view to making this an annual event.

Tourism: Smoking

Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment she has made of the likely effect of the ban on smoking in public places in the Health Act 2006 on tourism to the UK from the middle east. [131755]

Mr. Lammy: None. Evidence from the Republic of Ireland, provided by Tourism Ireland to VisitBritain shows that the smoking ban introduced in April 2004 has not produced any general adverse effect on inbound tourism numbers. VisitBritain's overseas offices are providing information about the smoking bans in force in Scotland and Wales, and to be introduced in England, to potential visitors from the middle east.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan: Drugs

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs in which areas alternative livelihood projects have been set up in Afghanistan; and what estimate has been made of the numbers of farmers participating. [127127]

Hilary Benn: I have been asked to reply.

DFID's Livelihoods programme, worth nearly £150 million from 2006-09, helps support the Government of Afghanistan's National Priority Programmes aimed at developing alternative legal livelihood opportunities. These programmes address the multiple constraints that prevent farmers from moving away from poppy cultivation, including access to credit, markets and productive infrastructure. DFID receives regular progress reports from each of the programmes it funds. The following table shows DFID's contribution to these programmes. It highlights achievements and the number of beneficiaries to date.

Programme name and DFID contribution	Beneficiaries	Provinces	Achievements
National Solidarity programme (NSP) £17 million over 3 years	15,103 communities	All 34 provinces	16,343 Community Development Councils have been established. Over £346 million spent on areas of agriculture, education, health, irrigation, power, public buildings, transport and water supply
National Rural Access programme (NRAP) £18 million in 2005-06	375,000 households across Afghanistan	All 34 provinces	9,575 km roads built or repaired, as well as schools, health clinics and water schemes
Micro-Finance Investment Support Facility (MISFA) £20 million over 3 years	300,501 households, shopkeepers, tailors, and farmers among others. 75 per cent. of MISFA beneficiaries are women	20 provinces: Badakhshan Baghlan Balkh Bamyan Faryab Ghazni Helmand Herat Jawzjan Kabul Kapisa Kunarha Kunduz Laghman Logar Nangarhar Parwan Samangan Saripul Takhar Wardak	Over £96 million of small loans distributed to 570,293 people

DFID has also provided £3 million to support the Research in Alternative Livelihoods Fund (RALF), which performs research into potential agricultural livelihoods options for rural Afghans. In addition, we support the Development of Sustainable Agriculture Livelihoods project in the Eastern Hazarajat (SALEH). This provides new and innovative ways for farmers to make a living in Eastern Hazarajat, for example, through honey-bee keeping and potato farming.

Afghanistan: Peace Keeping Operations

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps her Department is taking to meet the Government's commitment to strengthen the work of the UK-led Provincial Reconstruction Team in Lashkar Gar in Helmand province as set out in the Enduring Relationship Action Plan 2006-07. [128613]

Margaret Beckett: Through the Provincial Reconstruction Team (PRT) in Helmand Province, Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) officials are leading a cross-governmental team in which development, governance, stabilisation, and police advisers are already working with the provincial government and local organisations to increase their capacity and to increase the stretch of the central Government. The PRT is now being strengthened by an additional five FCO officers to assist in this work. The Enduring Relationship Declaration and Action Plan highlights the UK's long term commitment to Afghanistan and its people, as they strive to achieve stability, security and prosperity.

Afghanistan: Scholarships

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many Chevening Scholarships have been awarded to Afghan students since 2001; and what plans there are to widen access to Chevening Scholarships for Afghan students. [128595]

Margaret Beckett: There has been a total of 84 Chevening Scholarships awarded to Afghan students since 2001.

Additionally, there were nine Chevening Fellowships awarded to Afghan students during this period.

For 2007-08 sufficient funding has been allocated to increase the number of Afghan Chevening students from 10 to 16.

British Nationality: Overseas Residence

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assistance and support is available to British citizens living and working abroad in countries other than EU countries, and who are married to a local citizen, if they are attacked or injured. [130887]

Dr. Howells: We can provide consular assistance to British nationals overseas, subject to certain exceptions for dual nationals, whether or not they normally live in the UK. The consular assistance we can provide to British nationals who are victims of crime or require medical assistance is set out in "Support for British nationals abroad: A Guide". This is also available on the Foreign and Commonwealth Office website at www.fco.gov.uk A copy of the Consular Guide has also been placed in the Library of the House.

Burma

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 19 February 2007, Official Report, column 11W, on Burma, whether the UK is advocating a strengthening of the EU Common Position on Burma; and if she will make a statement. [128602]

Margaret Beckett: We believe that the present EU Common Position on Burma is the best achievable, given the views of some of our partners. Any additional measures would need the support of all other EU member states as the Common Position can only be amended by consensus. We do not believe that there would be consensus to amend the Common Position.

Burma: EU External Relations

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will take steps to strengthen the EU Common Position on Burma when it comes up for renewal. [130529]

Mr. McCartney: The EU Common Position on Burma is adopted by consensus. Any amendment or strengthening of the Common Position need to be agreed unanimously. Our discussions within the EU have indicated there is no consensus to amend the Common Position. Given the views of some of our EU partners, we believe that the current Common Position is currently the best achievable policy. Despite criticisms of it, the Common Position is valuable in uniting 27 nations in an expression of concern about the abuse of human rights and lack of democracy inside Burma.

I raised the appalling human rights situation in Burma at the EU-Association of Southeast Asian Nations Foreign Ministers' meeting in Nuremberg on 15 March.

Burma: Ethnic Groups

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what reports she has received of the recent military activity by the Burmese Army in Karen state; and if she will make a statement; [130851]

(2) what recent reports she has received of (a) attacks by the Burmese Army on Karen civilians and (b) the displacement by the Burmese Army of civilians in the Mon Township; [130852]

(3) what recent reports she has received of attacks by the Burmese Army in the Papun District; and what her estimate is of the number of Karen villagers displaced by such attacks. [130859]

Mr. McCartney: We are aware of reports from the Free Burma Rangers of recent military activity in Mon Township and Papun District and the displacement of up to 1,400 people. Officials from our Embassy in Rangoon do not have access to conflict areas and cannot confirm the number of displaced people. We have repeatedly condemned attacks on civilians and remain concerned about the situation in conflict areas in Burma which has resulted in a significant increase in the number of internally displaced people and refugees on the Thai/Burmese border.

I raised our serious concerns about the Burmese army's offensive in Karen state when I called in the Burmese Ambassador on 15 June 2006 and wrote to the Burmese Foreign Minister on 5 July 2006.

Most recently, I raised the Burmese regime's appalling human rights record at the EU-Association of Southeast Asian Nations ministerial meeting in Nuremberg on 15 March in the presence of the Burmese Deputy Foreign Minister.

Burma: Human Rights

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what assessment she has made of the implications of reports she has received in the treatment of women of ethnic minorities in Burma by the Burmese Army for initiatives to improve the Burmese Government's record in human rights; and if she will make a statement; [131130]

(2) what representations she has received on the treatment of Chin women in Burma by the (a) Burmese Army and (b) other Burmese state agencies; and if she will make a statement. [131139]

Mr. McCartney: We are aware of the report "Unsafe State" published by the Women's League of Chinland, documenting the abuses of Chin women at the hands of the Burmese authorities.

On 24 January, I met representatives from the Women's League of Chinland and the Chin Human Rights Organisation to discuss the many difficulties faced by the Chin community in Burma, including sexual violence.

We condemn the use of all forms of sexual violence and all other human rights violations. I raised the issue of sexual violence directly with the Burmese ambassador on 15 June 2006 and again in my letter to the Burmese Foreign Minister on 5 July 2006. I have raised our concerns about the human rights situation in Burma with the Governments of India, China, Thailand, Malaysia, Japan and South Korea.

I raised Burma at the UN Human Rights Council in Geneva on 13 March. Most recently, I raised our concerns about Burma at the EU-Association of Southeast Asian Nations ministerial meeting on 15 March in the presence of the Burmese Deputy Foreign Minister.

We have helped to ensure that resolutions at the UN General Assembly have called for an end to the use of rape and sexual violence by the armed forces in Burma. We shall continue, bilaterally and with international partners, to urge the Burmese regime to pursue laws and practices which will put an end to the Burmese army's use of sexual violence.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what legal steps the Government has taken to enforce the Geneva Convention following the statement in the report of the United Nations Special Rapporteur on Burma on human rights abuses in conflict areas and humanitarian law. [131421]

Mr. McCartney: We have repeatedly called on the Burmese Government to comply with all international law and applicable humanitarian law and raised our concerns directly with the regime and in international fora most recently when I raised the issue in my intervention at the EU-Association of South East Asian Nations Foreign Ministers' meeting in Nuremberg on 14 March.

We fully support the work of Professor Pinheiro, the UN Special Rapporteur for Human Rights in Burma, and his reports on the Burmese regime's serious human rights violations.

Council of Europe

Mr. Walter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the total cost of the United Kingdom Permanent Representation to the Council of Europe in Strasbourg was in 2005-06; and what the budgeted cost for the mission is in 2006-07. [130770]

Mr. Hoon: The local budget spend for financial year 2005-06 was £403,952 and is estimated to be £409,551 in 2006-07. This covers rent, rates, maintenance, furniture and utilities for all property, locally engaged staff pay (including pensions and social security), official travel and official vehicle costs, entertainment and other purchased goods and services.

Mr. Walter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many (a) diplomatic service staff and (b) locally recruited staff are employed at the United Kingdom Permanent Representation to the Council of Europe in Strasbourg, broken down by pay grade. [130771]

Mr. Hoon: There are five diplomatic staff at Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) pay grades A2, B3, C4, D7 and SMS2 and five locally recruited staff; two at FCO pay grades LEIIIA and one each at grades LEIIIB, LEIV and LEVc, employed at the UK Permanent Representation to the Council of Europe.

Mr. Walter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the floor area is of rented accommodation occupied by the UK Permanent Representation to the Council of Europe in Strasbourg; what the costs associated with that accommodation were in the last year for which figures are available; what the floor area is of accommodation owned by the UK Government in Strasbourg; what the running costs of those buildings were in the last year for which figures are available; and what the latest open market valuation is of those buildings. [130772]

Mr. Hoon: The floor space of rented accommodation occupied by the UK Permanent Representation to the Council of Europe in Strasbourg is 940 square metres. This figure was 1,052 square metres in financial year 2005-06 and the rental costs were a total of £89,914.

The floor space of the only property owned by the Government in Strasbourg is 635 square metres.

Current accounting practices provide for a breakdown of running costs (utilities, rates, repairs and refurbishment) between residential and office accommodation, but not between owned and rented accommodation. The running costs for all accommodation in 2005-06 was £79,763, £46,068 for residential accommodation and £33,695 for office accommodation.

The latest valuation of the one owned property is £715,139 based on a 2006 survey.

Mr. Walter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many officials from Government Departments and agencies attended meetings at the Council of Europe (a) in Strasbourg and (b) elsewhere in each year between 2003 and 2006; how many visits for that purpose were made in each year; and how many overnight stays were associated with those visits in each year. [130773]

Mr. Hoon: There are approximately 80 Council of Europe committees attended by officials from Government Departments. The Government do not hold central records on all these attendances, the majority of which are independent of the UK Delegation to the Council of Europe based in Strasbourg. Several of the committees themselves have changed in structure and membership over the three-year period and are unlikely to maintain detailed attendance records. The information in the form requested is therefore not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Public Appointments

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will list the former hon. Members who left Parliament in 2005 who have since been appointed to public bodies by her Department, broken down by party; and who was responsible for making each appointment. [130137]

Mr. Hoon: I refer the hon. Member to the written answer given to her by my hon. Friend the Minister for the Middle East on 19 December 2005, Official Report, column 2491W.

Departments: Redundancy

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many people in her Department participated in (a) involuntary and

(b) voluntary staff exit schemes in each year since 1997-98; and if she will make a statement. [131548]

Mr. Hoon: The number of officers who took early retirement from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) on compensatory early retirement terms since 1997 are as follows:

	Number
1997-1998	54
1998-1999	25
1999-2000	35
2000-2001	21
2001-2002	23
2002-2003	25
2003-2004	33
2004-2005	68
2005-2006	172

We have not been able to identify the number of officers who departed involuntarily within these figures. To check individual records for this purpose would incur disproportionate cost. It is our policy to do all we can to avoid or minimise compulsory redundancies.

All the officers departed under the provisions of the civil service compensation schemes. As a result of the 2004 spending round we have carried out a restructuring exercise since 2004 to realise efficiency savings. This early retirement programme will enable us to reduce the size of the senior management structure in the FCO by 18 per cent. by 31 March 2008.

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many people in her Department who participated in (a) involuntary and (b) voluntary staff exit schemes in each year since 1997-98 were paid between (i) £0 to £25,000, (ii) £25,001 to £50,000, (iii) £50,001 to £75,000, (iv) £75,001 to £100,000 and (v) over £100,000; and if she will make a statement. [131553]

Mr. Hoon: The following chart sets out the number of officers who have taken early retirement from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) for each year since 2002 and the cost to the FCO of their compensation:

Total costs to FCO (£)	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07
0-25,000	3	3	13	26	2
25,001-50,000	3	5	14	38	17
50,001-75,000	4	5	10	22	8
75,001-100,000	5	4	5	22	12
Over 100,001	10	16	26	70	35

We are unable to supply the requested information for the years 1997 to 2002; as this information is not readily available. To check individual records for this purpose, and to identify officers who may have taken involuntary early retirement, would incur disproportionate cost. It is our policy to do all we can to avoid compulsory redundancies.

The terms of the compensation we paid to these officers were those set out in the standard civil service compensation schemes. The amount is determined chiefly by age and pension entitlements.

As a result of the 2004 spending review we have carried out a restructuring exercise since 2004 to realise efficiency savings. This early retirement programme will enable us to reduce the size of the senior management structure in the FCO by 18 per cent. by 31 March 2008.

Diplomatic Service

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions she has had with EU partners on sharing embassies; and if she will make a statement. [130505]

Mr. Hoon: There have been no recent official ministerial discussions with EU partners on sharing embassies.

However, whenever a move of British Mission premises is under consideration, and where appropriate, officials explore the possibilities for co-location with EU partners and others.

Diplomatic Service: Languages

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many foreign language speakers were employed in the diplomatic service in each year between 1997 and 2006, broken down by language spoken. [130294]

Mr. Hoon: The following table shows the total number of Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) staff employed as of March 2007 who have a language qualification in one of the priority languages recorded on the FCO management information system.

FCO staff will have varying degrees of fluency in these priority languages. In order to provide a year on year breakdown of language qualifications we would need to extract both the start and end dates of the qualification. This information was not mandatory on the previous management information system and any breakdown would not provide a true reflection of the total number of staff who have a language qualification.

Diplomatic Service: Retirement

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs for what reason the practice by retiring ambassadors of sending valedictory telegrams has ceased. [129829]

Margaret Beckett [holding answer 29 March 2007]: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office is constantly modernising the way we operate. All Heads of Mission overseas are encouraged to provide their frank and confidential advice on policy and management issues at all stages of their posting, not just at the end. Modern communications allow this to be done in a more targeted way than the traditional valedictory telegram.

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will place in the Library a copy of the valedictory telegram sent by Ambassador Roberts on the conclusion of his ambassadorship to Italy and his retirement from the diplomatic service. [129850]

Margaret Beckett [holding answer 29 March 2007]: Sir Ivor Roberts provided advice in his valedictory telegram on a confidential basis. Placing a copy of this telegram in the Library of the House would be likely to inhibit the frank and confidential provision of advice.

EU Gender Institute

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what measures (a) have taken place and (b) are planned in the UK by the EU Gender Institute; and if she will make a statement. [130662]

Meg Munn: I have been asked to reply.

The regulation establishing the Institute entered into force on 19 January 2007.

The Management Board is in the process of being set up.

European Union

Mr. Cash: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs following the statement in the Berlin Declaration, whether it is the Government's policy to support a treaty to give effect to the statement that member states are united in the aim of placing the European Union on a renewed common basis before the European Parliament elections in 2009; and whether she agreed to the statement. [131161]

Mr. Hoon: The Declaration, marking the 50th anniversary signing of the Treaties of Rome, is a political statement recalling the historic achievements of the last 50 years, and looking ahead to the challenges that we, the member states of the EU, need to face together. It was right that the UK was part of that celebration.

The Declaration was drafted by the German Presidency although they consulted member states, in the course of that process, on elements they wished to see included.

At present, there is no consensus among EU member states on the future of the Constitutional Treaty. The German Presidency will present a report to the June European Council on the state of discussions on the question. The Government make no presumption on the outcome of these discussions. Their approach was set out in my written ministerial statement of 5 December 2006, Official Report, columns 10-11WS.

European Union: Citizenship

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the UK is taking under the Europe for Citizens programme (EU budget code 15 01 04 66); and if she will make a statement. [130639]

Mr. Lammy: I have been asked to reply.

The UK supports the new Europe for Citizens Programme, which runs until 2013. The Government hope that citizens in the UK will take up opportunities the programme offers. These include co-operation projects such as town twinning, structural support for civil society organisations of general European interest and the preservation of the main sites and archives associated with the deportations and the commemoration of the victims of Nazism and Stalinism. The judging of eligible projects will be carried out by independent assessors from member states co-ordinated in Brussels by the Commission. As with all such EU programmes, bureaucracy is being reduced to make it easier for UK citizens to join with their counterparts in other EU countries in participating.

Iraq: Casualties

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what estimate she has made of the number of Iraqi civilian fatalities since the 2003 invasion. [131113]

Mr. Hoon: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to the hon. Member for Yeovil (Mr. Laws) on 25 January 2007, Official Report, columns 1950-51W.

Iraq: Oil

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the Government's policy is on disputes which might be considered by international courts or tribunals relating to the ownership and extraction rights of oil in Iraq. [130784]

Mr. Hoon: The Government have no policy on this matter. It is for the Government of Iraq to choose what measures it puts in place to resolve disputes in relation to its hydrocarbon sector.

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what types of oil contracts her Department has considered for recommendation to the Iraqi Government; what representations her Department received from international oil companies on such contracts prior to making recommendations to the Iraqi Government; and what contract preferences were expressed by companies in such representations. [130785]

Mr. Hoon: We have made no recommendations to the Government of Iraq on the types of contract to include in its hydrocarbons legislation. We continue to urge Iraqi Ministers and officials to consider the benefits of a broad range of contract types and not to rule any out prematurely.

We have received no representations from international oil companies recommending particular contract types.

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what definition she uses of (a) 'production-sharing agreements' for oil extraction and (b) 'exploration and production contracts' in the draft Iraqi hydrocarbons legislation. [130786]

Mr. Hoon: There is no mention of the term "production-sharing agreements" in Iraq's draft hydrocarbons legislation. The term 'exploration and production contract' does appear in the draft hydrocarbons legislation. However, interpretation of Iraqi legislation is a matter for the Government of Iraq.

Kazakhstan: Human Rights

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment she has made of the restrictions on political liberty in Kazakhstan imposed by the Kazakh Government through the suspension of the registration of the Kazakh Conservative Party, the intimidation restrictions to freedom of speech and denial of fair access to political competition of party leaders and members; and if she will make a statement. [131383]

Mr. Hoon: We welcome the steps made by the Government of Kazakhstan since the December 2005 presidential election towards political reform and democratisation. These include in April 2006 the removal from the Election Law of the prohibition on the right of freedom of assembly in the period between the end of voting and publication of official results in elections. In February 2007, President Nazarbayev also created a working group to implement the key recommendations of the State Commission on Democratisation including the strengthening of Parliament's powers and increasing the authority of local town councils.

Political pluralism has been affected negatively by recent legislation which restricts freedom of expression, association and assembly. The powers of the Parliament and Government and the independence of the judiciary could be further enhanced to introduce checks and balances into the system of administration.

We welcome the registration on 26 January of one of the main opposition parties, the Social Democratic Party. There is no party officially registered, or seeking to register, as the Kazakh Conservative Party. Two centre-right parties, Alga! (Forward) and Atameken (Fatherland), have outstanding registration applications which have not yet been approved. In conjunction with EU partners and other interested parties, we will continue to encourage democratic progress in Kazakhstan and provide suitable assistance where possible.

Nigeria: Politics and Government

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations she has made to the Government of Nigeria on the recent murder of a school teacher in Gombe City; and if she will make a statement. [130672]

Mr. McCartney: We have not made representations to the Nigerian Government about the tragic killing of the teacher in Gombe. However, our high commission in Abuja has asked a leading Nigerian inter-faith group to make inquiries about the incident and brief them on their findings. It is important that the incident is also properly investigated by the appropriate Nigerian authorities. Through the high commission in Abuja we are sponsoring work by civil society organisations to promote inter-faith dialogue and prevent incidents of this kind.

Nigeria: Religious Freedom

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment she has made of religious freedom in Northern Nigeria; and what steps she has taken to work with the Nigerian Government on minimising the likelihood of religious freedom abuses in the future. [130673]

Mr. McCartney: There are tensions and frequent clashes between Christians and Muslims in northern Nigeria, and regular reports of discrimination, mainly against Christians. Religion is the pretext for most clashes, but many Nigerian religious leaders acknowledge that the root causes often lie in struggles for political power, scarce resources and ethnic dominance at local level.

Through our high commission in Abuja we are actively supporting projects to address religious tensions in northern Nigeria, as part of our efforts to prevent conflict and promote human rights in Nigeria as a whole. This includes the funding of training for police and magistrates in the humane application of Sharia law, and the work of non-governmental organisations to establish local early warning and conflict prevention mechanisms. Federal authorities and Government agencies, such as the Nigerian Police Force, are involved in these activities where appropriate, as are state Governments and senior religious leaders.

Occupied Territories: Property Transfer

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the UK position is on the legality of (a) marketing in the UK and (b) purchasing from the UK property for sale in settlements in the Occupied Palestinian Territories which are deemed illegal according to international law; and what advice the Government give to British companies and organisations on the legal status of such transactions. [130813]

Mr. Hoon: We regard all settlements in the Occupied Palestinian Territories as illegal under international law and have repeatedly raised our concerns about settlement activity with the Israeli Government. The Government do not advise or encourage companies and organisations to market or sell property in the settlements, however it is not unlawful to do so under UK law.

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what the UK position is on the purchasing in the UK of property in settlements in the Occupied Palestinian Territories which are deemed illegal according to international law; and if she will make a statement; [131286]

(2) if she will make a statement on the UK position on the legality of marketing in the UK property in settlements in the Occupied Palestinian Territories which are deemed illegal according to international law. [131359]

Mr. Hoon: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Birmingham, Northfield (Richard Burden) today (UIN 130813).

Philippines: Human Rights

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations her Department has (a) made to the Government of the Philippines and (b) received on extra-judicial killings of political activists; what discussions she has had with counterparts in the EU on human rights abuses in the Philippines; and if she will make a statement. [130733]

Mr. McCartney: We continue to be concerned about extra-judicial killings in the Philippines. We have urged the Philippine Government to address the problem, including through the appropriate involvement of the international community. In this regard, we welcomed the visit by Philip Alston, the UN special rapporteur on extra-judicial killings, to the Philippines in February and will encourage the Philippine Government to follow Professor Alston's recommendations. In August 2006, President Arroyo appointed a special commission to investigate the killings. The Melo Commission, headed by ex-Supreme Court Justice Jose Melo, concluded its investigations and produced a report of its findings in February. President Arroyo recently extended the tenure of the Melo Commission until June 2007, after which the Philippine Commission on Human Rights will investigate the issue further. President Arroyo has made a request to the EU to provide technical assistance for the investigation of extra-judicial killings. We will look at this positively. The Foreign and Commonwealth Office has received letters from members of the public and hon. Members, as well as some parliamentary questions, about extra-judicial killings. On 21 March, the UK raised the issue at a European Council working group meeting for Oceania and Asia affairs.

Queen Elizabeth II: Anniversaries

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which UK diplomatic missions (a) hosted and (b) did not host parties to celebrate HM The Queen's birthday in 2006. [131104]

Mr. Hoon: The information the hon. Member has requested can be found in the following table:

Official celebrations in Her Majesty The Queen's realms and in the UK's Overseas Territories come under the auspices of the respective governor-general/ governor of those countries and territories.

It was agreed (in 2003) with Buckingham Palace that QBPs need not take place every year. The frequency is at the discretion of the Head of Post, but a full reception should be held at least once during their tenure. In other years, smaller events such as a lunch may be held, according to local custom, though the birthday should be marked in some fashion.

Russia: Latvia

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports she has received on the recent Russia-Latvia treaty signed to formalise their mutual border. [131262]

Mr. Hoon: We welcomed the news that Latvia and Russia signed a border treaty on 27 March. We fully aligned ourselves with the EU presidency declaration of 28 March, in which the EU welcomed its signature and looked forward to the swift ratification of the treaty.

Somalia

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the Answer of 7 March 2007, Official Report, column 2017W, on Somalia, what discussions she has had with her (a) Ethiopian and (b) other African Union counterparts on the recent violence in Somalia; whether she has changed her assessment of the status of the Union of Islamic Courts following these discussions; and if she will make a statement. [130421]

Mr. Hoon: We are in close contact with both the African Union (AU) and the Ethiopian Government about the recent fighting in Somalia, which we utterly condemn. The Government calls on all parties in Somalia to reject violence and commit to peaceful dialogue. We are working with the AU and other members of the international community to try to facilitate the swift and effective deployment of the AU stabilisation mission to Somalia in order to create the conditions for Ethiopia to withdraw, whilst avoiding a security vacuum.

The Union of Islamic Courts (UIC) ceased to exist as an organisation after its collapse in December 2006. The Government have therefore not changed their assessment of the UIC, as given in my answer to the hon. Member on 7 March 2007, Official Report, column 2017W.

Somalia: Armed Conflict

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports she has received on the recent violence in Somalia; what assessment she has made of the likely impact of the violence on the further deployment of the African Union Mission in Somalia; and if she will make a statement. [130257]

Margaret Beckett: The recent violence in Mogadishu represents a very real threat to the prospects for stability in Somalia. We condemn the attacks against African Union (AU) and other forces and call on those responsible to desist, and to work alongside the transitional federal institutions and the AU in helping to restore governance to Somalia. We continue to believe that an AU stabilisation force is the most effective way of assisting Somalia to secure the stability and peace its people so badly want.

Somalia: Ethiopia

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the humanitarian impact of the Ethiopian invasion of Somalia; what discussions she has had with her (a) United States and (b) Kenyan counterparts on the treatment of Somalian refugees; and if she will make a statement. [130423]

Mr. Hoon: We are very concerned about humanitarian conditions throughout Somalia. Although food security appears to have improved compared to 2006, the current high risk of conflict may generate widespread additional humanitarian needs. According to the UN High Commissioner for Refugees, up to 100,000 more people may have been displaced since early February.

According to UN agencies, humanitarian conditions in the refugee camps are difficult, with ongoing high levels of child malnutrition. The Kenyan authorities have gone to great lengths in offering shelter to the 174,000 Somalis currently believed to be in camps, and they have legitimate security concerns about the influx of large numbers of Somalis. However, we remain concerned that, since the beginning of the year, they have denied entry to the camps to some Somalis genuinely seeking to flee from conflict. Our high commissioner in Nairobi raised the issue of the border closure with the Kenyan Minister of Foreign Affairs in early January. And the UK has supported a similar approach by the EU presidency. The UK participated in a US-hosted senior level donor round table in late January about the humanitarian impact of the closure of the border with Somalia and we have ongoing discussions with the USAID Office for Disaster Assistance and the USAID Office of Food for Peace about remedial action.

The UK was the second largest bilateral humanitarian donor to Somalia in 2006 and committed £16 million towards emergency relief activities through the UN and non-governmental organisation partners.

Somalia: Official Visits

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the Answer of 7 March 2007, Official Report, column 2017W, on Somalia: official visits, when she expects Ethiopian troops to complete their withdrawal from Somalia; and if she will make a statement. [130258]

Mr. Hoon: We understand Ethiopia has been gradually withdrawing its forces over the past weeks.

At the same time, we recognise that until an effective and appropriate alternative is in place a complete Ethiopian withdrawal could risk a dangerous security vacuum. For this reason, we strongly support the deployment of the Africa Union stabilisation force (AMISOM). The UK-sponsored UN Security Council Resolution 1744, unanimously adopted, explicitly authorises (the establishment of AMISOM and we have offered logistical, planning and financial support to the force to help it deploy as soon as possible. On UK contributions to AMISOM, I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to him by my right hon. Friend the Minister for Europe (Mr. Hoon), today (UIN 130261).

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the Answer of 7 March 2007, Official Report, column 2017W, on Somalia: official visits, what recent discussions she has had with her (a) United States and (b) EU counterparts on the African Union Mission in Somalia (AMISOM); what commitments have been made to support AMISOM as a result of these discussions; and if she will make a statement. [130259]

Margaret Beckett: My noble Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, Lord Triesman of Tottenham, and officials at the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, have been in frequent contact with US and EU colleagues, both bilaterally and in international fora, including the UN and the International Contact Group for Somalia, regarding the African Union's (AU) stabilisation mission to Somalia (AMISOM). I have also discussed it with my EU colleagues at recent EU Foreign Ministers' meetings. We urge a prompt, focused and co-ordinated international response to help Somalis seize this historic opportunity for stability, which is what Somalia needs above all.

AMISOM is a key element in bringing stability to Somalia. For this reason, the UK sponsored United Nations Security Council Resolution 1744, adopted unanimously on 20 February. The Resolution explicitly authorises the deployment of AMISOM, as well as recognising the need for a reconciliation and a political process in Somalia, and permitting support to the Transitional Federal Government and Institutions to develop their own security sector. We commend the AU for taking on this mission and are grateful to those countries that have so far offered to contribute personnel to AMISOM.

On UK contributions to AMISOM, I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to him by my right hon. Friend the Minister for Europe, today (UIN 130261).

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the Answer of 7 March 2007, Official Report, column 2017W, on Somalia: official visits, which African Union countries have pledged troop contributions to the African Union Mission in Somalia; how many troops they have pledged; when she expects those contributing to deploy those troops; and if she will make a statement. [130260]

Margaret Beckett: Uganda has pledged nearly 1,700 troops to Somalia as part of the African Union (AU) stabilisation force (AMISOM), most of which we believe have now deployed. We understand that Ghana, Burundi, Nigeria and Malawi have also pledged troops to AMISOM, which would bring the total numbers to around 4,000, although the timeframe for these deployments remains unclear.

The UK has made clear its strong support for AMISOM and believes that a prompt and effective AMISOM deployment is vital for bringing long-term stability to Somalia. For this reason, we are discussing with several potential troop contributing countries what support we might best provide them. We have also offered direct support to the AU. On UK contributions to AMISOM, I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to him by my right hon. Friend the Minister for Europe today (UIN 130261).

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to her Answer of 7 March 2007, Official Report, column 2017W, on Somalia: official visits, what financial and logistical support the British Government are contributing to the African Union Mission in Somalia; and if she will make a statement. [130261]

Mr. Hoon: The Government believe it is vital that a successful African Union (AU) Mission in Somalia (AMISOM) deployment ensures lasting stability in Somalia. The UK has offered planning, and logistical support for a Somalia planning cell within the AU's Peace and Security Operations Division in Addis Ababa. The UK has also offered planning, logistical and financial assistances direct to troop contributing countries.

We strongly support the early disbursement of the EU's pledge of €15 million to AMISOM.

Somalia: Terrorism

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the extent of the presence of al-Qaeda in Somalia; and if she will make a statement. [130422]

Mr. Hoon: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister to my hon. Friend the Member for Islington, North (Jeremy Corbyn) on 10 January 2007, Official Report, columns 281-82.

Al-Qaeda seeks to exploit ungoverned space to advance its terrorist agenda. Therefore, we are working with the international community to re-build the Somali State, through the establishment of Transitional Federal Institutions, in order to bring peace and stability to the country. This will make it more difficult for al-Qaeda to operate in Somalia.

In the meantime, we continue to work with the Transitional Federal Government of Somalia, and our international allies, in tackling the threat posed by al-Qaeda from Somalia.

Sri Lanka: Human Rights

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the Government are taking to raise with the Government of Sri Lanka the disappearance of Pastor Victor Yogarajan and three others in Negombo on 2 March. [131141]

Dr. Howells: We have made no specific representations to the Sri Lankan Government about the case of the disappearance of Pastor Victor Yogarajan and others in Negombo on 2 March. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary spoke with her counterpart the Sri Lankan Foreign Minister in March about the situation faced by the civilian population as a result of the escalated conflict and raised our concerns about human rights.

Sri Lanka: Politics and Government

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment she has made of the political situation in Sri Lanka. [130515]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 29 March 2007]: I refer my hon. Friend to the answers that I and my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister gave my right hon. Friend the Member for Leicester, East (Keith Vaz) on 20 March 2007, Official Report, columns 828-29W and 14 March 2007, Official Report, column 283 respectively. I restate that the UK urges both sides to the conflict to pursue a peaceful solution and to do more to protect the civilian population.

Sudan: Peace Negotiations

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent progress has been made in the implementation of the Darfur Peace Agreement. [127162]

Margaret Beckett: Lack of buy-in from a broad range of rebel groups means that there has only been limited progress with the implementation of the Darfur Peace Agreement (DPA), particularly on the wealth sharing and security provisions. But a few of the power-sharing provisions of the DPA have been implemented. Minni Minawi was appointed Special Assistant to the President, and nominations have been made to some positions on the Transitional Darfuri Regional Authority and other bodies, but this remains insufficient.

We have been funding work to help the African Union (AU) explain the benefits of the DPA to the people of Darfur. And we are funding an expert to support the AU in preparing the Darfur-Darfur Dialogue and Consultation.

A renewed political process, which brings in as broad a range of the Darfur population as possible, is needed.

At the UN high level meeting in Addis Ababa last November, the AU and UN committed to convening a meeting between the signatories (Government of Sudan and Minni Minawi's group) and non-signatories to the DPA. The UN and AU envoys for the political process (Jan Eliasson and Salim Ahmed Salim) visited Sudan together from 23 to 28 March.

We are very concerned at the slow pace of progress on the political track and are in touch with the UN and AU at all levels to urge faster movement.

Syrian Arab Republic: Kamal al-Labwani

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the Answer of 27 February 2007, Official Report, column 1202W, on the Syrian Arab Republic: Kamal al-Labwani, what steps UK officials in Damascus are taking to monitor the ongoing detention of Dr Kamal al-Labwani. [131021]

Mr. Hoon: UK officials, together with their EU colleagues, attend the court cases of Dr. Kamal al-Labwani wherever possible. They are also in regular contact with Dr. al-Labwani's lawyers and members of his family. Officials from our embassy in Damascus and EU colleagues attended Dr. al-Labwani's latest court appearance on 10 April, at which the judge postponed the trial to 10 May. Dr. al-Labwani was allowed to greet family, friends and diplomats. With EU partners We continue to make our concerns known to the Syrian authorities.

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 27 February 2007, Official Report, column 1202W, on the Syrian Arab Republic: Kamal al-Labwani, what her most recent assessment is of the conditions in which Dr. Kamal al-Labwani is being held; and if she will make a statement. [131332]

Mr. Hoon: Since his last court appearance, Dr. Kamal al-Labwani has been held in solitary confinement at Adra criminal prison. He was released from solitary confinement a few days before his court appearance on 10 April. At this appearance the judge postponed the trial to 10 May. Dr. al-Labwani was also allowed to greet family, friends and diplomats. Officials from our embassy in Damascus and EU colleagues attended the trial on 10 April and will continue to follow the progress of the case closely. With EU partners we continue to make our concerns known to the Syrian authorities about human rights in Syria.

Turkey: EC Enlargement

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions she has had with her Turkish counterpart on the steps Turkey is taking to comply with EU rules to allow it to progress with membership of the EU. [131263]

Mr. Hoon: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary visited Turkey on 26-27 March and had a productive meeting with Foreign Minister Gul, which included discussion of Turkey's EU accession process. The UK continues to encourage Turkey to take the steps necessary to meet the requirements of the acquis. Progress is being made with the EU and Turkey agreeing on 29 March formally to open negotiations on enterprise and industrial policy.

USA: Prince Charles

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what costs of visits to the US by the Prince of Wales were met from the public purse over the last 12 months, broken down by (a) visit, (b) travel, (c) accommodation, (d) visit participant, (e) gifts and (f) other expenses; what the purpose of each such visit was; where the proposal for each such visit originated; what (i) proportion of and (ii) events within each such visit were organised by, or on behalf of, the Prince's charities or foundations; and if she will make a statement. [129558]

Margaret Beckett: The visit to the United States by his Royal Highness (HRH) the Prince of Wales and Her Royal Highness the Duchess of Cornwall from 26-29 January is the only visit over the last 12 months where costs were met from public funds. I shall write to my hon. Friend as soon as the accounts for the visit have been finalised, and will place a copy of the letter in the Library of the House.

The purpose of the visit was to reinforce our relationship with the United States, with a particular focus on youth development, urban regeneration and the environment in support of the Government's best practice agenda. The visit was approved by the Royal Visits Committee as part of our continuing engagement with the United States at the highest level. There were no publicly-funded events organised on behalf of HRH the Prince of Wales' charities or foundations.

Zimbabwe

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations she plans to make to her European Union counterparts on the extension of existing EU sanctions against Zimbabwe; and if she will make a statement. [129975]

Margaret Beckett: We have proposed to EU partners that the key perpetrators of the violence on 11 March should be added to the list of those subject to a visa ban and assets freeze.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when she last discussed Zimbabwe with her South African counterpart; and what the outcome was of the discussion. [129976]

Margaret Beckett: I refer the right hon. Member to the reply my right hon. Friend the Minister for Trade gave to the hon. Member for Peterborough (Mr. Jackson) on 19 March 2007, Official Report, column 600W.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much has been frozen under measures applied in accordance with the EU Common Position on Zimbabwe. [129978]

Margaret Beckett: In the United Kingdom, 42 accounts containing a total of £172,000 are currently frozen under the terms of the EU Common Position.

Zimbabwe: Politics and Government

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make representations encouraging the Government of Zimbabwe to provide medical assistance to pro-democracy activists detained following a prayer meeting in Highfield, Harare in March 2007. [131244]

Mr. Hoon: My right hon. Friend, the Foreign Secretary called for all those who were arrested and beaten following the prayer meeting at Highfield to be given immediate access to proper medical attention. My noble Friend, the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, Lord Triesman of Tottenham, made similar representations directly to the Zimbabwe Ambassador on 13 March.

Those arrested on 11 March were eventually released and received medical attention in private hospitals.

TRANSPORT

A1307: Accidents

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what the (a) total number of accidents, (b) average daily traffic flow and (c) accident rate per million vehicle kilometres was for the stretch A1307 between the junctions with the A143 in Haverhill and the A11 in Abington in each of the last 10 years; and what the latest figures are for 2007; [130976]

(2) how many people were (a) killed and (b) injured on the stretch of the A1307 between the junctions with the A143 in Haverhill and the A11 in Abington in each of the last 10 years; and what the latest figures are for 2007. [130975]

Dr. Ladyman: The number of reported personal injury road accidents, the number of resulting casualties, the annual average daily traffic flow and the accident rate per million vehicle kilometres, for the road requested are given in the table for each year from 1996 to 2005. 2005 is the most recent year for which data are available. Data for 2007 will be available in summer 2008.

Number of accidents, annual average daily traffic flow, accident rate per million vehicle kilometres and number of casualties on the A1307 between the junction of A143 in Haverhill and the A11 at Little Abington in Cambridge, 1996-2005

	Number of accidents[1]	AADF[2]	Accident rate[3]	Killed	Injured
1996	18	12,800	0.27	1	24
1997	25	14,800	0.32	0	43
1998	29	15,200	0.37	2	50
1999	32	15,600	0.39	4	54
2000	26	16,300	0.30	1	38
2001	30	16,200	0.35	1	43
2002	22	16,600	0.25	3	32
2003	27	16,800	0.31	3	35
2004	30	17,200	0.33	1	46
2005	41	16,700	0.47	1	64

[1] Personal injury road accidents reported to the police.
[2] Annual average daily traffic flow.
[3] Accident rate per million vehicle-kilometres.

A6 and A45 Interchange

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will visit Higham Ferriers to discuss proposed improvements to the Chown Mills A6/A45 interchange with the hon. Member for Wellingborough and constituents. [131665]

Dr. Ladyman: There are no immediate plans by the Secretary of State to visit Higham Ferrers. The A45 is categorised as a regional route. The East Midlands region advised in January 2006 that, within their indicative regional funding allocation, a potential grade-separation scheme was not a priority for funding in the period up to 2015/16. It will be for the region to review the priority for such a scheme in future rounds of the regional funding process.

In the meantime, the Highways Agency will undertake a junction capacity review of Chowns Mill junction in 2007/2008. This review will investigate what interim measures can be introduced, short of a grade separation, to alleviate the current operational problems at the Chowns Mill Interchange.

Biofuels: North West Region

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps his Department has taken to promote alternative fuels in the north-west in the last five years. [130718]

Dr. Ladyman: The Government encourage the use of alternative fuels through reduced rates of Vehicle Excise Duty for cars run on certain alternative fuels and registered after 1 March 2001, and through differentials in fuel duty between petrol and diesel and other fuels. There are no specific initiatives for the north-west.

The Government also provide funds to the Energy Saving Trust to run an Infrastructure grant programme. The grants assist the building of refuelling stations for alternative fuels (natural gas/biogas, hydrogen and bio-ethanol).

The Government are also due to introduce a Renewable Transport Fuel Obligation in April 2008 which will ensure a significant and stable market for biofuels in the UK, and is likely to mean that biofuels are available in low blends at the majority of forecourts in the UK.

British Railways Board (Residuary)

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many people are employed by the British Railways Board (Residuary); what that body's budget was in 2006-07; and what the functions of the residuary body are. [131059]

Mr. Tom Harris: BRB (Residuary) Ltd. (BRBR) currently employs 36 full-time equivalent members of staff. The company is forecast to incur net costs of £35.7 million in 2006-07 and generate gross sales proceeds of £71.5 million. These figures are subject to audit.

BRBR was created as a consequence of the privatisation of the railways and discharges a range of legacy responsibilities inherited from the British Railways Board. These responsibilities include the management of industrial injury claims submitted by ex-British Rail employees and the management and disposal of a diverse property portfolio.

Bus Services: Concessions

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many pensioners in Hartlepool constituency (a) are eligible for and (b) have used the free local bus travel scheme. [130900]

Gillian Merron: (a) The number of residents of Hartlepool aged 60 and over, who, from 1 April 2006, are entitled to free off-peak local bus travel is around 19,200.

(b) Information on take-up of the concession in Hartlepool is not held centrally. Local authorities hold details of their residents who applied for concessionary travel.

Bypasses: Kettering

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what joint assessment the Highways Agency has made with the local highways authority of the case for a new eastern bypass around Kettering. [131658]

Dr. Ladyman: The Highways Agency has not carried out any joint assessment with Northamptonshire county council of the case for a new eastern bypass around Kettering.

Such a bypass would not be a trunk road proposal as it would cater mainly for local traffic. However, North Northamptonshire Development Company and Northamptonshire county council are considering the need for a new distributor road to the east of Kettering as part of the proposed urban extension. This road is referred to in the draft North Northamptonshire core spatial strategy. Such a scheme would only be promoted by developers and/or the county council.

Driving Offences: Insurance

John Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the number of motor vehicle accidents in England involving drivers without adequate insurance. [131124]

Dr. Ladyman: The latest figures available on uninsured accidents reported in the UK to the Motor Insurers' Bureau are as follows:

Uninsured drivers	28,518	24,367
Untraced drivers	13,072	13,221

No separate breakdown is available for England alone.

John Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent estimate he has made of the number of regular drivers without adequate insurance in England. [131125]

Dr. Ladyman: I refer my right hon. Friend to the answer I gave to my Friend the hon. Member for Cannock Chase (Dr. Wright) on Thursday 8 February 2007, Official Report, column 1063W. Separate figures for England are not available.

Exhaust Emissions

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what progress he has made on the emissions cost assessment initiative announced in December 2006. [131727]

Gillian Merron: As we announced in the future of air transport progress report last December, we intend to launch a consultation on the development of an emissions cost assessment for the aviation sector in the first half of 2007.

First Great Western: Rolling Stock

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many of the additional 1,000 train carriages that he proposes to introduce he expects to be used on the First Great Western network. [130864]

Mr. Tom Harris: It is too early to say where precisely the additional rolling stock will be used. The deployment of new rolling stock will be agreed with the industry following the publication of the High Level Output Specification and the long-term rail strategy this summer, in accordance with the Periodic Review timetable set out in the Office of Rail Regulation's advice to Minister published in February 2007.

HGV Drivers

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 26 March 2007, Official Report, column 1245W, on HGV drivers, what steps he is taking to ensure that foreign-licensed HGV (or its equivalent) drivers with medical conditions which would make them ineligible for HGV licences in the UK, but not in other countries, are unable to drive in the UK. [130913]

Dr. Ladyman: EU licence holders who live in the UK have a legal obligation to notify DVLA of certain existing and worsening medical conditions. Failure to do so is a road traffic offence, carrying a penalty of £1,000. This information is available through a number of channels, including guidance leaflets.

Holders of EC/EEA licences are required to register with the DVLA vocational (LGV/PCV) entitlement to drive, within 12 months of becoming resident here. The registration process aims to ensure that these drivers meet the UK health and conduct standards.

New residents from non-EC/EEA countries may not drive vehicles over 3.5 tonnes until they have passed the relevant British driving test.

Enforcement of road traffic law is a matter for individual chief officers of police.

HM Coastguard: Privatisation

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what consultation his Department has held with (a) the Fire and Rescue Service and (b) the Fire Brigades Union on the part-privatisation of HM Coastguard; [131403]

(2) when preferred bidders will be announced for the part-privatisation of HM Coastguard; and if he will place in the Library a copy of the specification; [131404]

(3) what the estimated cost savings are of the part-privatisation of HM Coastguard; and how those savings are to be made. [131405]

Dr. Ladyman: There are no plans to privatise HM Coastguard.

The Department and the Ministry of Defence have started the procurement process under the private finance initiative for the harmonised provision of search and rescue helicopter services from 2012. This decision provides an opportunity to bring together the current search and rescue helicopter providers into one service under a single contract providing the taxpayer with value for money. The service will continue to be managed jointly by the Ministry of Defence and the Maritime and Coastguard Agency.

Invalid Vehicles

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has to require users of electric wheelchairs and scooters to (a) undertake training before using the equipment and (b) take out insurance cover. [131168]

Gillian Merron: The Department has published research, a copy of which has been placed in the house Library, into the training and insurance aspects of electric wheelchair and scooter use. The research examines whether existing arrangements balance the needs of mobility vehicle users with the safety of other road and pavement users. The research findings are currently under consideration and will be acted upon shortly.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he expects to reply to the letter of 21 February 2007 from the hon. Member for Billericay, on the concessionary fare scheme. [130724]

Gillian Merron: A reply was sent to the hon. Member on 29 March 2007.

Motor Vehicles: Registration

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what research his Department has undertaken into the enforcement of civil traffic penalties against foreign registered vehicles in the UK. [129294]

Dr. Ladyman: The Department has not commissioned research into this subject. The Department is a member of the Shared Parking and Registered Keeper Information Service in which traffic authorities in the UK and other EU member states co-operate to enforce cross-border traffic violations. That service has conducted research into levels of civil traffic violations with particular reference to foreign-registered vehicles.

Motorcycles: Licensing

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what his estimate is of the cost of implementing the final provisions of the second European driving licence directive for motorcycles; and how much of the estimated cost is to be spent on super test sites. [131135]

Dr. Ladyman: The total estimated cost of implementing the second European driving licence directive for motorcycles is £60,537,000.

Of this amount, £60,000,000 is for the acquisition, design construction and development of multi-purpose test centres (MPTCs). The remainder of £537,000 has been allocated for equipment, training and site set-up costs.

These MPTCs will satisfy the requirements of the second European driving licence directive for motorcycles, but will also cater for other types of test, including practical motor-car tests.

Pedestrian Crossings

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the expected spending in future years is on the non-motorised user crossings programme. [131198]

Dr. Ladyman: It is not possible to predict future spending on the non-motorised user crossing programme as most of the schemes are delivered as part of larger improvements. Investigations are scheduled over a number of years and not all will result in schemes being taken forward. In addition, all new highways schemes receive a non-motorised user audit and this may result in further schemes that are not currently identified in the programme. Highways Agency expenditure for the three years from 2008-09 will be determined in the spending review to be concluded later in the year.

Public Transport: Greater London

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 27 March 2007, Official Report, column 1382W, on public transport: Greater London, whether any legislative change is required for the development of London Works. [131205]

Gillian Merron: There are no legislative changes required for the development of London Works. It will support the management of both the existing regulatory regime for works carried out by undertakers under the New Roads and Street Works Act 1991 (NRSWA), and the new regulations that reflect changes to NRSWA by the Traffic Management Act 2004.

Railways: Franchises

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the timetable is for decisions on rail franchises under consideration; and if he will make a statement. [131705]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Secretary of State will announce the award of the Intercity East Coast Franchise, the East Midlands Franchise, the West Midlands Franchise and the Cross Country Franchise in summer 2007.

Railways: Litter

Mr. Atkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will take steps to improve the collection of rubbish off the trackside of the rail network. [131231]

Mr. Tom Harris: Responsibility for the clearance of rubbish from the trackside is an operational matter for Network Rail, as the owner and operator of the national rail network. Network Rail has its own operational arrangements and policies relating to clearance, consistent with current legislation.

The hon. Member should contact Network Rail's Chief Executive at the following address for a response to his question:

John Armitt
Chief Executive
Network Rail
40 Melton Street
London NW1 2EE

Railways: Portsmouth

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 27 March 2007, Official Report, column 1384W, on Railways: Portsmouth, what estimate he has made of the end date for the continued engineering overrun in the Portsmouth area; and if he will make a statement. [131326]

Mr. Tom Harris: Stagecoach South Western Trains (SSWT) has advised the Department that they continue to have detailed discussions with Network Rail regarding the engineering overrun in the Portsmouth area and to date Network Rail have been unable to confirm a revised completion date with SSWT.

SSWT has made appropriate changes to its timetable to ensure that it is able to maintain the best service given the restrictions to access.

Rights of Way

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of local authorities' rights of way improvement plans. [129401]

Barry Gardiner: I have been asked to reply.

In its role as a statutory consultee, Natural England has been reviewing, and offering guidance on, individual rights of way improvement plans as they are being prepared. The quality of those adopted so far is reported to be generally very good. By the middle of last month, 14 per cent. of local highway authorities in England had adopted plans—well in advance of the 21 November 2007 deadline. A further 66 per cent. were expected to meet the deadline. I wrote to the chief executives of the remaining 20 per cent. on 27 February 2007 to remind them of their statutory obligations.

I cannot comment on the progress of rights of way improvement plans in Wales as the National Assembly Government have delegated authority in this area.

Speed Limits: East Sussex

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many fixed speed cameras are located in (a) Eastbourne and (b) East Sussex, broken down by site and district council area. [130938]

Dr. Ladyman: The Department does not hold this information, but does have the information for the area covered by the Sussex Safety Camera Partnership, analysed by local authority. The details are shown in the following table.

Local authority	Number
Brighton and Hove	9
East Sussex county council	14
Highways Agency (Sussex)	4
West Sussex county council	25
Grand total	52

The National Safety Camera Programme ceased on 29 March 2007 and the response represents data held as at that date. Future operation and deployment of safety cameras will be under the control of local partnerships, who will be better able to supply up to date information.

Speed Limits: East Yorkshire

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many fixed speed cameras there are in East Yorkshire, broken down by site; when each camera was installed; what assessment he has made of the impact of each camera on road safety; and if he will make a statement. [130806]

Dr. Ladyman: The Department does not hold this information, but does have the information for the area covered by the Humberside Safety Camera Partnership, analysed by local authority. The details are shown in the following table.

Local authority	Established	Site name
Kingston upon Hull	10 May 2005	A1165/Clough Road, Hull
Kingston upon Hull	10 May 2005	Spring Bank West, Hull/Princes Avenue to Chanterlands Avenue
Kingston upon Hull	1 August 2005	Beverley Road , Hull

The most recent assessment is the independent four-year evaluation of the National Safety Camera Programme, published on 15 December 2005. This confirms that safety cameras continue to be a valuable and cost-effective method of enforcing speed limits, and cameras in Humberside showed casualty reductions greater than the national average.

The National Safety Camera Programme ceased on 29 March 2007 and the response represents data held as at that date. Future operation and deployment of safety cameras will be under the control of local partnerships, who will be better able to supply up-to-date information.

Taxis: Kent

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much has been spent on improving safety for taxi drivers in (a) Gravesham and (b) Kent in the latest period for which figures are available. [130990]

Gillian Merron: The Department does not hold any figures on how much is spent on improving safety for taxi drivers by local authorities and other local bodies. However, we are aware that a number of initiatives have been funded through local transport plans, crime and disorder reduction partnerships and similar sources.

Recognising the importance of safety, we are, at the national level, funding a research project into the personal security of taxi and PHV drivers and relevant measures that can be taken to improve the position. The project began in January and is expected to take 12 months to complete.

Also included in the best practice guidance to taxi and PHV licensing authorities is the advice that authorities should look sympathetically on, or actively encourage, installation in vehicles of measures to improve drivers' safety. Attention has also been drawn to Home Office information on crime reduction measures including the provision of CCTV.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agricultural Wages Board

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the reasons are for the retention of the Agricultural Wages Board; and what assessment he has made of the implications of the introduction of the national minimum wage for the board's role and functions. [125965]

Barry Gardiner: The Agricultural Wages Board provides a pay structure for the agricultural workers linking minimum pay rates, qualifications and experience. This goes beyond the protection given by the national minimum wage arrangements. Given the fragmented and isolated nature of the agricultural workforce, the strong links between home and job, and the need to protect migrant and seasonal workers from exploitation, the Government decided to retain the agricultural minimum wage when the national minimum wage was introduced in 1999. These concerns remain valid today and the Government consider that it is appropriate to maintain the current protections given to agricultural workers.

Agriculture: Air Pollution

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the risk of making public applications for compliance with the Integrated Pollution Prevention and Control Regulations. [127376]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Pollution Prevention and Control (England and Wales) Regulations 2000 require advertisement in the local press and in the London Gazette, that a permit application has been made. A copy of the permit application itself, and any permit issued as a result, are required by the Regulations to be held on the Public Register maintained by the Environment Agency at its relevant local office.

If the Secretary of State is of the opinion that making information available in this way would be contrary to the interests of national security, he may direct that the information should not be made available. Similarly, if an applicant considers that information which would be made available is commercially confidential, he may apply to the regulator for it not to be made available and may appeal to the Secretary of State if he is dissatisfied with the regulator's decision. In these ways, the risks of publication can be assessed.

Agriculture: Subsidies

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will take steps to cap payments to farmers and farm businesses. [130712]

Barry Gardiner: Under the rules of the Common Agricultural Policy the UK has no authority to cap payments to farmers and farm businesses. Nor do we think it is an effective or rational way of distributing farm support.

The European Commission proposed a cap of 300,000 euros as part of Agenda 2000. We opposed this on the basis it would: distort the industry by discouraging the adoption of sensible, market-based, business models; prove administratively burdensome; and imbalance the CAP budget by further penalising net contributors like the UK and Germany.

Air Pollution: Government Departments

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department is considering to reduce the amount of carbon emissions that Government buildings produce. [130717]

Ian Pearson: Working with the Carbon Trust, DEFRA has developed a systematic approach to carbon management and is actively engaged in identifying carbon reduction opportunities through operational improvements, reduced energy costs, staff awareness and monitoring initiatives.

A system for benchmarking, monitoring and analysing utility usage across the estate has been created which highlights buildings where substantial energy savings can be made. Focusing on these sites has helped identify key projects which will return major savings on energy consumption and carbon emissions.

Among other smaller projects, three major 'voltage optimisation' projects which could save the Department a potential 900 tonnes of carbon per year (8 per cent. of DEFRA's total annual carbon emissions) are currently being assessed with a view to implementation before the end of the financial year. The success of these pilot projects will influence the roll out of further initiatives in the new financial year.

Avian Influenza: North West Region

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what strategies his Department has in place to combat (a) avian influenza and (b) foot and mouth disease in the North West. [130719]

Mr. Bradshaw: The key to effective disease control is good surveillance, early detection and rapid response. DEFRA's Contingency Plan for Exotic Animal Diseases, which is available on the DEFRA website, covers arrangements for response to outbreaks of avian influenza and foot and mouth disease. Our contingency planning was tested by the avian influenza case in Suffolk earlier this year and it coped well.

The North West Regional Resilience Forum has drafted a North West Exotic Animal Disease Plan that complements DEFRA's plan and would be implemented in the event of an outbreak requiring a response from the full range of regional resilience partners.

DEFRA has also issued extensive guidance to bird and livestock keepers on biosecurity measures to protect their stock from animal diseases, including avian influenza and foot and mouth disease.

Biofuels

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what percentage of set aside is being cultivated for biofuel and biomass crops. [130098]

Ian Pearson: Of the 360,000 or so hectares English farmers are obliged to set aside, some 76,000 hectares (21 per cent.), have been entered into contracts under the non-food set-aside arrangements for the 2006 Single Payment Scheme. The majority of the hectares concerned would be used for energy purposes, but the precise number could be gathered only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research his Department has commissioned on the effects on biodiversity of biomass and biofuel crops. [130099]

Ian Pearson: My Department funds an ongoing programme of research on Non Food Crops, which includes assessing the effects of energy crops on biodiversity. In particular, we are funding an extension to the RELU-biomass (Rural Economy and Land Use) project to asses field-scale impacts on biodiversity from New Crops. New research for 2007 is planned to model the landscape scale impacts of biomass crops on biodiversity.

Current evidence indicates that, in comparison with arable crops, energy crops such as short rotation coppice and miscanthus can encourage biodiversity, particularly for birds and insects, although the species composition may differ from those normally found on arable land.

Biofuels: Hemp

David Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the potential to grow hemp as a biofuel crop in England. [130749]

Ian Pearson: Research into the potential of hemp as a biofuel crop suggests it is not currently competitive compared to other sources of biomass. However, hemp does have a number of high-value end uses. For example, as a fibre crop it is used in car panels, construction and as horse bedding. In addition, hempseed oil is used in food, cosmetics and various industrial applications. As a result, there is little interest in this country at present in growing it for biofuel production.

Bluetongue Disease

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when the national plan for tackling bluetongue disease will be published. [131319]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Bluetongue Control Strategy agreed in 2002, which is available on the DEFRA website, sets out the disease control measures which the UK would use in the event of an outbreak of Bluetongue. The Strategy is currently under review (in partnership with industry) in light of experience and epidemiological evidence from the 2006 Northern European outbreak, and may therefore be subject to amendment.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what compensation packages are in place for farmers whose stock (a) become infected with bluetongue disease and (b) need to be contiguously culled. [131320]

Mr. Bradshaw: As Bluetongue is spread via vectors (that is, midges), rather than from animal to animal, compulsory slaughter of ruminants infected with bluetongue would not normally form part of our control strategy. We would not, therefore, expect any compensation to be payable.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate his Department has made of the maximum distance a midge infected with bluetongue can travel. [131386]

Mr. Bradshaw: The species of Culicoides midge, which has acted as a vector for disease in the current North European outbreak, is different from the species which have traditionally acted as the vector in Southern Europe and Africa. The European Food Standard Agency are currently conducting a detailed epidemiological analysis of the North European outbreak, including details of vector biology and behaviour.

From initial studies it can be roughly estimated that a midge can travel up to 1.5-2 kilometres (km) a day in a local area. However, if caught in suitable meteorological conditions, midges can be carried much farther (that is, more than 200 km) especially over water masses. All of these details are an approximation and vary according to local environmental, topographical and meteorological conditions.

Bluetongue Disease: Disease Control

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what the size is of the restricted area needed to isolate a farm from bluetongue; [130983]

(2) what plans he has made to combat an outbreak of bluetongue disease. [130984]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Bluetongue Order 2003 implements, in England, the requirements of European Union Council Directive 2000/75/EEC, which lays down specific measures for the control and eradication of Bluetongue. Similar legislation applies in Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland.

The legislation provides for measures (including veterinary investigation and movement restrictions) on premises where the presence of disease is suspected. When disease is confirmed, an initial zone of 20 kilometres (km) radius, a Protection Zone (PZ) of at least 100 km radius and Surveillance Zone (SZ) (at least 50 km beyond the PZ) would be established surrounding the infected premises. The measures applying to suspect premises are maintained and extended to all premises with susceptible animals in the 20 km zone. There is also a ban on the movement of animals out of the PZ, or out of the SZ, although some derogations from movement restrictions may be allowed, in agreement with the European Commission.

The Bluetongue Control Strategy, agreed in 2002, which is available on the DEFRA website, sets out the disease control measures in more detail. The strategy is currently under review (in partnership with industry) in light of experience and epidemiological evidence from the 2006 Northern European outbreak, and may therefore be subject to amendment.

Bovine Tuberculosis

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the reliability of the use of tuberculin manufactured in Holland to identify cattle with bovine tuberculosis. [131312]

Mr. Bradshaw: In August last year, the Chief Veterinary Officer issued a report on the possible reasons for the reduction in the number of new tuberculosis (TB) incidents observed in Great Britain (GB) in the first half of 2006. This report, available on the Defra website, includes an assessment of the performance characteristics of the tuberculins manufactured by ID Lelystad BV in Holland, and by the Veterinary Laboratories Agency (VLA), in the context of Britain's bovine TB testing programme. It concludes that, although the two tuberculins perform slightly differently in the field, and that this could be a small contributory factor to the reduction in the number of new TB incidents, the difference is not significant enough to account for the whole fall.

The performance of the tuberculins manufactured by ID Lelystad and by the VLA has continued to be closely monitored and analysed—our reviews do not call into question the efficacy of either tuberculin supply. Furthermore, all tuberculin used in GB (produced by ID Lelystad or VLA) is produced and assayed to the same standard, as part of European Union licensing procedures.

Bovine Tuberculosis: Cheshire

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) how many false positive results were obtained from tests for bovine tuberculosis undertaken in Eddisbury constituency in each of the last five years; [131311]

(2) how much compensation was paid to farmers in Eddisbury constituency for the slaughter of cattle with bovine tuberculosis in each year since 2001. [131314]

Mr. Bradshaw: Routine cattle herd testing for bovine tuberculosis (bTB) in Great Britain uses the single intradermal comparative cervical tuberculin (SICCT) test (commonly known as the "skin test").

Research shows that when the skin test is applied to cattle in bTB-free herds in Great Britain, there is a less than one in 1,000 chance that a non-infected animal will be wrongly classified as a reactor. This is known as the test's false positive rate. An alternative way of defining this is to say that the skin test has a specificity in excess of 99.9 per cent. Although the probability of getting at least one false positive result increases with the size of the herd being tested, it would be extremely rare to find more than one false positive in a herd.

When considering the false positive issue it is important to bear in mind that failure to confirm the disease by post-mortem examination at the slaughterhouse, or by culturing the causative bacterium in the laboratory, does not mean that the animal was not infected with bTB. In the early stages of this infectious disease, it is not always possible to see lesions with the naked eye and, due to the fastidious nature of the organism, it is not possible to culture it from tissue samples in every case. Because of this it is not possible to give a meaningful figure for the number of false positive test results.

Statistics on cattle slaughtered under bTB control measures are not collected on a constituency basis, but at county level. The following table shows the number of cattle slaughtered under TB control measures in Cheshire in the last five years;

	Number of TB reactors slaughtered	Total number of cattle slaughtered[1]
2006[2]	120	149
2005[2]	140	248
2004	285	425
2002[3]	299	393

Details of compensation paid to farmers for the slaughter of cattle under bTB control measures are not available on either a constituency or a county basis. The following table shows the number of animals slaughtered under TB control measures in Great Britain in each year since 2001 and the amount of compensation paid as a result:

Financial year	Total number of cattle slaughtered[1]	Compensation paid (£ million)
2005[2]	30,081	42.8
2004	23,064	33.8
2003	23,821	38.2
2002[3]	23,744	23.1
2001[3]	6,549	7.1

[2] Provisional data, subject to change as more data become available.
[3] In 2001, the TB testing and control programme was largely suspended due to the foot and mouth disease (FMD) outbreak. When testing resumed in 2002, resources were concentrated on herds with overdue TB tests which would have had a longer period in which to contract the disease. Also the proportion of high risk herds tested immediately after the FMD outbreak was greater than that prior to the outbreak. As a result, data for 2001 and 2002 are not comparable with other years.

Bovine Tuberculosis: Compensation

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what measures are in place to ensure that compensation for the slaughter of cattle with actual or presumed bovine tuberculosis is at market value. [131313]

Mr. Bradshaw: In England, cattle compensation for bovine tuberculosis is determined each month, primarily using table valuations based on contemporaneous sales prices. The 47 cattle categories used were finalised after two public consultations.

To support the system, sales data are continuously collected, by an independent service provider, from a large number and wide range of sources across Great Britain. These sources include "regular" markets, dispersal sales, and breed sales.

A statistical analysis of sales data collected during a 12 month period has helped Defra to identify the level of variability in sales prices for each category. This intelligence is used to determine when there are insufficient data to support a table valuation.

Bovine Tuberculosis: Dogs

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what evidence his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) assessed on the incidence of bovine tuberculosis amongst dogs; and whether he plans to make this a notifiable disease. [130539]

Mr. Bradshaw: TB in dogs is already notifiable. The Tuberculosis (England) Order 2006 introduced a duty to report suspected TB in the carcase of any farmed or pet mammal to the Divisional Veterinary Manager of Animal Health (previously the State Veterinary Service). The Order also made it compulsory to notify the Veterinary Laboratories Agency (VLA) if Mycobacterium bovis (M. bovis) is identified by laboratory examination of samples taken from any mammal (other than a human).

Although TB can affect dogs, the apparent incidence is very low. Until 2006, the VLA typically processed fewer than five samples from dogs each year. Since enactment of the new TB Order in March last year, the number of canine submissions to the VLA has increased and tissue samples from 20 dogs were processed in 2006. Only four cases of confirmed infection of canine TB caused by M. bovis have been recorded by the VLA between 1993 and 2004. There have been no confirmed cases since 2004.

The consensus of veterinary opinion is that dogs are a spill-over host for M. bovis and not an epidemiologically significant source of infection for cattle or other species. Therefore, no research has been conducted in this area.

British Waterways: Finance

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the likely impact on British Waterways' ability to meet its deadline for 2012 for the full clearance of the maintenance arrears if British Waterways' grant-in-aid is to be set at £55.4 million with a five per cent. year on year reduction with adjustments for retail price index; and whether a new deadline has been set for the removal of these arrears. [130881]

Barry Gardiner: Funding levels over the Comprehensive Spending Review period have not yet been decided. British Waterways' target to clear its maintenance arrears by December 2012, which it published in 2002-03, was predicated on assumptions of both Government grant and planned returns on commercial income. British Waterways adjusts its plans in the light of updated figures for both grant and income.

While the safety backlog has been completed, no date has been set for completion of the maintenance backlog. British Waterways will continue to reduce it using a risk-based approach as it moves towards greater self sufficiency through finding ways to boost income.

Bull-fighting: EC Grants and Loans

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to seek to end the support available under the Common Agricultural Policy to farms that breed and supply bulls for bull-fighting purposes. [130227]

Barry Gardiner: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 1 February 2007, Official Report, column 443W.

Chlorofluorocarbons

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his most recent estimate is of the amount of UK chlorofluorocarbon emissions from each source; what steps his Department is taking to reduce each of these sources; and if he will make a statement. [128351]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 27 March 2007]: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by the Minister for Science and Innovation, Department of Trade and Industry, on 19 March 2007, Official Report, column 629W, on phase out of remaining specialised uses of chlorofluorocarbons in the UK.

The most recent estimates of UK emissions of chlorofluorocarbons (CFCs) in the UK conclude that emissions have been decreasing since 1995. For example, emissions of CFC-11 dropped from 2.3 kilotonnes per year in 1995 to 0.6 kilotonnes per year. Similarly, emissions of CFC-12 and CFC-113 have dropped from 3.6 and 1.1 kilotonnes per year in 1995 to 0.5 and 0.2 kilotonnes per year in 2006, respectively.

This is consistent with global trends of emissions of CFCs following the ban in the developed world on production and consumption of CFCs under the Montreal Protocol since 1996, apart from exempt specialised uses agreed by the Parties.

Estimates of UK CFC emissions by source are not available. The most significant source of emissions is likely to be from historic disposal to landfill sites of equipment containing CFCs.

The main source from remaining specialised uses is likely to be from asthma inhalers that use CFCs. In 2006, 59 tonnes of new CFCs were allocated to the UK for production of asthma inhalers.

DEFRA has established continuous observations of CFCs (and other trace gases) at the Mace Head Atmospheric Research Station on the Atlantic Ocean coastline of Ireland. The Met Office uses the observations to estimate the magnitude and spatial distribution of the European emissions. Detailed information on CFC emissions can be found in Manning et al (2003), Journal of Geophysical Research 108, 4405.

Climate Change: Finance

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what proportion of gross domestic product (GDP) is spent by the Government on actions to combat climate change; whether he plans to increase spending to the 1 per cent. of GDP recommended by the Stern Review; and if he will make a statement. [125397]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 14 March 2007]: The Stern Review suggests that taking action to mitigate climate change—by aiming for a stabilisation goal of around 550 parts per million of carbon dioxide equivalent or lower—will cost a total of 1 per cent. of GDP across the world by 2050. However, Stern does not recommend that this estimated 1 per cent. of GDP should come from Government expenditure; nor does he suggest that every country should directly spend 1 per cent. of their GDP on measures to combat climate change—some countries will have higher costs than others.

Stern's estimate reflects the likely costs under a timely, flexible, global policy, employing a variety of economic instruments to control emissions of a broad range of greenhouse gases. Stern advocates action on three fronts:

1. To create a global price for carbon;

2. To provide finance for technology research, development and deployment; and

3. To take action to change behaviour—including encouraging energy efficiency and reduced deforestation, where there are many cheap abatement opportunities, some that even save money.

Therefore Stern recommends action by Government to ensure that the private sector faces clear long-term price signals and incentives to ensure low-carbon economies, for example by establishing cap and trade schemes, as well as some level of Government expenditure to bring forward low-carbon technology and tackle market failures. Using only Government expenditure as the sole means of delivering reductions in emissions is likely to impose greater burdens on economies than the alternatives, and if the signals are not clear enough, or we delay action, the costs could be significantly higher.

Coastal Areas: Access

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with ministerial colleagues in other departments on the contribution that providing access to the coast for leisure activities makes to (a) supporting coastal economies, (b) reducing obesity and (c) reducing carbon emissions by encouraging people to take holidays in the UK rather than overseas. [125558]

Barry Gardiner: I have regular discussions with Ministerial colleagues across a wide range of topics.

Coastal Areas: Flood Control

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he has taken to ensure that long-term regional strategies are in place to improve coastal flood management to take account of climate change risks; and how much he has allocated to such strategies in each of the next three years. [126476]

Ian Pearson: Since the 1990s DEFRA and its predecessors have encouraged coastal defence authorities to produce shoreline management plans (SMPs) that provide a framework for long term strategic planning at the coast, taking account of climate change and other factors. These SMPs are developed on a coastal cell basis which is appropriate for the regional planning scale.

The first round of plans for the whole coast of England was completed in 1999 and a major programme of review is currently being implemented for completion by 2010. This review will fully incorporate lessons learnt from the first round plans and three pilot second round plans that have been undertaken to test and develop DEFRA's revised guidance to the authorities. In addition, first round plans have pointed to the need for a number of more detailed strategy studies that have been progressed in many areas.

There is no separate funding allocation for SMPs and these plans and strategic studies are being funded from DEFRA's overall flood and coastal erosion risk management budget. However, priority has been given to such studies in the allocation of limited funds available for new projects in 2007-08 to provide a sound basis for future programmes of improvement works.

SMPs are key documents to ensure consideration of coastal management issues in regional spatial strategies and future river basin district management plans being produced under the Water Framework Directive.

Common Agricultural Policy

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much in financial penalties was incurred by farmers in the UK for breaches under the Common Agricultural Policy in (a) 2004, (b) 2005 and (c) 2006. [127264]

Barry Gardiner: This answer relates only to England.

The current financial value of penalties applied under the 2004 Sheep Annual Premium Scheme is estimated at £387,356.

The current financial value of penalties applied under the 2004 Bovine Subsidy Schemes is estimated at £1,896,572. These schemes include Beef Special Premium Scheme, Slaughter Premium Scheme (English Adult & Veal), Suckler Cow Premium Scheme and the Extensification Payment Scheme.

The current financial value of penalties applied under the 2004 Arable Area Payments Scheme is estimated at £7,261,483.

Estimated value of penalties under the 2005 Single Payment Scheme

The current financial value of penalties applied under the 2005 Single Payment Scheme is estimated at £10,917,787.

Estimated value of penalties under the 2006 Single Payment Scheme

Figures are not yet available for 2006 payments.

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs against how many holdings in the UK financial penalties were applied for breaches under the Common Agricultural Policy in (a) 2004, (b) 2005 and (c) 2006. [127265]

Barry Gardiner: This answer relates only to England.

Number of producers/holdings penalised under the 2004 IACS subsidy schemes

286 producers/holdings have been penalised to date under the 2004 Sheep Annual Premium Scheme.

2,697 producers/holdings have been penalised to date under the 2004 Bovine Subsidy Schemes. These schemes include Beef Special Premium Scheme, Slaughter Premium Scheme (English Adult and Veal), Suckler Cow Premium Scheme and the Extensification Payment Scheme.

9,755 producers/holdings have been penalised to date under the 2004 Arable Area Payments Scheme.

Number of Producers/Single Business Identifiers (SBI) penalised under the 2005 Single Payment Scheme

16,474 Producers/SBIs have been penalised to date under the 2005 Single Payment Scheme.

Number of Producers/SBIs penalised under the 2006 Single Payment Scheme

Figures are not yet available for the 2006 Single Payments Scheme.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps have been taken to implement in the UK the programme for Enhancing Public Awareness of the Common Agricultural Policy (EU budget line 05 08 06); and if he will make a statement. [130663]

Barry Gardiner: Responsibility for the administration and allocation of funds under this budget line rests with the European Commission. Defra plays no part in determining these awards.

Common Fisheries Policy

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps have been taken to implement in the UK the Programme for Closer Dialogue with the Fishing Industry and Those Affected by the Common Fisheries Policy (EU budget code 11 04 01); and if he will make a statement. [130664]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Programme for Closer Dialogue with the Fishing Industry and those affected by the Common Fisheries Policy involves the establishment and on-going support of the Regional Advisory Councils (RACs) and the Advisory Committee for Fisheries and Aquaculture (AGFA). These bodies provide advice gathered from interested parties to the Commission and member states. The UK is not entitled to receive these funds, which are administered by the Commission to RACs and AGFA directly. The UK Fisheries Administrations do, however, support the aims of this programme and contribute funding from departmental budgets to support the work of the RACs.

The UK has an interest in four out of the seven RACs: the North Sea, North Western Waters, Pelagic and Long Distance RACs. While the European Commission has provided support for the set-up and certain operational costs, Defra and the Scottish Executive have provided additional funds and practical support for RACs. These are aimed at enhancing their efficiency, improving the quality of their advice and enabling interested parties in the UK to participate effectively in the RACs. For example, by funding specific projects designed to help RACs provide soundly based advice to the Commission.

Consultants

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which consultancy services his Department has employed over the past 12 months; what projects each has worked on; and what the cost to his Department was of each service. [112788]

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which external consultants were used by (a) his Department and (b) each of its agencies on projects excluding private finance initiatives and public-private partnerships in 2005-06; and what the (i) nature and (ii) cost of the work was in each case. [103631]

Barry Gardiner: The core-Department does not hold a central list of what every consultancy and professional services provider engaged by the core-Department worked on over the past 12 months, and such a list could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

I have placed in the House of Commons Library a list held centrally of the consultancy and professional services providers which were paid fees by the core-Department in 2005-06.

Dairy Farming

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he is taking to encourage fair and sustainable trading for dairy farmers in the UK; and if he will make a statement. [129784]

Barry Gardiner: The Dairy Supply Chain Forum provides an opportunity for all links in the supply chain to meet to discuss the challenges facing the industry (in England) and come up with collaborative solutions. It has a pivotal role in providing a framework for constructive debate, giving leadership for the dairy sector and providing information to all the industry to make informed decisions about their future. It has already provided useful information on the impacts of Common Agricultural Policy reform on the dairy sector, global supply and demand, the effects of trade liberalisation, and on barriers to innovation. DEFRA, in collaboration with Dairy UK has enhanced the resources for the Forum this year, enabling more work to be driven forward.

In addition, the Food Chain Centre is undertaking a number of projects in the dairy sector which DEFRA has supported through substantial grants under the Agricultural Development Scheme (ADS). This work includes a value chain analysis of eight dairy chains, which looks at reducing supply chain waste and improving efficiency. DEFRA is also helping to fund a project being undertaken by the Food Chain Centre and Milk Development Council to encourage benchmarking among dairy farmers to enable them to find ways of reducing their costs of production.

Departments: East Sussex

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much his Department provided in grants for projects in (a) Eastbourne and (b) East Sussex in 2005-06. [130926]

Barry Gardiner: The major funding for Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (DEFRA) for local and regional initiatives is through the Revenue Support Grant made to local authorities. The Department for Communities and Local Government (CLG) is responsible for this funding. This covers a number of areas including local environmental quality and waste services.

DEFRA also provides funding to a range of non-departmental public bodies including Environment Agency, Natural England and Regional Development Agencies.

In terms of direct grants, DEFRA provided approximately £250,000 for projects for East Sussex county council between 2005-06.

DEFRA provided approximately £90,000 for projects for Eastbourne borough council between 2005-06.

These projects relate to animal health, waste, contaminated land and beach management.

Departments: EC Action

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many expert European negotiators he has in his Department; what tasks they are engaged in; and if he will make a statement. [128588]

Barry Gardiner: A substantial proportion of Defra's work on environment, agriculture, fisheries and animal health and welfare policy is connected with EU decision-making processes. Therefore, at any given time, a considerable number of our policy experts will be engaged in different kinds of EU negotiations, ranging from ad hoc informal groups through to high-level formal negotiations.

Departments: Email

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the policy is of (a) his Department, (b) non-departmental public bodies reporting to his Department and (c) executive agencies reporting to his Department on the time after which emails sent to and from the Department and those bodies are deleted; whether such emails are still recoverable after that date from the system; and if he will make a statement. [130985]

Barry Gardiner: DEFRA's policy is that significant emails (i.e. those containing information about DEFRA decisions or actions which should form part of the official record) are printed for file or saved and stored corporately in accordance with departmental record management procedures that also apply to paper information. DEFRA's guidance on email management emphasises the importance of capturing all significant email messages but staff are encouraged to delete other emails, such as those relating to meeting arrangements and routine messages, as soon as possible. Deleted emails are recoverable for nine weeks after deletion.

DEFRA's main Agencies/NDPBs follow broadly similar policies though the Environment Agency has implemented a system to delete any email which has not been saved after 180 days and the period during which backups are retained varies between organisations.

Departments: Employment Tribunals Service

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many complaints to an employment tribunal were lodged against (a) his Department and (b) its associated (i) agencies and (ii) non-departmental public bodies in each of the last five years; and how much it cost his Department to defend and settle those complaints on aggregate in each year. [126523]

Barry Gardiner: The number of complaints to an employment tribunal that were lodged against (a) the core Department and (b) its agencies and the cost of settling these complaints in the last five years is shown in the following table. The Department has no information on the number of complaints submitted to non-departmental public bodies or on the cost of defending complaints.

Number of complaints

	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006
Core Defra	7	2	13	3	19
Agencies	3	0	2	4	22

Settlement costs

	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006
Core Defra	5,503	1,250	336,000	16,000	4,000
Agencies	22,000	0	500	2,500	2,500

Includes settlement of one claim submitted on behalf of 44 temporary veterinary inspectors which was settled for £300,000.

Departments: Non-departmental Public Bodies

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which non-departmental public bodies under his Department have changed their (a) name and (b) branding since 1997, what changes were made in each case, at what cost to the Exchequer in each case; and if he will make a statement. [129019]

Barry Gardiner: I am only able to report on changes which have been made since the formation of my Department in 2001. The non-departmental public bodies which have incurred expenditure through name change and re-branding over this period were Natural England, the Environment Agency and the Royal Botanic Gardens, Kew.

Natural England was established in October 2006 when it took over the functions, staff and assets of English Nature, the landscape access and recreation division of the Countryside Agency, and part of the Rural Delivery Service. Natural England does not have information available about changes of name or branding within their legacy bodies prior to that time. The re-branding by Natural England has cost the Exchequer £385,000 for brand materials, website changes, new signs, stationery, publications and launch events.

In 2004, the Environment Agency reviewed its approach to communications and its brand. The work involving research, development, testing and launch was carried out by a mix of in-house teams, brand consultants and a design firm. Costs up to the launch of the re-brand were £120,000. However, it was agreed that communications materials were only replaced when existing stocks became exhausted or when a contract was due for renewal. No additional money—other than for a short guide to the brand for Environment Agency staff—has been spent "launching the brand".

During 2003 the Royal Botanic Gardens, Kew introduced changes to its branding and public face at a one-off cost of £80,000; this exercise did not involve a change of name.

None of the other non-departmental public bodies for which my Department has responsibility have undergone re-naming or re-branding.

Departments: Older Workers

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will place in the Library a copy of his letter sent to employees at age 65 informing them of the opportunity to continue working if they wish. [128357]

Barry Gardiner: The hon. Member will wish to be aware that a letter is sent to employees before their 60th birthday rather than at age 65. The letter sets out the options for employees working beyond 60. The Secretary of State has placed this letter in the Defra library.

Departments: Personation

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department has taken to raise awareness of the dangers of identity fraud among employees at his Department. [130431]

Barry Gardiner [holding answer 28 March 2007]: As part of a recent review of fraud policy the department acknowledged identity fraud as a potential risk. The review led to a number of steps during 2006 to raise general awareness of fraud, including publishing revised guidance on fraud on the DEFRA internal anti fraud website and publishing a number of articles in the in-house magazine.

Specific parts of the department will also take action as appropriate. For instance, the Rural Payments Agency has an anti fraud unit—The Counter Fraud and Compliance Unit—which actively counters identity fraud for claimants and is responsible for considering all referrals relating to suspected fraud involving external customers and agents.

Departments: Public Expenditure

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the reasons are for the proposed changes in the budget for the (a) Veterinary Laboratories Agency, (b) State Veterinary Service, (c) Meat and Livestock Commission and (d) Pesticides Safety Directorate; and what assessment he has made of the likely effect of those changes on the (i) safety, (ii) research and (iii) investigative work of each. [128771]

Barry Gardiner: The Veterinary Laboratories Agency's (VLA) budget for 2007-08 has remained static. The only area this is likely to impact on is research and it is more likely that it will result in delays in commencing work rather than work actually being cut.

The State Veterinary Service (SVS) 2007-08 budget has been reviewed to reflect Defra's wider business needs and also to reflect changes in the SVS's business needs. The budget changes have been reviewed for their impact on the SVS's capacity and capability to deliver, ensuring that disease risks are not increased. In particular, the changes to the SVS budget will not affect safety or the efficacy of investigative work. The SVS does not undertake research.

The Meat and Livestock Commission (MLC) expenditure is not a matter for my Department. We pay the MLC to carry out certain functions and cuts are planned in some of these work areas. These are not related to the MLC's safety, research or investigative work.

With regards to the Pesticides Safety Directorate, the savings were focused on lower priority activities and were achieved by improving efficiency and also reducing support service costs. The primary aim throughout has been to protect key services and ensure they continue to be delivered to appropriate standards. The savings put in place will, therefore, have no impact on pesticides safety which is the Directorate's top priority. Some research projects, particularly on the behaviour of pesticides in the environment, will have to be postponed. There should be no significant impact on investigative and surveillance work, particularly since efficiency gains from new technology have allowed the number of samples tested within the key pesticide residues surveillance programme to be maintained at lower costs.

Departments: Redundancy

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much was spent on (a) involuntary and (b) voluntary staff exit schemes in (i) his Department and (ii) each agency of the Department in each year since 1997-98; how much is planned to be spent for 2007-08; and if he will make a statement. [123926]

Barry Gardiner: Expenditure on involuntary and voluntary staff exits in Defra and its agencies since the creation of Defra in 2001 is set out in the following tables. The figures are based on the full estimated cost, including estimated monthly compensation payments up to normal retirement age, of each exit taking place in the stated financial year.

In order to achieve the Department's SR04 efficiency targets there will be further voluntary exits in 2007-08 but the costs have not yet been determined.

The following tables show expenditure on voluntary and involuntary staff exits.

Departments: Travel

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what criteria he adopts to decide what means of transport he uses to travel between his Department's offices and the Palace of Westminster. [130731]

Barry Gardiner: There are no formal criteria used. As a general rule the Secretary of State walks to the Palace of Westminster.

Departments: Work Permits

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many work permits were applied for by (a) his Department and (b) its agencies in each of the last five years. [126800]

Barry Gardiner: This information is not held centrally. It can be obtained for the last three years but only at disproportionate cost. We are currently undertaking a HR management information review through which we will seek to ensure that all such information relating to new Civil Servants is collected and easily available in the future.

Diabrotica Virgifera

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which (a) public and (b) private research establishments have received permission to carry out contained experiments involving Diabrotica virgifera in the UK since 1995; on what date permission was granted in each case; what conditions were attached to the consents in each case; and under what legislation the permission was granted in each case. [129943]

Barry Gardiner: The following establishments currently hold licences under Part 8 of the Plant Health (England) Order 2005 to carry out scientific experiments on Diabrotica virgifera (preferred name Diabrotica virgifera virgifera), subject to a range of measures to prevent release or escape of the pest.

(a) Public research establishments:

DEFRA's Central Science Laboratory, York

Royal Botanic Gardens, Kew

(b) Private research establishments:

Syngenta, Jealotts Hill

University of Cambridge

University of Durham University of Newcastle
Warwick HRI, Wellesbourne

Conditions in the licences include:

(i) use of quarantine containment facilities which have been approved by the DEFRA Plant Health and Seeds Inspectorate

(ii) inactivation of waste material during the research

(iii) destruction of all licensed material at the end of the research

(iv) record keeping

(v) provision of access to DEFRA inspectors to conduct audit visits.

It has not yet been possible to retrieve information back to 1995 on licences issued under Article 30 and 30A of the Plant Health (Great Britain) Order 1993. I will write to the hon. Member as soon as this information is available.

Domestic Waste

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 30 January 2007, Official Report, column 285W, on domestic waste, which councils provide alternate weekly collections according to the most recent figures held by the Waste and Resources Action Programme. This list represents our best understanding of LAs operating or implementing AWC schemes. However, due to the often rapid changes in this area, it is unlikely to be completely up to date.

Many schemes are currently being rolled out, so not all households in a LA area will receive the service. In addition, AWC is being trialled in some areas and no decision has been taken as to whether such schemes will be rolled out more widely.

WRAP estimate that there are around 140 LAs operating an AWC service, which represents about 40 per cent. of collection authorities. Around one third of all households receive an AWC service and this number is set to increase as schemes are rolled out borough-wide.

Domestic Wastes: Waste Management

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what guidance his Department and its agencies have issued to local authorities advocating a move to alternate weekly collection schemes for the collection of household rubbish; [130544]

(2) what estimate (a) his Department and (b) its agencies have made of the cost to local authorities of providing (i) weekly and (ii) alternate weekly collections of household rubbish; [130551]

(3) what funding (a) his Department and (b) its agencies have provided to local authorities for alternate weekly collection schemes for the collection of household rubbish. [130552]

Mr. Bradshaw: It is for each local authority (LA) to decide whether to implement alternate weekly collection, or any other waste management system. However, my Department has funded research and guidance to assist LAs in carrying out their operations in the most efficient and effective manner. This will ensure that such changes in collections do not impact negatively on residents.

Guidance published by the Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP) in 2005 sets out the process councils need to go through if they are considering the introduction of an alternate week collection service. The guidance is based on the experiences of LAs that have already implemented such schemes. WRAP is currently revising its guidance to take account of the latest research, including recent householder and LA experiences. Suitability of an alternate weekly collection service often depends on local geography and housing stock. The guidance also emphasises that a key part of any successful change is following full consultation with local residents.

My Department has made some assumptions about the costs of alternate weekly collections in our modelling for the review of England's Waste Strategy. Those assumptions were based on collection cost estimates from WRAP's Kerbside Analysis Tool model and five consultants as part of a preliminary benchmarking project run by Be-Environmental and let by WRAP. A more complete study will follow later this year.

WRAP has not carried out a general assessment of cost savings associated with alternate weekly collection.

The work that has been done has looked at particular LAs and how alternate weekly collection has been implemented in these cases. The general work that WRAP has been undertaking for Defra looks at different types of alternate weekly collection design and how this impacts on recycling performance and total quantities of household waste collected.

Alternate weekly collection covers a number of important design decisions in relation to residual household waste, recycling and composting collections and only one component of this is whether or not to collect household residual waste on alternate weeks. There are many systems where only elements of recycling and composting alternate with one another and the refuse is still collected on a weekly basis.

WRAP has carried out regular public attitude surveys since 2004 that have included ratings of how convenient the public find different LA collection systems to use. Only a minority of alternate weekly collection systems received poor convenience ratings and these related to systems where insufficient capacity has been provided to householders in the week that alternated with refuse collection.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether he expects Joint Waste Authorities to be able to impose alternate weekly collection of domestic rubbish on individual councils within an authority. [130568]

Mr. Bradshaw: Under the proposals to allow creation of Joint Waste Authorities (JWA), it will be for groups of authorities to determine which powers they wish to pass to a JWA. If a group of authorities opted to pass waste collection responsibilities to a JWA, then the constituent authorities would no longer have a role in waste collection. The JWA would be responsible for making decisions such as whether to introduce alternate weekly collection. The JWA would be governed by elected members from the constituent local authorities. If a group of authorities chose to pass only waste disposal functions to the JWA, and to retain waste collection responsibilities themselves, the JWA would not be able to make any decisions about alternate weekly collection.

Endangered Species

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which Ministers have represented the UK at each meeting of the (a) International Whaling Commission and (b) Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species in the last five years; and who the UK's ministerial representatives at the next meetings of these bodies will be. [128787]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 23 March 2007]: At the 2002 annual meeting of the International Whaling Commission (IWC) the UK was represented at ministerial level by my right hon. Friend the Member for Scunthorpe (Mr. Morley). In 2003 no Government Minister attended. In 2004, 2005 and 2006 I attended.

My right hon. Friend the Member for Scunthorpe (Mr. Morley) also attended the 2002 and 2004 Conferences of the Parties to the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species (CITES).

The Minister with responsibility for biodiversity, my hon. Friend the Member for Brent, North (Barry Gardiner) will be attending both this year's meeting of the International Whaling Commission (IWC59) and the 14th Conference of Parties to CITES (COP14).

The UK is one of only three members to have regular ministerial level representation at IWC meetings, the others being Australia and New Zealand. Similarly, the UK is among a minority of parties that have regularly had ministerial representation at CITES COPs.

Energy: Conservation

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many pensioner households in Tamworth constituency are eligible for (a) warm front grants to install energy efficient measures and (b) (i) free and (ii) reduced cost installation of central heating systems. [129992]

Ian Pearson: Information on the exact number of residents in Tamworth eligible for warm front is not available. However, on the basis of statistical modelling used by the warm front scheme manager, it is estimated that some 8,000 households in Tamworth could currently be eligible for assistance from the Scheme.

Since the start of the second phase of the warm front in June 2005, 491 households in Tamworth have received assistance from the scheme.

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) if he will make a statement on the withdrawal of Energy Efficiency Commitment funding to Eaga discussions; [128946]

(2) what discussions he has had with Eaga on the shortfall in funding for Warm Front grants since the withdrawal of Energy Efficiency Commitment funding. [129811]

Ian Pearson: Energy Efficiency Commitment funding has not been withdrawn from the Warm Front scheme.

Eaga Plc continues to work closely with energy suppliers in meeting energy efficiency saving targets set by the Energy Efficiency Commitment.

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what percentage of houses built since the introduction of energy efficiency regulations in 1985 met the required standards; and what steps his Department is taking to ensure compliance with these regulations. [129669]

Angela E. Smith: I have been asked to reply.

Enforcement of compliance with the Building Regulations is undertaken by local authorities and the data are not held centrally.

The Government have been aware of the concerns about non-compliance with the energy efficiency requirements for some time. They gave commitments in the 2003 Energy White Paper to raise performance standards and to work with local authorities on improving enforcement.

The 2006 amendment to the Building Regulations followed consultations with stakeholders and adopted a number of measures to improve compliance with the energy efficiency requirements. We have since undertaken the most comprehensive information, education and dissemination programme ever in regard to these changes to ensure all stakeholders are aware of the importance of these measures, of their obligations to comply and of ways of doing so. Monitoring of implementation is proceeding with six monthly consultations with the enforcement authorities and regular contacts with the building industry.

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what alternative he recommends for use with (a) domestic and (b) commercial dimmer switches when incandescent light bulbs are phased out. [130732]

Ian Pearson: We are working with retailers, lighting manufacturers and trade associations to phase out inefficient light bulbs over the next four years. We will phase out only those bulbs for which an efficient alternative currently exists.

Compact fluorescent light bulbs, an alternative to inefficient light bulbs, are now available for almost all household fittings. Dimmable compact fluorescent light bulbs, which work with both domestic and commercial dimmer switches, are already available and will be made increasingly available in the UK during the phase-out period.

Environment Agency: Finance

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has for changes in the Environment Agency budget. [131223]

Ian Pearson: The operating grant-in-aid that Defra provides to the Environment Agency (EA) for 2007-08 was announced in December 2006 and totals £570.884 million.

Overall departmental funding for the financial years 2008-09 to 2010-11, of which grant-in-aid to the EA forms a part, is being considered in the Government's 2007 Comprehensive Spending Review (CSR). The outcome of the CSR will be announced in the autumn. We will continue to work with the EA in preparation for this.

Farm Inspections

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many people are qualified to (a) lead farm inspections and (b) be part of farm inspection teams which are employed by (i) his Department and (ii) the Environment Agency. [130035]

Barry Gardiner: The Rural Payments Agency Inspectorate has around 200 inspectors who are fully competent to conduct farm inspections solo or as part of a team.

In England, Environment Agency officers generally undertake cross-compliance inspections alone (that is, not part of a 'team'). The number of officers trained and competent to undertake cross-compliance inspections in England is in the order of 150.

In Wales, inspections are normally lead by the Rural Inspectorate Wales and the Environment Agency Wales has about 25 officers trained and competent to undertake inspections.

Fish: River Don

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what steps were taken to ensure that the River Don was stocked with fish appropriate to the local area in the restocking that took place in January and March 2007; [130310]

(2) what steps are being taken to ensure the recovery of the River Don fishery. [130311]

Mr. Bradshaw: According to earliest available records (pre-1850), species such as grayling, roach, dace, chub, gudgeon, barbel, common bream, eel and perch are native to the River Don. We have utilised these records, together with the topography of the river, throughout our stocking programmes to stock species appropriate to the location. Fishery surveys were also undertaken after the recent pollution incident, and the data compared to that from previous surveys to help evaluate suitable species for stocking. Stocking needs for 2007-08 will be based upon future monitoring to ensure it meets the demands of the river following this incident.

Stocking is a useful fisheries management tool for developing and recovering rivers, but only one part of the recovery process. The river will slowly recover naturally as fish from upstream and downstream re-distribute, but we are considering what the river needs to improve fish stocks now and protect against possible future storm sewage incidents. Fish passes, for example, may be installed, according to need, in order to allow stocks unaffected by the pollution to migrate upstream. A recovery plan for the river is being finalised.

The Environment Agency has committed to work with angling clubs, British Waterways and Yorkshire Water to ensure the recovery and future protection of the river. Meetings have already taken place and discussions are ongoing.

Fisheries

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what measures he is taking to ensure sustainable fisheries management; and if he will make a statement. [130943]

Mr. Bradshaw: The UK Government continues to play an active role in negotiating improvements to the Common Fisheries Policy (CFP) designed to provide more sustainable long-term fisheries management. We are working to ensure depleted stocks are recovered and subsequently conserved, while at the same time delivering a viable future for our fishing industry, in order to optimise long-term benefits to the nation from fisheries. We are currently consulting the public on our 20-year Strategic vision for marine fisheries in England and English waters. We aim to arrive at a "contract" for marine fisheries recognising that everyone with an interest in fisheries has a role to play in achieving sustainability.

The November 2006 United Nations General Assembly (UNGA) discussion on a Sustainable Fisheries Resolution took a significant step forward, putting in place an agreed international framework for phasing out high seas bottom trawling over the next two years. This was possible because of the strong position taken by the UK and our EU partners. We continue to press for effective worldwide action and, with the EU, we will seek to ensure that everybody meets their responsibility to prevent this unregulated form of fishing from destroying so many marine creatures and habitats.

Fisheries: Quotas

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the likely economic impact on fishermen of the quota swap of UK prawns for German sole, and if he will make a statement. [131321]

Mr. Bradshaw: In 2006, the UK under-fished its North Sea nephrops quota by some 3,429 tonnes, 2,443 tonnes of which has been carried over to 2007. This takes this year's UK quota for this stock to 25,087 tonnes, which is 4,084 tonnes above the level of its actual landings in 2006.

In view of this, we concluded that "top-slicing" 375 tonnes from the UK's North Sea nephrops quota to pay for the quota swap with Germany would not have a significant impact on those groups targeting nephrops. Any disadvantage would be greatly outweighed by the benefit to the inshore fleet of securing 150 tonnes of North Sea sole. Without this quantity of sole, there was a real possibility of a significant number of small fishing enterprises going out of business, with a knock-on effect for shore-based companies and the viability of small fishing ports in South East England.

Fisheries Administrations will be consulting the catching industry on the apportionment of the 375 tonne reduction in North Sea nephrops quota.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he is taking to ensure that there is sufficient quota for the under 10 metre fishing fleet for 2008. [130945]

Mr. Bradshaw: Fisheries Administrations are considering the future management arrangements for the under 10 metre fleet as part of the Quota Management Change Programme. Work on this has already begun in the light of the Prime Minister's Strategy Unit report "Net Benefits". In this context, we are examining a range of issues, including:

(i) the balance of quota between the under and over 10 metre sectors

(ii) the potential for expansion in fishing effort within the under 10 metre fleet

(iii) and whether the current management systems for these vessels are still appropriate.

We expect to go out to consultation on proposals in the second half of 2007, with a view to introducing any changes (possibly on a phased basis) from next year. In the meantime, Fisheries Administrations will continue to enhance the fishing opportunities for the under 10 metre fleet wherever possible. This will be done through existing mechanisms such as the facility for quota "swaps" with other groups within the UK and with other member states.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether he has plans to swap fish quota with other countries; and if he will make a statement. [130981]

Mr. Bradshaw: Fisheries administrations swap fish quotas with other EU member states on a regular basis. Quota swaps are undertaken in order to maximise fishing opportunities for the UK fleet. In 2006, some 96 quota swaps were undertaken between the UK and other member states.

Flood Control

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether he plans to introduce a floodplain development charge following the findings of the Flood and Coastal Defence Funding Review. [130477]

Ian Pearson: As part of the 2002 Flood and Coastal Defence Funding Review, DEFRA consulted publicly on the idea of a floodplain development charge. This is an initial charge on developers in flood risk areas to cover the costs to the public purse of wider measures to protect proposed developments from flooding, beyond those covered by developer payments under section 106 of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990. Further public consultation on the idea was undertaken in 2004 as part of development of the new cross-Government strategy for flood and coastal erosion risk management "Making space for water".

Responses to the consultations indicated some limited support for a floodplain development charge. However, there would be some adverse effects and a number of difficult practical issues to resolve before such a charge could be introduced. There are no current plans to introduce a floodplain development charge. The Government remain committed to an effective and properly resourced flood and coastal erosion risk management service and will continue to explore options for meeting long-term funding needs.

Genetically Modified Organisms: Netherlands

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment his Department has made of the implications for the UK field trials of BASF genetically-modified blight-resistant potatoes of the Dutch Court ruling requiring field trials in the Netherlands of the same GM variety to be destroyed due to insufficient environmental risk assessment; and if he will make a statement. [130308]

Ian Pearson: Decisions on research trials of genetically modified organisms (GMOs) are made at a national level. We have our own procedures to consider applications for GM crop trials in England. This includes making sure that there is an appropriate risk assessment in accordance with Directive 2001/18/EC.

Genetically Modified Organisms: Potatoes

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what studies his Department has (a) carried out and (b) supported on the possible effects on human health of pollen produced by the starched-altered GM potato EHG92-527-1. [128108]

Ian Pearson: My Department has not commissioned or supported any studies on the possible effects on human health of pollen produced by GM potato EH92-527-1. As with all dossiers for the commercial release of a genetically modified organism under Directive 2001/18/EC applicants are required to provide information on risks to human health and the environment as part of their submitted dossier. This information is assessed by panels of independent expert scientists in all member states. In the UK this is the Advisory Committee on Releases to the Environment. If we or ACRE were not satisfied with the information provided further evidence would be requested.

Genetically Modified Organisms: Research

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) whether his Department has supported further research on the same topics covered by the earlier research which was supported by his Department on genetically modified potatoes conducted by Dr. Arpad Pusztai; [130778]

(2) if he will commission research to review the findings of Dr. Arpad Pusztai on genetically modified potatoes, to include consideration of the findings of the 1998 feeding study of the Institute of Nutrition of the Russian Academy of Medical Sciences. [130779]

Ian Pearson: The research study on genetically modified (GM) potatoes conducted by Dr. Pusztai was published in 1999 and was funded by the then Scottish Office Agriculture, Environment and Fisheries Department. DEFRA has not supported any research in this area, the reported findings of both the study by Dr. Pusztai and the 1998 feeding study in Russia relate to the issue of GM food safety, which, in the UK, is the responsibility of the Food Standards Agency.

Home Energy Efficiency Scheme

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many complaints he has received about the operation of the Warm Front scheme; and how many have concerned the company Blue Flag, operating in the North West. [129001]

Ian Pearson: Since June 2005, there have been 4,418 complaints logged by Eaga plc regarding the Warm Front scheme overall, with 1,760 being upheld. This represents 0.51 per cent. of all households assisted over the period.

During that period, 2,963 complaints were received regarding installer companies, with 1,390 of these complaints having been upheld. This reflects 0.41 per cent. of all households assisted.

Over the same time scales, 33 complaints were received relating to Blue Flag activities in the North West—of which 15 were upheld and seven currently being investigated. This represents less than 1 per cent. of their activity under Warm Front.

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many households (a) connected and (b) not connected to the gas mains were helped to improve their energy efficiency by (i) Warmfront, (ii) the Energy Efficiency Commitment and (iii) other publicly funded schemes in each of the last 10 years. [130377]

Ian Pearson: The data are not available to establish precisely how many households have been helped by Warm Front and the Energy Efficiency Commitment (EEC) that are not connected to the mains gas supply. However, since June 2005, 93,687 households that do not have gas as their main source of heating have been assisted with a range of energy efficiency and heating measures.

In addition, 2,600 households received a gas supply funded by Warm Front that enabled them to benefit from the installation of either gas wall heaters or a gas fired central heating system.

Since Warm Front's inception, in 2000, over 1.2 million households have received assistance from the scheme.

During the first phase of the Energy Efficiency Commitment (2002-05), suppliers installed a range of insulation, heating and lighting measures and appliances which helped an estimated 40 million households to improve their energy efficiency.

Home Energy Efficiency Scheme: Complaints

Mr. Binley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many consumer complaints were made about the quality of service provided by independently contracted firms in the Warm Front scheme in each of the last three years. [125559]

Ian Pearson: The number of consumer complaints about the quality of service provided by firms contracted to the Warm Front Scheme in the areas managed by the Eaga Partnership, between January 2004 and December 2006, are set out in the following table:

	Households assisted	Number of complaints	Number of complaints (percentage of households assisted)
2004	133,058	362	0.27
2005	142,703	447	0.31
2006	221,630	791	0.35

Inland Waterways: Finance

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the effect of effective maintenance of the UK's canals on (a) regeneration and (b) tourism. [130362]

Barry Gardiner [holding answer 27 March 2007]: The contribution of the waterways to urban and rural regeneration is acknowledged. They act as a catalyst for economic and social regeneration, having the potential to generate jobs and development. There is reckoned to be around a 20 per cent. uplift in land values along a canal corridor. Their contribution to tourism is also significant given the opportunities they provide for leisure and recreation.

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent assessment his Department has made of the effect of the reduction in British Waterways' grant on the planned maintenance of canals. [130364]

Barry Gardiner [holding answer 27 March 2007]: This is an operational matter for British Waterways. I understand it announced deferral of major engineering works to the value of £5.6 million following the in-year cut of £3.9 million for 2006-07.

Litter

Mr. Robathan: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations he has received about roadside litter in England; what steps the Highways Agency takes against roadside litter along trunk roads; what assessment he has made of the change in volume of roadside litter in England; and if he will make a statement. [131585]

Mr. Bradshaw: I have received various representations on litter from members of the public and members of both Houses.

The Highways Agency has a duty under the Environmental Protection Act 1990 to clear litter and refuse from the strategic road network, which includes all motorways and some A-roads and trunk roads. The cleansing duty on other roads is the responsibility of the relevant local authority. To ensure satisfactory standards, cleansing is undertaken in accordance with the Code of Practice for Litter and Refuse.

Data from the Local Environmental Quality Survey of England 2005-06 show that there has been a steady improvement in cleansing performance over the last three years. However, the survey indicated a rise in levels of detritus on rural roads and other highways.

Maps: EC Action

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the potential of the Infrastructure for Spatial Information in Europe directive to harmonise and regulate cadastral data. [130585]

Barry Gardiner: Cadastral data are covered by the Infrastructure for Spatial Information in Europe (INSPIRE) Directive and will be subject to the interoperability requirements that INSPIRE will lay down.

INSPIRE will create a European Spatial Data Infrastructure by improving the interoperability of spatial information (a term often used interchangeably with geographic information) across the European Union at a local, regional, national and international level.

A series of technical implementing rules will accompany the Directive. These are currently being developed by several drafting teams under the auspices of the European Commission. They include implementing rules on the interoperability and, where practicable, harmonisation of spatial data sets.

The implementing rules will be subject to expert and public review. DEFRA and other government organisations are participating in this process. In addition, as part of the process for developing the interoperability implementing rules, the Commission (with input from member states) will undertake analyses to ensure that the rules are feasible and proportionate in terms of their likely costs and benefits.

Marine Fisheries Agency

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what estimate he has made of the total cost of the re-naming of the Marine Fisheries Agency; and if he will make a statement; [129003]

(2) whether consultants were hired to advise (a) his Department and (b) its non-departmental public bodies on the re-naming of the Marine Fisheries Agency; and if he will make a statement. [129020]

Mr. Bradshaw: The company Daniel West and Associates (DWA) were commissioned to update the existing Marine Fisheries Agency logo and associated guidelines. The cost is in the region of £5,000 which is to be spent on signs for the offices and document templates. All costs are being met from within the existing Marine Fisheries Agency budget.

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the sources of funding are for the costs of renaming the Marine Fisheries Agency. [130682]

Mr. Bradshaw: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 23 March 2007, Official Report, column 1167W.

Organic Farming: Milk

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what support he is making available to farmers who wish to convert to organic milk production. [129282]

Barry Gardiner: It is up to individual producers to decide if they want to produce milk organically.

Aid for converting to organic farming is available under Organic Entry Level Stewardship (OELS). Under this scheme, organic farmers are now paid £60 per hectare (ha) per annum (twice that of the comparable rate of aid for conventional farmers). This is recognition of the inherent environmental benefits delivered by farming organically.

Since the launch of OELS in March 2005, some 212,452 ha of land has been entered into the Scheme[1], which is 62.5 per cent. of the target of 340,000 by the end of 2007. However, while OELS is stimulating conversion, we have yet to see how far this will contribute to the sector attaining the 70 per cent. target for indigenous produce set by the Action Plan to development organic food and farming.

[1] As of 20 March 2007.

Packaging

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department has taken to introduce mandatory targets for the reduction of excess packaging by retailers and food producers. [131731]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Packaging (Essential Requirements) Regulations 2003 (as amended) require that all packaging should be manufactured so that volume and weight are limited to the minimum adequate amount to maintain necessary levels of safety, hygiene and consumer acceptance.

These Regulations are enforced by Trading Standards officers and a number of companies have already been prosecuted for using excess packaging.

The Producer Responsibility Obligations (Packaging Waste) Regulations 2007 also encourage businesses to reduce the amount of packaging they use. In addition, the Government are encouraging supermarkets to take greater responsibility, in terms of waste, for the packaging and products they place on the market. The Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP) is currently working with retailers through the 'Courtauld Commitment', a voluntary agreement which aims to halt packaging growth by 2008 and make absolute reductions in packaging waste by 2010. 13 major retailers, representing 92 per cent. of the UK grocery sector, have already signed the agreement as well as three major brands.

In addition, DEFRA, working with WRAP and the devolved administrations, has recently secured the agreement of UK retailers to reduce the overall environmental impact of their carrier bags by 25 per cent. by the end of 2008.

Consumers also have a part to play in encouraging producers to reduce unnecessary waste by choosing goods that are not heavily packaged, buying loose (rather than pre-packaged) food and re-using their own bags.

Palm Oil

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what percentage of biofuels used in the UK is made from palm oil; and what assessment he has made of the carbon dioxide emissions from palm oil production. [129668]

Ian Pearson: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 26 Jan 2007:Column 2112W.

Paper: Recycling

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what advice his Department has issued to local authorities on whether shredded paper is suitable for collection as part of domestic doorstep recycling collections. [130566]

Mr. Bradshaw: My Department has not issued guidance to local authorities on collecting shredded paper as part of their domestic doorstep recycling service.

Although shredded paper can be recycled, some paper mills may not be able to accept it as it can be difficult to re-process. A lack of facilities accepting such material may affect a local authority's decision on whether to include shredded paper in its domestic doorstep recycling collection service.

Pesticides

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs in what form and in which publications and other media he plans to make available the spray records of individual farmers in the Midlands region following the recent announcement by the Pesticides Safety Directorate. [130713]

Ian Pearson: The pilot study being carried out by the Pesticides Safety Directorate will enable individual members of the public to get the names of those pesticides a farmer has used on his land where it has not been possible for them to get this information directly from the farmer. We expect that in the majority of cases farmers will pass this information to the enquirer upon request. We anticipate that members of the public will receive this information direct, rather than having to access it in a published form.

Polyethylene Terephthalate: Recycling

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps have been taken to encourage the use of recycled polyethylene terephthalate (PET) in manufacturing food and drink packaging; and what assessment has been made of the availability of recycled PET in the UK. [130645]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP) is working to maximise the amount and quality of recyclate used in UK manufacturing operations, including uses of polyethylene terephthalate (PET).

The demand for recycled plastic is very strong, both from UK manufacturers and overseas markets. WRAP has a number of projects over the next two years which aim to switch manufacturing processes from virgin to recycled materials, including a target to support the recycling of an additional 16 kilo tonnes of plastic bottles—an increase of 30 per cent. from current levels.

WRAP has carried out recent trials with a number of major brands using recovered PET to make new packaging for food and household products. The trials showed that using recovered PET for this kind of packaging is a viable option for manufacturers.

The UK's first plant to recycle plastics into materials for food packaging was announced at the beginning of March, following the signing of a £12 million joint private and public sector funding agreement. The 35,000 tonne capacity London plant will increase the UK's ability to recycle PET, which might otherwise be exported for recycling or sent to landfill.

The UK currently recycles or recovers approximately 19 per cent. of all plastic consumed, and this is set to increase to over 25 per cent. by 2010.

Rats

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment has been made of the extent of the problem of rats at the London Olympics site at Stratford; and what plans there are for measures to be taken to tackle any potential problem; and if he will make a statement. [129018]

Barry Gardiner: My Department has made no assessment of the extent of any problem of rats at the London Olympics site at Stratford and has no plans to do so as this is a matter for the local authority.

Recycling: Standards

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what progress has been made towards meeting his Department's Waste Strategy 2000 targets on recycling and recovery. [130628]

Mr. Bradshaw: This is a devolved matter and, in Scotland, is the responsibility of the Scottish Executive. However, in England, good progress has been made towards the targets to improve rates of recycling and recovery set out in Waste Strategy 2000. The key targets were to recycle or compost at least 25 per cent. of household waste by 2005 and to recover value from 40 per cent. of municipal waste by the same date.

Figures for 2005-06 show that we exceeded the recycling and composting target, with 27 per cent. of household waste either recycled or composted in England. This is nearly four times the amount that was recycled or composted in 1997. In 2005-06, value was recovered from 37 per cent. of municipal waste.

Following consultation on a review of the Waste Strategy, we intend to build on these improvements and are planning to publish our revised Waste Strategy for England in May.

Reservoirs

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 16 January 2007, Official Report, columns 982-83W, on reservoirs, what the latest information is on reservoir levels. [126586]

Ian Pearson: In January, overall storage for reservoir storage in England and Wales rose by 3 per cent. to 95 per cent. It remained unchanged in February. As of 6 March, overall storage rose to 97 per cent. Two reservoirs or reservoir groups are below normal.

The Environment Agency publishes monthly water situation reports, including information on reservoir storage. The report is supplemented by a weekly update during dry periods. This information is available on the Agency's website.

Round Up Ready Alfalfa

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent assessment he has made of international evidence on risks associated with Monsanto's Round Up Ready Alfalfa; if he will list the evidence he has considered; and if he will make a statement. [130790]

Ian Pearson: We have not made any assessment of the Monsanto Round Up Ready Alfalfa as no application has been made to approve its commercial use within the European Union (EU). If such an application were made, a detailed assessment would be undertaken of the potential risks for human health and the environment, as required by EU legislation.

Seals: Canada

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the Canadian Government about seal hunting; and if he will make a statement. [130769]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Canadian Government is fully aware of the UK Government's opposition to the seal hunt and we continue to raise our concerns with them at every appropriate opportunity. Most recently, on 28 March, my right hon. Friend the Minister for Trade (Ian McCartney), met a delegation from Canada to discuss the UK's announcement that we intend to press for an EU-wide extension of the existing import ban of all harp and hooded seals' skin products.

State Veterinary Service

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs why the State Veterinary Service is being rebranded as Animal Health; and what form the new organisation will take. [130667]

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the cost of changing the name of the State Veterinary Service to Animal Health. [130523]

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what the expected cost is of changing the name of the State Veterinary Service to Animal Health; and how much is expected to be accounted for by (a) replacement signs, (b) headed notepaper, (c) other branded stationery, (d) website redesign and (e) other costs; [131192]

(2) which of his Department's executive agencies and other connected bodies has changed its name since 2003; and what the associated cost was in each case of (a) replacement signs, (b) headed notepaper, (c) other branded stationery, (d) redesign of website and (e) other costs. [131226]

Mr. Bradshaw: Animal Health (AH) will be an executive agency, sponsored by, and working on behalf of DEFRA. It also works on behalf of the Scottish Executive and Welsh Assembly in implementing animal health and welfare policies, including the regulation of trade in endangered species.

AH will also work on behalf of the Food Standards Agency in England and Wales to protect public health by ensuring that dairy hygiene and egg production standards are met.

The Hampton Review recommended the consolidation of DEFRA inspection and enforcement functions into seven thematic regulators, one being a new executive agency for Animal Health and Welfare, with the State Veterinary Service (SVS) at its core. DEFRA Ministers subsequently determined to merge the Dairy Hygiene Inspectorate, the Egg Marketing Inspectorate, and the Wildlife Licensing and Registration Service (WLRS) with the SVS to create such a body. The Dairy Hygiene Inspectorate joined the SVS in October 2006, and the Egg Marketing Inspectorate and WLRS will join on 1 April 2007.

The organisation undertakes a wide range of tasks (over 600) in animal health and welfare and related areas. The joining organisations have congruent roles relating directly or indirectly to animals, animal health and welfare and public health. As the role of the organisation expands to embrace new partners, responsibilities and enforcement powers, the veterinary-focus of the current SVS brand would not adequately communicate the remit of the organisation.

It is not possible to accurately estimate the cost of this work, or break it down as requested, since it is still ongoing. However, we expect that in total the work will cost less than £60,000.

Veterinary Services: Rural Areas

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he is taking to improve 24 hour veterinary cover in rural areas. [130668]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Royal College of Veterinary Surgeons (RCVS) sets guidelines for the provision of 24 hour veterinary coverage in the UK. According to these guidelines, emergency cover requires that a veterinary surgeon deals promptly at any time with first-aid and emergencies either directly or by alternative means (for example, by cooperation with other practices). The veterinary surgeon retains discretion to assess what constitutes an emergency need and may in some ceases delay seeing a case until the next day. There is no statutory requirement for veterinary surgeons to provide 24 cover.

The RCVS has reconvened its working party on 24 hour cover, to review the current guidelines and in particular, consider how these should be applied in more remote areas.

DEFRA is not aware of any instances where 24 hour cover is declining or not currently being met in rural areas. The recent case reported to us in relation to general veterinary cover in the Scilly Isles has been resolved. We have been working closely through the Vets and Veterinary Services working group to address a number of issues, including the provision of 24 hour cover in rural and remote areas of the country. The group includes representatives from the British Veterinary Association (BVA), the RCVS and the National Farmers Union.

We are continuing to work with the RCVS and the BVA to develop the necessary information base to assess whether there are any areas which may be at risk as a result of the changing agricultural base or changes in the rural/urban landscape. This year, we have included specific questions in DEFRA's Farm Practices Survey to assess the farmer experience of accessing veterinary services.

Some rural practices are making greater efforts to co-ordinate their out of hours services in the same way that small animal practices have done for some time. The BVA has indicated a willingness to develop more information on improved business methods for rural practice, which will help many practices to improve the way they provide 24 hour cover.

In relation to the welfare of animals, the Government stress the statutory requirement for keepers of livestock in rural and remote areas to provide appropriate husbandry for animals in their care. We are working, through our Farm Health Planning team, to support initiatives which will enable veterinary surgeons to provide more managed farm health planning and reduce the reliance on care only in emergency situations.

In order to assure greater transparency and to enable a clearer plan of work in relation to Vets and Veterinary Services, DEFRA has agreed to relinquish chairmanship of this working group and we hope to be able to announce an independent chairman shortly.

Veterinary Surgeons Act 1966

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to introduce legislation to amend the Veterinary Surgeons Act 1966 through Orders in Council. [129280]

Mr. Bradshaw: Section 21 of the Veterinary Surgeons Act 1966 (VSA) provides power to make Orders in Council to give effect to any agreement between Ireland and the UK concerning veterinary surgeons. There are currently no plans to introduce any such Order.

The VSA has previously been amended by Order in Council under section 2(2) European Communities Act 1972 (ECA). Such Orders in Council may be made for the purpose of implementing EC obligations. DEFRA plans to make such an Order shortly concerning the mutual recognition of professional qualifications as between EC member states.

Other than the forthcoming mutual recognition Order, DEFRA does not intend to amend the VSA by Order in Council. My officials recently held a very constructive and helpful meeting with the President of the Royal College of Veterinary Surgeons to discuss proposals from the RCVS Council to modernise the Veterinary Surgeons Act. We are currently considering these proposals and will continue to work closely with the RCVS on this issue.

Warm Front Scheme: East Sussex

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many homes in (a) Eastbourne and (b) East Sussex used the Warm Front scheme in each year since 2001. [130925]

Ian Pearson: The following table shows the number of households in Eastbourne and East Sussex assisted by the Warm Front Scheme in each scheme year since 2001.

	Eastbourne	East Sussex
2000-01	192	1,449
2001-02	413	3,492
2002-03	498	3,294
2003-04	532	3,033
2004-05	406	3,128
2005-06	437	2,242
2006-07 (to 31 December 2006)	370	2,528
Total	2,934	19,166

Waste Disposal

Dr. Whitehead: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what regulation of the manufacture and consumption of lumpwood charcoal is undertaken under the terms of the Waste Incineration Directive. [129939]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Waste Incineration Directive will only apply in the following circumstances:

(i) the plant manufacturing charcoal uses wood waste that may contain halogenated organic compounds or heavy metals as a result of contamination with wood preservatives or coatings

(ii) and the wood waste originated from construction or demolition waste

(iii) and the plant burns any of the pyrolysis products.

Waste Disposal: Schools

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate has been made of the amount of municipal waste produced by schools. [130629]

Mr. Bradshaw: This is a devolved matter and, in Scotland, is the responsibility of the Scottish Executive.

A total of 28.7 million tonnes of municipal waste was generated in England in 2005-06. No reliable estimate is available of the proportion of this which was produced by schools.

Waste Management

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what guidance (a) his Department and (b) WRAP has issued to local authorities on the use of spy cameras for the purpose of monitoring local residents at municipal rubbish dumps. [130571]

Mr. Bradshaw: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 19 February 2007, Official Report, column 190W.

Water Supply: Orders and Regulations

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the (a) one-off and (b) recurring cost of implementing the Water Supply (Water Quality) Regulations 2000 to (i) businesses and (ii) the regulators. [125608]

Ian Pearson: The regulatory impact assessment (RIA) for the Water Supply (Water Quality) Regulations 2000, which transposed the requirements of the 1998 EU Drinking Water Directive, was published in December 2000. Copies are available in the Library of the House.

Water companies have borne the administrative costs of implementing these regulations. These were estimated as £485,658, involving £439,962 for contingent or one-off costs and £45,696 for recurring costs. The Drinking Water Inspectorate incurred a one-off cost of £50,000 for establishing data handling systems and a recurring cost of £25,000.

For small and medium sized businesses, the proportion of an average bill that reflects the new requirements of the 2000 regulations ranged from nothing to £7.45 (average bills, weighted according to populations served to give regional averages for bill size).

Water: Bills

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the average domestic water and sewerage bill was in England in each year from 1996-97 to 2006-07. [130565]

Ian Pearson: Ofwat is the economic regulator for the water and sewerage industry in England and Wales and sets price limits for each water company at price reviews.

The following table sets out the average household bills for water and sewerage customers in England and Wales since 1996-97 in 2007-08 prices.

Average household bills for water and sewerage, 2007-08 prices

1996-97	296
1997-98	298
1998-99	299
1999-2000	303
2000-01	265
2001-02	263
2002-03	263

2004-05	274
2005-06	294
2006-07	303
2007-08	312

Note

Bills for 2006-07 and 2007-08 are estimates based on provisional and forecast data respectively provided by each company, for the year ending 31 March.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate his Department has made of the average (a) water and (b) sewerage bill in (i) 2007-08, (ii) 2008-09 and (iii) 2009-10, in actual prices, following the implementation of Ofwat's Future Water and Sewerage Charges Final Determination plans. [130577]

Ian Pearson: Ofwat is the economic regulator for the water and sewerage industry in England and Wales and sets price limits for each water company at price reviews.

The following table sets out the estimated average household bills for (a) water and (b) sewerage for customers in England and Wales between 2007 and 2010.

	Water[1]	£ Sewerage[1]
2007-08	150	162
2008-09	153	167
2009-10	154	171

[1] 2007-08 prices

Bills for 2007-08 are based on forecast data provided by each company, for the year ending 31 March. Estimated bills for 2008-09 and 2009-10 are shown in 2007-08 prices and do not take into account the effect of future inflation (measured as RPI in November).

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Afghanistan: Overseas Aid

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer of 8 February 2007, Official Report, column 1070W, on Afghanistan: overseas aid, how many of the 16,000 community development councils have produced community development plans to date. [121637]

Hilary Benn: The Government of Afghanistan's National Solidarity Programme (NSP) reports progress on a monthly basis. As of 28 February 2007, 15,343 Community Development Councils had been elected, and 16,068 community development plans had been completed.

Afghanistan: Schools

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many schools have been built by the (a) Afghanistan government and (b) international community since the London Compact of January 2006; and how many schools he expects to be built by the (i) Afghanistan government and (ii) international community in the next 12 months. [125704]

Hilary Benn: According to the Ministry of Education (MoE) of the Government of Afghanistan (GoA), since January 2006 a total of 1,011 schools have been built or are under construction. The MoE plans to build a further 1,700 schools in the next 12 months, although this figure will not be confirmed until after this year's budget has been approved. The building of these schools is partially financed by support to the GoA from the international community, although disaggregated figures are not currently available.

The latest GoA monitoring report showing progress against the targets in the Afghanistan Compact states that a total of 510 school buildings are currently under construction by MoE and donors. Again, figures disaggregated by the GoA and the international community are not available.

Africa: Health Workers

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps he is taking to address the shortage of health workers in Africa. [131072]

Mr. Thomas: The UK Government recognises that health workers are essential to the delivery of essential health services and achievement of the health related MDGs. DFID therefore invests substantially in health, supporting African Governments to strengthen their health services. DFID uses a variety of mechanisms, including support to international agencies, direct support to Government budgets, working jointly with other donors or through projects. For example, in Malawi, where the shortage of health workers is particularly severe, we provide £100 million support for the health sector of which £55 million is earmarked for the Emergency Human Resources Programme. This programme focuses on improving recruitment and retention through salary increases for health workers, expanding training capacity—doubling the number of nurses and tripling the number of doctors in training—and using international volunteer physicians and nurse tutors while more Malawians are being trained. The programme also supports human resources planning and management capacity in Malawi's Ministry of Health. In Nigeria and Kenya, DFID provides technical assistance to develop human resources for health plans. A long-term £50 million health reform programme has been agreed in Sierra Leone which will strengthen recruitment, training and retention of key health workers.

DFID engages regionally and globally on policy development and advocacy with key institutions such as WHO, the World Bank and African regional institutions such as the African Union (AU) and the New Partnership for Africa's Development (NEPAD). DFID has recently committed £1 million to support the formation of the Global Health Workforce Alliance which will play a key advocacy, policy and convening role on human resource for health issues.

Health worker brain drain results from a mix of country push factors that motivate staff to leave, and pull factors that attract workers away. DFID works with the UK Department of Health to develop and implement policies that prevent the targeting of developing countries in the international recruitment of health care professionals including agreeing a list of countries from which the NHS does not actively recruit. In addition, the Department of Health has brokered agreement for this Code to apply to major players in the UK independent healthcare sector.

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent discussions he has had with the International Monetary Fund on support to health services in developing countries in Africa. [131424]

Hilary Benn: The recruitment, training and retention of health workers is essential to improve the delivery of basic health services in Africa. This requires budgets that can support and sustain long term public investment. The advice the IMF gives to African countries on budget issues needs to contribute to strengthening health services.

Concerns have been raised in some African countries about the impact of public sector expenditure ceilings on the retention of health workers. We have been closely monitoring the impact of ceilings and discussing these concerns with the IMF. The IMF has agreed to engage further in discussions at national and global level on the issue of health work forces and how these can be best supported by their programmes. These should recognise the constraints all countries face in deciding on appropriate levels of expenditure, domestic deficits and borrowing and also how higher spending on public services can be supported by higher levels of aid. In discussions with the international financial institutions, DFID continues to urge an approach that supports stability, growth and the best use of higher levels of aid. These discussions include the topic of fiscal space which will be discussed at this year's spring meetings.

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department is taking to improve access to healthcare in developing countries in Africa. [131426]

Hilary Benn: The core of DFID's work in health in developing countries in Africa is to support national partners in their efforts to build effective and accessible health services which are able to prevent, identify and treat the major causes of ill health.

This includes support to address the shortage of health workers, and remove barriers such as user fees that prevent the poor from using services. For example, in Malawi DFID has provided £55 million over six years to fund an innovative Emergency Human Resources Programme to support the training, recruitment and retention of health workers. This will eventually double the number of nurses and treble the number of doctors. In Zambia DFID has committed £14.5 million over five years to support the abolition of user fees in public health facilities.

In 2005-06 DFID provided £183 million[1] in direct support to health sectors in our 16 priority African countries. We are increasingly working in fragile states including those that have recently emerged from conflict such as Sierra Leone and the Democratic Republic of Congo. In last year's International Development White Paper we committed to further increase spending on basic services, including health, to at least half of the UK's direct support to developing countries.

DFID supports access to health care through a range of complementary approaches; through technical assistance and project support; through support for Global Health Funds, our contribution to UN organisation, support for NGOs and, where the environment is right, through direct budget support. We aim to work to complement the efforts of other donors in support of national health plans.

Africa: HIV Infection

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps he is taking to prevent mother-to-child transmission of AIDS in Africa. [131071]

Mr. Thomas: DFID is increasing its focus on preventing mother to child transmission of HIV. The UK funds prevention of mother to child transmission programmes in Africa through UNICEF and through budget support.

In Zimbabwe, DFID is initiating a £25 million project designed to address maternal and newborn health in a comprehensive way including diagnosing HIV in pregnant women, improved obstetric care, increasing access to drugs and other pre and postnatal health services, nutritional monitoring of mother and baby with treatment for mother, father and child if they have HIV.

In Malawi, where DFID is the major donor in the health sector, with an investment of £100 million over the period 2004-10, a rapid scale up in prevention of mother to child transmission services is taking place with the aim that every pregnant woman visiting a health facility will have access to HIV prevention and treatment services. During 2005, 5,000 of 7,000 HIV positive pregnant women received a complete course of Anti Retro Viral prophylaxis. The aim is also that more HIV positive pregnant women offered help to prevent mother to child transmission are referred for care and support services—currently only one third of women are referred on. The Government, UN and other partners in Malawi are working to overcome the very real constraints associated with cultural beliefs and practices, weak health systems and structures, scarcity of health staff in the country, poverty and stigma.

In addition to core funding to UNICEF, DFID has provided over $1.5 million to an 'Accelerating Action for Children Affected by HIV and AIDS' programme. This gives focus to the "4 P's—Protection, Prevention, Prevention of mother to child transmission and Paediatric AIDS". The three year programme aims to expand and accelerate action, increase the availability and quality of evidence, improve coherence between the UN and other partners and increase the prominence of children and AIDS across the UN system.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps he is taking to secure generic versions of (a) Kaletra and (b) Viread for the treatment of people with AIDS in Africa. [131073]

Mr. Thomas: The United Kingdom (UK) has already pledged to spend £1.5 billion on AIDS programmes between 2005 and 2008: this reflects our commitment to Universal Access. Despite this progress, much still needs to be done. In addition to funding AIDS programmes, we are supporting UNITAID, the new international drug purchasing facility, to fund second-line Antiretrovirals (ARVs), paediatric ARVs and TB and malaria drugs predominantly in low income countries. We hope that UNITAID will contribute to the necessary reductions in the prices of second-line drugs such Viread and Kaletra. The UK is also helping to strengthen the World Health Organisation (WHO) to accelerate the medicines prequalification process through UNITAID.

In Africa, DFID supports treatment specific programmes; for example, we are providing antiretroviral therapy (ART) in Zambia, Rwanda and also the Democratic Republic of Congo, in programmes that focus on treatment, prevention of mother to child transmission (PMTCT) and post-exposure prophylaxis (PEP). We also support treatment programmes through interventions aimed at strengthening health systems and the provision of technical assistance to Ministries of Health (MOH), for example in Malawi. Decisions on what and how to fund are made in country and are based on partner Government and other donor investments through the presence and engagement of the Global Fund to fights AIDS, TB and Malaria (GFATM), President Bush's Emergency Plan for AIDS Relief (PEPFAR), the World Bank and other bilateral funds.

Africa: Maternal Mortality

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what discussions he has had with his counterparts in the United Nations on additional measures to arrest the recent rise in the number of maternal deaths in Zimbabwe, Malawi and Ghana; and if he will make a statement. [131287]

Hilary Benn: In Ghana, measurements of the Maternal Mortality Ratio are unreliable. The latest official figures are based on the 1993 Demographic Health Survey (DHS) when it was estimated to be 214 per 100,000 live births. A draft review of health sector performance for 2006 suggests a downward trend and an estimated maternal mortality rate of 187 per 100,000 live births. These figures need to be interpreted with care. At country level, discussions with the United Nations Population Fund (UNFPA) are taking place over the measurements of maternal mortality in the 2008 Demographic Health Survey and/or the 2010 Census.

Development partners including DFID together with the World Health Organisation (WHO), UNFPA and United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF), are discussing within the framework of annual plans of the health Sector Wide Approach (SWAp) and the new five-year health sector plan (2007-11), the implementation of package health interventions. This is aimed at accelerating progress towards Millennium Development Goals 4 and 5 around safe motherhood strategies, improving access to and quality of emergency obstetric care and the promotion of child spacing.

Malawi's 2004 DHS shows a slight decline in the Maternal Mortality Ratio from the 2000 DHS figure of 1,120 per 100,000 live births, to 984 per 100,000 live births. This is unacceptably high.

DFID has committed £100 million over six years to the Government of Malawi-led health SWAp (2004-05-2010-11). Of this, £55 million will address the human resource crisis through salary top-ups to recruit and retain staff, improved training and, as a stop-gap measure, providing expatriate volunteers to fill training and specialists positions. £45 million will finance the Essential Health Package including improved facilities, drugs and other supplies.

On 30 March Malawi's Minister of Health, Marjorie Ngaunje, launched Malawi's 'Road Map' to reduce maternal and neonatal deaths in Malawi under the SWAp. This strategy aims to strengthen service delivery at all levels of the health system and the capacity of individuals and communities to improve maternal and neonatal health. Districts have also been able to 'kick start' action on maternal health using flexible funds from the SWAp. This includes the signing of 47 service level agreements with the Christian Health Association of Malawi to remove user fees for maternal services and using locum payments to midwives to go to health centres to cover staff shortages.

The UN (UNFPA, WHO and UNICEF) supported the development of Malawi's Road Map. The UN and DFID sit together on the sectoral level Sexual and Reproductive Health Technical Working Group which coordinates stakeholder support to the implementation of this government-led strategy.

In Zimbabwe, maternal mortality has worsened significantly in the last 15 years, due mainly to the HIV and AIDS epidemic, deteriorating health services and increasing barriers to access including user fees. Recent figures estimate that the lifetime risk of a woman dying of pregnancy or childbirth related clauses is one in 16 or 6,250 per 100,000.

DFID is working with the UN (UNFPA and UNICEF) and civil society organisations to develop a joint programme to reduce maternal and infant mortality. DFID will contribute £25 million over five years. This programme aims to protect the lives of mothers and newborns, especially those affected by HIV and AIDS, and to maintain access to family planning services, including contraceptives and to lifesaving obstetric services and newborn care. The programme will build the evidence base about obstacles to sexual and reproductive care, infant feeding for HIV exposed babies after six months, and will support a national maternal and prenatal mortality study in Zimbabwe in order to inform policy options.

Burma: Overseas Aid

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will take steps to increase financial support provided for projects promoting (a) human rights and (b) democracy in Burma. [130530]

Mr. Thomas: DFID already provides significant support to projects to help the people of Burma access their human rights and build the foundations for sustainable democracy. Our programme includes a wide variety of activities, such as capacity-building for local non-governmental organisations (NGOs), training for journalists, work to involve poor people in decision-making about issues that affect them, and support for the empowerment of poor women. In addition, the British embassy in Rangoon is carrying out extremely valuable work to build local capacity.

DFID is about to start work on the implementation of a £3 million programme designed to expand and strengthen DFID's work to support increased prospects for a successful transition to democracy and respect for human rights in Burma. The programme will increase opportunities for Burma's people to engage in political decision-making processes at the local level affecting their welfare, livelihoods and governance.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development why his Department has ended funding for the Burma projects of the BBC World Service Trust. [130608]

Mr. Thomas: DFID has recently only supported one BBC World Service Trust project in Burma: a grant of £1,997,513 for a radio soap opera to raise awareness of HIV/AIDS in audiences in Burma. The project started in January 2003 and was to last three years. By late 2005, the project was spending DFID's grant more slowly than budgeted, so we agreed an extension until September 2006. A review at that point judged that the project was judged likely partly to achieve its purpose. When the project managers requested a further extension we declined in order to focus our resources on other projects which we judged would be even more effective in reducing poverty in Burma.

Cocoa: Imports

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will meet (a) UK chocolate manufacturers and (b) others in the cocoa industry to urge them to provide a Traffik Free Guarantee for the cocoa they (i) harvest, (ii) import and (iii) use, and if he will make a statement. [124197]

Mr. Thomas: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has no immediate plans to meet with chocolate manufacturers to discuss the use of child labour in the production of cocoa, but he met with Cadbury Schweppes at the end of last year and has met with Stop the Traffik. In addition, the UK Government have been engaging with the International Cocoa Initiative, which was set up by the chocolate manufacturers to address concerns about the use of the worst forms of child labour in cocoa production. The Initiative is focusing on surveying working practices in Ghana and Ivory Coast to identify what activities in the production of cocoa would fall into the International Labour Organisation's (ILO) definition of the worst forms of child labour, how widespread these activities are and how best to tackle them. In doing this the International Cocoa Initiative is working closely with the governments of Ghana and Ivory Coast. The Secretary of State discussed the work of the International Cocoa Initiative when he met representatives of Cadbury Schweppes on 2 October. A progress report on the Initiative's work was given to the chocolate manufacturers and other interested parties at a meeting of the Cocoa Task Force hosted by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office on 22 February this year.

The Secretary of State met with Stop the Traffik, the campaign group behind the Traffik Free Guarantee, on 13 February where they discussed forced labour in cocoa production.

Democratic Republic of Congo: Overseas Aid

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development by which aid modality the Environmental Transportation Fund for the Congo Basin announced in the Budget will be delivered; what proportion will be delivered to the 10 country recipients by direct budget support; and if he will make a statement. [131309]

Mr. Thomas: The UK is committing £50 million of the £800 million international environmental transformation fund to support on conservation of the Congo basin's forests, associated livelihoods and civil society participation. The countries concerned are Burundi, Cameroon, Chad, Central African Republic, Democratic Republic of Congo, Equatorial Guinea, Gabon, Republic of Congo, Rwanda and Sao Tome.

Funds will be managed by a multilateral development bank and decisions on allocation of funds will be taken by a steering board including representatives of central African countries, donors and civil society. The governance framework is intended to ensure African ownership, effective outcomes, good financial management, and protect the livelihoods and rights of forest people. The UK will work with the Congo Basin countries, the World Bank, the African Development Bank and other potential donors on the details of this governance framework.

The UK's £50 million contribution is for the 10 central African countries as a whole and will finance practical actions at a country level as well as at a regional level. In some countries this may result in a proportion of funding being delivered via direct budget support. Decisions about the means of delivering assistance will be taken by the Steering Board.

Departments: Advertising

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer of 19 February 2007, Official Report, columns 69-70W, on Departments: advertising, if he will place in the Library a copy of the contract with the newspaper for (a) sponsoring the supplement and (b) the advertorials. [129868]

Mr. Thomas: For the supplement, 'Eliminating Poverty' a summary of the UK Government's 2006 White Paper on International Development, DFID, through the Central Office of Information (COI), commissioned a separate media buying company to negotiate with The Guardian in order to obtain the best possible rates. There was no written contract between the media company and The Guardian. DFID was billed for the work by COI.

DFID is unable to place the contract for the G8 One Year On Observer supplement, advertorials, and Guardian Unlimited microsite in the Library, as this would be a breach of commercial confidentiality.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much his Department spent on (a) sponsoring newspaper or publication supplements and (b) funding advertorials in newspapers and publications in the last year for which figures are available; and what the topic of each was. [129954]

Mr. Thomas: The Department for International Development (DFID) has spent the following on sponsoring newspapers or publication supplements and advertorials in the last year for which figures are available, and the topic of each are as follows:

Supplements	Cost (inc. VAT)	Date	Topic
Newspaper Supplement in The Guardian	£10,714	July 2006	Eliminating World Poverty—a summary of the UK Government's 2006 White Paper on International Development, setting out an action plan for the next five years.
Newspaper supplement in The Observer. This price included putting the information on a microsite on the Guardian Unlimited website; it also included 8,000 for advertorials to promote the supplement in The Guardian.	£62,275	June 2006	Reporting the progress made one year after the G8 summit in Gleneagles, with a special focus on Africa and responding to climate change.

Departments: Pressure Groups

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what meetings took place between Ministers in his Department and outside interest groups between 1 January and 31 March; and what the date was of each such meeting. [131034]

Hilary Benn: My hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for International Development, and I met with the following outside interest groups during January to March 2007.

Secretary of State for International Development

Date	Group
9 January	Portland Trust
16 January	SCF
24 January	Caritas—Catholic humanitarian organisation
24 January	De Beers—Corporate social responsibility
1 February	Commission of Global Road Safety
1 February	Global Water Partnership
14 February	BG Group
15 February	Wateraid
19 February	Unison
19 February	Palestine Solidarity Campaign
27 February	Oxfam
1 March	TUC Forum
8 March	PCS Union
20 March	Stop Aids Campaign
28 March	Quid Novi Ltd.

Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for International Development

Date	Group
9 January	Nitan Palan FCA
11 January	NGOs and Ian McCartney, MP—Economic Partnership Agreements
22 January	Chairman of Histadrut (Israel TUC)
23 January	Joyce Wood (Good Teachers)
24 January	Chairman of Trustees of Lady Fatemah's Trust
25 January	Head of Public Affairs WWF
30 January	Keith Darwin—schools in India
8 February	Casa Alianza UK
20 February	Hugo Swire, MP and Lady Nott—The Fund for Refugees in Slovenia
21 February	Chris Mole, MP and Tools with a Mission
7 March	GDI

28 March	Commonwealth Parliamentary Association UK Branch
20 March	Fairtrade Foundation
29 March	England and Wales Cricket Board—Tackling HIV/AIDS through sport

Developing Countries: Health Education

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development (1) what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of sexual and reproductive health education programmes in post-conflict states; [129535]

(2) what support his Department provides to sexual and reproductive health education programmes in post-conflict states; [129537]

(3) what assessment he has made of the potential contribution of sexual and reproductive health education programmes towards achieving the Millennium Development Goals. [129538]

Mr. Thomas: The Millennium Development Goals (MDGs) especially those for reducing maternal and child deaths and HIV/AIDS will not be attained without progress in achieving sexual and reproductive health and rights for all.

This view was endorsed in 2006 when the UN Secretary General recommended a new target within the MDG monitoring framework of "universal access to reproductive health by 2015". An essential element in achieving this will be ensuring that women and men, including young people, have access to condoms, contraceptives, medicines and other products, and the services, information and education they need to protect their sexual and reproductive health.

Conflict and post conflict states pose particular challenges if they are to meet the MDGs. DFID's recent White Paper "Making governance work for the poor" recognises that we must help people have security, incomes and public services. Effective states are central to development, so we must help countries—especially those at risk of falling even further behind the rest of the world—do better in ensuring security, achieving sustainable growth, and delivering health and education for all.

To contribute to meeting the sexual and reproductive health needs of people in post-conflict states we have recently agreed a grant of £5 million to the United Nations Population Fund (UNFPA) for them to provide reproductive health supplies. This is in addition to our annual £20 million core grant to UNFPA.

We also have a number of programmes we directly support in countries. For example, in Rwanda we have provided £250,000 to a project which aimed to increase public awareness and discussion of women's sexual and reproductive health issues and lead to positive changes in knowledge, beliefs, attitudes and behaviour. In Somalia, we have provided over £400,000 to a project which aims to provide free primary health care and increase the access and quality of services provided to women. Part of this programme provides reproductive health education and highlights the benefits of family planning and birth spacing for women and their children.

The World Health Organisation (WHO) has collected evidence from developing countries on what works in preventing HIV/AIDS and sexually transmitted infections in young people. But I am not aware of specific assessments of the effectiveness of sexual and reproductive health education programmes in post-conflict states.

However, many countries now recognise that education (especially female education) can play an important role in reducing poverty. The link between improved education and improved reproductive health and HIV prevention is also recognised and many developing countries have established or broadened reproductive health policies and programmes. However, over 200 million couples still have no access to effective contraception and 15 to 24-year-olds account for 50 per cent. of new HIV cases. In Africa, 90 per cent. of all HIV infections are sexually transmitted with women and young people disproportionately affected.

DFID continues to give priority to supporting reproductive health and rights for women and to focus our bilateral programmes on strengthening of health systems to deliver effective information, services, and supplies. DFID is investing £1.85 million in a project evaluating the long-term impact of an adolescent sexual health intervention programme in Tanzania.

Developing Countries: Maternity Services

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent work has been undertaken by his Department to find ways of improving maternal health in countries suffering from (a) high HIV/AIDS prevalence, (b) military conflict, (c) weak health systems and (d) a combination of all three; and if he will make a statement. [131251]

Mr. Thomas: DFID's strategy "Reducing Maternal Deaths: Evidence and Action" provides the basis for DFID support to improve maternal health at country level. DFID's approach to achieving sustained improvements in maternal health includes work to strengthen basic health services and to ensure that there is full integration between HIV and sexual and reproductive health services and programmes. In countries where there is high HIV prevalence, military conflict and/or weak health systems the challenges to improving maternal health are particularly great.

DFID investments are designed to address the specific needs of a country. For example in Zimbabwe the UK is investing £25 million to improve maternal and newborn health through a programme that aims to ensure full integration of HIV and maternal health services. In Malawi, DFID is providing £55 million to support an Emergency Human Resource Programme to address the acute shortage of health workers, an issue which has been compounded by the AIDS epidemic. This effort directly impacts on the Malawian health service's ability to deliver essential maternity services. In Nepal DFID's long-term support for maternal health has been adapted to ensure that it remains effective in the context of a changing political environment.

Developing Countries: Overseas Aid

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what proportion of the UK's aid to the developing world was handled by EU institutions in the last period for which figures are available. [131002]

Hilary Benn: The proportion of the UK's aid to the developing world channelled through the EC over the last five fiscal years, for which figures are available, is set out in the following table:

Fiscal year	Proportion of UK aid channelled through the EC (percentage)
2001-02	21.8
2002-03	20.0
2003-04	23.0
2004-05	23.4
2005-06	17.7

These figures are based on multilateral aid channelled through the EC.

The breakdown of Multilateral Aid through the EC is published in Table 16 and Gross Public Expenditure on Development in Table 3 of 'Statistics on International Development 2001-02—2005-06', a copy of which is available in the Library.

Developing Countries: Pesticides

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps he is taking to reduce pesticide poisoning of those working in cotton fields in developing countries, with particular reference to child workers. [131078]

Mr. Thomas: The Department for International Development (DFID) supports a range of projects designed to reduce the risk of pesticide poisoning in the agricultural sector. For example, DFID has researched and promoted integrated pest management practices for cost-effective and sustainable control of cotton bollworm in small-scale cotton production systems in India and Uganda. These practices are currently being scaled up by the Indian Government after they resulted in both increased yields and a 52 per cent. reduction in pesticide use. DFID is a major supporter of development co-operation carried out by the European Commission.

The Commission has provided around €30 million towards a 'Pesticide Initiative Programme', including projects supporting improved training for farmers in various African, Caribbean and Pacific countries. Furthermore, DFID works with both regulators and private standard setting organisations to ensure that good agricultural practice related to pesticide use is supported. These good practices include safe handling, application, storage and disposal of pesticides.

Entering the labour force too early significantly limits young people's opportunities over their life-time. Limiting their physical and intellectual development and future choices and aspirations, it helps to trap families in poverty from one generation to the next. All children have the right to education and should not have to work to survive. The Government are committed to the elimination of child labour and are working towards long-lasting changes that tackle the underlying poverty that is at the root of this problem.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will promote measures to phase out the use of pesticides classified by the World Health Organisation as highly hazardous, with particular reference to (a) aldicarb and (b) endosulfan, in developing countries. [131079]

Mr. Thomas: DFID has supported a range of training, education and research projects to promote best practice in the use of pesticides in developing countries. Integrated pest management practices researched with the help of DFID have proven to be particularly useful pest control strategies that can significantly reduce or eliminate the use of pesticides. DFID has recently allocated £37.5 million over five years to help scale up some of the most promising research findings and promote their use in Africa and South Asia. DFID is a major supporter of development cooperation carried out by the European Commission and the Commission has provided around €30 million towards a 'Pesticide Initiative Programme' to improve training for farmers in various African, Caribbean and Pacific countries. There is evidence that small farmers have benefited from these projects through significant reductions in pesticide use and increased yield and income.

DFID also promotes reduced use of hazardous chemicals and pesticides through trading standards and good agricultural practices. DFID has provided core funding for the Fairtrade Foundation which, amongst other things, works to ensure appropriate use of pesticides by 'Fairtrade' certified producers. DFID works with the private standard setting bodies such as the Euro-Retailer Produce Working Group Good Agricultural Practice (EurepGAP) to ensure their global standards are attainable and realistic in developing countries and finally, DFID supports the Standards and Trade Development Facility of the WTO to provide capacity building support to developing countries to meet international standards including those related to maximum residue levels for agricultural pesticides and chemicals.

European Civil Peace Corps

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the objectives are of the European Civil Peace Corps; and what the UK's role is in the programme. [130634]

Mr. Thomas: There is no European Civil Peace Corps. The European Union carries out a wide range of civilian crisis management missions to support conflict prevention and post-conflict stabilisation. The UK has strongly supported EU activity in this area politically, financially and through the secondment of UK personnel.

European Development Fund

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer of 15 March 2007, Official Report, column 479W, on the European Development Fund (EDF), how many countries have been suspended from the European Development Fund or had measures imposed upon them aimed at remedying a breach of the fund's conditionality since establishment of the Fourth EDF. [129098]

Mr. Thomas: The 4th European Development Fund (EDF) was covered by the Lomé Convention which came into force in 1975. The legal basis which allows for the suspension of co-operation or the application of 'appropriate measures' did not come into force until 1995 (EDF 8).

Since then, there have been 13 consultations under the relevant provisions of Lomé and Cotonou. The countries involved were:

Togo, Niger, Guinea-Bissau, Comoros, Cote d'Ivoire, Haiti, Fiji, Liberia, Zimbabwe, Sudan, Central African Republic, Mauritania and Guinea-Conakry.

Consultations have generally led to the identification of agreed steps and benchmarks to be achieved for the normalisation of relations. In some cases (Haiti, Guinea-Bissau, Central African Republic) full relations and co-operation have resumed. While no country has been fully suspended from the EDF, some remain subject to the measures referred to above (Guinea, Togo, and Zimbabwe).

Gaza: Sewers

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what reports his Department has made of the recent sewage flooding in the Gaza strip. [131557]

Hilary Benn: DFID has not produced any reports on the recent sewage flooding in the Gaza Strip, but the UN Office for the Co-ordination of Humanitarian Affairs (UN-OCHA) publishes regular updates. DFID is in close contact with UN-OCHA and other agencies to establish the extent of the damage, and humanitarian and longer term needs.

Reports indicate that the volume of waste water exceeded the capacity at the existing treatment plant, leading to the flooding. The World Bank (WB) had been working with the Palestinian Authority (PA) to build a new plant. However, restrictions imposed by Israel and the poor security situation in Gaza hindered access for experts and equipment imports. The excess sewage finally caused the supporting walls of a filtration basin to break, flooding the nearby village of Umm Nasser.

DFID is monitoring the situation and staying in close contact with the PA, civil society and other donors regarding the relief effort. Through the Temporary International Mechanism, the European Commission (EC) is funding fuel for heavy machinery to re-establish the embankment. The European Commission Humanitarian Office (ECHO) is providing €600,000 to consolidate the embankments of the main sewage lake where there is a danger of collapse. The UK contributes about 17 per cent. of EC assistance.

The United Nations Relief and Works Agency (UNRWA) has sent 300 tents, six water tanks, blankets, mattresses and hygiene kits to the affected area. DFID is providing £15 million of core funding to UNRWA this year. NGOs and other UN organisations have identified relief supplies to provide to those affected. UN-OCHA, which is co-ordinating the humanitarian response, has told DFID that the humanitarian situation is under control. They are not requesting any assistance beyond what has already been pledged.

The Palestinian Water Authority (PWA) and the WB met with the Government of Israel on 28 March. Israel agreed to provide free access to the area, facilitate the import of necessary equipment and provide technicians. The PWA and the WB are looking immediately to address the disaster area, including clean-up and the pumping of surplus sewage to a safe site.

India

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the objectives are of his Department's projects in India; and what recent assessment he has made of the extent to which they have been achieved. [129951]

Mr. Thomas: DFID India's Country Assistance Plan (CAP) 2004 to 2008 defines our objective of achieving poverty reduction in India, through:

More integrated approaches to tackling poverty in the focus states;

Improving the enabling environment for sustainable and equitable economic growth and

Improving the access of poor people to better quality services.

DFID India reviews progress across its programmes and projects in achieving the CAP objectives each year. 'An Evaluation of DFID's India Programme 2000 to 2005' was carried out by DFID's Evaluation Department and published in August 2006. The evaluation found that DFID India's overall development effectiveness is substantial and increased significantly between 2000 and 2005. For example, DFID's support to primary education through the Government of India's Sarva Shiksha Abhiyan (SSA) programme has helped to get millions of children into school and to cut drop out rates. Support to civil society in some of the poorest districts of India has also made significant headway in allowing poor and marginalised groups to realise their rights. Copies of this document can be found in the Libraries of the House. DFID India is currently preparing a new CAP.

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what funding and resources his Department provided to India in each of the last three financial years; what plans there are in respect of each of the next three financial years; how much was spent (a) bilaterally and (b) multilaterally; and through which multilateral bodies UK aid to India has been channelled. [129953]

Mr. Thomas: DFID's portfolio in India comprises programmes at the national level and in the states of Andhra Pradesh, Orissa, West Bengal and Madhya Pradesh. In addition, we provide funding to several multilateral institutions.

Over the last three years, DFID spent the following amounts on the aforementioned portfolio:

	Amount spent (£ million)
2004-05	259
2005-06	253
2006-07	[1]242

[1] Estimated

We cannot yet state precise figures for the next three years because Her Majesty's Treasury's comprehensive spending review for DFID is underway and we have not yet received our forward aid framework. Current estimates for 2007-08 and 2008-09 are £266 million and £300 million respectively.

DFID's entire programme in India is a bilateral aid programme. We work closely with the Government of India to make sure our poverty reduction work fits India's development needs.

We fund some multilateral institutions in India as part of our bilateral portfolio. Our primary partners are the Asian Development Bank, the UN and the World Bank. Our trust fund arrangements with these institutions are as follows:

Institution	£ million	Period of funding
Asian Development Bank	50	2002 to 2008
(United Nations Development Programme) UNDP	7.5	2004 to 2008
UNICEF Child Environment Fund	20	2004 to 2008
UNICEF	75	2005 to 2012
World Bank	20	2005 to 2008

In addition to its India programme, DFID also funds several multilateral institutions at the global level, many of which have programmes in India (eg the World Bank and WHO).

Kashmir: Earthquakes

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will make a statement on the relief operation for the victims of the earthquake in Kashmir and Northern Pakistan. [131003]

Mr. Thomas: The Government of Pakistan (GoP) has been leading the response to the earthquake, working with a wide range of international partners, including DFID and other donors, the United Nations, and NGOs. The humanitarian relief phase, which came to an end last year, was successful in ensuring adequate provision of food, shelter and basic services to people affected by the earthquake. DFID committed £58 million to immediate relief. A DFID team conducted a follow-up mission early this January to review the humanitarian situation now, particularly to assess the effectiveness of GoP's and the United Nations' winter preparations. Our assessment concluded that winter planning was adequate. Basic services have functioned and the coping ability of most people has been restored.

GoP is now finalising its planning for the major reconstruction season that lies ahead. Some reconstruction of individual health and education facilities, particularly through NGOs and donor agencies, is already being undertaken. However, the bulk of the work will be undertaken by GoP through its Earthquake Reconstruction and Rehabilitation Authority. This will include large programmes of new and replacement schools, health facilities, roads, water and sanitation services, telecommunications, and Government facilities.

DFID has committed to providing £70 million for reconstruction. Of this, some £5 million has already been spent on reconstructing critical bridges, training teachers and educational administrators and on essential support to maintain TB and mental health services. A further £9 million is currently being spent on improving GoP's capacity to deal with the reconstruction. The £56 million remaining is being allocated to the Government of Pakistan in three parts for reconstruction and rehabilitation against their own annual priorities. We have just released the first allocation, of £17.5 million. This money will be used for housing and for reconstructing critical health, education and other facilities.

Orphans: Finance

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment has been made of the impact of the first two years' expenditure of the funding allocated for orphans and vulnerable children. [130469]

Mr. Thomas: We are currently undertaking the interim evaluation of 'Taking Action', the UK's strategy for tackling HIV and AIDS in the developing world, which we expect to be published later this spring and which will help us assess the impact of our spending allocated for orphans and vulnerable children.

Overseas Aid: Publicity

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the cost to his Department was of the Aid Works DVD campaign. [127610]

Mr. Thomas: From February 2006 to date, the Aid Works DVD campaign cost £76,870.81, which includes the production, marketing and distribution of the DVD. The DVD aims to explain to the public, through two films 'Aid Works' and 'Making Aid Work' why it is important to give aid to poor countries and how UK taxpayers' money gets to those in most need.

Overseas Aid: Water

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much his Department contributed to the funding of the Public Private Infrastructure Advisory Facility on water in each of the last three years; what allocation has been made to the 2007-08 budget; and if he will make a statement. [130740]

Hilary Benn: DFID has supported Public Private Infrastructure Advisory Facility (PPIAF) over three phases since 1999. Our total commitment to PPIAF from 1999 to 2008 is £53 million. Over the last three years, we have disbursed £16.8 million to PPIAF. We do not earmark our funding for specific sectors, allowing PPIAF to respond flexibly to the requests for help it receives from developing country governments.

PPIAF reports in World Bank financial years (July to June) and in US$ dollars. Over the last three years, PPIAF as a whole has spent approximately the following in the water sector:

2004—US$ 2.7 million (£1.47 million), which is 19 per cent. of total PPIAF expenditure.

2005—US$ 3.17 million (£1.6 million), which is 18 per cent. of total PPIAF expenditure.

2006—US$ 3.23 million (£1.6 million), which is 18 per cent. of total PPIAF expenditure.

DFID has committed a total of £5 million to be disbursed to PPIAF for all its activities (including in water and sanitation) for 2007-08.

The majority of developing country governments do not have the capacity to provide good quality infrastructure and services for their people; PPIAF helps them to develop sound policies, regulations and institutions. PPIAF does this by providing developing country governments with technical assistance which they can use to tap the full potential of public-private partnerships in infrastructure. PPIAF also identifies, communicates and promotes best practice on matters relating to public-private partnerships in infrastructure. It is also recognised as a leading resource for training and best practice in the role of public-private partnerships in infrastructure service delivery.

There are many examples of PPIAF's success. For example in Kenya, PPIAF provided technical assistance and training to enable micro-credit banks to lend to small water providers to provide clean water to rural and semi-urban communities. This has led to 21 micro-credit investments and an output based grant which will result in 60,000 people gaining access to clean water.

Also in Ghana, PPIAF supported the Ghana Community Water and Sanitation Agency with regulatory and legal reform to improve small town water services. This has allowed local water operators to provide clean water to communities for the first time. Communities themselves were involved in the selection of the water providers. This has been successfully implemented in three towns and will be rolled out to 300 small towns across the country.

Further information about PPIAF and its successes are available in a fact sheet 'Department for International Development (DFID) Factsheet for the Public Private Infrastructure Advisory Facility (PPIAF)', which has been placed in the Library of the House.

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what percentage of the Public Private Infrastructure Advisory Facility budget has been spent on (a) private and (b) public schemes for water supply; and if he will make a statement. [130741]

Hilary Benn: The Public Private Infrastructure Advisory Facility (PPIAF) does not separate its activities purely between public and private schemes for water supply. The realities of water services provision in developing countries are more complicated.

PPIAF has supported 97 water sector activities with a total funding of US$ 21.6 million. These water sector activities can be divided into the following categories:

24 activities that support developing country governments with advice on better laws, regulations and institutional structures for the improved provision of water services. These activities help build the capacity of developing country governments to improve their provision of infrastructure and other services for their citizens. Such activities include the establishment of a water regulator, the benchmarking of utilities, workshops and consultations on water sector reform. These activities amount to approximately 15 per cent. of PPIAF funding for water sector activities.

31 activities which supported developing country governments with policy studies, which eventually led to some form of private sector participation in water services. These included small scale, local providers of water services. This amounts to approximately 33 per cent. of PPIAF funding for water sector activities.

29 activities which supported developing country governments with policy studies, which resulted in the continuation of a public sector option for water service provision. This includes public sector performance contracts using private sector principles. This amounts to approximately 40 per cent. of PPIAF funding for water sector activities.

Finally, 13 activities that are ongoing and where the policy option to provide water services has not been decided upon yet by the developing country governments concerned. This amounts to approximately 12 per cent. of the PPIAF funding for water sector activities.

PPIAF is a fund supported by a number of donors including DFID. It provides advice to developing countries to ensure that their citizens get the most out of private sector involvement in infrastructure services. PPIAF achieves this by supporting governments to develop sound policies, regulations and institutions which can tap the full potential of public-private partnerships in infrastructure. It is also a leading resource for training and best practices in the role of public-private partnerships in infrastructure service delivery.

PPIAF only provides advice to developing countries when requested to do so by their governments. For example, in Vietnam, a PPIAF supported grant assisted two small towns with the development of community-based water projects that bring affordable water to poor communities using local private operators. These projects used extensive community outreach to get 90 per cent. of the population to agree on technical, financial and cost recovery options, including tariff design. This demand driven approach is now being replicated through other donor programs and also in the Philippines and Thailand with many other prospects for replication.

Further information on PPIAF's work can be found on their website at www.ppiaf.org

Serbia: Overseas Aid

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer of 19 February 2007, Official Report, column 287W, on Serbia: overseas, how much funding the Government provided to Serbia through international institutions in each of the last five years, broken down by (a) the total sum provided by each institution and (b) the UK's percentage contribution. [127118]

Mr. Thomas: Estimates of multilateral funding provided to Serbia and Montenegro (including Kosovo) and the UK's imputed share and percentage share of this funding are provided in the following three tables. Table 1 contains estimates of funding provided by multilateral institutions to Serbia and Montenegro (including) Kosovo) for each calendar year 2000 to 2004. Table 2 contains estimates of the UK's imputed share of this funding and Table 3 contains estimates of the UK's percentage share of this funding on which Table 2 imputed figures are based. The following points should be borne in mind when interpreting the tables:

(1) UK funding to multilateral institutions cannot be directly attributed to any country; the estimates below are imputed shares based on the UK's total funding for each multilateral and that multilateral's distribution of Official Development Assistance (ODA) to Serbia and Montenegro (including Kosovo).

(2) ODA is defined as flows administered with the promotion of economic development and welfare of developing countries as their main objective, that are concessional in character and convey a grant element of at least 25 per cent. Aid to countries on Part 1 of the Development Assistance Committee (DAC) List of Aid Recipients is eligible to be recorded as ODA. Official Aid (OA) has the same concessional and qualitative features as ODA but covers aid to countries on Part 2 of the DAC List of Recipients. (Note: From 2005 Part 2 of the DAC List of Recipients will cease to exist and aid to countries on a new combined list of DAC List of Recipients of Official Development Assistance will be eligible to be recorded as ODA)

(3) The list of multilateral organisations in the tables is not exhaustive; the multilaterals listed are those that provide the DAC with detailed information about their distribution of funds to Serbia and Montenegro (including Kosovo) and to whom DFID provided funds over the period.

(4) Negatives represent accounting adjustments, not a net flow to the UK; Zero figures are indicated with a dash.

(5) The total UK share of multilateral ODA/OA to Serbia and Montenegro (including Kosovo) has been revised slightly from the figure given in the answer of 19 February 2007, Official Report, column 287W, as a result of revisions made by the DAC to the underlying data.

(6) Figures for 2005 will be available following publication of the DFID Departmental Report in May.

Somalia: Overseas Aid

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what support his Department is providing to Somalia; and if he will make a statement. [122944]

Hilary Benn [pursuant to the reply, 27 February 2007, Official Report, c. 1156W]: I would like to make the following correction to a statistical error that has since been identified. The response stated that DFID's assistance to Somalia "has increased from less than £2 million in 2002-03 to almost £18.75 million in 2005-06". This should have read "from less than £2 million in 2001-02", instead.

I apologise for the error in the original answer.

Sudan: Overseas Aid

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much UK aid was allocated for Sudan in 2007, broken down by main budget heading. [130484]

Hilary Benn: The DFID budget for Sudan in 2007-08 is £110 million. Some budget line headings are still indicative and do not necessarily mark firm programme commitments. £67 million of the budget will be spent on humanitarian work, the majority of which (£40 million) is to be channelled through the UN-administered Common Humanitarian Fund. The remainder of humanitarian budget will be used to support NGO programmes, mostly in Darfur. There is also a £4-5 million budget allocation for Chad to support Darfuri refugees and other vulnerable groups in the east and south of the country.

The remaining £43 million is earmarked to support development, particularly in southern Sudan. Our main mechanism for this is the Multi-Donor Trust Fund, which will receive £17 million in 2007-08.

At the Oslo Meeting in November 2005, we pledged £317 million ($545 million) for Sudan for the period 2005 to 2007. The UK stands to exceed its pledge for this period. Actual disbursement has been much higher—we disbursed over £290 million in 2005 and 2006 alone, and our financial commitment to Sudan has increased to £110 million in 2007. We stand ready to consider financial requirements for 2008 and beyond.

Tanzania: Overseas Aid

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what proportion of bilateral assistance to Tanzania was delivered by direct budget support in 2005-06; and what projections he has made for future delivery of direct budget support as a proportion of overall bilateral aid up to 2009-10. [131308]

Hilary Benn: The proportion of DFID bilateral assistance in Tanzania delivered as direct budget support in 2005-06 and the projections up to 2009-10 are set out in the following table ; the level of spending for 2008-09 onwards has not yet been set.

	PRBS (£ million)	Percentage of DFID programme	Status
2005-06	85	76	Actuals
2006-07	90	81	Projection
2007-08	105	87	Projection
2008-09	115	[1]—
2009-10	115	[1]—

[1] Depends on comprehensive spending review settlement

The figure for 2009-10 is a conservative one and may be increased depending on our spending review settlement and continued good progress in Tanzania.

Uganda

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much financial aid his Department provided to Uganda (a) to combat HIV and AIDS and (b) to help develop the agriculture industry in that country, in the last 12 months. [104990]

Hilary Benn: In total DFID spent just under £8 million in 2005-06 in tackling HIV and AIDS in Uganda. This figure includes directly targeted support to HIV and AIDS related projects, together with a proportion of UK humanitarian support used by UN agencies in Northern Uganda to help prevent HIV and AIDS. The figure also includes an estimate of the proportion of the £30 million of general budget support provided by DFID to the Government of Uganda in 2005-06 which was used to provide services that address the HIV and AIDS problem.

A significant proportion of the £30 million of general budget support provided to the Government of Uganda will also be used to help develop the agriculture industry in Uganda, for example, in delivering essential services in areas such as Agricultural Research and Extension. In addition, during 2005-06 DFID spent over £2 million on projects to develop the private sector, including agriculture, by improving business regulation, increasing access to finance and strengthening markets. DFID also spent a further half a million pounds on direct support to projects in the Rural Livelihoods sector in Uganda in 2005-06.

Written Questions

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development when he will reply to question number 121637, on overseas aid, to Afghanistan, tabled by the hon. Member for North East Milton Keynes on 8 February. [131177]

Hilary Benn: I refer the hon. Member for North East Milton Keynes to the response I gave on 4 April 2007 (UIN 121637).

Zambia: Overseas Aid

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much UK aid has been received by Zambia since 1997; what Zambia's economic debt is; and if he will make a statement. [131425]

Hilary Benn: Between the financial years of 1996-97 and 2005-06, Zambia received £662.3 million from the UK as bilateral aid. Of this amount, DFID's bilateral programme totalled £309.6 million and included financial aid, technical cooperation, humanitarian assistance and debt relief. General poverty reduction budget support also featured in financial years 2000-01, 2004-05 and 2005-06. Aid from other (non-DFID) UK official sources amounted to £352.7 million and includes CDC Group (originally known as Colonial Development Cooperation) investments, non-DFID debt relief and contributions from the British Council among other items. Table 1 provides further details on UK bilateral aid to Zambia over the past decade.

Between 1996 and 2004, Zambia also received an estimated £128.7 million through UK contributions to multilateral institutions such as the European Commission, United Nations and World Bank.

Zambia has benefited from substantial external debt relief in recent years. Following the attainment of the Heavily Indebted Poor Countries Completion Point in April 2005 and implementation of the Multilateral Debt Relief Initiative (MDRI) in 2006, Zambia's external debt stock has declined from US$ 7.1 billion in 2004 to approximately US$ 0.5 billion in nominal terms at year-end 2006. As a result, the net present value of debt to GDP ratio has fallen from around 28 per cent. in 2004 to 4 per cent. following the MDRI. At the end of 2006, domestic debt was estimated at $1.74 billion some 20.2 per cent. as a share of GDP in 2006.

Zambia is currently in the process of drafting a debt management strategy to avoid relapsing into an unsustainable debt situation. The UK strongly welcomes the good progress being made in this area.

Zambia: Paediatrics

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent assessment his Department has made of access to healthcare for children in Zambia; and if he will make a statement. [131422]

Hilary Benn: DFID works with other bilateral and multilateral partners to support the Government of Zambia in making its own assessments of healthcare. These assessments show that:

Immunisation coverage is increasing (defined as fully immunised by age 1) and has risen from 80 per cent. in 2004 to 87 per cent. in 2006.[1]

The prevalence of underweight children is also declining. 17 per cent. of children were defined as underweight in 2004, but in 2006 this had fallen to 14 per cent.[2]

Infant mortality (deaths under the age of one) has seen a decline from 109 per 1,000 in 1996, to 95 per 1000 in 2002.[3]

Child mortality (deaths under the age of five) has also seen a decline from 197 per 1000 in 1996, to 168 per 1000 in 2002.[4]

Access to AIDS treatment (antiretroviral drugs) for children has also increased, with 7,500 children currently on treatment. This represents 10 per cent. of all those on AIDS treatment in Zambia today. The Zambian Government's goal is that 15 per cent. of all those on antiretroviral treatment should be children.[5]

DEFENCE

Afghanistan

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 8 February 2007, Official Report, columns 1070-71W, on Afghanistan, what the Government's response has been to each urgent operational requirement request from forces in Afghanistan since January 2006; and if he will make a statement. [127391]

Mr. Ingram: As a general rule, once an urgent statement of user requirement has been endorsed by the military chain of command and is therefore progressed as an urgent operational requirement (UOR), a business case is drafted and, subject to scrutiny, approved, and the equipment procured and delivered to theatre.

There are some cases where UORs are not progressed in this way, for example when it is decided that the equipment required can be provided from in-service stocks, or if the capability gap can be filled by using existing equipment in a new way. Alternatively, as the situation on the ground can change so rapidly, the military chain of command may re-assess the requirement.

As the operations in Iraq and Afghanistan are still ongoing, detailed information regarding specific UORs remains operationally sensitive, and its release would, or would be likely to, prejudice the security of our armed forces.

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 5 March 2007, Official Report, column 1646W on Afghanistan, how many people died in the incident at Panjwayi. [127727]

Des Browne: The joint ISAF-ANA report on the incident in Panjwayi on 24-25 October 2006 estimated the number of civilians killed in the incident to be around 30. The loss of innocent lives is a tragedy and ISAF and coalition forces seek at all times to avoid civilian casualties.

Afghanistan: Force Levels

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to his oral statement of 26 February 2007, Official Report, column 625, on Afghanistan (force levels), what his definition is of the long term; and what steps he is taking to mitigate against potential damage to the armed forces of current operational tempo. [131741]

Des Browne: Our current planning priority is to see through our commitments in Iraq and Afghanistan. The level of operational deployments is reducing and we judge that it will return to within the level assumed in our planning assumptions. Some of the measures to reduce the burden on personnel include: reducing the level of non-operational tasking; regularly reviewing the scale and mix of personnel deployed; increasing recruitment and training; and providing financial and non-financial incentives for retention.

Afghanistan: Peace Keeping Operations

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) if he will take steps to bring the standard of base protection in Iraqi bases occupied by British troops up to the level of that maintained at Kandahar air base in Afghanistan; and if he will make a statement; [127676]

(2) if he will publish on his Department's website information on the techniques employed at (a) Basra air station and (b) other bases in Iraq occupied by British personnel along the lines of the information available on the base protection techniques at Kandahar air base. [127678]

Mr. Ingram: The threat faced by British troops at the NATO base at Kandahar air station is very different to that faced by British troops in bases within Iraq. Therefore the protection measures employed will be different at each base but will be appropriate to the threat. An audit of the force protection measures at bases in Basra has taken place recently and work is ongoing to build on the measures that are already in use.

The information on the Department's website is reviewed periodically and appropriate information, which will not compromise operational security, will continue to be placed on the website with respect to UK military operations.

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will bring the standard of base protection at Camp Bastion to the level of that maintained at Kandahar air base. [127677]

Mr. Ingram: The standard of force protection at all UK bases in Afghanistan is appropriate to the threat level in each area.

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many personnel of HM Forces have (a) lost their lives and (b) been wounded as a result of land mines in Afghanistan since the beginning of operations in 2002. [128281]

Mr. Ingram: Since the beginning of operations in Afghanistan, three UK fatalities have been confirmed as being caused by land mines. Since March 2006, some information has been gathered regarding the number of personnel wounded by land mines. It is estimated that since this date approximately 16 military personnel have been wounded as a result of land mines; however, this figure may not be entirely reliable because some very minor injuries may not be reported, and because it is not always possible to ascertain whether an incident is caused by a land mine or an Improvised Explosive Device (IED).

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether he considers HM Forces in Afghanistan to be on a non-warfighting operation. [128284]

Mr. Ingram: HM forces in Afghanistan are there as part of a peace-enforcement operation. However, the character of any particular campaign is rarely static and its intensity can vary over time. This requires UK forces to conduct a wide range of military activities concurrently, and transition quickly from one type of operation to another. This is evident in the way in which UK forces are involved in frequent engagements with the Taliban while simultaneously assisting in reconstruction activities. Nevertheless, the aims of the ISAF mission remain to stabilise the security environment so that the Provincial Reconstruction Team and other agencies can operate to extend the Government's authority, to improve the rule of law, and to facilitate reconstruction and development, particularly by supporting capacity-building in the security sector.

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the number of land mines in Afghanistan; and what plans there are for their removal. [128286]

Mr. Ingram: Unofficial estimates of the number of land mines in Afghanistan vary between 5 million and 7 million and the most recent land mine impact survey identified some 715 square kilometres of hazardous areas. There are numerous mine action programmes under way in Afghanistan with some 9,500 Afghans working for organisations coordinated by the UN Mine Action Programme of Afghanistan.

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the reasons were for the decision to take the 51 mm mortar out of service in Afghanistan; and if he will make a statement. [129322]

Mr. Ingram: The 51 mm mortar is in service in Afghanistan but is approaching its planned out of service date across the armed forces. Ammunition stocks have been prioritised in order to continue to support its use in Afghanistan. The capability provided by the 51 mm mortar will be replaced by a combination of systems including the 40 mm Underslung Grenade Launcher and rocket hand-fired illumination and smoke rounds. In Afghanistan, this capability is being augmented by a purchase of a more modern and supportable 60 mm mortar.

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent (a) representations he has had on and (b) assessment he has made of the availability of Viper thermal imaging sets for British troops in Afghanistan; and if he will make a statement. [129323]

Mr. Ingram: VIPIR thermal imagery is in use in Afghanistan on a variety of weapons and vehicles, and the number deployed is being increased following a review of equipment requirements.

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Tristars are available to serve the supply link between the UK and Afghanistan; and if he will make a statement. [129425]

Mr. Ingram: There are four return Tristar flights per week on the airbridge to Afghanistan. This requirement is met by one aircraft plus one reserve. Only Tristars that are fitted with defensive measures fly the Afghanistan airbridge. The majority of RAF Tristars are now fitted with defensive measures.

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the reliability of the Tristar fleet in making flights between the UK and Afghanistan. [129426]

Mr. Ingram: Operational reliability is assessed by the numbers of aircraft that are deemed as fit for purpose (FFP) against the planned average FFP figure. Aircraft are deemed fit for purpose if they are capable of undertaking the required task on a given day. Aircraft are not available for tasking if they are undergoing scheduled maintenance, modification programmes or any unforeseen rectification work that can arise on a day to day basis. The figures do not reflect the fact that an aircraft assessed as not fit for purpose may be returned to the front line at very short notice to meet the operational need. The planned average FFP for the Tristar aircraft for 2006-07 is 4.8 aircraft per day. As at the end of February 2007 we have achieved a FFP figure of 4.62 aircraft per day for the same period, largely owing to the ongoing programme to fit defensive measures to the Tristar.

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what percentage of Tristar flights (a) to and (b) from Afghanistan were delayed for (i) aircraft maintenance and (ii) other reasons in the last period for which figures are available. [129428]

Mr. Ingram: For the period 1 December 2006 to 28 February 2007 the following percentage of flights have been delayed

	Percentage
	UK to Afghanistan	Afghanistan to UK
Aircraft maintenance	7	4
Other	17	24

The other reasons for delays include adverse weather and air traffic delays. The percentage delayed for other reasons is higher for the return leg as this figure includes delay due to the knock-on effect of the late arrival of the inbound aircraft to theatre.

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the UK deployment of Apache helicopters to Afghanistan has been affected by technical problems; and if he will make a statement. [129444]

Mr. Ingram: While any aircraft will require routine maintenance during deployment, the Apache has not been affected by significant technical problems. Apaches on Operation Herrick are receiving top priority for spare parts and maintenance, and are in fact delivering more flying hours than asked for. The Apache has successfully delivered on the tasks that it has undertaken, and reports from theatre have been very positive about this capability.

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what percentage of the UK's Apache helicopter fleet is available to UK forces in Afghanistan; [129445]

(2) whether UK Apache helicopters in Afghanistan are being maintained by the cannibalising of spare parts from helicopters in the UK. [129609]

Mr. Ingram: At present 19 per cent. of the UK's Apache helicopter fleet is available to UK forces in Afghanistan. This meets the number required for full operational capability.

It has occasionally been necessary to cannibalise aircraft in the Depth Sustainment Fleet in the UK to satisfy high priority demands for deployed UK Apache helicopters. It is possible that Apache in Afghanistan may have been maintained using cannibalised parts from aircraft going back to the Apache Depth Pulse line maintenance system at Wattisham, though this is not a frequent practice.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many soldiers from Welsh regiments are (a) serving in and (b) soon to leave for Afghanistan; and if he will make a statement. [129702]

Mr. Ingram: Currently there are no Welsh regiments, or elements thereof, deployed in Afghanistan. At any given time, however, there will be a number of individual augmentees on operations, including those in Afghanistan. These may include a number from Welsh regiments.

In total some 170 soldiers from Welsh regiments will be included in the next roulement to Afghanistan.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects the Board of Inquiry into the loss of Hercules XV206 in Afghanistan to complete its investigation; when he plans to publish the findings; and if he will make a statement. [130496]

Mr. Ingram: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave on 7 March 2007, Official Report, column 1979W.

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) 16, (b) 17 and (c) 18-year-olds have served in Afghanistan. [130745]

Derek Twigg: Data on the age of service personnel deployed on operations are not held centrally.

Provisional estimates collated from manual records show that no 16 or 17-year-old personnel have been deployed to Afghanistan since the 'Optional Protocol to the Convention on the rights of the child on the involvement of children in armed conflict' was ratified on 24 June 2003.

New administrative guidelines and procedures have been introduced by each of the services following the ratification of the Optional Protocol to ensure that under 18 year old personnel are not deployed to areas where hostilities are taking place unless there is a clear operational requirement for them to do so.

Figures on those aged 18 cannot be collated without incurring disproportionate cost.

Air Force: Calendars

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence by what date the distribution of the 2007 Royal Air Force desktop calendar was complete. [131091]

Derek Twigg: Bulk delivery of the Royal Air Force desktop calendar to Members of Parliament was made by the Defence Storage Distribution Agency (DSDA) at Llangennech. All stocks intended for delivery to the House of Commons were despatched by DSDA Llangennech on 20 November 2006. In accordance with House of Commons bulk mail procedures the consignment was addressed to House of Commons, 1 Cannon Row, London, SW1A 2JN, and it was anticipated that the consignment would have been received by 26 November 2006. Each calendar packet was individually pre-addressed to MPs to facilitate speedy delivery by the House of Commons mail system.

Aircraft Carriers

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether he expects any naval bases other than Portsmouth to be able to accommodate the Royal Navy's future carriers. [128586]

Mr. Ingram: In addition to Portsmouth, Faslane could accommodate the Royal Navy's Future Aircraft Carriers, subject to changes in infrastructure.

Aircraft Carriers: Procurement

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to commission new naval aircraft carriers; when he expects the carriers to be in service; and if he will make a statement. [131185]

Mr. Ingram: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave on 17 October 2006, Official Report, column 326W, to the hon. Member for Shrewsbury and Atcham (Daniel Kawczynski).

Animal Experiments

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the Answer of 7 March 2007, Official Report, column 1979W, on animal experiments, what the qualifications are of those who will decide whether to continue the experiments involving live goats. [127390]

Mr. Ingram: The members of the team reviewing the need for further use of goats in this research programme are yet to be formally appointed. I shall write to the hon. Gentleman to detail their qualifications as soon as the information is available.

Armed Forces: Children

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library a copy of the document "Provision of Childcare" provided to HM armed forces recruits. [130642]

Derek Twigg: I have placed a copy of guidance entitled "The Provision of Childcare" in the Library. This is taken from the Army Recruiting Group Instructions Chapter 11, Section 1, Paragraphs 50-55 and is used by the Army Recruiting Group when questions on children and family matters are raised.

Information on this issue is also provided to recruits. I have placed a copy of the RN guidance on child care for recruits taken from BR689, Section 4 Chapter 4 and a copy of the supplementary information provided by the Army to applicants who have dependants. The relevant RAF publication is undergoing review.

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what guidance is issued to potential HM armed forces recruits with dependent children. [130643]

Derek Twigg: Candidates wishing to make an application for armed forces employment are required to complete the application form 'AFCO Form 4'. Before completing AFCO Form 4, all potential recruits are required to read the application form information and guidance booklet, 'AFCO Form 5'. This form provides initial guidance to applicants with dependants:

"2.2 Dependants. The Armed Forces will require you to serve away from your home, at times for extended periods, and the Service you are applying for needs to be assured that your domestic arrangements will not prevent you from doing this. If you are married, and/or have children and/or family members dependant upon you then certain conditions apply. The Armed Forces Careers Adviser will provide you with the appropriate information. This includes Volunteer Reserve Service training and/or mobilisation for the Reserve Forces."

During the selection interview, recruiting staff ensure that applicants are fully aware of their service obligations. Applicants with dependant responsibilities and/or those who ask questions on any concerns raised are then given further written guidance detailing their responsibilities with regard to child care arrangements. Once applicants have confirmed they understand their obligations and have demonstrated they have considered child care and would have sufficient cover during period of absence, the selection process is allowed to continue.

Armed Forces: Council Tax

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent discussions his Department has had with (a) the Department for Communities and Local Government and (b) the Scottish Executive on the proposed exemption of members of the armed forces serving overseas from paying council tax; when these discussions took place; what assessment the Government have made of the cost of such a scheme; and if he will make a statement. [131689]

Derek Twigg: I met my hon. Friend the Minister of State for Local Government on 13 March to discuss a number of options on how best to provide support for the council tax costs of service personnel deployed on operations; these options are being further explored. Officials from the Ministry of Defence and the Department for Communities and Local Government have kept the devolved Administrations informed of progress on this issue.

Armed Forces: Deployment

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many soldiers are serving on S-type engagements. [129690]

Derek Twigg: As at 22 March 2007 there were 1,099 soldiers serving on an S-type engagement.

Armed Forces: Desertion

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what definition is used to determine whether British service personnel are absent without leave. [130589]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 29 March 2007]: An absentee is the term applied to a person subject to military law who absents himself from the place at which his duty requires him to be, without leave to do so. Service personnel are found to be culpable of absence without leave if the absence was due to the deliberate intention of the accused to be absent or if it was caused by circumstances which were within his own control.

Armed Forces: Discharges

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many soldiers were subject to a manning control review and were discharged at manning control point in each of the last five years, broken down by regiment. [129688]

Derek Twigg: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answers given on 27 November 2002, Official Report, column 333W, and 3 March 2004, Official Report, column 961W.

There have been no discharges as a result of manning control point review since April 2002.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many soldiers who were subject to a manning control review and were subsequently transferred to the S-type engagements were discharged at the end of their S-type engagements in each of the last five years, broken down by regiment; and under what Queen's Regulations they were discharged. [129689]

Derek Twigg: The total number is 84. This is broken down as follows:

Discharged under Queen's Regulations paragraph 9.393: having completed engagement

	Number
2002	9
2003	8
2004	[1]
2005	[1]

Armed Forces: Health Services

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which facilities are currently treating service personnel who have been injured in action and have subsequently returned to the UK; and what specialisms are provided for at those facilities. [127573]

Derek Twigg: Military personnel who sustain a serious physical injury on operations overseas are most commonly received initially at Selly Oak Hospital, part of the University Hospital Birmingham NHS Foundation Trust (UHBFT), which is a centre of excellence in the medical care of the types of injuries our people most often sustain. Here we are able to provide patients who need it with the advanced specialist clinical care required in the initial stages of their treatment.

Patients with serious orthopaedic/trauma injuries may be housed on the military-managed ward at Selly Oak, where these injuries can be treated. But those with other injuries (such as burns or neurological trauma) may be housed on other specialist wards where they can receive the first-class care they require. This may be at Selly Oak, or if appropriate another NHS facility such as the Queen Elizabeth hospital.

Patients who either do not require inpatient hospital treatment, or who require further rehabilitation care following initial treatment, may be referred to the Defence Medical Rehabilitation Centre (DMRC) at Headley Court in Surrey. DMRC is the principal medical rehabilitation centre run by the armed forces and contains the Complex Rehabilitation and Amputee Unit (CRAU) and a Regional Rehabilitation Unit (RRU). DMRC provides both physiotherapy and group rehabilitation for complex musculo-skeletal injuries, plus neuro-rehabilitation for brain-injured patients. The CRAU, based within DMRC, provides high quality prosthetics and adaptations, manufactured on site and individually tailored as necessary for the specific patient. Priority is given to the provision of prosthetics to enable service personnel to resume service duties.

Personnel with less serious musculo-skeletal injuries may also be referred to one of MOD's 15 Regional Rehabilitation Units (RRU) in the UK plus Germany, which provide accessible, regionally-based assessment and treatment, including physiotherapy and group rehabilitation facilities. Each RRU has a Multidisciplinary Injury Assessment Clinic (MIAC) team comprising a doctor with specialist skills in sports medicine, a physiotherapist with enhanced skills and a remedial instructor (physical education instructor trained to deliver individual and group therapy), who together provide an assessment and diagnostic service. This team have rapid access to MRI scan or other imaging if required. They then determine the most appropriate rehabilitation plan for the patient, including rapid access to orthopaedic surgery when clinically indicated.

Very occasionally the most seriously injured patients will require specialised care and treatment that can best be provided outside the NHS or MOD's own facilities. One example is neurological injury, where the best specialist treatment can often be provided by organisations such as the Royal Hospital for Neuro-disability at Putney, which is a national centre of expertise in its particular field.

We also provide treatment for psychological as well as physical injuries. Mental health services in the UK are delivered through a combination of community-based outpatient care and local inpatient treatment through the Priory Group of hospitals. MOD runs its own 15 Departments of Community Mental Health situated around the UK, with others based in Germany, Cyprus and Gibraltar. Their teams comprise psychiatrists, mental health nurses, clinical psychologists and mental health social workers. The full range of psychiatric and psychological treatments is available, including medication, psychological therapies and environmental adjustment where appropriate. The Defence Mental Health Services have particular expertise in psychological treatments for mental health problems in general, and psychological injury in particular, using such treatments as Cognitive Behaviour Therapy (CBT) and Eye Movement Desensitisation and Reprocessing (EMDR).

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence by what process the support of military, Government, charitable and civilian efforts to assist wounded servicemen and women is integrated. [128479]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 19 March 2007]: The key factor in the Government's duty of care towards the members of the armed forces is ensuring they receive high quality medical care, both while deployed on operations and back in the UK. This can range from life-saving surgery—both in our deployed field hospitals and NHS facilities in the UK—to treatment of routine ailments on a daily basis.

At a pan-Government level the MOD works with the Department of Health and with other UK health departments to agree policy and improvements in communication.

Most primary care of military personnel is provided at unit level by members of the Defence Medical Services (DMS). For physical illness or injury, MOD has its own rehabilitation facilities, with secondary care in the form of hospital treatment in the UK provided by NHS hospital trusts. This is the most effective way of enabling military patients to benefit from the latest advances in medical treatment and the recent major investments in NHS facilities. Casualties from overseas are referred usually to the University Hospital Birmingham Foundation Trust (UHBFT), which leads the way in the UK for the acute care of patients with complex traumatic injuries of the types suffered by our personnel on operations.

Care for the vast majority of service personnel with mental illness is provided at one of our 15 military Departments of Community Mental Health (DCMH) in the UK and equivalents overseas. This gives our patients access to high quality care, providing regional care within easy reach of unit, base or home. For those few that require inpatient mental health care a contract has been established with the Priory to provide high quality regional care. Close liaison takes place between the Priory and the DCMH. Furthermore the MOD has recently introduced the Reserves Mental Health Programme, which is improving the overall health care we offer to recently demobilised reservists. Information is available by visiting http://www.army.mod.uk/rtmc/rmhp.htm or concerned individual reservists or their GPs can contact a free phone number.

Wider support to injured personnel and their families is provided by a range of organisations, often at regimental and unit level. The main central provider of hospital welfare services is the Defence Medical Welfare Service (DMWS), which is contracted by the MOD to provide welfare support to service personnel and entitled civilians who are in hospital in the UK, Germany, Cyprus and on deployed operations. Patients are informed about other appropriate welfare agencies. These include the single service welfare services as well as service charities such as SSAFA, St. Dunstan's, Combat Stress, Royal British Legion, etc. and we are grateful for their support.

The single services operate "long-term sick" policies and welfare procedures for patients discharged from hospital. Each of the single services tracks its own patients and coordinates welfare support, which includes drawing on the support provided by service charitable organisations such as SSAFA and individual regimental charities. Families are assigned a visiting officer who acts as the link between the family and the services, and will also direct the family to the most appropriate internal and external welfare agencies for specific areas of support.

There is long-standing policy that the NHS, not MOD, provides care for ex-service personnel. However, the MOD funds courses of care at facilities run by the mental health charity Combat Stress, for those whose conditions are due to service and for whom this is an appropriate course. These procedures are under constant review to ensure that the support provided meets the needs of the recipients.

The Department routinely meets the various governmental and non-governmental organisations described above to ensure an integrated approach to care.

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the adequacy of medical care for injured service personnel. [129595]

Derek Twigg: Injured service personnel receive an overall excellent standard of medical care. Serious cases require access to a broad range of skills only available in a NHS specialist trauma centre. This is provided by University Hospital Birmingham Foundation Trust for casualties from overseas. Subsequently, the seriously injured are frequently referred to the Defence Medical Rehabilitation Centre at Headley Court, offering world class rehabilitation care tailored to the specific needs of the patient. Patients with less serious musculo-skeletal injuries are normally referred to one of our 15 regional rehabilitation units in the UK and overseas.

Mental health services in the UK are delivered through a combination of military community-based out-patient care supporting local in-patient treatment through the Priory Group of hospitals. MOD runs its own 15 Departments of Community Mental Health situated in the UK and overseas. The full range of psychiatric and psychological treatments is available, and where necessary, in-patient facilities are provided by the Priory Group.

Armed Forces: Housing

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many complaints Modern Housing Solutions received in the last 12 months. [129686]

Derek Twigg: Between 21 March 2006 and 21 March 2007 Modern Housing Solutions (MHS) received 8,779 complaints, which range from missed appointments through to noise levels and problems with vehicle parking.

In recent months the number of complaints has fallen considerably given the improved service now being provided. In the first three months of the MHS contract, 3,091 complaints were received. Since the beginning of January until 21 March, 1,621 complaints were received.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many accidents have been reported due to faulty Modern Housing Solutions property in the last 12 months, broken down by type of property. [129691]

Derek Twigg: During the last 12 months a total of 13 accidents and/or incidents involving occupants in properties maintained by Modern Housing Solutions have been reported. Of these, two have a proven causal link to housing defects.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many service quarters were adapted for special needs dependants in the latest period for which figures are available; and what the cost was of such adaptations. [129693]

Derek Twigg: There are 125 applications that have been completed, or are in the process of being completed, for special needs adaptations in service families accommodation in the last year. The cost of these adaptations is £467,126.59.

Armed Forces: Israel

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many British troops are training in Israel; and if he will make a statement. [130787]

Mr. Ingram: Currently, there are no British troops undergoing training in Israel.

Armed Forces: MRSA

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many servicemen injured in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan have contracted (i) a viral infection and (ii) MRSA while receiving treatment for their injuries in UK (A) civilian and (B) military hospitals; and if he will make a statement; [129030]

(2) how many servicemen injured serving in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan who contracted viral infections while receiving treatment for their injuries in UK civilian hospitals have subsequently had limbs amputated as a result of the infection; and if he will make a statement. [129637]

Derek Twigg [holding answers 22 and 23 March 2007]: If an injury sustained in theatre warrants the immediate removal of a limb, the operation will be conducted under field conditions. Service personnel injured while on operation in Iraq or Afghanistan who require further medical treatment are usually aero-medically evacuated to Selly Oak hospital in Birmingham. Once evacuated to the UK, the patient will undergo detailed assessment by the hospital clinical team and further medical treatment, if required, will be carried out. We are aware of no cases of service personnel contracting an infection while in theatre, in transit, or as a military patient being treated in Birmingham that has subsequently led to a limb amputation.

University Hospital Birmingham (UHB) has robust procedures in place to minimise the risk of infection and counter its effects in both its civilian and military patients. UHB does collect overall infection rates, and in total for all patients, it has had 93 MRSA bacteraemia reports across the Queen Elizabeth and Selly Oak hospital sites from April 2006 to the end of February 2007. This equates to 0.09 per cent. of the around 100,000 (mostly civilian) in-patients and day cases treated in this time period and only 0.02 per cent. of the total 500,000 of all patients treated in this period. UHB's MRSA bacteraemia reports have reduced by 32 per cent. in the last two years.

Neither the UHB nor the Ministry of Defence holds a separate database or a record of military patients who have reported MRSA or other viral infections. Therefore, the precise number of military patients diagnosed with MRSA or viral infections in NHS hospitals is not available centrally. This information could be obtained only by searching through individual medical records with that person's permission, and this could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Armed Forces: Northern Ireland

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will take steps to reduce troop levels in Northern Ireland. [131004]

Mr. Ingram: On 28 March 2006, Official Report, column 55WS, I announced a structured plan for the phased reduction of troops to peacetime levels in Northern Ireland, a copy of which is available in the Library of the House. Under that plan, by the end of July this year, there will be no more than 5,000 military personnel based in Northern Ireland and units based in Northern Ireland in the future will be deployable worldwide to meet the Government's global defence commitments.

Armed Forces: Pay

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the number of pay errors the Army expects to encounter when the joint personnel administration goes live. [129987]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 26 March 2007]: Data migration for Army personnel has been a challenge due to the sheer volume concerned and the age and diversity of the legacy systems involved. The current estimate is that the proportion of personnel who will experience a variance in basic pay in the first month of transition will be between 0.5 per cent. and 3 per cent. This incorporates Army and RAF reserves, as well as regular Army. For specialist pay the proportion is expected to be between 4 per cent. and 8 per cent. Work between now and the first live pay run in April is expected to result in the variances being at the lower end of the estimates range. In cases of mismatch of either basic pay or specialist pay the individuals affected will be notified by the Army in advance and where necessary local payments will be made to ensure hardship is not an issue. Action will be taken to inform the May pay run.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what contingency plans his Department has put in place to deal with any errors made when the Army has its first pay run under the new joint personnel administration in April. [131080]

Derek Twigg: Contingency planning has included a number of dummy pay runs during April to check and confirm the status of pay accounts ahead of the first live Army pay run. A further supplementary pay run scheduled for 27 April 2007 will be used to address any significant issues identified in the initial pay runs.

An Army team is embedded within the Service Personnel and Veterans Agency (SPVA) to assist with the resolution of issues and their communication. For those serving on operations a fast track process exists to escalate any urgent pay issues directly to the SPVA joint personnel administration operations room. A process is also in place to make emergency payments in cash at unit level if necessary.

The SPVA has developed disaster recovery plans and business continuity plans to mitigate the risk of a full system failure.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions his Department has had with the Treasury regarding the long service advance of pay. [131094]

Derek Twigg: Ministers and officials in both the Treasury and the Ministry of Defence have regular discussions on a range of matters relating to the terms and conditions of service, including pay and allowances, for service personnel.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what progress has been made in the roll-out of joint personnel administration to the Army; and if he will make a statement. [128188]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 19 March 2007]: Good progress has been made with the successful initial roll-out of Joint Personnel Administration (JPA) to the Army being achieved as planned at the end of March. A number of essential post go-live consolidation and preparation activities are currently under way, to ready the system introduction of self-service users.

As planned, roll-out to self-service users will be phased and will be completed by 31 July. E-learning packages have been provided to self-service users and instructor-led training has been given to unit administration staff. The first JPA pay run for the Army is scheduled for payment at the end of April. The Army is prepared for JPA and has put processes in place to ensure that a service individual or their family will not be placed in difficulty in the event of any teething problems with the large and complex transition to JPA.

Armed Forces: Public Perception

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps his Department takes to assess public perception of the armed forces; and if he will make a statement. [131716]

Derek Twigg: It is important to the MOD that we hear people's views on defence matters. This helps to inform our policies and keep us in tune with public thinking and concerns. We carry out occasional public opinion research to this end.

Results from our central corporate research on public attitudes to defence, commissioned by our Corporate Communications division, are published on our website and included in the reputation section of our annual performance report and accounts. Other parts of the Department—particularly the service recruiting organisations—also conduct occasional public research in support of their business objectives.

Armed Forces: Personnel's Perception

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent assessment his Department has made of armed forces personnel's perceptions of (a) the calibre, capability and quality of military equipment and (b) working patterns and pressures of service in the armed forces; and if he will make a statement. [131717]

Mr. Ingram: These issues are covered in the armed forces continuous attitude surveys, copies of which are available in the Library of the House. The latest continuous attitude surveys are expected to be published and placed in the Library of the House in May.

Armed Forces: Rules of Engagement

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence who is responsible for (a) drawing up and (b) agreeing rules of engagement under which British armed forces serve; and whether the rules of engagement are the same in Afghanistan and Iraq. [130680]

Des Browne: Responsibility for drawing up rules of engagement rests jointly with Ministry of Defence operational, policy and legal personnel. Individual rules of engagement are drawn up for each theatre of operation to ensure that they reflect the specific circumstances faced by UK troops in each theatre and the objectives they seek to achieve. Ministers approve all rules of engagement.

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) whether the rules of engagement have changed in respect of contact with Iranian forces following the recent abduction by Iran of 15 Royal Navy personnel; [130681]

(2) whether the rules of engagement in Iraq have been changed to permit artillery fire against indirect mortar and rocket fire. [130793]

Des Browne: In order to safeguard the security of our armed forces on operations, it is Ministry of Defence policy not to comment on specific operational profiles or the rules therein.

Armed Forces: Selly Oak Hospital

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what surveys have been carried out among injured service personnel treated at Selly Oak hospital to ascertain their views on the quality of the care and treatment they received; and if he will make a statement. [129396]

Derek Twigg: The Royal Centre for Defence Medicine is undertaking a pilot military patient survey of military patients over the period up to the end of June. The survey covers military in-patients treated at hospitals of the University Hospitals Birmingham Foundation Trust, including Selly Oak, which is the principal receiving hospital for military patients.

Emerging results from this pilot survey are being regularly analysed to establish any significant trends and to note any concerns expressed by patients. Our most recent analysis found that 98 per cent. of those who answered the question "Overall, how would you rate the care you received?" responded that it was "excellent", "very good" or "good". The survey is anonymous, but concerns expressed by individuals that may have a general application are all addressed, in consultation with NHS management as necessary, as we continue to seek further improvements in the care that our service men and women receive.

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the level of recovery of injured service personnel treated at Selly Oak hospital compared with other previous arrangements. [129397]

Derek Twigg: It is difficult to compare like with like, given the changes that have occurred since the decision to close military hospitals in the mid-1990s, including advances in medicine, on the battlefield and elsewhere, and the level of personal protection now available to our troops. These changes have contributed to substantial improvements in the prospects of survival and recovery from serious wounds.

The Chief of the General Staff commented in a recent interview,

> "There is nowhere better in the country, nowhere more expert at polytrauma medicine than Selly Oak, that's why our people are there".

Armed Forces: Uniforms

John Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what clothing contracts let by his Department have been (a) awarded to overseas companies and (b) subcontracted from UK companies to overseas companies in the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [131128]

Mr. Ingram: Information is available only on the number of clothing contracts let over the last four financial years. Records prior to this date are not held centrally and the information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Since April 2003, 40 clothing contracts have been awarded directly to overseas companies at an estimated value of £12.8 million. During the same period 465 clothing contracts have been placed directly with UK companies at an estimated value of £192 million. It is not possible to provide the number of overseas clothing subcontracts placed by UK prime contractors as this information is not held by the MOD. At the time of contract placement, however, these companies indicated that approximately £91.5 million of the work would be undertaken offshore. Records of any subsequent subcontracting arrangements are not held.

Army Board: Members

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on which occasions the (a) Assistant Chief of the General Staff, (b) Chief of the General Staff, (c) Adjutant General and (d) non-ministerial members of the Army Board have met hon. Members in the last 12 months. [127538]

Derek Twigg: Non-ministerial members of the Army Board have met with hon. Members on the following occasions. Meetings with Defence Ministers are not included:

Chief of the General Staff:

25 May 2006—Sir Patrick Cormack MP

12 October 2006—Armed forces parliamentary scheme lunch at the House of Commons.

Adjutant General:

13 November 2006—visit by armed forces parliamentary scheme—Mike Penning MP

24 November 2006—The right hon. Sir Menzies Campbell MP, QC and Nick Harvey MP

Director General Land Equipment:

21 March 2006—Mr. Robert Flello MP, Mrs. Clare Curtis-Thomas MP and Mr. Christopher Fraser MP

General Officer Commanding Northern Ireland:

11 May 2006—Mr. Laurence Robertson MP

12 June 2006—Dr. Liam Fox MP

19 October 2006—Mr. Mark Harper MP

19-20 January 2007—Mr. Robert Flello MP and Mr. Stephen O'Brien MP

Army Board: Official Cars

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) make and (b) model is of each car provided to non-ministerial members of the Army Board. [128790]

Derek Twigg: Due to security considerations, I am withholding details of precisely which model of car is used by each non-ministerial member of the Army Board. However, the range of cars is:

Audi S8
Lexus 430
Ford Mondeo
Rover 75
Toyota Avensis
Jaguar XJ8
Vauxhall Omega
Vauxhall Vectra

Army Costs

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 20 March 2007, Official Report, columns 749-50W, on army costs, if he will make an assessment of the market value of the house occupied by the General Officer Commanding Northern Ireland. [130217]

Derek Twigg: The house occupied by the General Officer Commanding Northern Ireland is within the confines of a barracks and so could not be sold on the open market without extensive work to separate it from the remainder of the site. There are no plans to put the property on the market and no assessment of market value is therefore planned.

Army: Discharges

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many discharges there were of (a) Nepalese and (b) other soldiers from the Army in each of the last five years for which figures are available; what monitoring has taken place of the type of housing obtained by those discharged; what additional funding has been given to appropriate local authorities to enable them to provide accommodation; and if he will make a statement. [130132]

Derek Twigg: Outflow of Gurkha and other soldiers and officers from the UK regular Army in each of the last five years is shown in the table:

	Gurkhas			UK regular forces
Outflow date	Officer	Soldier	Total	Officer	Soldier	Total
2001-02	10	220	240	1,090	13,290	14,380
2002-03	20	270	280	980	13,580	14,560
2003-04	20	280	300	950	13,640	14,600
2004-05	10	250	260	1,100	13,970	15,070
2005-06	10	260	280	1,070	13,120	14,190
1 February 2007[1]	10	190	200	1,230	13,650	14,880

[1] Date periods are for financial years except for 1 February 2007 which represents the 12 month period ending 31 January 2007.

The MOD does not monitor the type of housing obtained by UK regular soldiers and officers who are discharged from regular service and does not provide additional funding to local authorities to enable them to provide accommodation for discharged personnel.

Prior to 2004, all Gurkha officers and soldiers were required to return to Nepal for discharge purposes as part of their conditions of service. From 2004 onwards, Gurkhas became entitled to benefit from the HM Forces Immigration Rule if they were discharged with at least four years' service on or after 1 July 1997. Once discharged in Nepal, ex-Gurkhas may apply for indefinite leave to enter the UK and if granted, may settle and work here. However, this would be as private individuals, whom the MOD does not monitor.

The Joint Service Housing Advice Office provides housing information and advice to service personnel and their dependants seeking information about civilian housing. This is delivered through a series of one day briefings in the UK, Germany, Cyprus and Gibraltar, and via their website. In addition, a monthly magazine 'Housing Matters' is distributed to service units worldwide.

Army: Manpower

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answers of 20 March 2007, Official Report, column 750W, on army manpower, what the (a) ranks and (b) regiments are of those members of the armed forces assigned to the households of members of the Army Board; what their (i) roles and (ii) professional skills are; how many non-armed forces staff are assigned to each of the households of members of the Army Board; and what their roles are. [130213]

Derek Twigg: For those members of the Army Board assigned household staff at a cost to the Ministry of Defence, the details are:

Rank	Regiment	Role	Skills
CGS
Colour Sergeant	Yorkshire Regiment	House Manager	Has attended the Mess Supervisor and Mess Steward courses

Army: Northern Ireland

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) which sites in County Armagh have been requisitioned by his Department for use by the British Army under emergency powers legislation since 1977; [130980]

(2) which sites in County Armagh have been leased from landowners by his Department for use by the British Army without the use of emergency powers legislation since 1977. [130982]

Mr. Ingram: Given the need to obtain and analyse records going back 30 years, many of which are not held centrally or in an electronic form, it will take some time to provide a substantive reply, even if the required information still exists. I will write to the hon. Lady and a copy of my letter will be placed in the Library of the House.

Astute Class Submarines

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the reasons are for time taken to agree a contract price for the second and third Astute class SSNs; and if he will make a statement. [125145]

Mr. Ingram: The development of robust and mature prices for Astute Boats 2 and 3 has required the design for the first 3 boats and the Boat 1 build programme to reach a higher level of maturity. The contract prices remain subject to approval.

Basra Air Base

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Iraqi (a) civilians, (b) police and (c) military personnel are expected to work in Basra Air Base. [130023]

Des Browne: Approximately 130 Iraqi military personnel are currently based at Basra Air Station. This figure will increase to around 200 personnel once the 10 Division headquarters moves from Basra Air Station in summer 2007 and the buildings have been converted to a Joint Leadership Academy. Some of those attending courses at the academy will be police personnel but it is not possible to estimate how many this will be at any one time.

As at 20 March 2007, around 780 Iraqi civilians were working at Basra but this figure fluctuates significantly on a daily basis depending on a number of factors including contractor activity and requirements for construction work.

Bell 412 Helicopter

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the acquisition costs were at 2006 prices of the Bell 412 helicopter as operated by the Army Air Corps; and what the average total operating cost is of the helicopter per hour. [130025]

Mr. Ingram: The Army Air Corps operates Bell 212 helicopters (a two bladed variant of the 412). The Bell 412 helicopter is operated only by the Royal Air Force. Both variants, however, are provided through lease contracts and are not owned by the Department.

The lease contracts are based on firm monthly charges which are inclusive of all costs (less fuel) associated with the provision of serviceable helicopters for the MOD. The monthly charge payable by the MOD includes leasing and operating costs and is in the region of £2,000 per hour per helicopter. Approximately one third of this monthly charge is attributable to operating costs.

Conflict Prevention

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence in which theatres the armed forces have engaged in conflict prevention operations in 2006-07. [131087]

Mr. Ingram: The majority of the MOD's conflict prevention activity in 2006-07, as most recently set out in our Spring Supplementary Estimates, has been through our operations in Iraq, Afghanistan and the Balkans. The MOD has also continued to participate fully in the Global Conflict Prevention Pool (GCPP).

The GCPP maintains a number of geographic and thematic strategies, addressing conflict issues around the world (outside sub-Saharan Africa, which is the preserve of the Africa Conflict Prevention Pool). In 2006-07, the GCPP supported geographic strategies active in Iraq, Afghanistan, the Balkans, the Caribbean, Latin America, Sri Lanka, India and Pakistan, Indonesia, East Timor, the Middle East and North Africa, Nepal, and Russia and the Commonwealth of Independent States. In addition to these geographic strategies, the GCPP thematic strategies, which address the United Nations, Small Arms and Light Weapons, and Security Sector Reform issues, are also carrying out conflict prevention work around the world.

Departmental Offices

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what area of office space his Department and its agencies used in central London in (a) 2004 and (b) 2006; and if he will make a statement. [112181]

Derek Twigg: In 2004, the Ministry of Defence's office space in central London amounted to a total net internal area of 148,000m^2; of which 55,000m^2 was leased and 93,000m^2 owned. By 2006 the figures had reduced to a total of 99,000m^2; of which 16,000m^2 was leased and 83,000m^2 owned.

During 2004, the main building redevelopment was completed and the building reoccupied, allowing the closure of a number of buildings used as decant accommodation and an overall reduction in the number of MOD office buildings in central London from seven to three. This reflects the progress the Department has made to reduce the size of the London estate, while maintaining the efficient and effective delivery of defence objectives.

Departments: Compensation

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place on his Department's website a report of compensation payments made by his Department in the last 12 months. [129241]

Derek Twigg: The information relating to common law compensation payments is contained in the Ministry of Defence's claims annual report that is published each July and placed on the Department's website.

Departments: Public Appointments

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the former hon. Members who left Parliament in 2005 who have since been appointed to public bodies by his Department, broken down by party; and who was responsible for making each appointment. [130136]

Des Browne: The Ministry of Defence has not appointed any former hon. Members who left Parliament in 2005 to its public bodies.

Departments: Public Expenditure

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will break down the financial year 2005-06 outturn for resources 1, 2 and 3 provision for each subhead by (a) near cash departmental expenditure limit (DEL), (b) non-cash DEL, (c) capital DEL, (d) near cash annual managed expenditure, (e) non-cash annual managed expenditure, (f) capital annual managed expenditure, (g) near cash non-budget and (h) non-cash non-budget. [131097]

Mr. Ingram: The outturn for resource expenditure (Request for Resources 1, 2 and 3) for the 2005-06 financial year is analysed in the following table.

The outturn for capital expenditure (Request for Resources 1 and 2) for the 2005-06 financial year is set out in tables 11 and 13 (pages 128 and 129) of the Department's Annual Report and Accounts 2005-06 (HC 1394), which is also available on our website:

www.mod.uk/DefenceInternet/AboutDefence/CorporatePublications/AnnualReports/MODAnnualReports05061.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what methodology is used to calculate the figures for Votes A maxima. [131734]

Mr. Ingram: Votes A maxima are based on previous data and known trends, and then a contingency is added to take account of in-year strength fluctuations. Under no circumstances should the Votes A maximum in any category be breached and it is for this reason that such contingency margins are required.

Departments: Publicity

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department spent on (a) sponsoring newspaper or publication supplements and (b) funding advertorials in newspapers or publications in the latest year for which figures are available; and what the topic was of each publication. [129453]

Derek Twigg: The extent to which my Department sponsors newspaper or publication supplements and/or advertorials is restricted to the Armed Forces recruiting organisations:

Naval Service

12 advertorials were placed across the following magazines:

'Loaded'; 'Nuts'; 'Glamour'; and 'Cosmopolitan'. They were an integral part of the Royal Navy's recruit marketing strategy and were designed to illustrate what life is like for typical serving personnel. The total cost was £128,000.

Army

Double page spreads and full page advertorials were placed in the following publications:

'Bella' (2 editions); 'Best' (2); 'Chat' (2); 'Take a Break' (2); 'That's Life' (2); 'Woman's Own' (2); 'Hello'; 'OK'; 'Max Power'; and 'Nuts'. Each featured an interview with an infantry soldier and a 'Gatekeeper' and focused on the benefit of the career, how it changed the soldier for the better and the pride felt by the family. Key facts on an infantry career and a call to action were also included. The total cost was £254,000.

RAF

Advertorials were placed in the following publications:

'FHM' (2 editions); 'More' (2); 'Nuts' (2); 'Zoo' (2); 'Bliss'; 'B Mag'; 'Company'; 'Glamour'; 'Loaded'; 'Maxim'; and 'Men's Health'. Each featured a male or female case study. The total cost was £111,000.

Departments: Repairs and Maintenance

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the cost to public funds was of the recent refurbishment of his Department's building. [129721]

Derek Twigg: The physical refurbishment of the Department's main building cost £323 million (VAT exclusive) and has created a modern and efficient workspace capable of intensive use for the next 20 years and beyond.

Departments: Trade Unions

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many meetings (a) he and (b) his Department's Ministers held with trade union representatives in 2006. [128765]

Derek Twigg: Defence Ministers held a total of 25 meetings with trade union representatives in 2006. The Secretary of State held five meetings, the Minister for the Armed Forces held six meetings, the Minister for Defence Procurement held 12 meetings. I held two meetings and my predecessors held two meetings.

Diego Garcia: USA

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 19 March 2007, Official Report, column 604W, on Diego Garcia: USA, on how many occasions since (a) the exchange of notes and (b) the updated exchange of notes the UK has (i) been asked and (ii) given approval for operations carried out by the United States from Diego Garcia. [131060]

Des Browne: The notes allow the US to use the base as a forward operating location for aircraft and ships. Over the last 40 years many thousands of flights and ship movements have taken place, each of which is subject to UK authorisation. Records of such authorisations are not maintained centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

EC Defence Policy

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the outcome of the EU Defence Ministers' meeting on 1 March. [131084]

Des Browne: The meeting in Wiesbaden on 1-2 March was an opportunity for EU Defence Ministers to discuss a range of issues, including ESDP operations and forthcoming civilian missions, EU-UN relations, military capabilities and the European Defence Agency. It was an informal meeting and, as such, no formal decisions were made.

Eurofighter

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) whether any of the Eurofighters being sold to Saudi Arabia under the agreement announced in August 2006 are already in production; [106850]

(2) when he expects to answer question 106850, on Eurofighters, tabled by the hon. Member for Hornsey and Wood Green on 28 November 2006. [130603]

Mr. Ingram: I refer the hon. Lady to the answer I gave on 4 December 2006, Official Report, column 84W.

Future of the United Kingdom's Nuclear Deterrent White Paper

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) if he will list the public meetings on the White Paper, "The Future of the United Kingdom's Nuclear Deterrent" (Cm 6994) which (a) he and (b) other Ministers in his Department have attended since 4 December 2006; and who organised each meeting; [129114]

(2) if he will list the invitations to debate the Defence White Paper, "The Future of the United Kingdom's Nuclear Deterrent" (Cm 6994) which his Department has turned down since 4 December 2006; from which organisations each invitation was received; and what the reason for declining the invitation was in each case. [129115]

Des Browne: The following table sets out which public events MOD Ministers have attended on the future of the United Kingdom's nuclear deterrent since 4 December 2006:

Date	Minister	Event
22 January	Secretary of State	Progress (Think Tank) Debate
24 January	Minister (Defence Equipment and Support)	House of Lords debate
25 January	Secretary of State	Speech at King's College, London
6 February	Secretary of State	Defence Select Committee evidence session
28 February	Secretary of State	More 4 debate
4 March	Secretary of State	St. Matthew's Church, Kilmarnock
7 March	Secretary of State	RUSI debate
12 March	Minister (Defence Equipment and Support)	BBC 10 O'clock news
12 March	Minister (Defence Equipment and Support)	BBC Newsnight

Date	Minister	Event
14 March	Minister (Defence Equipment and Support)	BBC Radio 4 World at One
14 March	Secretary of State	House of Commons debate

The two parliamentary debates were organised by the Government. The remaining events were organised co-operatively between the Ministry of Defence and the respective hosts.

Ministers from other Departments have also discussed the future of the nuclear deterrent at both domestic and international public events. Ministers also took part in debates organised by the Labour party but these are not listed as they were party political events.

Since 4 December 2006, the only invitation I am aware of which was declined by MOD Ministers was received from the Oxford Research Group. The invitation was declined because it clashed with prior diary commitments.

Gurkhas

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what (a) funds from his Department and (b) Regimental funds are available for spouses of retired Gurkha soldiers resident in the UK to learn English; and if he will make a statement. [130829]

Derek Twigg: The families of Gurkha soldiers benefit, whilst serving, from extensive welfare support services, including language and interpretation assistance where practicable, to help them integrate into UK society. Retired Gurkhas who have registered for the Enhanced Learning Credit (ELC) Scheme, in common with all discharged service personnel, may draw upon it for up to 10 years post discharge. The ELC scheme assists serving and retired soldiers to follow a course of study with an accredited provider, which leads to a National Qualifications Framework (NQF) Level 3.

Harrier GR7

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which versions of the Harrier are operated by the Royal Air Force in Afghanistan; what the acquisition cost was of each aircraft; and what the average total operating cost is per hour of Harriers deployed in Afghanistan. [130014]

Mr. Ingram: There are currently six GR7 and two GR9 Harrier aircraft operating in Afghanistan.

In the time available it has not been possible to trace the cost paid for these aircraft when first acquired. Their average historical cost is approximately £14 million. This was the value of the aircraft when first entered on the MOD's fixed asset register in financial year 1997-98.

The total cost per funded flying hour across the Harrier fleet is approximately £37,000. This includes forward and depth servicing, fuel, the cost of one Flight Lieutenant pilot, training support costs and the cost of capital charge and depreciation.

Hercules Aircraft

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has for the fitting of kevlar matting to the cargo bays of Hercules aircraft. [127600]

Mr. Ingram: In order to protect our personnel on operations, it is the Ministry of Defence policy not to comment in detail about current or planned levels of air platform protection. We constantly monitor a range of factors including the threat, technology available and industrial capacity to ensure that our aircraft on operations are equipped with appropriate protection systems.

International Security Assistance Force

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much financial support each NATO member supplied to the International Security Assistance Force in each year since 2001. [131106]

Des Browne: NATO policy is that the costs of deploying forces as part of a NATO-led operation, including the International Security Assistance Force in Afghanistan, are met nationally. The UK does not have the details of what costs were met by the 26 NATO and 11 non-NATO nations that have deployed troops with ISAF since 2001.

A relatively small proportion of operational costs are met from the NATO common fund, to which each NATO member contributes a percentage as follows:

	Percentage
Belgium	2.88
Bulgaria	0.34
Canada	4.50
Czech Republic	0.88
Denmark	2.01
Estonia	0.10
France	12.86
Germany	17.31
Greece	1.05
Hungary	0.65
Iceland	0.047
Italy	7.66
Latvia	0.13
Lithuania	0.20
Luxembourg	0.15
Netherlands	3.44
Norway	1.72
Poland	2.44
Portugal	0.55
Romania	1.09
Slovakia	0.44
Slovenia	0.25
Spain	3.90
Turkey	1.50
United Kingdom	12.13
United States	22.54

Iraq: Peace Keeping Operations

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 2 February 2007, Official Report, column 963W, on urgent operational requirements, how many urgent statements of user requirement were (a) raised, (b) endorsed, (c) not endorsed and (d) progressed as an urgent operational requirement in (i) Iraq and (ii) Afghanistan in each of the last four years; what records are kept of urgent statements of user requirement, and by whom; how many urgent statements of user requirement were (A) proposed and (B) raised and subsequently withdrawn in theatre of operations in each of the last four years; and whether withdrawn statements are recorded. [125152]

Mr. Ingram: It is not possible to give a comprehensive number of the total urgent statements of user requirement (USURs) raised or rejected as this is not recorded centrally. Suggestions are regularly put forward by troops on the ground and progressed up the chain of command, some of which will be progressed as USURs, but many can be met with equipment already available so there is no requirement to progress further. Those which do not progress beyond initial discussions and staffing are not routinely recorded.

It is rare that a USUR be rejected once it leaves theatre, as the level of staffing will normally have ironed out any issues before it is forwarded. There are occasions when staff at the Permanent Joint Headquarters (PJHQ) will return a USUR for further work prior to its approval, but this does not amount to a rejection, as in most cases it will subsequently be accepted.

Information on the number of USURs endorsed by the chain of command for Afghanistan is only held centrally from 2005-06. Information for both theatres for 2006-07 includes USURs endorsed up to 5 March 2007. The following table gives figures for the number of USURs endorsed by PJHQ, the last stage of approval in the chain of command prior to them being issued an urgent operational requirement (UOR) number and becoming a UOR. The figures therefore equate to the number progressed as UORs.

Financial year	Number of USURs endorsed by the chain of command for Iraq to nearest 10	Number of USURs endorsed by the chain of command for Afghanistan to nearest 10
2004-05	80	—
2005-06	80	90
2006-07 to 2005 (March)	150	220

Requests by lower echelon commanders are staffed through the in-theatre chain of command, with both the unit and the brigade in theatre keeping relevant records.

In the land environment, if the requirement is for a new item of equipment or for more equipment, where insufficient stocks are held on the inventory for the current operations, the request is forwarded to the Divisional Equipment Capability (EC) Cell for further staffing. The Divisional EC Cell constructs an USUR in consultation with the originator to ensure that the exact requirement is captured and submits it to the Permanent Joint Headquarters (PJHQ). Records of the USURs are held in the EC Cells in the appropriate theatre.

Royal Navy and Royal Air Force requirements are staffed up the appropriate chain of command, with USURs then submitted to PJHQ in a similar way. If PJHQ endorses the requirement, the USUR is passed to MOD Centre for action. Records of endorsed USURs are held in PJHQ and MOD Centre.

As stated above it is not possible to give a figure for numbers of USURs proposed, or raised and subsequently withdrawn.

Mr. Salmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what complaints he has received from (a) serving soldiers in Iraq and Afghanistan and (b) their families; [128375]

(2) how many complaints he has received from (a) serving soldiers in Iraq and Afghanistan and (b) their families on (i) access to food, (ii) army issue footwear, (iii) supply of appropriate clothing and (iv) longer separated service allowance payments; and what discussions he has had with commanding officers in Iraq and Afghanistan on those issues. [128376]

Derek Twigg [holding answers 21 March 2007]: Specific information relating to the number of complaints raised on availability of food, army issue of footwear, supply of appropriate equipment and longer separated service allowance payment, through the means available to personnel or their families is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

If, however, the user of a particular piece of clothing formally raises an issue because they believe that it has a defect then a formal defect report will be logged. Since the start of operations, there have been four defect reports for boots and one for a waistcoat for Operation Telic in Iraq. In addition, there have been three defect reports for body armour covers and one for a sleeping bag for Operation Herrick in Afghanistan. All defect reports were resolved.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many servicemen injured whilst serving in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan who contracted MRSA whilst receiving treatment for their injuries in UK civilian hospitals have subsequently had limbs amputated as a result of the infection; and if he will make a statement. [129023]

(2) how many servicemen injured in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan have contracted (i) a viral infection and (ii) MRSA whilst receiving treatment for their injuries in UK (A) civilian and (B) military hospitals; and if he will make a statement. [129030]

(3) how many servicemen injured serving in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan who contracted viral infections whilst receiving treatment for their injuries in UK civilian hospitals have subsequently had limbs amputated as a result of the infection; and if he will make a statement. [129637]

Derek Twigg: If an injury sustained in theatre warrants the immediate removal of a limb, the operation will be conducted under field conditions. Service personnel injured while on operation in Iraq or Afghanistan who require further medical treatment are usually aero-medically evacuated to Selly Oak hospital in Birmingham. Once evacuated to the UK, the patient will undergo detailed assessment by the hospital clinical team and further medical treatment, if required, will be carried out. We are aware of no cases of service personnel contracting an infection while in theatre, in transit, or as a military patient being treated in Birmingham that has subsequently led to a limb amputation.

University Hospital Birmingham (UHB) has robust procedures in place to minimise the risk of infection and counter its effects in both its civilian and military patients. UHB does collect overall infection rates, and in total for all patients, it has had 93 MRSA bacteraemia reports across the Queen Elizabeth and Selly Oak hospital sites from April 2006 to the end of February 2007. This equates to 0.09 per cent. of the around 100,000 (mostly civilian) in-patients and day cases treated in this time period and only 0.02 per cent. of the total 500,000 of all patients treated in this period. UHB's MRSA bacteraemia reports have reduced by 32 per cent. in the last two years.

Neither the UHB nor the Ministry of Defence holds a separate database or a record of military patients who have reported MRSA or other viral infections. Therefore, the precise number of military patients diagnosed with MRSA or viral infections in NHS hospitals is not available centrally. This information could be obtained only by searching through individual medical records with that person's permission, and this could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the extent of militia infiltration of the Iraqi police service; what assessment he has made of the risk this poses to UK troops on joint patrols; and if he will make a statement. [130226]

Mr. Ingram: The majority of Iraqi police are doing a very difficult job effectively and their capacity to maintain public order, investigate crimes and arrest suspects continues to grow. We and the Iraqis accept, however, that corruption and criminality in the police force remain a problem. Work continues with the Iraqi authorities to remove corrupt and inefficient officers and to ensure that such issues are addressed in the training that we provide, particularly on leadership. Ultimately, reform of policing must be Iraqi-led.

Coalition forces continually assess the risks to personnel, including when operating with the Iraqi police service.

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what was involved in the practice of conditioning of Iraqi prisoners; and if he will make a statement; [130788]

(2) who authorised the practice of conditioning of Iraqi prisoners; when Ministers first became aware of the practice; and what action was taken in response. [130789]

Mr. Ingram: It would be inappropriate to comment on this matter while the court-martial in Bulford is ongoing.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which units will be operating outside harmony guidelines as a result of the deployment to Iraq of Telic 10; and what the average tour gap number is for each unit. [131089]

Mr. Ingram: Harmony guidelines allow Army units 24 months between six-monthly operational tours. Details of those Army units that will be operating outside these guidelines, when deploying on TELIC 10, are as follows:

Unit	Tour interval
2 Royal Welsh	19 Months
1 Royal Horse Artillery	20 Months
Kings Royal Hussars	19 Months

Royal Air Force units operate differently to those of the Army. The RAF reports against harmony guidelines for formed unit tour intervals and against individual separated service guidelines for personnel. For RAF formed units the harmony guidelines state there should be 16 months between each four-month operational tour. RAF personnel rotate through the unit rather than remain with it throughout, therefore unit and personnel tour intervals are not necessarily the same. The following table illustrates the RAF formed units that will be operating outside harmony guidelines when deploying on TELIC 10:

Unit	Tour Interval
4 RAF Force Protection Wing HQ	12 months
1 Sqn RAF Field Regt	12 months
2 RAF Force Protection Wing HQ	12 months
34 Sqn RAF Field Regt	12 months

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what factors have caused the changes in the costs of operations in Iraq between 2006-07 and 2005-06. [131095]

Mr. Ingram: The net additional cost of operations in Iraq in 2005-06 was £957.6 million, compared to a projected total cost of £1,002 million for 2006-07 set out in the Spring Supplementary Estimate published on 20 February 2007, an increase of £44.4 million. This is mainly due to higher capital expenditure on urgent operational requirements and the introduction of the operational allowance for personnel serving in Iraq during 2006-07.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) whether his Department plans to include in its estimates memorandum its planning assumptions for the cost of operations in Iraq and Afghanistan; [131096]

(2) whether the Government plan to include the provisions for all operations in the main estimates. [131151]

Mr. Ingram: Provision for the costs of operations is not included in the main estimate 2007-08. Ministers have made clear to Parliament that the costs of operations are difficult to forecast in fast moving operational circumstances. The Department needs to ensure that the figures presented to Parliament are taut and realistic, and for this reason, the first request for resources for conflict prevention is made at supplementary estimates.

The Department does not intend including any planning assumptions for the cost of operations in the estimates memorandum.

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many members of the Territorial Army (a) received commendations and (b) were decorated for their bravery in action in (i) Iraq and (ii) Afghanistan in each of the last five years. [131631]

Derek Twigg: Details of the number of Territorial Army personnel receiving commendations and decorations for bravery (Gallantry Awards) in Iraq and Afghanistan in each of the last five years are shown as follows:

Iraq: Reconstruction

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the provincial reconstruction teams in Iraq. [130542]

Mr. Hoon: I have been asked to reply.

Provincial Reconstruction Teams (PRTs) in Iraq have made significant progress since they were established in 2006. By working with Provincial Governments to develop their ability to deliver essential services to Iraqi citizens, PRTs have helped extend the reach of the Iraqi Government in key provinces.

In partnership with the Iraqi Provincial Councils, the PRTs have co-ordinated reconstruction programmes in every province, to help ensure that a range of civilian and military and organisations are working to one Provincial Development Strategy.

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the remit is of the provincial reconstruction teams in Iraq. [130543]

Mr. Hoon: I have been asked to reply.

The remit of provincial reconstruction teams in Iraq is to co-ordinate international support for provincial development including civil development and reconstruction assistance; development of the capacity of the Provincial Government; and to help develop the rule of law and infrastructure.

Iraq: Territorial Waters

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Royal Navy and marine patrol boats are operating in Iraqi waters. [130866]

Mr. Ingram: As at 28 March 2007 there was one Royal Navy vessel and no UK marine patrol boats operating in Iraqi waters.

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what helicopter support is available to support British Marines operating in Iraqi waters as part of operations conducted in pursuance of UN Security Council Resolution 1723. [130868]

Mr. Ingram: It is not possible to provide the number of helicopters available to support British Marines operating in Iraqi waters as to do so would, or would be likely to, prejudice the capability, effectiveness and security of our armed forces. There are sufficient numbers of helicopters in theatre, all of which may be deployed in their specific role in support of marine operations if necessary. British forces are also able to call on the support of coalition assets as part of Multi-National Force Iraq if required.

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which other NATO countries are contributing to the patrolling of Iraqi waters in addition to British forces; and who has overall command. [130869]

Des Browne: The patrolling of Iraqi territorial waters is not a NATO task. Under UNSCR 1723, the United States, as lead nation of the Multi-National Force—Iraq, has responsibility for the patrolling of Iraqi territorial waters. The UK, the only other member of NATO, and Australia provide support to this task.

Royal Navy: GPS

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what global positioning system and satellite tracking systems are on board Royal Navy rigid inflatable patrol boats. [130867]

Mr. Ingram: Royal Navy rigid inflatable patrol boats carried by Type 22 and Type 23 frigates are fitted with a command, control and navigation system known as XERES.

Lynx Helicopter

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what versions of the Lynx helicopter are operated in Iraq; what the acquisition cost was of each aircraft; and what the average total operating cost is per hour of the Lynx helicopters deployed in Iraq. [130026]

Mr. Ingram: A number of Lynx Mk 7 aircraft are currently operated in Iraq.

These aircraft were initially procured between 1979 and 1981 and have subsequently been extensively modified and enhanced. The Net Book Value on 12 December 2006 for each of these aircraft was about £4.7 million.

The total operating cost per hour for Lynx Mk 7 is approximately £23,000. This cost includes both fixed and marginal costs incurred in using the aircraft, comprising servicing costs, fuel costs, crew capitation and training costs, support costs and charges for capital and depreciation.

Additional costs are incurred as a result of the operational use and particular climatic conditions experienced in theatre. These costs cover additional wear and tear, additional spares and additional equipment and are paid for by the Conflict Prevention Fund. A total of £11 million has been claimed against the Conflict Prevention Fund in financial year 2006-07 for additional operating and capital costs for Lynx Mk 7s operating in Iraq.

Military Aircraft: Helicopters

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence from what budget funding for the cross-service use of helicopters is taken; and if he will make a statement. [130794]

Mr. Ingram: Joint Helicopter Command (JHC) was formed in 1999 with the specific purpose of providing integrated Battlefield Helicopter and Air Assault capability from all three Services. Funding for JHC is provided from the Defence budget, through Land Command.

Other helicopters operated by the Royal Navy and the Royal Air Force may also be called upon for cross-service support. Use by a single service remains the resource responsibility of that service alone.

The net additional cost of military operations are met from the Treasury Reserve.

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which helicopters are being used by each of the services in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan; on what operations they have been deployed; and if he will make a statement. [130795]

Mr. Ingram: All helicopter assets are provided by the Joint Helicopter Command, which is a tri-service organisation. The following table shows the helicopter types deployed to Iraq and Afghanistan.

Operational theatre	Type of helicopter	Operated by
Iraq	Merlin Mk 3	Royal Air Force
	Sea King Mk 4	Royal Navy
	Lynx	Army Air Corps and Royal Marines
	Puma	Royal Air Force
Afghanistan	CH47	Royal Air Force
	AH64	Army Air Corps
	Lynx	Army Air Corps

These are used for a range of operational tasks in support of UK operations but for reasons of operational security I will not go into detail on the operations that each helicopter undertakes.

MOD Police

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the terms of reference are for the review of the Ministry of Defence Police; when the review is expected to be completed; and if he will make a statement. [102316]

Derek Twigg: I apologise for the delay in answering this question.

A copy of the terms of reference for a review by the Defence Management Consultancy Service (DMCS), of the optimal degree of integration of the Ministry of Defence Police and Ministry of Defence Guard Service, has been placed in the Library of the House.

The Ministry of Defence and Guarding Agency has recently received a draft report from the DMCS which makes recommendations on the way ahead. This is currently being checked for factual accuracy and a copy of the final report will be placed in the Library shortly.

Navy: Deployment

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 26 March 2007, Official Report, column 1359W, on Navy: deployment, how much (a) revenue and (b) capital spending was made on the Royal Yacht in each of the last five years; and what spending is forecast for future years. [131325]

Mr. Ingram: None. The former Royal Yacht was sold to the Former Royal Yacht Britannia Trust in April 1998. The trust has complete control and financial responsibility for display and upkeep.

Navy: Recruitment

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many recruits the Royal Navy seeks to attract to the (a) full-time regular service and (b) reserve service in (i) officer and (ii) non-officer capacity. [129732]

Derek Twigg: Recruiting targets vary from year to year, depending on the requirement. For recruiting year 2007-08 the Royal Navy is seeking to attract:

	Number of recruits
Full-time Regular Service	[1]4,077
RN Officer	373
RM Officer	58
Rating	2,381
RM Other Ranks	1,265
Reserve Service	1,218
RNR Officers	178
RMR Officer	10
RNR Ratings	530
RMR Other Ranks (Recruits)	500

[1] Including Royal Marines

Navy: Warships

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) whether there are plans to enlarge the capability of the Royal Navy's fleet of assault ships; and if he will make a statement on the future of the fleet; [129736]

(2) whether there are plans to enlarge the capability of the Royal Navy's fleet of Type 22 Frigates; and if he will make a statement on the future of the fleet; [129737]

(3) whether there are plans to enlarge the capability of the Royal Navy's fleet of Type 42 Destroyers; and if he will make a statement on the future of the fleet; [129741]

(4) whether there are plans to enlarge the capability of the UK's aircraft carrier fleet; and if he will make a statement on the future of the UK fleet. [129742]

Mr. Ingram: We are improving the capability of the fleet with the largest warship building programme this country has seen for many years. We have introduced new amphibious assault and support ships that are vastly more capable than the ships they replaced. We are bringing into service the Type 45 Destroyers, which are the most capable air-defence destroyers ever built for the Royal Navy. We plan to replace the present fleet of aircraft carriers with the future aircraft carriers, which will be the largest warships ever to see service with the Royal Navy. The Type 22 Frigates have many years of service ahead of them, and are planned to be replaced in due course by the new and more capable Future Surface Combatant.

RAF Feltwell

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Royal Air Force personnel are based at RAF Feltwell. [131061]

Derek Twigg: There are no RAF personnel based at RAF Feltwell, which is a base made available to the United States Visiting Force.

RAF Menwith Hill

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) when he was informed that the US planned to use its Space Based Infra Red System at Menwith Hill to provide critical data for national missile defence systems; and if he will make a statement; [130524]

(2) when he was first informed that data from Menwith Hill for the US Space Based Infra Red System was being used in relation to active defence systems. [130537]

Des Browne: The UK has received no request from the US to use RAF Menwith Hill for missile defence-related activities. Any such use would first require UK approval.

Royal Ordnance Factories: Chorley

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what records are held on the number of employees (a) killed and (b) injured while working at the Royal Ordnance Factory in Chorley since the beginning of production at the site. [130803]

Mr. Ingram: None. When BAE Systems purchased the Chorley site in 1987, all records were handed over to the company. The MOD does not keep a register of accidents that occur in private organisations.

Service Personnel

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 8 January 2007, Official Report, column 109W, on service personnel, what the five major issues on the Service Families Task Force Tri-Service Families Action Plan are. [131088]

Derek Twigg: Child care; communication; education (admissions, notice and special educational needs); health (access to NHS dentists, waiting lists); housing (upgrading programme, affordability, availability, customer care) and support for families in Greater London. The latter issue was added to the Families Action Plan at the quarterly meeting of the Families Working Group on 9 January 2007.

Territorial Army: Desertion

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many absent without leave cases there were in the Territorial Army in each year since 1997. [130590]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 29 March 2007]: Members of the Territorial Army can only be declared as absent without leave from duty when they are mobilised or Full Time Reserve Service. In these circumstances, the regulations for UK Regular Service apply. There have been six members of the Territorial Army who have been charged with 10 counts of being absent without leave since 1997.

Type 22 Frigates

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether his Department has made a feasibility study of (a) replacing and (b) updating the intelligence gathering capabilities provided by the four Batch 3 Type 22 frigates. [128583]

Mr. Ingram: We continue to consider how communication electronic support measures on Royal Navy warships should be sustained under project SHAMAN. Options under consideration in the Assessment Phase include upgrade to, as well as replacement of, existing equipment.

Warships: Gulf

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what date the most recent decision was taken to deploy additional Royal Navy vessels to the Gulf. [126229]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 12 March 2007]: The Royal Navy is mandated to provide two frigates or destroyers and one auxiliary oil tanker to the Gulf and wider region.

This requirement is kept under regular review, and force levels are adjusted as required. Additional RN units have been deployed to the Gulf and the wider region at various stages over the last six months, as a result of these reviews. Currently these additional units consist of two mine countermeasure vessels, one landing ship logistics, one auxiliary fleet support (with two airborne surveillance and area control Sea Kings embarked) and three Merlin Helicopters based at Seeb, Oman.

Additionally, the Royal Navy training team have been deployed since 2003, tasked with training Iraqi forces until further notice.

World War II: Bombs

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the number of unexploded devices from World War II remaining in (a) Wales and (b) Pembrokeshire; and what assessment he has made of the risks posed to members of the public. [127443]

Derek Twigg: Numerous reports of unexploded bombs (UXB) were investigated during and shortly after WWII; in most cases the UXB were located and cleared by military bomb disposal teams. There were, however, instances where a device could not be found. In these instances, it was concluded the UXB had either travelled underground to a depth and position where it could not be reached, it had broken up on impact, leaving only fragments, or the report was mistaken and no UXB existed. It was decided that such UXB sites did not represent an immediate danger to the public, and they were added to the Abandoned Bomb Register. These sites would only be further investigated if new evidence arose or a device was unearthed. There are 26 possible UXB sites on the Abandoned Bomb Register for Wales; none of these is in Pembrokeshire.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Alternative Energy

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry on what date in January 2007 the payments ceiling for grant allocations for domestic renewable energy installations for that month was reached. [121045]

Margaret Hodge: The introduction of monthly allocations to the household stream has provided us with the opportunity to manage the flow of funds with the aim of providing grants for householders through to June 2008, by which time some of our wider measures to promote microgeneration should be taking hold.

Since the cap was introduced in December 2006, householders have been able to apply for a share of the £0.5 million pot that has been made available on a monthly basis. In January 2007, these funds were fully committed to successful household applicants on 12 January 2007.

It is important to note that in the 2007 Budget, it was announced that a further £6 million will be made available to the household stream, taking the total available for householders to more than £18 million.

Before deciding how to make best use of the extra funding, the household stream is to be suspended for the monthly allocation in April so that it can be re-shaped.

Animal Experiments: Cosmetics

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will take steps to extend the ban on the use of animal experimentation for the development of cosmetics to include the marketing of products produced abroad after animal experimentation. [130710]

Mr. McCartney: The Cosmetic Products (Safety) Regulations 2004 (SI 2004/2152) implement the 7th amendment to the EU Council directive on the safety of cosmetic products.

Among other things the 7th amendment introduces a ban on the testing of finished cosmetic products and their ingredients by 2005.

It also introduces a two-stage marketing ban. Until 2009 the ban is operative only if an alternative to an animal test exists. From 2009 (with an exception until 2013 for three tests) the ban becomes fully operative irrespective of whether alternatives have been developed and irrespective of where in the world the product is manufactured.

Anti-dumping: EC Action

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many anti-dumping investigations the EU carried out in each year since 1977; and how many investigations are in progress. [122226]

Mr. McCartney: According to the European Commission, on 31 January 2007, there were 82 anti-dumping investigations in progress comprising review investigations and new investigations. Details of all cases investigated by the European Commission each year since 1996 are available in annual reports made to the European Parliament. These may be accessed through the following link to the European Commission's website:

http://ec.europa.eu/trade/issues/respectrules/anti_dumping/legis/index_en.htm

In addition a list, updated weekly, of all cases investigated or under investigation since 1996 is available through the following web link:

http://ec.europa.eu/trade/issues/respectrules/anti_dumping/stats.htm

According to the Commission, details of all cases investigated prior to 1996 can be found in a book entitled "Anti-Dumping and Other Trade Protection Laws of the EC" (fourth edition) published by Brussels law firm Van Bael and Bellis.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what anti-dumping duties were applied by the EU in each year since 1977; to which countries they were applied; what duties are being applied; and to which countries they are being applied. [122227]

Mr. McCartney: Details of all cases investigated by the European Commission each year since 1996, including the rates of anti-dumping duty imposed and the countries to which the duty applies, are available in annual reports made to the European Parliament. These may be accessed through the following link to the European Commission's website:

http://ec.europa.eu/trade/issues/respectrules/anti_dumping/legis/index_en.htm

In addition a list, updated weekly, of all cases investigated or under investigation since 1996 is available through the following web link:

http://ec.europa.eu/trade/issues/respectrules/anti_dumping/stats.htm

According to the Commission, details of all cases investigated prior to 1996 can be found in a book entitled "Anti-Dumping and Other Trade Protection Laws of the EC" (fourth edition) published by Brussels law firm Van Bael and Bellis.

Competition Commission

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether the Government are legally bound to enact a recommendation made by the Competition Commission. [128863]

Mr. McCartney [holding answer 20 March 2007]: For most of the cases it considers, the Competition Commission does not need to make recommendations to the Government. It will simply use its statutory powers to make decisions and enforce necessary remedies.

It is possible that in the course of its work, the Competition Commission may make recommendations to Government where cases raise issues affecting Government policy or the law. There is no statutory provision requiring the Government to implement any such recommendations, though the Government may be expected to give due regard to such recommendations.

In cases where the Secretary of State uses his powers under the Enterprise Act 2002 to intervene on grounds of public interest and this results in a case being referred to the Competition Commission, the Enterprise Act provides that the Secretary of State must accept the Competition Commission's decisions on the competition issues raised by the case. In addition, in deciding whether or not to make an adverse public interest finding, he will have regard to the Competition Commission's conclusions on the public interest issues.

Control of Misleading Advertisements Regulations

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many successful prosecutions there were of companies in breach of the Control of Misleading Advertisements Regulations 1988 in each of the last five years; and in each case what breach took place. [130627]

Mr. McCartney: Information regarding prosecutions and breaches of the Control of Misleading Advertisements Regulations 1988 can be found on the Consumer Regulations website, provided by the Office of Fair Trading, at www.crw.gov.uk This records five cases since 2003, all of which were dealt with through undertakings by the companies and relevant individuals rather than by prosecutions.

Departments: Pressure Groups

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what meetings took place between Ministers in his Department and outside interest groups between 1 January and 31 March; and what the date was of each such meeting. [131038]

Mr. Darling: Ministers meet many outside interest groups and attend many functions relating to Government business, and as part of the process of policy development. To provide the detailed information requested would incur disproportionate cost.

Departments: Redundancy

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many people in his Department participated in (a) involuntary and (b) voluntary staff exit schemes in each year since 1997-98; and if he will make a statement. [131437]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The number of employees who have left the Department under exit schemes is shown in the following table:

2000-01	0	5
2003-04	12	4
2004-05	509	0
2005-06	114	23

Figures prior to 1998-99 are not available.

The Department will always try to deal with staff surpluses by means other than redundancy. If redundancies become unavoidable, the Department will endeavour to reduce staff by voluntary rather than involuntary means wherever possible. The Department is currently restructuring and is administering a voluntary exit scheme to deal with emerging surpluses. The full extent of voluntary and involuntary exits is not yet available.

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many people in his Department who participated in (a) involuntary and (b) voluntary staff exit schemes in each year since 1997-98 were paid between (i) £0 to £25,000, (ii) £25,001 to £50,000, (iii) £50,001 to £75,000, (iv) £75,001 to £100,000 and (v) over £100,000; and if he will make a statement. [131559]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The numbers of staff who received payments in the requested bands were as follows:

	0-25,000	25,001-50,000	50,001-75,000	75,001-100,000	£ 100,000+
Voluntary
2004-05	228	192	75	7	7
2005-06	45	28	21	9	11
2006-07	40	40	44	23	28
Involuntary
2005-06	8	4	7	1	3

Payments include pension lump sums as well as compensation awards. The information for earlier years could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

The Department will always try to deal with staff surpluses by means other than redundancy. If redundancies become unavoidable, the Department will endeavour to reduce staff by voluntary rather than involuntary means wherever possible. The Department is currently restructuring and is administering a voluntary exit scheme to deal with emerging surpluses. The full extent of voluntary and involuntary exit costs is not yet available.

Departments: Reorganisation

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans he has to reorganise the structure of his Department. [128990]

Jim Fitzpatrick: We have no current plans to reorganise the structure of the Department. Naturally, we keep our internal organisation and resources under regular review, to ensure that they match our priorities and objectives.

Digital Switchover

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the likely impact of the digital switchover on energy use. [129486]

Margaret Hodge: Digital switchover is expected to have an impact on both transmitter power usage and consumer power usage.

Digital transmission is more efficient than analogue in terms of power usage. Replacing the analogue terrestrial transmission network with a nationwide digital terrestrial television network will lead to a significant net reduction in energy usage by the transmission networks, estimated to be 186 GWh per year.

Consumer power usage is expected to rise as a result of switchover, primarily because of the rapid increase in the take-up of set-top boxes, particularly for second sets, which would not otherwise be converted until replaced. The predicted level of the increase is dependent on a number of assumptions about the usage and design of equipment in the market at the time of switchover. DCMS, DTI and Defra economists have estimated that the increase in consumer energy use of completing digital switchover in 2012 is likely to be between 966GWh and 2,816GWh per annum above that predicted for market take-up in the absence of a set switchover timetable. The central estimate for the total impact of switchover is a net increase of 1,705GWh per year. This is equivalent to a 0.34 per cent. increase in domestic electricity consumption. This would be reduced if industry can be encouraged to make more energy-efficient products. Work on this is being taken forward as part of the DTI usability action plan.

Further details are contained in the "Regulatory and Environmental Impact Assessment: The timing of digital switchover", published on 16 September 2005. This was placed in the Library of the House of Commons at the time of publication, and is also available at http://www.digitaltelevision.gov.uk/consultations/con_ria_timingods.html.

EC Trade

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the trend has been in the UK's trade balance with the rest of the EU in the last five years. [131011]

Mr. McCartney: The latest estimates of the balance of trade in goods and services with the EU25, including initial figures for 2006, are shown (at current prices) in the following table:

2002	-24.3
2003	-28.3
2004	-30.5
2005	-37.4
2006	-37.2

Electricity: Meters

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when he plans the Government's trials of smart meters to commence. [130623]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 29 March 2007]: The trials will commence in the near future, once contract negotiations with participating companies are completed.

Employment: Discrimination

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many recent representations he has received about age discrimination in the insurance industry. [130692]

Jim Fitzpatrick: We have received representations from the Employers Forum on Age, the Association of British Insurers and Group Risk Development about insured benefits on three occasions, in September and November 2006 and in February 2007.

Energy: Bills

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the average domestic (a) gas and (b) electricity bill in England was in each year from 1996-97 to 2006-07; and what estimate his Department has made for 2007-08. [130546]

Malcolm Wicks: The average domestic electricity[1] and gas bills for England and Wales are shown as follows and are published in Quarterly Energy Prices. The data presented are for standard credit customers in cash terms, it has not been adjusted for inflation.

[1] The bills for standard electricity do not include customers that are on economy 7 tariffs.

2003	245	320
2004	251	333
2005	281	386
2006	335	474

Domestic gas and electricity price forecasts are not published by DTI. Provisional 2007 bills will be published on 27 September 2007.

Insolvency: Directors

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the annual cost was of action by the Insolvency Service to investigate and pursue cases of director disqualification under the Insolvency Acts in each of the last three years. [131138]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Since 1 April 2003, the Insolvency Service's activities in the investigation and enforcement area have been funded by a DTI programme budget and from the recovery of costs awarded against disqualified directors as follows:

2003-04	29,279
2004-05	29,314
2005-06	33,741

These figures can be found in the Insolvency Service's published accounts that are laid in Parliament annually in July. The 2006-07 figure is not yet available but will be published in July 2007.

The cost of investigation and enforcement includes not only the cost of directors disqualification but also the reporting by official receivers of possible criminal offences and from 1 April 2004, work on Bankruptcy Restrictions Orders and Undertakings.

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the decision by the Insolvency Service not to prosecute certain cases of potential director disqualification due to lack of resources; and if he will make a statement. [131140]

Jim Fitzpatrick: In order to ensure the best use of available resources, the most serious potential disqualification cases are prioritised using a rigorous categorisation system. A total of 1,200 directors were disqualified in the year to 31 March 2007 compared to 1,173 disqualified in the year to 31 March 2006.

IT: Labour Market

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many jobs in the IT industry have moved from the UK to other countries in the last 10 years; and what assessment he has made of the impact on the number of IT jobs in the UK in the future. [129674]

Margaret Hodge: The Department does not hold statistics on how many jobs in the IT sector have moved from the UK to other countries in the last 10 years.

A report commissioned by the DTI from Ovum and published in June last year (available on the DTI website at http://www.dti.gov.uk/files/file32496.pdf) predicted that the number of people employed by the software and IT services industry in the UK could fall by 6 per cent. (from 249,000 to 233,500) in the three years to the end of 2008 as a possible consequence of globalisation.

However, in recent years the ICT sector has been one of the fastest growing UK employers and its prospects continue to look good. The UK is a leading software producer in Western Europe and, with a long-established reputation for excellence, attracts major multinationals from across the ICT and software sectors worldwide. The UK ICT sector has unique strengths including in the development of innovative software and its world-class capability in the management of complex programmes and in problem-solving and creative thinking.

According to statistics published by the Office for National Statistics, gross value added (at current prices) of the UK computer and related services sector increased from £7.7 billion to £35.6 billion between 1995 and 2005. It also continues to be an export success story, with exports of computer services increasing from £0.7 billion to £4.6 billion between 1995 and 2005, and the UK trade surplus in computer services rising from £0.4 billion to £2.9 billion over the same period (UK Balance of Payment, 2006 Edition).

However, as markets become increasingly integrated with more international competition (and related opportunities), UK companies need to operate in a way that maximises their competitive advantage. For some, this has meant re-locating some operations to other countries, but the UK is also a major beneficiary of offshoring by overseas companies—we are the second largest global recipient of foreign direct investment.

This increasing movement of labour is the reality of a globalised economy and the Government's role in it is to create the conditions to ensure that the UK remains a competitive place to do business. This includes providing an environment which enables business to move up the value chain where it can.

Low Carbon Buildings Programme

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry at what point in February 2007 the allocations ceiling for that month was reached for household installations under the Low Carbon Buildings Programme. [121046]

Margaret Hodge: The introduction of monthly allocations to the household stream has provided us with the opportunity to manage the flow of funds with the aim of providing grants for householders through to June 2008, by which time some of our wider measures to promote microgeneration should be taking hold.

Since the cap was introduced in December 2006, householders have been able to apply for a share of the £0.5 million pot that has been made available on a monthly basis. In February 2007, these funds were fully committed to successful household applicants on 1 February 2007.

It is important to note that in the 2007 Budget, it was announced that a further £6 million will be made available to the household stream, taking the total available for householders to more than £18 million.

Before deciding how to make best use of the extra funding, the household stream is to be suspended for the monthly allocation in April so that it can be re-shaped.

Miss Kirkbride: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the impact of monthly grant capping under the Low Carbon Buildings Programme on household demand for micro renewables. [127040]

Malcolm Wicks: The introduction of monthly allocations to the household stream has provided us with the opportunity to manage the flow of funds with the aim of providing grants for householders through to June 2008, by which time some of our wider measures to promote microgeneration should be taking hold.

Mr. Dunne: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many and what value of household grants were applied for under the Low Carbon Buildings Programme in each month from May 2006 to February 2007. [128722]

Malcolm Wicks: The information is as follows.

	Number of applicants	Indicative grants (£)
May 2006	594	491,185.29
June 2006	262	299,377.04

January 2007	381	624,682.77
February 2007	326	623,981.72

Mr. Dunne: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much has been paid through the Low Carbon Buildings Programme in each month (a) for domestic household conversions, (b) for schools and other public sector buildings and (c) for commercial private sector buildings. [128822]

Malcolm Wicks: The information is in the following table.

Month	Households	Public sector	Private sector
May 2006	—	—	—
July 2006	1,600	—	—
July 2006	4,000	—	—

January 2007	390,058.92	—	—
February 2007	551,966.42	18,921.00	—

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many households received Low Carbon Buildings Programme grants under the new capping system in (a) January 2007, (b) February 2007 and (c) March 2007; and if he will take steps to remove the monthly cap from April 2007. [129500]

Malcolm Wicks: The purpose of the cap was to ensure the resources did not run out before June 2008. The following table shows the number of households to receive Low Carbon Buildings Programme grants by month this year.

	Number of households
January 2007	264
February 2007	188
March 2007	189

In the Budget 2007, it was announced that a further £6 million will be made available to the household stream of the Low Carbon Buildings Programme, taking the total available for householders to more than £18 million.

Before deciding how to make best use of the extra funding, the household stream is to be suspended for the monthly allocation in April so that the scheme can be re-shaped.

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many households received grants under the Low Carbon Buildings Programme in each month since its launch; and how many and what value of such grants were given to (a) solar photovoltaics, (b) small hydro, (c) wind turbines, (d) solar thermal hot water, (e) ground/water/air source heat pumps, (f) bio-energy, (g) renewable CHP, (h) micro CHP and (i) fuel cells. [130054]

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much funding will be allocated to the Low Carbon Buildings Programme domestic grants in (a) April and (b) May 2007; and if he will make a statement. [130342]

Malcolm Wicks: In the Budget 2007, the Chancellor announced that a further £6 million will be made available to the household stream of the Low Carbon Buildings Programme through to June 2008, taking the total available for householders to more than £18 million.

We are discussing in detail the restructuring of the scheme with industry to ensure we can make the best use of the additional funds. Taking into account the work required to re-shape the scheme, we have taken the necessary step to suspend the scheme for the monthly allocation in April, with a view to restarting the household stream of the programme in May 2007.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how people will be able to apply for the Low Carbon Buildings Programme following the scheme's restructuring. [130514]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 29 March 2007]: In the Budget, it was announced that a further £6 million will be made available to the household stream of the Low Carbon Buildings Programme, taking the total available for householders to more than £18 million.

Before deciding how to make best use of the extra funding, the household stream will be suspended for the monthly allocation in April so that it can be re-shaped.

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry for what reason the Low Carbon Buildings Programme grants regime has been suspended; and if he will make a statement. [130625]

Malcolm Wicks: In the Budget 2007, the Chancellor announced that a further £6 million will be made available to the household stream of the Low Carbon Buildings Programme through to June 2008, taking the total available for householders to more than £18 million.

We are discussing in detail the restructuring of the scheme with industry to ensure we can make the best use of the additional funds. Taking into account the work required to re-shape the scheme, we have taken the necessary step to suspend the scheme for the monthly allocation in April, with a view to restarting the household stream of the programme in May 2007.

Mr. Valzey: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assistance will be made available for households installing small scale renewable technologies during the restructuring of the Low Carbon Buildings Programme. [130408]

Malcolm Wicks: In the Budget 2007, the Chancellor announced that a further £6 million will be made available to the household stream of the Low Carbon Buildings Programme through to June 2008, taking the total available for householders to more than £18 million.

We are discussing in detail the restructuring of the scheme with industry to ensure we can make the best use of the additional funds. Taking into account the work required to re-shape the scheme, we have taken the necessary step to suspend the scheme for the monthly allocation in April, with a view to restarting the household stream of the programme in May 2007.

Householders may temporarily be affected during the period of the suspension. However, it is important to note that of the £7.1 million allocated to household projects to date, £4.5 million remains in the pipeline of projects still to be completed.

Postal Services

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will allow sub-postmasters to offer Paypoint facilities with a view to increasing foot traffic. [130811]

Jim Fitzpatrick: There are no restrictions on sub-postmasters having a paypoint terminal on the retail side of their premises provided the terminal is not used for products and services offered on the Post Office side of the business.

Postal Services: Competition

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will take steps to lift restrictions on sub-postmasters offering competing services. [130810]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Government have no role in determining the terms and restrictions applying to sub-postmasters through their contract with Post Office Ltd.

Postal Services: Regulation

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps his Department has taken to ensure that the successor to Postwatch will work effectively at a regional level. [129620]

Mr. McCartney [holding answer 27 March 2007]: The Department is working very closely with Postwatch, Energywatch, and the National Consumer Council to ensure that the practical implementation of the measures in the Consumers, Estate Agents and Redress Bill meet the detailed requirements of the different sectors. Serious consideration of how best to provide for a regional dimension for the way the new National Consumer Council represents consumer views is part of that ongoing work.

Public Bodies: Reorganisation

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment his Department has made of the potential locations for the headquarters of the merged Postwatch, Energywatch and National Consumer Council. [129621]

Mr. McCartney [holding answer 27 March 2007]: The Department has benefited from constructive and detailed input from the National Consumer Council, Energywatch and Postwatch on the considerations to be borne in mind when making a decision on the location of the headquarters for the new National Consumer Council. The final decision will be taken as soon as is practicable, having regard to the range of relevant issues.

Radio Frequencies: Licensing

Mr. Havard: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what undertakings were made by the Government to bidders in the Third Generation mobile telecommunications licence auction on the refarming of 2G spectrum for 3G use. [127675]

Margaret Hodge: The Government made no undertakings to bidders in the 3G auction on the refarming of 2G spectrum for 3G use. However, set out in para 3.4.1.3 of the Information Memorandum issued at the time by N. Rothschild and Sons on behalf of the Government is an account of how the Government expected to approach the question of refarming in the light of decisions that were expected to be made in due course within the EU. This Information Memorandum is available at:

http://www.ofcom.org.uk/static/archive/spectrumauctions/3gindex.htm and a copy is available in the Library of the House.

Renewable Energy Grants

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many and what value of grants were made to domestic households in England for renewable energy in (a) 2002, (b) 2003, (c) 2004, (d) 2005 and (e) 2006; and what the projected amount is of grants to be made in 2007-08. [128786]

Malcolm Wicks: The information requested is as follows:

	Number of grants	Value of grants
2002	74	489,912.58
2003	1,428	1,752,333.20
2004	3,181	3,274,411.69
2005	2,469	3,948,803.88
2006	672	2,387,093.91

There are no figures available for 2007-08, as we do not publish forward projections.

Renewable Energy: Finance

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry at what date in (a) January and (b) February the allocation for grants in each month for renewable energy installations was exhausted; and whether he is considering changes to the scheme to avoid the adverse consequences of such exhaustions of allocations. [123837]

Malcolm Wicks: The introduction of monthly allocations to the household stream has provided us with the opportunity to manage the flow of funds with the aim of providing grants for householders through to June 2008, by which time some of our wider measures to promote microgeneration should be taking hold.

Since the cap was introduced in December 3006, householders have been able to apply for a share of the £0.5 million pot that is being made available on a monthly basis. In January 2007, these funds were fully committed to successful household applicants on 12 January 2007. In February 2007, these funds were fully committed to successful household applicants on 1 February 2007.

It is important to note that in the Budget 2007, it was announced that a further £6 million will be made available to the household stream, taking the total available for householders to more than £18 million.

Before deciding how to make best use of the extra funding, the household stream is to be suspended for the monthly allocation in April so that it can be re-shaped.

Satellites

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether he has held discussions with the East of England Development Agency on its proposal to spend £12 million on a space satellite. [130624]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 29 March 2007]: My officials in the British National Space Centre (BNSC) have worked with the East of England Development Agency (EEDA), the South East of England Development Agency (SEEDA) and the London Development Agency (LDA) to fund the UK subscription in support of the Inmarsat-led I-XL (Inmarsat eXtended L-band) bid to the European Space Agency (ESA) Alphasat Programme.

Seals: EC Action

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will make it his policy to ban the importation of (a) harp seal, (b) hooded seal and (c) other seal products into the UK; and if he will make a statement. [131101]

Mr. McCartney: I made an announcement by ministerial statement on this issue on 8 February 2007, Official Report, column 43WS.

Severn Barrage

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what consideration he has given to commissioning an appraisal of the possible benefits and environmental risks associated with the building of a Severn barrage; and if he will make a statement. [131173]

Malcolm Wicks: A major study is currently under way that will help us to better understand how to make best use of the potential tidal resource in UK waters. The study is led by the Sustainable Development Commission working together with the DTI, the Welsh Assembly Government, the South West Regional Development Agency and other key interested parties.

The study is looking at the issues arising on the tidal resource, including consideration of the potential of the Severn Estuary. A final report by the Sustainable Development Commission will consider the various aspects of a Severn barrage from a sustainable development perspective and is expected by early summer.

www.sd-commission.org.uk/pages/tidal.html

Small Businesses

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many workers are excluded from the provisions of statutory recognition procedures as a result of (a) the 21-worker threshold and (b) employment status. [129004]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The statutory recognition procedure applies to GB employers who, together with their associated employers, employ 21 or more workers. It is not possible to estimate precisely how many workers are employed in organisations which fall under this threshold. However, at the start of 2005, the estimated number of employees working in UK enterprises with 19 or fewer employees was 4,764,000. There are no estimates of the number of workers who are excluded from the statutory procedure because of their employment status. However, because the definition of "worker" used for the purpose of the statutory procedure is broad, the number is likely to be relatively low.

Solar Power: Grants

Mr. Dunne: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment his Department has made of the potential impact on demand for household solar photo voltaics (PV) of the decision to reduce the domestic solar PV grant by £1,000 per kWp from 2 April. [128723]

Malcolm Wicks: When the Low Carbon Buildings Programme was launched in April 2006, we always intended to review grant levels at the end of the first year. After discussions with industry, it was decided that the level of support for solar PV should be reduced in April 2007, from a maximum of £3,000 per kWp installed to a maximum of £2,000 per kWp installed.

This measure, among others, will help us to make funds available to householders until June 2008 when some of our wider measures to support microgeneration should be taking hold.

It is important to note that in the Budget 2007, the Chancellor announced that a further £6 million will be made available to the household stream of the programme, taking the total available to householders to more than £18 million. We are discussing in detail the restructuring of the scheme with industry to ensure we can make the best use of the additional funds, and to address the operational difficulties that have been encountered over recent months. Taking into account the work required to re-shape the scheme, we have taken the necessary step to suspend the scheme for the monthly allocation in April, with a view to restarting the household stream of the programme in May 2007.

Telecommunications: Fees and Charges

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will take steps to prevent (a) BT and (b) other telecommunication companies levying additional charges on customers who pay other than by monthly plan or direct debit. [124825]

Margaret Hodge: While this is a commercial matter, my understanding is that for a number of years, BT has applied a price differential between customers who pay their accounts by direct debit and those who pay by other means. This reflects the increased processing and debt management costs associated with payments not made by direct debit. Such differentials are common practice among communications providers and utility service providers.

From 1 May 2007, BT is changing how it presents this differential from a discount for those customers paying by direct debit, to a charge for those paying by other means. BT has combined this change with an increase of £1.50 a quarter in the charge (from £3 to £4.50).

The Light User Scheme, In Contact and BT Basic will not be affected by the increased charge. These are the special tariff schemes offered to vulnerable customers by BT as a result of the Universal Service Obligation placed on the company.

I have raised the matter with the chief executive officer of the independent regulator, the Office of Communications (Ofcom). Ofcom is considering whether any of the changes BT has recently made raise any regulatory issues and is coming back to me on this in April.

Tour Operators: Competition

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will discuss the implications of the Thomas Cook-My Travel merger for competition in the UK package holiday market with the European Commissioner Health and Consumer Protection; and if he will make a statement. [128417]

Mr. McCartney: Investigation into the effects on competition in any merger is the responsibility of the independent competition authorities. Government Ministers have no role in this process and there are no plans to hold any discussions with the European Commission in relation to this proposed merger.

I would welcome any further information from the hon. Gentleman which may be helpful to the regulators.

Tour Operators: Mergers

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will discuss the implications of the competition issues arising from the TUI-First Choice merger in the UK package holiday market with the European Commissioner for Health and Consumer Protection; and if he will make a statement. [130052]

Mr. McCartney [holding answer 28 March 2007]: Ministers have no plans to discuss this matter with representatives of the European Commission. The regulatory control of mergers is a matter for the relevant independent competition authorities with cases considered on grounds of their impact on competition in the relevant market. Ministers have no role in this process although they do retain certain powers to intervene in cases that raise narrowly defined public interest concerns.

I would welcome any further information from the hon. Gentleman which may be helpful to the regulators.

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will hold discussions with (a) the Office of Fair Trading and (b) the Competition Commissioner on the state of the UK market in foreign package holidays. [130283]

Mr. McCartney: Ministers have no plans to discuss this matter either with the Office of Fair Trading or with representatives of the European Commission. The regulatory control of mergers is a matter for the relevant independent competition authorities with cases considered on grounds of their impact on competition in the relevant market. Ministers have no role in this process although they do retain certain powers to intervene in cases that raise narrowly defined public interest concerns.

I would welcome any further information from the hon. Gentleman which may be helpful to the regulators.

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) what representations he has received from consumer groups on the competition implications for the UK package holiday market of the proposed TUI-First Choice merger; [130005]

(2) what representations he has received from (a) independent and (b) non-vertically-integrated tour operators on the competition implications for the UK package holiday market of the proposed TUI-First Choice merger. [130006]

Mr. McCartney: Ministers have received no representations on this matter. The regulatory control of mergers is a matter for the relevant independent competition authorities with cases considered on grounds of their impact on competition in the relevant market. Ministers have no role in this process although they do retain certain powers to intervene in cases that raise narrowly defined public interest concerns.

I would welcome any further information from the hon. Gentleman which may be helpful to the regulators.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Arts: Finance

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the annual per capita expenditure was on arts funding in the Province in each of the last five years. [130702]

Maria Eagle: The annual per capita expenditure on arts funding Northern Ireland in each of the last five years is shown in the following table. These figures are based on Exchequer allocations to the Arts Council of Northern Ireland.

2002-03	5.79
2003-04	5.77
2004-05	6.49
2005-06	6.33
2006-07	6.25

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will take steps to ensure that per capita funding for the arts in Northern Ireland is at the same level as in the United Kingdom as a whole. [131132]

Maria Eagle: The level of funding for the arts in future years will be considered as part of the 2007 Comprehensive Spending Review. The outcome will not be known until later in the year.

Autism

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much the Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety spent on service provision for children with autism in each health and social services board area in each of the last five years. [131305]

Paul Goggins: The proportion of the overall baseline which is spent by the health and social services boards for the provision of services for children with autism is not separately identified.

In addition to the provision of mainstream funding for children's services, the Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety allocated an additional £0.5 million recurrent funding in 2004-05 to improve the life outcome for 200 children and young people with autism. In September 2006, a further £0.5 million recurrent funding was made available to provide early intervention services for 300 children with autistic spectrum disorders.

An element of the funding which is provided within health and personal social services baselines for adolescent psychiatry (£2.4 million in 2004-05) is also spent on services to support children with autism. The multi-disciplinary support teams established through the Children and Young People's Funding Package, March 2006, is also working alongside existing services in schools helping to provide diagnosis and interventions for children with autism.

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) how much the Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety has earmarked for service provision for children with autism for each of the next three years; [131306]

(2) whether he plans to increase the resources available for service provision for children with autism. [131307]

Paul Goggins: Budget decisions for the next three years, 2008-09 to 2010-11, will be agreed as part of the Comprehensive Spending Review 2007. Final decisions on future years' budgets will not therefore be made until December 2007 at the earliest.

Belfast-Bangor County Down Railway Line

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what investigation has been carried out by his Department to ascertain why the former Head of Infrastructure at Translink removed and destroyed the bulk of documentation relating to the upgrade of the Belfast to Bangor railway line when he left the company in March 2002. [130957]

David Cairns: I refer the hon. Lady to paragraphs 3.13-3.16 of the Northern Ireland Audit Office report, which covers the actions taken by the Department. A copy of the report is available in the House of Commons Library or can be accessed via the Northern Ireland Audit Office website at www.niauditoffice.gov.uk/index.asp.

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps he is taking to introduce a central document registry within Translink following the recommendations of the Northern Ireland Audit Office report on the upgrade of the Belfast to Bangor railway line. [130958]

David Cairns: The Board of the Northern Ireland Transport Holding Company has purchased proprietary software to assist in file management and is working to progress the Audit Office's recommendation on records management.

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment he has made of the recommendations of the Northern Ireland Audit Office report on the upgrade of the Belfast to Bangor railway line; and if he will make a statement. [130960]

David Cairns: I welcome this Audit Office report 'The Upgrade of the Belfast to Bangor Railway Line' and its recommendations.

Significant lessons have been learned and applied as a result of this project, and work is under way to ensure the full implementation of the Audit Office's recommendations.

The Northern Ireland Audit Office report was scheduled to be considered by the Public Accounts Committee at Westminster on 28 March. The Committee decided to cancel the session but has commended it to the Stormont PAC as an urgent issue for its consideration when devolution returns.

Community Service

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many offenders were enrolled in community service programmes in Northern Ireland in each of the last six years; how many offenders breached their community service orders over the same period; and what the consequence was of the breach in each case in which no legal proceedings are active. [130920]

Mr. Hanson: The Probation Board for Northern Ireland supervises Community Service Orders and Combination Orders, both of which require a number of hours of unpaid work to be completed by the offender.

The following table specifies the number of Community Service and Combination Orders made in the past six years.

Number of community service and combination orders made (2000-01 to 2005-06)

Orders Made	Community Service Orders	Combination Orders[1]
2000-01	708	100
2001-02	679	95
2002-03	728	119
2003-04	765	174
2004-05	769	159
2005-06	652	212

When offenders do not comply with the conditions outlined in a community based sanction, they may be returned to court for breach proceedings.

The following table specifies the number of breach proceedings initiated against individuals subject to Community Service and Combination Orders.

Number of breaches initiated for Community Service and Combination Orders (2000-01 to 2005-06)

Breaches	Community Service Orders	Combination Orders[1]
2000-01	301	49
2001-02	238	41
2002-03	211	0
2003-04	153	47
2004-05	178	46
2005-06	132	36

[1] A Combination Order is a sentence that combines a Probation Order and a Community Service Order.

The Probation Board has implemented an electronic case management system to record details of those subject to community supervision. This database has been operational across the PBNI from June 2006. Prior to June 2006, the Probation Board did not centrally collate the outcome of breach proceedings.

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many hours of community service were carried out by offenders in Northern Ireland in each of the last six years. [130921]

Mr. Hanson: I am advised by the Probation Board for Northern Ireland that the numbers of hours of unpaid work to which offenders are sentenced in respect of community service and combination orders is as shown in the following table.

Number of hours unpaid work sentenced in court (2000-01 to 2005-06)[1]

	Community service and combination orders[2]
2000-01	105,500
2001-02	100,500
2002-03	100,000
2003-04	141,000
2004-05	118,500
2005-06	108,000

[1] The statistics shown in the table provide the number of hours imposed by the court on those subject to community service and combination orders respectively. In a small number of cases, for example, if an order was breached and then revoked, the hours may not have been completed. The figures provided have been rounded to the nearest 500 hours per year.
[2] A combination order is a sentence that combines a probation order and a community service order.

Complementary Medicine

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland which organisations and individuals are involved in developing the pilot scheme on complementary and alternative therapies in Northern Ireland; and if he will make a statement. [130916]

Paul Goggins: My Department has convened a steering group which will bring together a number of key stakeholders whose role will be to guide and monitor the successful implementation of the pilot scheme. The group's first meeting will be in April. Get Well UK, the organisation administering the pilot on behalf of the DHSSPS, will report to the steering group on a regular basis.

In addition to staff from the DHSSPS, the steering group will have representatives from

Health and Social Services Boards;
Health and Social Services Council;
The General Osteopathic Council;
British Acupuncture Council;
British Chiropractic Association;
Northern Ireland Association of Homeopaths;
Federation of Holistic Therapists/Aromatherapy Council;
General Practitioner Committee (BMA NI)
The Prince's Foundation for Integrated Health.

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans he has to extend the pilot scheme in which patients can receive complementary and alternative therapies across Northern Ireland; and what assessment he has made of the take-up of complementary and alternative therapies in the areas where the scheme is being piloted. [130917]

Paul Goggins: A full independent evaluation of the pilot scheme will be carried out and will help inform any future decisions about the availability of complementary and alternative therapies in Northern Ireland.

Although the pilot is still at a very early stage, I have been encouraged by the progress made so far. The first patient was seen on 6 March and since then the pilot has received 101 patient referrals from GPs—56 from the Belfast pilot and 45 from Londonderry. A total of 79 referrals have been for patients suffering from musculoskeletal problems and 22 have involved mental health problems.

Council Tax

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the outturn effective tax rate (ETR) being charged in each council will be in Northern Ireland from April 2007; and what the average council ETR will be in Northern Ireland. [128626]

David Cairns: Individual district councils are responsible for determining the effective tax rate or district rates for both domestic and non-domestic properties. The 2007-08 rates for each council and the average rates for Northern Ireland are set out in the following table.

Pence

District council	Non-Domestic Rate[1]	Domestic Rate[2]
Antrim	21.5586	0.2875

Creative Youth Partnerships Programme

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many children took part in the Creative Youth Partnerships programme; what plans are in place to resource the programme in the future; and if he will make a statement on the performance of the programme against the objectives his Department has set for it. [131291]

Maria Eagle: From April 2004 to September 2006, 38,813 children and young people participated in Creative Youth Partnership programmes.

The three-year pilot scheme was due to conclude at the end of March 2007, but funding has been secured to extend the pilot for a further year at existing levels of activity.

The Department of Culture, Art, and Leisure will be bidding for funding for Creative Youth Partnerships in the 2007 Comprehensive Spending Review and the future of the programme will be dependent on the outcome of this.

The programme has been evaluated by the Education and Training Inspectorate and the report on this will be published shortly. Early indications are that good progress has been made in meeting the overall objectives of the Creative Youth Partnerships initiative and that the Inspectorate recommends the continuation of the programme, as it enhances and supports the education of children and young people.

Departments: Advertising

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much his Department spent on (a) sponsoring newspaper or publication supplements and (b) funding "advertorials" in newspapers or publications, in the last year for which figures are available; and what the topic was of each. [129470]

Mr. Hain: The Northern Ireland Office has only sponsored one newspaper supplement in 2006-07; this was the Organised Crime Task Force Annual Report Summary Leaflet the cost of which was £21,992.57. The Northern Ireland Office has not funded any advertorials in this period.

Departments: Consultants

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland which external consultants were used by each Northern Ireland Government Department and its associated agencies in each of the past six years; and what the (a) hourly rate and (b) overall cost was in each case. [128028]

Mr. Hanson: The information requested is not held centrally in the format requested. However, I refer the hon. Lady to the reply I gave the hon. Member for South Down (Mr. McGrady) on 19 February 2007, Official Report, column 555W, which contains information on the overall expenditure on consultants by each Northern Ireland Department over the last five years.

I have also placed in the Library a list of the recipients of consultancy fees paid by each of the 11 Departments of the Northern Ireland Administration and the Northern Ireland Office (excluding agencies and non-departmental public bodies) in respect of the years 2002-03 to 2004-05.

Departments: Pressure Groups

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what meetings took place between Ministers in his Department and outside interest groups between 1 January and 31 March; and what the date was of each such meeting. [131035]

Mr. Hain: Ministers and civil servants meet a large number of people and groups in the course of their official duties. To extract this information from the diaries for all Ministers in my Department would exceed the disproportionate cost threshold.

Departments: Work Permits

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many work permits were applied for by his Department and its agencies in each of the last five years. [127715]

Mr. Hain: No work permits have been applied for by the Northern Ireland Office or its agencies in each of the last five years.

Desmond Clayton

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland why his Department gave prior approval to the Northern Ireland Police Fund to make a severance payment to Mr. Desmond Clayton. [119339]

Paul Goggins: The Department considered the issue carefully, drawing on its own legal advice and discussing it with the accounting officer. Given the status of the Northern Ireland Police Fund as both a company limited by guarantee and an executive NDPB, matters relating to its operation including payments are a matter for the board of directors of the fund.

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much his Department approved for payment by the Northern Ireland Police Fund by way of severance payment for Mr. Desmond Clayton. [119340]

Paul Goggins: Given the status of the Northern Ireland Police Fund as both a company limited by guarantee and an executive NDPB, matters relating to its operation including payments are a matter for the board of directors of the fund.

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what reason the Northern Ireland Police Fund gave to his Department for its request to approve a severance payment for Mr. Desmond Clayton. [119342]

Paul Goggins: After careful consideration and legal advice the NIO concluded that the impact on the working relationships between the chief executive, the fund's directors and the clients was such that the work of the fund was likely to have been adversely affected by his continued employment.

Diabetes

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps have been taken to develop a diabetes services framework for the Province. [130686]

Paul Goggins: A framework for the development of services for people with diabetes, produced by a joint CREST/Diabetes UK Taskforce, was published in June 2003. The framework contained a wide range of recommendations and each of the four Health and Social Services Boards have local implementation groups to take forward the detailed planning and implementation of the framework. The Department has also established a Regional Diabetes Steering Group with representation from the four boards and Diabetes UK to oversee and monitor progress.

Doctors: Pay

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the average annual earnings are of a full-time (a) general practitioner and (b) consultant psychiatrist in the Province. [130699]

Paul Goggins: Following the introduction of the new UK wide General Medical Services (GMS) contract with effect from 1 April 2004, the contract for the provision of General Medical Services is between the relevant Health and Social Services Board and a GMS practice rather than individual GPs. Under the contract, each GMS practice receives payment for services and can generate income through a number of streams, some of which are core and some in which participation is a matter of choice for the practice concerned. It is a matter for each GMS practice to determine how its services are organised and how the funding it receives is allocated between GP remuneration and practice expenses, including the employment of staff and other overheads.

Information is collected across the four countries on health service funding for GP practices and on the expenses to earnings split, based on audited accounts. The final information for the first year of the contract, (2004-05) has not yet been agreed at a UK level nor has it been disaggregated on a country by country basis) Consequently, an accurate assessment of GP earnings in NI under the new contract is not yet available

The average annual earnings in Northern Ireland of a consultant psychiatrist is £100,300.

Doctors: Training

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps have been taken to improve the work-life balance of senior house officers seeking training posts. [130685]

Paul Goggins: The Department's Improving Junior Doctors' Working Lives Implementation Support Group (ISO) continues to work to ensure compliance with the European working time directive and new deal. The Northern Ireland Medical and Dental Training Agency (NIMDTA) also fully supports less than full-time training.

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what estimate he has made of the number of junior doctors in the Province who will be unable to obtain training posts in August 2007. [130697]

Paul Goggins: The Department of Health has instigated a review of recruitment and selection for specialist training. Until the findings of this review have been implemented, the number of junior doctors unable to obtain training posts in the province cannot be determined.

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps are being taken to assist experienced senior house officers in the Province in obtaining specialist training. [130698]

Paul Goggins: The Northern Ireland Medical and Dental Training Agency (NIMDTA) organised four workshops for experienced SHO's to advise them on the new recruitment process.

Domestic Rates

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the timetable is for (a) local authorities to finalise their district rate for 2007-08, (b) finalising the level of the regional rate for 2007-08 and (c) the posting of domestic rates bills to local authorities; and on which day in April 2007 liability starts for the new domestic rates bills. [130557]

Mr. Hanson: The information requested is as follows:

(a) The table of district rates for 2007-08 was published on 16 February 2007;

(b) The Rates (Regional Rates) Order (Northern Ireland) 2007 was made on 29 January 2007;

(c) Rate bills are not posted to local authorities; and

(d) Rate liability for domestic property is effective from 1 April of each year.

Domestic Rates: Valuation

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether the capital value of a domestic property which is part of another property and has a dependent relative living in it is added to the capital value of the main domestic property when the domestic property is valued for domestic rates under the new discrete capital values system. [130556]

Mr. Hanson: Each separate property has a capital value assessment in the Valuation List irrespective of occupier.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what co-efficient value was given to the property attribute for adjoining a golf course in each of the 25 market areas in the Valuation and Lands Agency calibrated multiple regression formula used in domestic rates revaluation in Northern Ireland. [130564]

Mr. Hanson: Belfast is the only market area which has a co-efficient allocated to the property attribute for adjoining a golf course and the value of this co-efficient is 0.083.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what fine may be imposed on residents who do not fill in a questionnaire sent by the Valuation and Lands Agency asking for information on the property attributes of their residence. [130570]

Mr. Hanson: The Valuation and Lands Agency has not sent and is not contemplating sending a questionnaire to residents asking for information on the property attributes of their residence.

Domestic Waste: Republic of Ireland

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what estimate has been made of the amount of household waste illegally dumped in Northern Ireland originating from the Republic of Ireland in (a) 2004, (b) 2005 and (c) 2006. [130559]

David Cairns: The Environment and Heritage Service estimates that a minimum of 250,000 tonnes of household waste from the Republic of Ireland has been illegally disposed of in Northern Ireland since 2003. Given the clandestine and criminal nature of the activity, it is impossible to accurately quantify the extent of this activity on an annual basis. Material illegally landfilled in the period 2003-06 is still being discovered. To date, over 50 illegal landfill sites have been discovered in Northern Ireland containing waste originating from the Republic of Ireland.

Educational Psychology

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the average length of time a child will wait to see an educational psychologist is in each health and social services board area in Northern Ireland. [131303]

Maria Eagle: The chief executive officers of the education and library boards state that this information is only available in relation to their own areas and not in relation to health and social services board areas.

I refer the hon. Gentleman to the reply I gave the hon. Member for Strangford (Mrs. Robinson) on 23 February 2007, Official Report, column 983W.

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many children are waiting to see an educational psychologist in each health and social services board area in Northern Ireland. [131304]

Maria Eagle: The chief executives of the education and library boards state that this information is only available in relation to their own areas and not in relation to health and social services board areas.

The following numbers of children are waiting to see educational psychologists.

	Number
Belfast education and library board	458
North Eastern education and library board	675
Western education and library board	280
Southern education and library board	588
South Eastern education and library board	719

These figures are in regard to children with a variety of need, including stage 3 (non-statutory assessments) and stage 4 (statutory assessments) of the Code of Practice on the Identification and Assessment of Special Educational Needs, reviews at stage 3 and stage 5 of the code of practice, special testing at transfer stage between (primary and post-primary, pre-school and examination arrangements.

Excise Duties: Motor Vehicles

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many tax discs were issued in Northern Ireland in each of the last six years, broken down by vehicle category. [129583]

David Cairns: The following table shows the numbers of vehicles licensed in Northern Ireland at the 31 December for the last six years, for which vehicles are currently available, broken down by vehicle category.

Vehicle category	2000	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005
Private Light Goods (cars and light vans)	615,180	644,968	666,731	711,913	737,198	765,061

Fly-tipping

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what co-operation there has been with the Irish Government on tackling the problem of cross-border illegal dumping. [131023]

David Cairns: Bilateral meetings have been held at ministerial level to discuss matters of mutual interest and the illegal movement of waste has been identified as a key area of concern.

Officials from the Department of the Environment are working closely with counterparts in the Department of the Environment, Heritage and Local Government (DOEHLG) to finalise a structured plan to deal with existing illegal waste dumped in Northern Ireland originating from Ireland and to prevent possible future illegal waste movements. The plan envisages co-operative operations involving enforcement authorities and, where appropriate, repatriation of waste from Ireland illegally dumped in Northern Ireland.

Officers from the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) have attended Northern Ireland operations in which waste from Ireland has been identified. Officers from DOE have also been witnesses in EPA prosecution cases heard in Irish courts.

In January 2007, the Environment and Heritage Service, in conjunction with counterparts from the EPA, supervised the return of illegally deposited waste to Ireland from an illegal landfill in Co. Armagh, where an estimated 150 tonnes of commercial/household waste had been deposited.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many reports of fly-tipping were received by the Environment and Heritage Service in (a) 2004, (b) 2005 and (c) 2006. [130558]

David Cairns: The Environment and Heritage Service (EHS) holds details of alleged illegal or unauthorised waste activities. It does not have figures for fly-tipping, which, although not legally defined, has in the past been used to describe largely domestic, low-quantity incidents. Such small-scale cases are generally dealt with by district councils.

The EHS is currently implementing the Flycapture software used by the Environment Agency to facilitate a consistent approach to the impact of fly-tipping across the UK, and is liaising with councils to encourage their use of the system. Flycapture records all incidents of illegal dumping, from a single black bin liner up to sites with thousands of tonnes of waste. This will allow the problem to be quantified, and enforcement, clean-up activities and budgets to be directed to areas of greatest need.

The EHS received the following number of allegations of illegal or unauthorised activities relating to controlled waste.

	Number
2004	1,256
2005	1,339
2006	1,436

Graffiti

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much was spent on removing graffiti in each local authority area in Northern Ireland in each of the last six years for which figures are available. [129557]

David Cairns: The Department of the Environment does not hold information on the cost of removing graffiti in Northern Ireland.

Health and Social Services Authority

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment he has made of the merits of separating the Health and Social Services Authority functions from the Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety. [130688]

Paul Goggins: Under the proposed new arrangements, the Department will retain statutory responsibility for securing the delivery of the services necessary to promote the health and wellbeing of the population. The role of the authority will be to implement the Government's policies for health and social services, to manage performance of the system and to commission services to meet the demands of patients. These roles are not appropriate to a central Government Department. The new, much smaller DHSSPS will be able to focus on assisting the Minister with policy, legislation and strategic planning and resource allocation. This separation of roles within the new organisational arrangements will lead to clearer accountability, improved efficiency and better outcomes from more responsive, person-centred services.

Hearing Aids

Dr. Alasdair McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the (a) target and (b) actual average waiting time is for people requiring a new digital hearing aid from the point of referral from GP to final fitting of the hearing aid in Northern Ireland. [130782]

Paul Goggins: Audiology is one of the areas subject to the new diagnostic targets set out in Priorities for Action 2007-08, which states that no patient should have to wait longer than 13 weeks for a diagnostic test. Therefore, the target for people requiring a new digital hearing aid from the point of referral from GP to final fitting of the hearing aid will be 13 weeks in Northern Ireland.

Information on the average waiting time for a new digital hearing aid from the point of referral from GP to final fitting of the aid in Northern Ireland is not collected centrally. However, information is collected on the number of people who were waiting for a hearing aid assessment/reassessment to be completed according to specified time bands. Waiting time is counted from the date a referral is received by the audiology department until the aid is fitted.

As waiting list information is collected by specified time bands, it is not possible to calculate the actual average waiting time for a digital hearing aid. On 31 March 2006, 2,184 patients were waiting for a hearing assessment / reassessment in Northern Ireland; 1,089 had waited for six to 12 months, 563 for less than three months, 420 waited three to six months, and 112 for 12 months or more.

Information on hearing aid assessments / reassessments for the quarters ending 30 June, 30 September and 31 December 2006 is due for release in early May 2007. It has been delayed until inconsistencies and validation errors are resolved with audiology departments in Northern Ireland.

Irish Language

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer of 19 February 2007, Official Report, column 562W, what his Department's estimate is of the cost of implementing an Irish Language Bill. [127885]

Maria Eagle: It has been estimated that in the 2008-09 financial year, the first full year after any Irish Language Bill becomes law, total expenditure by Northern Ireland Departments on the Irish language could be in the region of £12.55 million. This represents an increase over existing expenditure of approximately £2.81 million.

Macular Degeneration

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what estimate he has made of the number of people (a) diagnosed with age-related macular degeneration and (b) who develop blindness each year as the result of age-related macular degeneration in the Province. [130684]

Paul Goggins: An estimate of the number of people diagnosed with age-related macular degeneration is not available. However, the number of admissions to hospital where the patient had a diagnosis of macular degeneration is available and is detailed in the following table.

	Admissions[1]
2005-06	438

An estimate of the number of patients who develop blindness each year as the result of age-related macular degeneration in the Province is not available.

Motor Vehicles

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what estimate he has made of the number of vehicles registered in the Republic of Ireland which used roads in Northern Ireland in each of the last six years. [129582]

David Cairns: The Chief Executive of Roads Service (Dr. Malcolm McKibbin) has been asked to write to the hon. Lady in response to this question.

Letter from Dr. Malcolm McKibbin, dated 3 April 2007:

You recently asked the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland a parliamentary question regarding, what estimate he has made of the number of vehicles registered in the Republic of Ireland which used roads in Northern Ireland in each of the last six years. As Chief Executive of Roads Service, I have been asked to reply.

I should explain that Roads Service collects data on the volume of traffic on Northern Ireland's roads to help contribute to the effective management of the road network and to help with the development of future road improvements. This data is collected via some 270 automatic traffic counting sites located on roads across Northern Ireland. This information is published in our annual Traffic and Travel Information Report, copies of which will be placed in the House of Commons Library shortly. The automatic traffic counting sites use loops cut into the road surface to detect vehicles as they pass. They provide details of the number of vehicles broken down into five classes (cars, light vans, articulated lorries etc).

The majority of the main ('A' Class) border roads have an automatic counting site, but it is not possible from the information provided by these to determine the country of registration of a vehicle. Therefore it is not possible to make an estimate of the number of vehicles registered in the Republic of Ireland which used roads in Northern Ireland, from this source of information.

In order to ascertain the number of vehicles registered in the Republic of Ireland using roads in Northern Ireland each year, it would be necessary to carry out a survey that noted the registration numbers of vehicles passing various points. Roads Service currently does not carry out this type of survey and has no plans to do so.

My officials also consulted with other relevant Departments, but it would appear that they do not collect the information you requested either.

National Institute for Health and Clinical Guidance

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland who is responsible for decisions on (a) applicability and (b) implementation of National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence guidance in Northern Ireland. [130695]

Paul Goggins: Decisions on the application of NICE guidance in Northern Ireland are a matter for the Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety. The Department also sets timescales for health and social care organisations to put plans in place to facilitate implementation of NICE technology appraisal guidance. Responsibility for implementation of NICE guidance rests with the Health and Social Care.

New Businesses

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what total amount of business start-up assistance was provided to (a) male applicants, (b) female applicants and (c) ethnic minority applicants in Northern Ireland in each year since 2000. [129705]

Maria Eagle: Information on applicants for business start-up assistance by gender and ethnic group is only available since April 2002 for those supported through the Northern Ireland Start a Business programme.

Table 1 provides information relating to offers made through the Start a Business programme by gender of applicant over the period April 2002 - March 2006.

Table 1

	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	Total
Female	511,750	671,000	1,026,750	696,900	2,906,400
Male	942,500	1,187,500	1,598,000	894,050	4,622,050

Other ethnic groups include Bangladeshi, Black African, Black Caribbean, Chinese, Indian, mixed ethnic groups, other ethnic groups and Pakistani.

North South Implementation Bodies

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland when the Government signed off the financial memorandum relating to each cross-border body established in consequence of the Belfast Agreement. [130487]

Mr. Hanson: The Financial Memoranda (FM) for each cross border body established in consequence of the Belfast Agreement were signed off by Government as shown in the following table.

Cross-border Body	Date FM signed off
Special EU Programmes Body (SEUPB)	December 1999
Language Body (Foras na Gaeilge/Ulster Scots Agency)	September 2000
Loughs Agency (FCILC)	April 2005 - draft in place from 2000
Food Safety Promotion Board (FSPB)	December 1999
Tourism Ireland Limited (TIL)	July 2001
Intertrade Ireland (ITI)	December 1999
Waterways Ireland	December 1999

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether the Government are satisfied with the financial and equality provisions in place in respect of cross-border bodies established in consequence of the Belfast Agreement; and whether these correspond with the requirements placed on non-cross-border public bodies within Northern Ireland. [130488]

Mr. Hanson: I am satisfied with the arrangements relating to financial and equality provisions in place in respect of those cross-border bodies established in consequence of the Belfast Agreement and that they are comparable to those placed on other non-cross-border public bodies in Northern Ireland.

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether employees from Northern Ireland working within the cross-border bodies, established in consequence of the Belfast Agreement are subject to the Government's public sector pay policy. [130489]

Mr. Hanson: The cross-border bodies are accountable to the North/South Ministerial Council and are jointly funded by the Northern Ireland public expenditure system and the Irish Government. Northern Ireland staff employed in the cross-border bodies generally follow the NICS pay award and their pay growth is considered, with due regard to public sector pay policy, as part of the business planning process. For these reasons cross-border bodies are currently outside the formal HM Treasury pay remits process.

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what sub-groups operate (a) under and (b) within the cross-border bodies established in consequence of the Belfast Agreement. [130490]

Mr. Hanson: Details of sub-groups operating (a) under and (b) within the cross-border bodies established in consequence of the Belfast Agreement are provided in the following table.

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much was spent by his Department on (a) the North/South Language Body and (b) the Ulster-Scots Agency in each year since its formation. [130492]

Maria Eagle: The amount of funding from the Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure for the North/South Language Body and the Ulster-Scots Agency each year since its formation is shown in the following table.

£ million

	North South language body	Ulster-Scots Agency
2000	2.303	0.5
2001	3.5	0.97
2002	3.71	1.07
2003	4.005	1.155
2004	4.561	1.337
2005	4.599	1.357
2006	5.095	1.61

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people are employed by the (a) North/South Language Body and (b) Ulster-Scots Agency; and what the source of the funding for these posts is. [130493]

Maria Eagle: The number of people employed by the North/South Language Body and the Ulster-Scots Agency and their source of funding is shown in the following table.

	Number of staff	Funding source
North/South Language Body (Foras na Gaeilge and Ulster- Scots Agency)	54 (permanent)	Sponsoring Departments (Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure in NI, and Department of Community, Rural and Gaeltacht Affairs in the Republic of Ireland)

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the budget of the (a) North/South Language Body and (b) Ulster-Scots Agency was in (i) 2004-05, (ii) 2005-06 and (iii) 2006-07. [130494]

Maria Eagle: The financial year for all the North-South implementation bodies is the calendar year. The budgets for the 2004, 2005 and 2006 years are shown in the following table.

	2004	2005	2006
North/South Language Body	14.683	14.777	15. 837
Ulster-Scots Agency	1.784	1.809	2. 132

Northern Ireland Executive: Departmental Co-ordination

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment he has made of the extent of data sharing across Northern Ireland's Government Departments and agencies. [127132]

Mr. Hanson: While there has been no formal assessment of the extent of data sharing across Northern Ireland's Departments and agencies to date, it is recognised that there is a need for Northern Ireland Departments and agencies to share data where it is necessary to carry out the normal business of the Department.

Indeed, there are already some pockets of data-sharing excellence in areas as diverse as the Causeway programme, a joint enterprise within the criminal justice system where electronically shared information is improving business process and performance, and the Northern Ireland Mapping Agreement which supplies the Ordnance Survey Northern Ireland product range, including the Pointer database, to all NICS Departments, agencies and non-departmental public bodies, including local councils.

Orchestras: Finance

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much funding he plans to provide for the Ulster Orchestra in 2007-08; and how much funding was provided in each of the last five years. [130701]

Maria Eagle: Funding provided by the Arts Council of Northern Ireland to the Ulster Orchestra in each of the last five years including the planned allocation for 2007-08 is shown in the following table.

2002-03	1,344,000
2003-04	1,690,000
2004-05	1,740,000
2005-06	1,892,921
2006-07	1,925,113

Outdoor Advertising

Sammy Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will take steps to introduce measures in Northern Ireland of equivalent effect to the Town and Country Planning (Control of Advertisements) (England) Regulations 2007. [131150]

David Cairns: I am presently considering whether equivalent regulations to the Town and Country Planning (Control of Advertisements) (England) Regulations 2007 should be introduced in Northern Ireland. However, given the imminent return to a devolved Administration in May, the decision on whether to introduce such measures would be a matter for the Northern Ireland Executive.

Planning

Dr. Alasdair McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many enforcement officers (a) are employed by the planning division in Northern Ireland and (b) were employed in each of the last five years. [130780]

David Cairns: The Department of the Environment's Planning Service currently employs 45 enforcement officers. The number of enforcement officers employed in the previous three years is shown in the following table. Prior to 2004, a separate staff complement for enforcement officers was not maintained as enforcement staff were counted as part of the overall divisional development control staff complement.

As at March each year	Number of enforcement officers
2006	51

The total staff complement for enforcement is 57. The Planning Service intends to appoint additional staff in the near future to increase the current total to the full complement following a recent recruitment and promotion exercise.

Dr. Alasdair McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the budget (a) is for the planning division for enforcement officers for the 2006-07 financial year and (b) was in the 2005-06 financial year. [130781]

David Cairns: While the Planning Service does not hold budgets for costs at this level, actual expenditure for enforcement officers for the (a) 2006-07 financial year is estimated to be £1.53 million and (b) 2005-06 financial year was £1.38 million.

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what action is being taken to deal with the backlog of cases at the Planning Appeals Commission. [130835]

Mr. Hanson: The Commission secured an increase in complement to 21 full-time commissioners, from 17, in August 2006, and continues to utilise panel commissioners who are paid on a fee by case basis and has put forward a business case for a further increase in resources.

In an attempt to ensure that further increases in delays to the determination of appeals are minimised, the Commission has advised the Department of the Environment that it will likely have to constrain its involvement in progressing examinations or inquiries and has limited the Department to referring no more than two of these to run concurrently.

Police Service of Northern Ireland: Redundancy Pay

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) what details were passed to his Department by the Northern Ireland Police Fund regarding the dismissal of Mr. Desmond Clayton; [119341]

(2) whether details of severance packages paid to members of staff at the Northern Ireland Police Fund are among the issues his Department discusses with the Fund as part of standard corporate governance arrangements. [119348]

Paul Goggins: As part of the standard corporate governance arrangements regular meetings are held and correspondence exchanged on a range of issues relating to the business of the Northern Ireland Police Fund.

Prescriptions: Fees and Charges

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what discussions were held with the Northern Ireland Pharmaceutical Contractors Committee before reducing the negotiated fee for multiple dispensed prescription items. [130689]

Paul Goggins: The rate of multiple dispensing fees has formed part of various discussions and negotiations with the Pharmaceutical Contractors' Committee (PCC) over several years.

The Department recently withdrew its letter of 26 January 2007 and reinstated the rate of all fees to their former levels for 2006-07, pending the outcome of ongoing negotiations with the PCC. The February clawback will be reversed and repaid in pharmacies in the March monthly payment.

Recent discussions with PCC have led to meaningful progress towards resolution of multiple dispensing and medicines management issues which are part of ongoing negotiations on the new pharmacy contract.

Prisons: Northern Ireland

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people from (a) England, (b) Scotland, (c) Wales, (d) the Republic of Ireland and (e) overseas were held in each Northern Ireland prison in each of the last six years. [120439]

Paul Goggins: The following table has been compiled from the address given by the prisoner at the time of committal. To break down those classified as GB into individual countries would involve a disproportionate cost. The figures listed are from the last six years for which statistics are available. It is not currently possible to differentiate between overseas prisoners and those from Northern Ireland of no fixed address. However, since July 2006 foreign nationals have been recorded separately.

Pupils: Intimidation

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will take steps to ensure that education and library boards in Northern Ireland collect statistics on the incidences of bullying recorded in schools in Northern Ireland. [130953]

Maria Eagle: There are no plans at present to do so; however, information about the scale and nature of bullying in Northern Ireland schools will be contained in a research report, which will be published later this year.

Racial Hostility Offences

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer of 1 March 2006 to the hon. Member for Foyle, Official Report, column 781W, on racial hostility offences, what progress has been made by the Government and enforcement and prosecution authorities in developing a mechanism to collect information on sentences imposed for offences motivated by hostility towards a person's race in relation to the Criminal Justice (No. 2) (Northern Ireland) Order 2004. [127763]

Mr. Hanson: The Public Prosecution Service is currently in the process of identifying cases since late 2005 where, in the judgment of a Public Prosecutor, there was a racial motivation behind offences. This will enable the identification of sentences by the Court Service imposed for offences motivated by hostility towards a person's race. I will arrange for any information on sentences imposed to be forwarded when it is available.

Railways: Freight

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps he is taking to increase the amount of freight transported by rail in Northern Ireland. [130955]

David Cairns: Rail freight is uncompetitive for short journeys and for this reason rail freight operations ceased in Northern Ireland in 2004. There are no plans to revive them.

Rates and Rating

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the eligibility criteria are for the new Northern Ireland special rate relief; and if he will make a statement. [130961]

Mr. Hanson: The rules governing eligibility for the new Rate Relief Scheme are the same as those that apply to the existing Housing Benefit Rate Rebate system. That is, that the ratepayer is habitually resident and has recourse to public funds; is occupying the hereditament as their home; and is liable to pay rates in respect of the hereditament. The level of award depends on the individual circumstances of the claimant.

Regeneration: Belfast

Dr. Alasdair McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the expected completion date is for the Department for Social Development's appraisal of the proposal for redevelopment of the Greater Village Area. [131774]

Mr. Hanson: Given the extent of the area and the cost associated with the proposed redevelopment, the appraisal will require careful scrutiny by Government. I would anticipate that this process will take some months to complete.

Roads: Bangor

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many accidents were recorded on the A2 Bangor to Belfast road in each of the last three years; and how long the road closed as a result in each case. [129584]

Paul Goggins: I have been advised by the PSNI of the following details in respect of accidents recorded on the A2 Bangor to Belfast Road. The following table shows injury road traffic collisions between the junctions of Knocknagoney Road and Abbey Street/ Brunswick Road, Bangor. I have been advised that they do not record road closure times at accidents.

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recent assessment has been carried out by his Department of the adequacy of (a) road safety (i) signage and (ii) measures and (b) sightlines at Six Road Ends in Bangor. [129585]

David Cairns: The Chief Executive of Roads Service (Dr. Malcolm McKibbin) has been asked to write to the hon Lady in response to this question.

Letter from Dr. Malcolm McKibbin, dated 3 April 2007:

You recently asked the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland a parliamentary question regarding, what recent assessment has been carried out by his Department of the adequacy of (a) road safety (i) signage and (ii) measures and (b) sightlines at Six Road Ends in Bangor. As this issue falls within my responsibility as Chief Executive of Roads Service, I have been asked to reply.

As you may be aware, Roads Service commenced a junction improvement scheme at Six Road Ends, Bangor in August 2006. Proposals for this improvement scheme were initiated as a result of the 14 recorded personal injury collisions, including one fatality at this location over the past 10 years. In addition, it was noted that motorists experienced lengthy delays during peak periods as a result of the complicated nature of the junction.

The current scheme aims to improve road safety for all road users at the junction, by reducing congestion and driver confusion. It involves the construction of a four leg roundabout with Green Road and Ballycrochan Road realigned to form priority junctions with Gransha Road and Cotton Road respectively. Sightlines, designed in accordance with the requirements of the Design Manual for Roads and Bridges, for the new roundabout scheme have been greatly improved.

With regards signage, Roads Service erects traffic signs permitted under the Traffic Signs Regulations (NI) 1997. These signs are designed and erected in accordance with the Traffic Sign Manual and this will be the case with signage at the new roundabout at Six Road Ends.

A scheme of this nature is subject to an independent safety audit after completion of each of the preliminary design, detailed design and construction stages. As part of the planning approval process, the scheme received the approval of both Down District and Ards borough councils when presented in detail before both on 26 July 2005 and 13 September 2005 respectively. Full planning permission was obtained in February 2006.

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recent assessment he has made of the surface quality of the High Bangor-Donaghadee Road; and if he will make funding available to upgrade the road at the conclusion of the building works for the new wastewater treatment facility at Donaghadee. [129589]

David Cairns: The Chief Executive of Roads Service (Dr. Malcolm McKibbin) has been asked to write to the hon. Lady in response to this question.

Letter from Dr. McKibbin, dated 3 April 2007:

You recently asked the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland a Parliamentary Question regarding, what recent assessment he has made of the surface quality of the High Bangor—Donaghadee Road; and if he will make funding available to upgrade the road at the conclusion of the building works for the new wastewater treatment facility at Donaghadee.

As this issue falls within my responsibility as Chief Executive of Roads Service, I have been asked to reply.

You will recall meeting with staff from our Ards Section Office on 23 February 2007 regarding a matter you had raised during an earlier meeting with the Divisional Roads Manager, Tom McCourt and myself about Warren Road, Donaghadee. At the 23 February meeting Mr Lamb, the Section Engineer in Ards, advised you that we were aware that the B21 High Bangor Road had suffered over the years as a result of several utilities openings and it was high on our list of priority schemes for resurfacing. He also explained that such a scheme had not been implemented to date as Roads Service was aware that further works were to be carried out on this road by the Water Service in connection with the new wastewater treatment plant at Donaghadee.

I can assure you that, following completion of the wastewater treatment plant, Roads Service will give this scheme a high priority when considering future programmes of work. In the meantime the condition of the road will be monitored under our cyclic inspection regime and repairs will be effected as required in accordance with our maintenance policy.

Royal Belfast Hospital for Sick Children: Surgery

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether a dedicated infant surgical unit will be maintained at the Royal Belfast Hospital for Sick Children. [130693]

Paul Goggins: The Infant Surgical service in the Royal Belfast Hospital for Sick Children (RBHSC) provides care for sick infants, many of whom require highly specialised surgery and post-operative care.

Infant surgical beds have been temporarily relocated within other wards in the hospital while refurbishment work is carried out. The infant surgical unit will reopen in new facilities adjacent to an existing children's surgical ward, which will provide improved accommodation for both patients and their families. The new location adjacent to other paediatric services will also facilitate the maintenance of appropriate staffing levels, thereby ensuring the quality and safety of patient care. The unit will reopen later this year.

The interim arrangements have not led to any reduction in beds or diminution of the service.

Sentencing

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of community sentencing as a means of cutting crime in Northern Ireland; and if he will make a statement. [131417]

Mr. Hanson: The most recent assessment of community sentencing is published in the Statistics and Research Bulletin 3/2006 "Reconviction in Northern Ireland: Results from the 2002 cohort". This bulletin monitors progress against the Northern Ireland Office public service agreement to reduce reconvictions. The following table details the community sentencing data and shows that the actual reconviction rate was 9.9 per cent. lower than the predicted reconviction rate.

Two year reconviction rates against predicted rates—2002

	Community sentencing[1]

Social Services: Sexual Offences

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the (a) highest, (b) lowest and (c) average amount paid per patient by each health trust in the Province to (i) independent social care providers and (ii) independent providers of social care for sex offenders was in the last 12 months. [130705]

Paul Goggins: Information on the costs of independent social care provision for sex offenders is not available.

Information on the amounts paid per patient to independent social care providers by each health trust is also not available. However, annually published reference costs give the total cost of Independent domiciliary care per hour provided and the total cost of independent daycare per day attendance. They also give the total cost of Independent Residential Care and nursing care per occupied week. On these bases, across NI health trusts the highest, lowest and average 2005-06 costs for each service are shown in the following table.

	Highest	Lowest	Average
Independent services—Domiciliary care (cost per hour provided)	13.46	7.71	10.75
Independent Daycare (cost per day attendance)	43.13	13.42	26.98

Social Services: Sperrin Lakeland Health and Social Care Trust

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people in Sperrin Lakeland HSS Trust had their social care needs assessed incorrectly in each of the last five years. [130704]

Paul Goggins: Information on the numbers of people whose social care needs were assessed incorrectly is not collected centrally.

The Community Information Branch (CIB) within the Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety, requested the information from the Chief Executive of Sperrin Lakeland HSS Trust who confirmed that it is not recorded.

If a complaint is received that an inaccurate assessment of need has taken place, the normal course of action will be for the appropriate team manager to review the assessment. If the review is upheld as being inaccurate, a reassessment is undertaken and any inaccuracy is addressed as a training issue with the appropriate staff.

South Eastern Education and Library Board

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will break down by declared religious affiliation and area of responsibility the number of staff employed at the Headquarters of the South Eastern Education and Library Board. [131633]

Maria Eagle: The following table shows the composition of the South Eastern Education and Library Board's workforce by community background as at 23 March 2007. The information has been provided by the Chief Executive of the South Eastern Education and Library Board.

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much has been spent on sending commissioners at the South Eastern education and library board on training courses since they were appointed. [131634]

Maria Eagle: I have been advised by the Chief Executive of the South Eastern Education and Library Board that since their appointment, the Board has incurred no costs through training courses for the commissioners.

Special Educational Needs

Dr. Alasdair McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much each education and library board spent on legal advice in relation to special educational needs cases in each of the last five years. [124545]

Speed Limits

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland on which roads in Northern Ireland a 20 mile per hour speed limit is imposed; and what assessment he has made of the effect on road safety at each location of such a limit. [129587]

David Cairns: The Chief Executive of Roads Service (Dr. Malcolm McKibbin) has been asked to write to the hon. Lady in response to this question.

Letter from Dr. McKibbin, dated 3 April 2007:

You recently asked the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland a Parliamentary Question regarding, on which roads in Northern Ireland a 20 mile per hour speed limit is imposed; and what assessment he has made of the effect on road safety at each location of such a limit.

As this issue falls within my responsibility as Chief Executive of Roads Service, I have been asked to reply.

By way of background, I should explain that a 20 mph speed limit is not normally introduced on individual roads. It is more common to introduce 20 mph zones, which are a form of traffic calming in residential areas where an extensive network of streets is involved and where self-enforcing measures can be provided to reduce vehicle speeds to approximately 20mph. Where speeds have been reduced to 20 mph by self-enforcing measures, it is then possible to introduce a mandatory 20 mph limit. However, if the level of traffic calming measures is insufficient to reduce speeds to around 20 mph, then it is unlikely that the Police Service of Northern Ireland would agree to the introduction of a mandatory 20 mph limit.

Roads Service has implemented forty-eight 20 mph residential zones, the locations of which are listed in the following table. In addition, Roads Service is currently progressing a 20 mph zone for the Scrabo Estate, in Newtownards, through the approval stage.

Roads Service currently monitors the effectiveness of all traffic calming schemes, including 20 mph zones, and this information is published in our annual Road Safety Engineering Report, a copy of which can be obtained from our website at: http://www.roadsni.gov.uk/Publications/specific/RoadSafetyEngReport0405-0506.pdf or by writing to Mr Brian Maxwell, Network Traffic Telematics Manager, Traffic Information and Control Centre, 1b Airport Road, Belfast, BT3 9DY. For each scheme, the number of injury collisions occurring over the three year period following introduction of a scheme, is compared with the collision history for a similar period prior to the works.

At fourteen of the above forty-eight locations, where full monitoring data is available, there have been 88 fewer collisions involving an injury. This equates to a 32% reduction compared with a similar period before introduction of the 20 mph zones.

Stillbirths: Miscarriage

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the procedures are for returning body parts to families following stillbirths and miscarriages; and where body parts are stored following stillbirths or miscarriages in Northern Ireland. [130696]

Paul Goggins: The Human Tissue Act 2004 set out a new legal framework for the removal, storage and use of tissue and organs from the deceased. The Act also established the Human Tissue Authority as the regulatory body for these matters.

The Authority published six codes of practice on the removal, storage, use and disposal of human tissue and organs, which were laid before the Northern Ireland Assembly on 19 July 2006 and notified to the HPSS by the acting chief medical officer in August. All trusts in Northern Ireland are required to comply with these codes. In addition, the DHSSPS has issued a "Careplan for Women who Experience a Miscarriage, Stillbirth or Neonatal Death" and explanatory booklets to accompany the consent forms that are used to record a family's wishes in respect of a hospital post mortem examination and the removal, use and disposal of human tissue.

Parents who have suffered a stillbirth or miscarriage are given oral and written information and asked whether they wish to have their baby or the tissue that was in the womb examined pathologically. This would involve a post mortem examination or histopathological examination in a laboratory. They will also be asked how they wish the remains to be disposed of, which can be arranged either by the hospital or the family.

Depending on the decisions taken by the family, the remains may be stored in a mortuary or pathology laboratory. All babies greater than 12 weeks' gestational size have their post mortem examination carried out in the Royal Hospital's mortuary. The return of a baby, foetus or miscarriage tissue to a family may be via a funeral director or directly to the family.

Suicide

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much money was spent on combating suicide in Northern Ireland in each of the last 10 years. [131626]

Paul Goggins: It is not possible to provide information in the precise form requested. A large number of organisations, statutory and non-statutory have been involved in suicide prevention work during this period.

Prior to the publication of the Northern Ireland Suicide Prevention Strategy, "Protect Life A Shared Vision" on 30 October 2006, the issue of suicide prevention was tackled through implementation of the Promoting Mental Health Strategy and Action Plan. This strategy contains 10 specific actions relating to suicide prevention, including the promotion of coping skills and the development of a suicide awareness programme.

The funding for the Promoting Mental Health Strategy and Action Plan for each of the years since its launch in 2003 is set out in the following table.

	Funding (£)
2002-03	200,000
2003-04	300,000
2004-05	350,000
2005-06	600,000
2006-07	600,000

Following concern about an increasing number of local suicides, a separate suicide prevention strategy for Northern Ireland has recently been developed. The funding allocated specifically for the implementation of this new strategy is shown in the following table.

	Funding (£)
2006-07	1,900,000
2007-08 to 2011	3,060,000

The figures aforementioned do not incorporate substantial funding made available via mental health services, other Departments and/or contributions made by many community and voluntary organisations such as the Samaritans and Aware Defeat Depression, all of which contribute to suicide prevention.

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many suicides were committed in each constituency in Northern Ireland in each of the last 10 years. [131629]

Mr. Hanson: The following table gives the number of deaths registered in Northern Ireland by parliamentary constituency due to 'suicide and self-inflicted injury'[1] and 'undetermined injury whether accidentally or purposefully inflicted'[2] in each year between 1996 and 2005.

[1] International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision codes X60-X84, Y87.0 for years 2001-05 and Ninth Revision codes E950-E959 for years 1985-2000.

Tomography: Waiting Lists

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people in each health trust in the Province are waiting for an MRI scan; what the average waiting time is for an MRI scan in each health trust; and what the longest waiting time has been over the last five years for an MRI scan in each health trust. [130703]

Paul Goggins: Information is given in the following table.

Trust	Total number of patients waiting for an MRI scan at 23 March 2007	Average waiting time for an MRI scan in days at 23 March 2007	Longest wait for an MRI scan in days during the last five years
Altnagelvin	563	98	[1]252

n/a = Figure not available.
1 Figures for Altnagelvin are not available; prior to June 2004, therefore this figure relates to the period between June 2004 and March 2007.
2 Figures for Belfast City Hospital HSS Trust are not available prior to the 2006-07 year, therefore the longest wait figure is at 23 March 2007.
3 The longest wait figure for the Royal Group of Hospitals HSS Trusts relates to the position at 23 March 2007.

HPSS Trusts

Data produced from the Department's performance management system indicate that as at the end of March 2007, there were no patients waiting more than 26 weeks for any Imaging Service in HPSS Trusts in Northern Ireland.

Translation Services

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer of 15 March 2007, Official Report, column 564W, on translation services, which languages were involved; how much was spent on translation costs for each language in each year; what the nature was of the services provided; and what the reasons were for the percentage year-on-year change in translation costs. [129639]

Maria Eagle: Detailed breakdowns of translation costs for each Northern Ireland Government Department, its associated agencies and non-departmental public bodies for each of the last four years are provided in the following tables.

[1] Ethnic refers to translations other than English, Irish and Ulster-Scots.
[2] Other refers to Braille and interpretation costs.
[3] Nil return.

It is not possible to define all the reasons for the year-on-year changes in the costs of translations or to supply a comprehensive breakdown of the nature of the services provided. However, it is apparent that the volume of Irish language translations has fallen following the dissolution of the Assembly while EU enlargement and the increased immigrant population has seen a significant increase in the volume of ethnic language translations. The level of Ulster-Scots translations has remained fairly static over the period.

Valuation and Lands Agency

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what Gateway Reviews have (a) been produced and (b) are under way of projects by the Valuation and Lands Agency. [130560]

Mr. Hanson: Gateway Reviews have (a) been produced for the Computer Assisted Mass Appraisal Implementation Project and the Public Interface Project, and (b) will be produced for the Land and Property Services programme.

Victims: Finance

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much funding was provided to each victims group in the Province in each year since 1994. [130694]

Mr. Hanson: Records show that funding detailed in the following table has been allocated to organisations involved in providing support for victims between April 1998 and March 2007. Year by year breakdowns of these figures is not available; nor are details of funding prior to 1998. In both cases this information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

In addition to the amounts shown, victims' groups may apply for funding from any programme or scheme, such as the District Council Community Relations Programme or European Union funding through the Local Strategy Partnerships, for which they can satisfy the relevant eligibility criteria.

[1] These organisations have a number of branches and the funding for individual branches has been combined for the purposes of the table.

Note:

The Community Foundation for Northern Ireland (formerly NIVT) also received £1,123,324 through the EU Special Programme for Peace and Reconciliation (Peace I) which supported victims of violence. The Foundation allocated these funds in support of a number of projects for both ex-prisoners and victims. Persons from these groups could benefit from the same project and it is not possible to disaggregate the assistance between the two groups.

Voluntary Organisations: Health Services

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps have been taken to ensure that voluntary organisations providing services for publicly funded health bodies in Northern Ireland receive full recovery of costs. [130687]

Paul Goggins: The Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety recognises the vital role played by the voluntary and community sector in the delivery of health care services across Northern Ireland. The Government also acknowledge, as indicated in their response to "Investing Together"—"Positive Steps"—that voluntary organisations must be able to recover full overhead costs for delivering a contracted service. The Department is working in partnership with the Department of Finance and Personnel and the Department for Social Development to develop this approach.

Water Treatment: Ballyhalbert

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland when the Ballyhalbert waste and water treatment works contract will start; and if he will make a statement. [130876]

David Cairns: The Chief Executive of Water Service (Mrs. Katharine Bryan) has been asked to write to the hon. Lady in response to this question.

Letter from Katharine Bryan, dated 31 March 2007:

You recently asked the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland a Parliamentary Question about when the Ballyhalbert waste and water treatment works contract will start; and if he will make a statement (130876). I have been asked to reply as this issue falls within my responsibility as Chief Executive of Water Service.

Water Service recently completed an appraisal study of the treatment needs for the Ards Peninsula and a project to improve the wastewater treatment facilities in Ballyhalbert is currently included in its Capital Works Programme with a commencement date in 2012. However, an interim solution with a commencement date towards the end of 2007 is currently being considered.

William Frazer

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recommendation the District Commander of Armagh District Command Unit of the Police Service of Northern Ireland made to the Northern Ireland Office on the application for a personal protection weapon made by Mr. William Frazer of Families Acting for Innocent Victims. [118912]

Paul Goggins: Responsibility for the issue of personal protection weapons rests with the Chief Constable of the Police Service of Northern Ireland. In the event of an appeal, the matter is considered by the Secretary of State. While it is not appropriate to disclose information on individual cases, if the hon. Member wishes to write to me on behalf of Mr. Frazer I would be happy to consider his inquiry.

Woodlands Juvenile Justice Centre

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on the outcome of the inquiry into the escape from Woodlands Juvenile Justice Centre on 22 February 2007; and what action has been taken to prevent further escapes. [130919]

Mr. Hanson: An investigation into the escape, conducted by the centre director, concluded that a security weakness in the design of a vehicle access gate at the rear of the centre, which enabled it to be scaled by the young person, was to blame. This has since been rectified.

Furthermore, the centre director has completed a security survey of all external and internal areas of the centre.

Written Questions

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland when he expects to answer question 108009, tabled on 5 December 2006 by the hon. Member for Portsmouth South. [121199]

Paul Goggins: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 21 February 2007, Official Report, column 785W.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland when he will answer question 113811, on public sector pensions, tabled on 5 January 2007 by the hon. Member for Yeovil. [121213]

Mr. Hain: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 23 February 2007, Official Report, column 984W.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Advertising

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 20 February 2007, Official Report, column 625W, on advertising, if he will place in the Library a copy of the contract between his Department and the newspaper in relation to the Guardian supplement on Extending Boundaries. [129870]

Mrs. McGuire: Buying newspaper advertising space is carried out for my Department by the Central Office of Information through a commercial supplier as part of wider media buying activities. There was no specific contract between the Department and the Guardian newspaper for this piece of work, only between the Department and COI, as part of a larger project.

Benefit Fraud

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proportion of calls made to the benefit fraud hotline led to (a) investigation and (b) conviction of individuals named by callers in each year since 1997. [116590]

Mr. Plaskitt: The National Benefit Fraud Hotline is very cost effective—last year it cost nearly £1 million to run but identified £21.4 million in recoverable overpayments. Between April 1999 and March 2006, 4,233 people have been convicted as a result of calls made to the National Benefit Fraud Hotline. A proportion of the 110,485 people who have received a penalty or caution over the same period will also have been initially reported via the Benefit Fraud Hotline but this information has not been collected.

Information regarding calls made, and the proportion of such calls that led to investigation and conviction is only available from April 2004. Available information regarding the number of calls actually answered from 1997 is in the following table.

	Calls answered	Referrals for investigation as a proportion of calls answered (percentage)	Convictions as a proportion of calls answered (percentage)

Child Support Agency

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what progress has been made in meeting the targets for the Child Support Agency set out: in the Child Support Agency Business Plan 2006-07; which targets he expects will be (a) met and (b) not met; and if he will make a statement. [128435]

Mr. Plaskitt [holding answer 21 March 2007]: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 16 April 2007:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Questions about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, what progress has been made in meeting the targets for the Child Support Agency set out in the Child Support Agency Business Plan 2006-07; which targets he expects will be (a) met and (b) not met; and if he will make a statement.

The Child Support Agency has six targets set by the Secretary of State for 2006-07, which were published in the Agency's Business Plan, a copy of which is available in the House of Commons Library, or on the internet via the following link: www.csa.gov.uk/pdf/english/reports/plan0607.pdf.

The Agency's current performance against these targets is published every three months in tables 2.1, 3, 7.2, 8.1,12, and 17 of the Child Support Agency Quarterly Summary Statistics.

Latest performance to December 2006 is currently available on the Internet via the following link: www.dwp.gov.uk/asd/asd1/child_support/csa_quarterly_dec06.asp and a hard copy is in the House of Commons Library.

The final assessment of how the Agency has performed against these targets, including achievements from January to March, will be published in the March 2007 Child Support Agency Quarterly Summary Statistics.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many (a) old scheme and (b) new scheme Child Support Agency cases were cleared in each month of the last two years for which figures are available. [122922]

Mr. Plaskitt [holding answer 23 February 2007]: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 3 April 2007:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many (a) old scheme and (b) new scheme Child Support Agency cases were cleared in each month of the last two years for which figures are available.

The information requested is presented in the attached table.

The clearance process includes all work undertaken on applications for child maintenance until one of the following conditions is met: a parent with care has been identified as claiming Good Cause or is subject to a Reduced Benefit Decision; the application is identified as being a change of circumstances on an existing case; the application has been closed; or for old scheme cases a maintenance assessment has been carried out and for new scheme cases, a payment arrangement between the parent with care and the non-resident parent is in place.

The Agency holds only a negligible number of completely unprocessed applications. The amount of work required to achieve clearance, and the length of time involved, varies considerably depending on, amongst other things, the circumstances of the parents and how readily they cooperate with the Agency. The work undertaken by the Agency's New Client Teams extends far beyond simply clearing new applications through the computer system. A significant proportion of the work undertaken by the Agency's New Client Teams consists of setting up the first maintenance payments to the parent with care, and retaining responsibility for this growing caseload until the first fully compliant, on time payment is made by the non-resident parent.

In addition, under the Operational Improvement Plan, the Agency is committed to reducing the number of uncleared applications. The number of uncleared applications fell by 13 per cent. in the 12 months prior to December 2006, as the Agency made progress in clearing significant numbers of older, more complex cases. These cased often require a great deal more work than other applications and this is reflected in the increasing average age of cleared cases.

For future reference, information on the number of new scheme clearances is publicly available in the Child Support Agency Quarterly Summary of Statistics (QSS), a copy of which is available in the House of Commons Library, or on the internet via the following link: http://www.dwp.gov.uk/asd/asd1/child_support/csa_quarterly_dec06.asp.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

November	23,700	1,900	25,600
December	19,900	1,300	21,200

Notes to table:

1. Numbers are rounded to the nearest hundred.
2. The increase in the number of old scheme clearances in September and October 2006 was as a result of work being carried out to clear a number of cases that had previously not been on the system.
3. The definition of a clearance is not the same on the old and new schemes. A clearance on the old scheme occurs when an assessment has been carried out, a case is closed, the parent with care (PWC) is identified as claiming Good Cause or the PWC is subject to a Reduced Benefit Decision. For a new scheme case to be cleared it must also have a maintenance collection schedule set up following a calculation.

John Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions on what date he expects all old cases of the Child Support Agency to have been brought under the new system; and if he will make a statement. [124684]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to my hon. Friend with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 16 April 2007:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, on what date he expects all old cases of the Child Support Agency to have been brought under the new system; and if he will make a statement. [124684]

The problems encountered by the Agency following the launch of the Reforms in 2003 are well documented and were widely publicised at the time. As a result of these problems the decision to bulk migrate and convert the caseload was deferred, although from the launch of the Reforms in March 2003 new rules applications to child support have continued to trigger the reactive migration of old rules cases from CSCS and following migration relevant cases have been reactively converted from old to new rules.

The child maintenance White Paper "A new system of child maintenance" sets out radical and far-reaching proposals for the wholesale reform of the child maintenance system. Box 3.1 on page 54, details the expected timetable for transition to the new system.

I hope you find this response helpful.

Children: Poverty

Natascha Engel: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will estimate how many children would be lifted out of poverty if a 70 per cent. employment rate for lone parents whose youngest child is aged 11 years or over was to be achieved. [124378]

Mr. Jim Murphy: An accurate estimate of the impact on child poverty cannot be given. This is because the employment rate for lone parents with a youngest child aged 11 years or over is currently 69 per cent. The relatively small change involved in raising this to 70 per cent. creates problems of sampling error, preventing accurate estimates of impact.

Council Tax Benefits: Carlisle

Mr. Martlew: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many pensioners living in the Carlisle City Council area are in receipt of council tax benefit. [131347]

Mr. Plaskitt: As at August 2006, there were 4,310 council tax benefit recipients aged 60 and over in Carlisle local authority.

Notes:

1. The data refer to benefit units, which may be a single person or a couple.
2. The case load figure is rounded to the nearest 10.
3. Figures exclude any second adult rebate cases.
4. 'Aged 60 and over' is defined as benefit units where the claimant and/or partner are aged 60 and over. Therefore figures will contain some claimants aged under 60 where there is a partner aged over 60 years.

Departmental Fixed Assets

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which fixed assets his Department sold for more than £10,000 in (a) 2004-05 and (b) 2005-06; and what the (i) sale value, (ii) purchaser and (iii) date of sale was of each asset. [110800]

Mrs. McGuire: Fixed assets the Department has sold for more than £10,000 are as follows:

(a) in 2004-05

Departmental Offices

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what area of office space his Department and its agencies used in central London in (a) 2004 and (b) 2006; and if he will make a statement. [112186]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department for Work and Pensions does not own any land or property as DWP has an outsourced estate via a PFI contract known as PRIME. The majority of the DWP estate has been sold (freehold, feuhold and long leasehold interests) or transferred (short leasehold interests) to Land Securities Trillium. The proceeds were released to HM Treasury in April 1998 (for the original DSS estate) and further in December 2003 when PRIME was expanded to include the former ES estate.

While DWP does not own any land/property the Department does occupy a number of buildings in Central London :

(a) During 2004 the NIA (net internal area) occupied was 75,688 sq m

(b) By December 2006 the NIA occupied was 66,068 sq m.

Departmental Staff

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what the percentage change in (a) staff and (b) staff with disabilities in his Department has been since 1 April 2002; and if he will make a statement; [118764]

(2) what the change in the proportion of his Department's staff with disabilities has been since 1 April 2002; and if he will make a statement; [118765]

(3) what steps he is taking to seek to reverse the decline in the proportion of his Department's employees who are disabled. [123166]

Mrs. McGuire: There has been an 8.53 per cent. reduction in staff headcount[1] between 31 March 2002 and 30 November 2006. There has been a 13.53 per cent. reduction in the number of disabled staff in the same period.

The proportion of staff with disabilities has reduced from 5.45 per cent. to 5.36 per cent. between 31 March 2002 and 30 November 2006, a reduction of 0.09 per cent.

Current figures are based on the proportion of staff who have voluntarily declared themselves as being disabled. However, we are aware that not all disabled staff declare their disability for departmental records, and the true figure may be higher than the figures shown. For example, the 2006 DWP Staff Survey (which is completed anonymously) showed that 13 per cent. of respondents considered themselves to have a long-standing health condition or disability.

Additionally, in 2002 the proportion of disabled staff was calculated as a proportion of all staff. However, following revised guidance from the Cabinet Office we now exclude staff for whom we have no disability status declaration. The figures for 2006 therefore exclude staff who have chosen not to declare their disability status.

The roll-out of a new computer system by the end of April this year will mean that we have a more accurate assessment of the numbers of disabled people working within the Department. As we roll out we are asking each member of staff to check the personal information we hold about them. A joint communications exercise with departmental trade unions to highlight the importance of individuals providing this information has also been planned.

The Department for Work and Pensions published its Disability Equality Schemes on 1 December 2006. These set out the Department's approach to the Disability Equality Duty (introduced by the Disability Discrimination Act 2005), including its approach as an employer. In particular, this includes our arrangements for gathering information on the effect of our policies and practices on the recruitment, development and retention of our disabled employees and making use of that information.

When we recruit externally, all advertisements contain the "Positive About Disabled People Two Ticks Symbol", and the Department ensures that all applicants who declare a disability are given reasonable adjustments at each stage of the selection process to ensure they are competing on a level playing field.

When disabled applicants are successful, all relevant adjustments are made, in consultation with the individual and expert advisers where appropriate. Managers keep under review any particular requirements that disabled employees may have, in line with the "Two Ticks" commitments.

Activity to improve the numbers of employees of under-represented groups, including disabled people, within the Senior Civil Service is under way—and further action is planned. In line with other central Government Departments, these are detailed within our 10 Point Plan and include placing adverts and articles in the specialist press and ensuring that panel members have had more training in recruitment best practice, especially diversity and equality.

[1] For reporting consistency "Headcount" refers to all staff in the permanent and fixed term staff populations. It excludes casual staff and those who are unpaid. The statistics for DWP exclude The Rent Service and Health and Safety Executive.

Departmental Databases

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what databases are controlled by his Department and its agencies; and what percentage of the data in each database he estimates is inaccurate or out of date. [124023]

Mrs. McGuire: It is not possible to provide this information without incurring disproportionate costs.

The Department has several hundred IT systems, each of which has a database of some form. The accuracy and currency of the data held within them will vary depending on the purpose of the system.

Systems which are used in the identification and control of customer records should be up to date at the point that a citizen last contacted us to inform us of their circumstance (or change of circumstance). The information is based on what is provided by the citizen and verified where appropriate.

Mr. Dunne: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how often his Department's databases are updated with the revised details of individuals who have moved house. [130597]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is not available in the format requested. The Department for Work and Pensions has updated its records around 18.5 million times as a result of people changing address.

Departmental Paper

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what mechanisms are in place to ensure his Department's economical use of paper. [128000]

Mrs. McGuire: DWP procurement policies require open competition and that these meet the cross-Government sustainable development targets. These policies recognise our responsibility to achieve value for money, make prudent use of natural resources and purchase sustainable goods and services.

The Department competitively tenders for the best value for money on office paper and print products and has mandated the maximum percentage use of recycled office and printing paper. The products we use have levels of waste content that meet targets and are from sustainable and renewable sources.

In addition, DWP staff are encouraged to reduce printing and photocopying, to use the duplexing facilities available on our office printers and photocopiers and to use the recycling facilities available in our offices for waste paper and many other recyclable items.

DWP fully supports the cross-Government sustainable operations targets, launched last year, which include commitments to reduce waste and increase recycling.

Disability Living Allowance

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proportion of income support entitled lone parent households receive disability living allowance for a child. [129801]

Mr. Plaskitt: As at August 2006, 5.1 per cent. of lone parents in receipt of income support also received disability living allowance for a child. This is the most recent figure available.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proportion of looked-after children are entitled to disability living allowance. [129802]

Mrs. McGuire: The information is not available in the format requested.

As at August 2006, the most recent date for which figures are available, 2.6 per cent. of children under 16 years of age were entitled claimants of disability living allowance.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average age is of first award for under 18-year-olds entitled to disability living allowance. [129803]

Mrs. McGuire: As at August 2006, the most recent available figure, the average age at first award for disability living allowance for those aged under 18 years of age, in Great Britain, is seven years.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many households in receipt of income support receive disability living allowance for a child in each of the last five years, broken down by component. [129804]

Mr. Plaskitt: The available information is in the following table.

Income support claimants in Great Britain, who receive disability living allowance (DLA) for a child, by component: as at August each year

	Receiving care and mobility components of DLA	Receiving care component of DLA	Receiving mobility component of DLA
2002	49,900	30,600	1,600
2003	52,600	30,700	2,000
2004	47,400	27,100	1,500
2005	41,600	23,800	1,300
2006	38,000	20,100	900

2. Figures are rounded to the nearest hundred.

DWP Information Directorate 5 per cent. sample.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average length is of entitlement to disability living allowance awarded for a child. [129807]

Mrs. McGuire: As at August 2006, the most recent available figure, the average fixed award of disability living allowance to those claimants under 16 years of age was three and a half years.

Employment

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many of his Department's jobs are located in Tamworth constituency. [129991]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department for Work and Pensions currently employs 52 staff (equating to 42.8 full-time equivalent posts) in the Tamworth constituency area.

Employment and Support Allowance

Mrs. Cryer: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what steps his Department has taken to ensure that claimants of the employment support allowance will be (a) made aware of the benefits to which they may be entitled and (b) signposted to benefits advice when appropriate; [129051]

(2) if he will introduce performance measures against which changes in (a) awareness and (b) take-up of other benefits by employment support allowance claimants can be measured. [129052]

Mr. Jim Murphy: It is right that people should have full access to information on the financial and other help available to them. We are continually reviewing the training of our staff to ensure that they are equipped to provide a good service to our customers.

We already provide extensive background information on the full range of benefits, statutory entitlements and how to go about claiming them. We have made much progress in rationalising our leaflets and the information on our websites, and increasing the accuracy and availability of it.

We have no current plans to introduce performance measures against which changes in (a) awareness and (b) take-up of other benefits by Employment and Support Allowance (ESA) claimants can be measured. However, as the implementation of the new ESA progresses we will continue working with all our stakeholders to ensure that relevant information gets to the right people, at the right time, and in the right way.

Employment Schemes

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many participants in Employment Zone programmes found work and maintained their job with help for over 13 weeks in each month since April 2000. [126309]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Since Employment Zones started in April 2000, 82,240 jobs have been gained. Of those moving into work through the programme, around 80 per cent. have moved into sustained employment lasting 13 weeks or more.

The information on the number of jobs gained in each month, and the number of those jobs lasting at least 13 weeks is in the following table.

Employment Zones

	Number of jobs gained	Of which, lasted at least 13 weeks
2000

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the cumulative cost to his Department has been of the Restart Programme. [125841]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 7 March 2007]: The full information requested is not available.

The total cost of the Restart Programme and associated activities in Jobcentre Plus, over the financial years 2004-05 and 2005-06, is estimated at £70 million.

The data for Restart has been supplied by using Jobcentre Plus Activity Based Information (ABI). No information is available before 2003-04.

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many individuals who attended the mandatory jobseeker's challenge were placed in employment within (a) one month, (b) three months and (c) six months of undertaking the course since its inception; [129388]

(2) how many unemployed individuals have attended the new Government pilot scheme, the mandatory jobseeker's challenge. [129389]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Jobseeker's Mandatory Activity (JMA) pilot is a two year pilot which started in April 2006 and is operating in 10 Jobcentre Plus districts. In pilot locations, people aged 25 and over who have been in receipt of jobseeker's allowance or national insurance credits only for more than six months are required to attend a three day JMA course. The course helps to build confidence, increase motivation and improve job search skills and is followed by three interviews with a Personal Adviser.

Between April 2006 and February 2007, 17,537 people had completed the JMA course. Separate data is not available for those attending but not completing the course.

Information on those entering work one month, three months and six months after participating in JMA can be obtained only at disproportionate cost. Results from the pilot will be included in an evaluation which will be published next year.

Employment Schemes: Manpower

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the planned expenditure is for the Jobcentre Plus Change Programme; what the aims of the Programme are; what the targets are for the Programme; and how many staff the Programme employs. [124079]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie, dated 16 April 2007:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking what the planned expenditure is for the Jobcentre Plus Change Programme; what the aims of the Programme are; what the targets are for the Programme; and how many staff the Programme employs. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

The budget allocated for the Jobcentre Plus Change Programme is £545 million for 2006-7 and £594 million for 2007-8. There are currently 360 staff employed on projects within the programme.

The aims of the Jobcentre Plus Change Programme are to:

deliver strategic change to support the Government's Welfare to Work priorities, including introducing the new Employment and Support Allowance for people with a health condition or disability; support business efficiency by changes to processes and systems;

test and pilot new approaches to services, for example by implementing additional support for lone parents; maintain existing systems with a planned schedule of new releases.

Each part of the Jobcentre Plus Change Programme has its own targets which require them to deliver changes to agreed specifications of time, cost and quality. These requirements are captured in individual business cases that are formally approved and regularly reviewed. Change Programme projects comply with standard project and programme management disciplines. The overall programme is reviewed at least monthly to monitor whether it is on track in categories such as schedules, resources, risk, governance, business readiness and benefits.

I hope this is helpful.

Gershon Review

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what efficiency savings have been made in his Department and agencies as a result of the Gershon review; and if he will make a statement. [108364]

Mrs. McGuire: At the time that the Gershon efficiency savings targets were set for the Department for Work and Pensions we already had in excess of 90 projects, programmes and initiatives under way or being considered that contributed to the Department's efficiency through modernisation of the Department's systems and processes.

After the setting of these targets the programme was reviewed in order to ensure that it would deliver the necessary efficiencies. Where appropriate projects, programmes and initiatives were modified to take into account these new targets. Additionally new projects, programmes and initiatives were assessed for their contribution to the efficiency targets.

The Department has not undertaken any project, programme or initiative solely on the basis of delivering the efficiency challenge, but on the basis of delivering value for money to taxpayers while delivering improvements to our customers' experience and contributing to the Department's achievement of its efficiency challenge.

Efficiency savings reported up to September 2006 were £874 million.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much has been spent by his Department and agencies on achieving Gershon efficiency savings; whether these costs are accounted for and included in the reports of headline efficiency savings; and if he will make a statement. [108365]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department for Work and Pensions follows the reporting requirements set for Gershon efficiency savings which do not require that efficiencies be recorded net of upfront investment costs. The efficiencies reported derive both from core management best practice initiatives and from specific efficiency projects. It is not possible to isolate how much has been spent in order to achieve Gershon efficiency savings without incurring disproportionate cost.

Housing Benefit

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many and what proportion of housing benefit recipients (a) have children and (b) receive a premium for a disabled child. [129799]

Mr. Plaskitt: The available information is in the following table.

Housing benefit (HB) recipients with dependants/a disabled child premium: Great Britain, May 2003

	Number/percentage
Number HB recipients with dependants	1,162,000
Percentage HB recipients with dependants	30.6
Number HB recipients with a disabled child premium	78,000
Percentage HB recipients with a disabled child premium	2

3. The data refer to benefit units, which may be a single person or a couple.
4. Housing benefit figures exclude any extended payment cases.
5. Dependants are defined as children aged under 16 or young adults aged 16 to 18 in full time education.

Housing Benefit: Shared Housing

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many young housing benefit recipients were subject to the shared room rate restriction in each region in each year since its introduction. [130626]

Mr. Plaskitt: The available information is in the following table:

Income Support

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people (a) below and (b) above national retirement age were claiming income support in (i) 1997 and (ii) 2006. [130849]

Mr. Plaskitt: The available information is in the following table:

Income support (IS) claimants in Great Britain by age: as at August 1997 and August 2006

	IS claimants 60 years of age and over	IS claimants under 60 years of age
August 1997	1,741,800	2,304,700
August 2006	[1]—	2,128,520

[1] Income support for those aged 60 and over was replaced by minimum income guarantee (MIG) in April 1999. MIG was, in turn, replaced by pension credit in October 2003. No comparable data is available for 2006.

Jobcentre Plus

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many branches of Jobcentre Plus there are in England and Wales. [129178]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie, dated 12 April 2007:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking how many branches of Jobcentre Plus there are in England and Wales. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

The current Jobcentre Plus network in England and Wales consists of 717 Jobcentres providing face to face access for customers. In addition we have 28 Contact Centres, which allow customers to access our services using telephones. There are currently 68 Benefit Delivery Centres in England and Wales which process benefit, and a further two Benefit Delivery Centres, one in Scotland and one in Northern Ireland which also process benefit for customers in London. Within our network we have a number of other feeder sites, some of which have a dual role as front facing offices, still processing benefit. These sites will reduce month on month as they migrate work into the main Benefit Delivery Centres by March 2008.

Customers are now using our Jobcentres differently. More of our face-to-face customer contact is on an appointment basis and information on job vacancies is readily available by telephone and the internet. This enables staff in our offices to focus on those customers in greatest need of support to return to work.

I hope this information is helpful.

Jobcentres: Norfolk

Mr. Fraser: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) which stakeholders his Department has invited to comment on the proposals to close Jobcentre Plus branches in Norfolk; [126251]

(2) what recent representations he has received from trade unions on proposals to close Jobcentre Plus branches in Norfolk; [126254]

(3) what steps his Department has taken to ensure that the public is aware of the consultation exercise on the future of Jobcentre Plus branches in Norfolk; [126258]

(4) why Cabinet Office guidelines for the length of a consultation period have not been applied to the consultation on the future of Norfolk's Jobcentre Plus branches; [126259]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie, dated 12 April 2007:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your questions about the consultation process regarding the closures of Jobcentres in Norfolk. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

The stakeholders invited to comment on the proposals to close Jobcentre Plus offices were the Members of Parliament for the constituencies affected, Chief Executives and Welfare Benefits Advisers of the Local Authorities concerned, Citizens Advice representatives, Primary Care Trusts, Trade Union representatives, providers of Jobcentre Plus programmes, the Learning and Skills Council, the Government Office for the East of England and the East of England Development Agency.

There have been informal discussions at a local level between the District Manager and local Union officials. We have not yet received a formal response to the consultation from the trade unions.

Apart from consultation with stakeholders we have put a prominently displayed statement in each of our Jobcentres advising customers of our plans and giving the contact details of the District Manager for Jobcentre Plus in Norfolk, should they wish to comment on the proposals. To date the District Manager has received four responses from customers who use Hunstanton Jobcentre and none from any of the other Jobcentres.

The Cabinet Office guidance on consultation issues relates to proposed new policy initiatives, or changes to existing policy. Jobcentre closures are operational issues. For Jobcentre Plus we are using a six week consultation period. This period has recently been extended from three weeks at the request of Ministers. We think that this allows ample time for the views of stakeholders to be considered.

National Insurance Numbers

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many national insurance numbers were (a) issued, (b) deleted and (c) current in each year since 1997. [116607]

Mr. Plaskitt: The available information is in the following tables.

Total number of national insurance numbers issued between 1997 and 2006

	Number
1997	1,017,500
1998	1,026,885
1999	1,021,776
2000	995,351
2001	928,059
2002	1,082,035
2003	1,141,795
2004	1,250,622
2005	1,486,312
2006	1,531,786

Note:
The number of national insurance numbers (NINOs) issued includes the following:
1. Children who reach 16 years of age (the juvenile registration process);
2. UK adults who missed out on the juvenile registration process; and
3.Foreign nationals who enter the UK and require a NINO for benefit, tax credit or employment purposes (adult NINO allocation process).

Total approximate number of national insurance numbers in issue at 31 December in each year between 1997 and 2006

	Number (million)
1997	66
1998	67
1999	68
2000	69
2001	70
2002	71
2003	72
2004	73

The discrepancy between the number of NINOs allocated and the increase in the overall numbers of cases in issue is due to the differences in Child Reference Numbers allocated and those changing to NINOs at aged 16 years, which is closely linked to birth rates over a 16-year period.

NINOs are not normally deleted from the Departmental Central Index (DCI) or Customer Information System (CIS). For example, they are retained after a person dies or moves abroad. This is because individuals who move abroad may at some point have a call upon contributions paid whilst in the UK. In the case of deceased individuals, a partner may make a claim for a contributory benefit, which is dependent on the contribution record of the deceased individual. This means that the number of accounts held on the system accrues as NINOs are allocated each year.

A joint data cleansing exercise was carried out in 2000-01 with Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs, who jointly own the NINO. This exercise identified NINOs for which there had been no activity for a considerable period of time and which were not known to the National Insurance Recording System (NIRs). This exercise removed 200,000 NINOs from DCI.

New Deal Schemes

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer given to the right hon. Member for Birkenhead on 19 March 2007, Official Report, column 643W, how he determines whether a person leaving the new deal rolls has found a job. [130218]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The data provided on 19 March 2007, Official Report, column 643W, on whether a person has left new deal for lone parents to a job is obtained from the Work and Pensions Longitudinal Study, which draws together data from Department for Work and Pensions computer systems and from employment records supplied by Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs.

Dr. Blackman-Woods: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the cost to the public purse of an unemployed person returning to work under (a) the new deal self-employment programme and (b) other new deal programmes. [130399]

Mr. Jim Murphy: I refer the hon. Member to the written answer I gave to her on 23 March 2007, Official Report, columns 1184-86.

New Deal Schemes: Kidderminster

Dr. Richard Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the extent to which Pertemps People Development Group Ltd. are meeting the terms of the contract by which they operate the New Deal provision for the Jobcentre Plus in Kidderminster. [128736]

Mr. Jim Murphy: All new deal contractors are required to meet the quality and delivery standards set out in their contract specification. They are subject to contract management and monitoring by professional and trained Jobcentre Plus procurement staff, in addition to any required Adult Learning Inspectorate inspection and audit.

New Deal Schemes: Sanctions

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many benefit claimants under the (a) New Deal for Lone Parents, (b) New Deal for Young People, (c) New Deal 25 Plus, (d) New Deal for Disabled People and (e) StepUP have been subject to sanctions (i) once, (ii) twice and (iii) three times or more in each year since the introduction of the scheme, broken down by reason for sanction; and how many claimants sanctioned subsequently had their benefit reinstated. [124076]

Mr. Jim Murphy: New deal for lone parents and new deal for disabled people are voluntary programmes and benefit sanctions are not applied to these programmes.

Between April and December 2002, twenty StepUP pilots were launched in selected wards across Great Britain. The last client left StepUp in January 2006. Information on StepUP sanctions is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate costs.

Information on benefit re-instatement is not available.

The available information has been placed in the Library.

Pathways to Work: Standards

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what discussions his Department has had on the Freud Report proposal of the introduction of a star system by Jobcentre Plus to measure provider performance in Pathways to Work; and if he will make a statement. [128710]

Mr. Jim Murphy: David Freud's report "Reducing dependency, increasing opportunity: options for the future of welfare to work" does not propose the introduction of a star system to measure provider performance in Pathways to Work. The report proposes, as part of a new contracting system, that

"the Department will need to develop monitoring capability similar to the successful Star Rating system developed in Australia."

The Department has been developing such a capability and will be introducing a prototype for new deal and employment zone contracts in April 2007, in order to test the concept.

Pesticides: Export Controls

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his policy is on the export to developing countries of pesticides banned for use in the UK. [131075]

Mrs. McGuire: Export of pesticides to developing countries, in line with most requirements on chemicals, is subject to European law. EC Regulation 304/2003/EC concerning the export and import of certain dangerous chemicals includes provisions that provide importing countries with information on chemicals that are banned in Europe, and enable them to make informed decisions on whether they want to accept or refuse the export, or to allow it under conditions. The regulation also bans the export of certain pesticides. The regulation incorporates the provisions of the Rotterdam Convention on the Prior Informed Consent Procedure for Certain Hazardous Chemicals and Pesticides in International Trade.

Smith Institute: Finance

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much money from the public purse (a) his Department and (b) its agencies gave to (i) the Smith Institute and (ii) its subsidiary SI Events Limited in each year since 1997; and for what purpose each payment was made. [123100]

Mrs. McGuire: Expenditure recorded in the Department for Work and Pensions Financial systems for the Smith Institute is as follows:

Payment date	£	AC
17 April 2000	29.95	Management conference
7 January 2003	50.00	Subscriptions
5 August 2003	150.00	Staff training
28 September 2004	50.00	Subscriptions
3 October 2005	150.00	Other general expenditure
22 December 2005	50.00	Subscriptions
8 November 2006	50.00	General office expenditure

Social Fund

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many applications to the Social Fund were (a) successful and (b) unsuccessful in each of the last 12 months for which figures are available. [124900]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is not available in the format requested. Such information as is available is in the following tables.

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what measures (a) have been and

(b) are planned to be put in place to assist (i) pensioners and (ii) claimants for whom English is a second language in accessing the Social Fund system. [130178]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide my hon. Friend with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie, dated 16 April 2007:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking what measures (a) have been and (b) are planned to be put in place to assist (i) pensioners and (ii) claimants for whom English is a second language in accessing the Social Fund system. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Pensioners can make enquiries about the Social Fund to the Pension Service or to Jobcentre Plus. Pension Centres hold stocks of Social Fund application forms and staff will give general advice about the Social Fund. If more detailed information is required customers will be directed to their nearest Jobcentre Plus office that deals with the Social Fund.

With regard to customers for whom English is a second language, it is the policy of the Department for Work and Pensions to provide an interpreter when there is a need to communicate with a customer who is unable to communicate adequately in English, and who cannot, or does not wish, to provide their own interpreter. This service can be provided by the use of multi-lingual staff, the use of face-to-face interpreters, either from known local interpreting services, or from the departmental face-to-face interpreting contract or by using the Departmental telephone interpreting contract.

The Jobcentre Plus leaflet "Jobcentre Plus—Our service standards" gives customers information about help available if they do not speak English. This leaflet is available on the Jobcentre Plus Internet website in a number of languages. There are also four leaflets dealing specifically with the Social Fund that are available in English or Welsh in a printed version and that can also be accessed along with versions in several other languages via the Jobcentre Plus Internet.

There are no additional measures planned to assist pensioners or customers for whom English is a second language in accessing the Social Fund.

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will place in the Library copies of the (a) race impact assessments, (b) gender impact assessments and (c) disability impact assessments for the four London transitional offices prior to the centralisation of Social Fund work in London in the 2007-08 financial year. [130180]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide my hon. Friend with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie, dated 16 April 2007:

The Secretary of State for Work and Pensions has asked me to reply to your question asking if he will place in the Library copies of the (a) race impact assessments, (b) gender impact assessments and (c) disability impact assessments for the four London transitional offices prior to the centralisation of Social Fund work in London in the 2007-08 financial year. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

The Race Impact Assessment for London Benefit processing has been published on the Jobcentre Plus website (www.jobcentreplus.gov.uk) and a copy will be placed in the Library.

We are in the process of reviewing the Race Impact Assessment with our Diversity and Equality colleagues, taking into account changes which have taken place since May 2005. This review will also include gender and disability Impact Assessments and will be completed by May 2007. The outcome of the review will be published on the Jobcentre Plus website and a copy will be placed in the Library.

Social Fund: Greater London

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the total current unrecovered Social Fund debt is; and what the figure is for (a) London and (b) each office in London. [131211]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is in the following table:

Social Security Benefits

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people were claiming (a) jobseeker's allowance, (b) incapacity benefits and (c) disability allowance in (i) 1997 and (ii) 2006; and how many of these categories of data are classified as national statistics. [130850]

Mr. Plaskitt: The available information is in the following table. Claimant numbers for all three benefits are DWP National Statistics.

Jobseeker's allowance, incapacity benefit, and severe disablement allowance claimants in Great Britain, as at August 1997 and 2006

Benefit	August 1997	August 2006
Jobseeker's allowance	1,465,500	924,200
Incapacity benefit	2,455,100	2,447,960
Severe disablement allowance	383,400	277,020

Notes:
1. Jobseeker's allowance figures have been rounded to the nearest 100.
2. Jobseeker's allowance figures are seasonally adjusted.
3. Claimant figures for incapacity benefit include incapacity benefit credits only cases.

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what criteria are used to decide the levels of payments made for (a) income support, (b) jobseeker's allowance and (c) the carer's allowance; and if he will make a statement. [131147]

Mr. Plaskitt: The Government take into account a number of factors when reviewing benefit rates each year, the most important of which is the level of inflation. For some years, carer's allowance has been increased in line with the retail prices index. However, jobseeker's allowance and income support are increased by the Rossi index, which is based on the retail prices index and reflects the costs of living increases for people living on these benefits.

Social Security Benefits: Disabled

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people who claim disability living allowance are also claiming (a) industrial injuries disablement benefit, (b) war disablement pension, (c) funding from the independent living fund and (d) constant attendance allowance. [130237]

Mrs. McGuire: As at August 2006, the most recent available information, there were 253,360 people in receipt of both disability living allowance and industrial injuries disablement benefit.

Information is not available on the numbers receiving both disability living allowance and war disablement pension.

As at 10 March 2007, there were 19,234 people receiving disability living allowance and financial assistance from the Independent Living Funds.

As at August 2006, the most recent available information, there were 2,140 people in receipt of both disability living allowance and constant attendance allowance.

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what benefits are available for people with disabilities who are below the retirement age but receive private pensions; and if he will make a statement. [130915]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department administers a wide range of working age benefits to cover different needs and circumstances. All of these could be available to people with disabilities who receive private pensions. However, entitlement to each benefit, and the amount payable, would depend on a person meeting the relevant conditions.

Social Security Benefits: Fraud

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many cases were referred to the National Identity Fraud Unit in each year since 1997; how many of these cases were investigated in each year; and how many of these cases resulted in a conviction in each year. [124083]

Mr. Plaskitt: Information is not available as to how many of the cases referred to the National Identity Fraud Unit (NIFU) led to a conviction.

The available information is in the following table.

NIFU referrals

	Number of cases referred to NIFU[1]	Number of cases referred by NIFU to Fraud Investigation Services[2]
1998-99	3,823	[3]
1999-2000	5,354	[3]
2000-01	4397	[3]
2001-02	3,111	[3]
2002-03	[4]14,665	[3]
2003-04	[4]39,555	400
2004-05	7,227	793
2005-06	8,891	2,689

[1] Data regarding the number of cases referred to the NIFU not available prior to 1998-99.
[2] Not all cases referred to NIFU are referred to the DWP Fraud Investigation Service for investigation. Many are referred to other Government Departments either as intelligence files or for further investigation. The Fraud Investigation Service will only investigate referrals which involve a claim to benefit. Many cases referred to NIFU do not involve benefit cases.
[3] Data not available.
[4] There was a large increase in the number of referrals in 2002-03 and 2003-04 due to Operation Eame, which was a joint operation with the Home Department which flagged a few thousand immigration offenders to prevent incorrect payment of benefit.

Social Security Benefits: Highland Council

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether his Department plans to continue to fund two posts in the benefit maximisation team at Highland Council after the end of March. [130196]

James Purnell [holding answer 27 March 2007]: No. Under the Link-Age Programme, it was made clear to contractors that funds from The Partnership Fund were time limited and there was no expectation that future funding would be sought from any source, or any extension of funding granted. The purpose of the project was solely for information gathering and evaluation to inform any future strategies and policies.

Social Security Benefits: Postal Services

Mr. Dunne: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much the bodies responsible for awarding (a) pension credit, (b) housing benefit, (c) income support, (d) jobseeker's allowance, (e) incapacity benefit, (f) council tax benefit and (g) state pension have spent on sending mail items in each of the last five years. [130596]

Mr. Plaskitt: Spend on sending mail items in the last five years is detailed in the following table. The Pension Service is responsible for awarding pension credit and state pension. Jobcentre Plus is responsible for awarding income support, jobseekers allowance and incapacity benefit. Housing and council tax benefit is awarded by the claimant's local authority. No spend data is available and is not included therefore in the table.

	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006	Total
Pension credit	656,038	2,173,101	3,724,827	3,174,754	2,740,667	12,469,387

State pension	5,859,451	6,376,488	6,027,215	4,559,554	6,093,716	28,916,424
Total	28,115,172	28,203,824	24,861,597	18,947,980	20,331,804	120,460,377

Social Security Benefits: Sanctions

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment his Department has made of the effect of benefit sanctions. [124085]

Mr. Plaskitt: There is strong evidence to suggest that sanctions do drive behaviour. Of those claiming jobseekers allowance (JSA) the vast majority comply with the JSA conditions; only 14 per cent. Are actually referred for a decision and only 4 per cent. Actually have a sanction applied. Research of those that have and have not been sanctioned on JSA found that nearly half of those sanctioned think their own sanction was fair.

80 per cent. Of lone parents attend work focused interviews (WFI). Of the 20 per cent. Who fail to attend the majority, two thirds, go on to attend their subsequent WFI following a sanction or threat of a sanction.

In the pathways pilots only around 1 per cent. Of customers have been sanctioned.

These figures suggest that the overwhelming majority of claimants meet the conditions and understand the need for sanctions when those conditions are not met.

While there is a financial penalty to sanctions the threat of sanctioning is usually enough to deter non-compliance with the rules. But where there is non-compliance and a sanction is applied, it has to be sufficient to drive home the message that benefit is only paid to those who meet the conditions.

Social Security Benefits: Telephone Services

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many calls were made to the 08456 088564 Jobcentre Plus number of the Department for Work and Pensions in each of the last six months; what average time was taken to answer calls in each month; and how many missed calls there were in each month. [124967]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie, dated 3 April 2007:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking how many calls were made to the 08456 088564 Jobcentre Plus number of the Department for Work and Pensions in each of the last six months; what was the average time it took to answer calls; and how many missed calls there were in each month. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

The telephone number 08456 088564 relates to Exeter, which we are currently converting into a Benefits Delivery Centre. When this process is complete the new telephony system will be able to provide the requested information.

As part of this transition, the 0845 number was introduced from 05 December 2006 and available data shows an increase in calls answered each month from 6,426 calls in December 2006 to 7,385 in January 2007 and 7,770 in February 2007.

We are working hard to ensure the number of calls answered continues to increase. The average length of each call is approximately 4 minutes.

I hope this is helpful.

Social Security Benefits: Terrorism

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many individuals related to suspected terrorists have had their welfare payments

(a) suspended and (b) terminated in each of the last nine months; and what value of payments was suspended or terminated in each case. [131365]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is not available.

State Retirement Pensions

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number of people who will be entitled to a state pension in 2012. [126392]

James Purnell [holding answer 13 March 2007]: The information is not available in the format requested. For the year 2012-13 the number of people in receipt of state pension is estimated to be 13.3 million.

Note:

Figures are rounded to the nearest 100,000 as they are estimates and therefore subject to variation.

DWP Forecasting Division.

State Retirement Pensions: Carers

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will bring forward amendments to legislation to ensure that carers who claim state pension are also able to claim carer's allowance. [130463]

Mrs. McGuire: Depending on their circumstances, all pensioners may be entitled to extra help from social security benefits on top of their state pension.

We have already changed the rules so that carers aged 65 or over can claim carer's allowance. State pension and carer's allowance are both income maintenance benefits, and they are not payable in full at the same time because this would involve duplicate provision from public funds. However, where state pension is payable at less than the rate of carer's allowance, an amount of carer's allowance can be paid to make up the difference.

There are no current plans to introduce any additional allowance in respect of pensioners who are also carers, or to change the policy on overlapping benefits in respect of carer's allowance and state pension.

Voluntary Organisations: Religion

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what methodology his Department uses to assess the contribution of faith-based groups to the delivery of welfare and the preparation for work in the UK; and if he will make a statement. [123170]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Department for Work and Pensions (DWP) has many valuable links with faith-based organisations, as with other parts of the voluntary and community sector. Faith-based organisations work with the Department in policy development, as members of consultative groups; as partners with local communities, particularly where they are disadvantaged in the labour market; and suppliers delivering welfare and employment services under contract to the Department.

Where faith-based organisations tender for welfare contracts, their proposition is assessed in exactly the same terms as other voluntary or private sector bidders.

Welfare to Work: Reform

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent meetings (a) Ministers and (b) officials in his Department have had with (i) the Department of Health, (ii) the Department for Education and Skills, (iii) the Department for Communities and Local Government, (iv) the Department for Trade and Industry, (v) the Home Office and (vi) HM Treasury to discuss the recommendations of the David Freud Review of the Welfare to Work Strategy. [127737]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Ministers and officials have had, and will continue to have, regular meetings with other Departments on areas of common interest. This has included discussions on the recent review by David Freud.

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the changes to legislation necessary to implement the recommendations of the Freud Review on Welfare to Work; and if he will make a statement. [127741]

Mr. Jim Murphy: David Freud's independent review "Reducing dependency, increasing opportunity: options for the future of welfare to work" was published on 5 March 2007. The Government are considering its recommendations, including any changes to legislation that may be necessary and will respond in due course.

Winter Fuel Payments

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much was paid in winter fuel payments to pensioners living outside the UK in 2006-07, broken down by country of recipients' residence. [129821]

James Purnell: The final figures for 2006-07 on Pensioners living outside the UK are not available at present.

The most recent figures available are for 2005-06 and were given in the reply on 28 February 2007, Official Report, column 1415W.

Young Persons

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many and what percentage of young people between 16 and 25 years were not in work, training or education in each local authority area in England and Wales in each year since 1997. [110530]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The information requested has been placed in the Library.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Community Development: Religion

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what investigations take place into applicants for grants from the Faith Communities Capacity Building Fund (FCCBF) on (a) the extent of their representativeness amongst that religion's followers and (b) the ability of groups to finance schemes without FCCBF grants; and if she will make a statement. [131278]

Mr. Woolas: Applications for funding from the Faith Communities Capacity Building Fund (FCCBF) are administered by the Community Development Foundation on behalf of Communities and Local Government and are considered against a range of criteria, based on assessment of supporting information provided.

The consideration process does not consider the extent of applicants' representativeness among a religion's followers, but where relevant the Community Development Foundation will take care to ensure an organisation does reach the communities they claim to.

Council Housing: Property Transfer

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will publish the results of each local authority housing stock transfer ballot that has taken place in the last two years. [130297]

Yvette Cooper: Large scale voluntary transfer ballots results from 1 April 2005 to date are listed in the following table:

Council Tax

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what provision is made when setting council tax banding for dwellings located within estates where services are funded directly by residents rather than the local authority; and if she will make a statement. [131186]

Mr. Woolas: Council tax bandings are based on open market property values in 1991, which—in such cases—will reflect the local circumstances for the estate.

Council Tax: Part-time Students

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance she has given to local authorities on the eligibility of part-time students to pay council tax; and if she will make a statement. [130748]

Mr. Woolas: Council Tax Practice Note No. 2—'Liability, Discounts and Exemptions' published in 1993 by then Department of the Environment, provided guidance to local authorities on who qualified as a student for the purposes of a council tax discount disregard or exemption. Further guidance on council tax and students has been provided to local authorities by the Department of the Environment and its successors through council tax implementation and information letters dated 15 October 1992, 4 December 1992, 13 March 1995, 13 November 1996, 27 November 2003 and 5 October 2004.

Council Tax: Fines

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the level of the fine is that may be deployed against local residents who do not fill in a questionnaire sent by the Valuation Office Agency asking for information on the property attributes of their residence. [129681]

Ruth Kelly: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 28 March 2007, Official Report, columns 1596-97W.

Councillors: Payments

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance her Department has issued to local authorities on the probity of payments from councillors' allowances to political parties or political groups being paid via local authority payroll arrangements. [129662]

Ruth Kelly: No guidance has been issued by the Department on this subject. Donations to political parties by councillors are a matter for the members concerned.

Departments: Databases

Mr. Dunne: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how often her Department's databases are updated with the details of individuals who have moved house. [130598]

Yvette Cooper: Communities and Local Government does not hold databases on members of the public moving house.

Departments: Manpower

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many staff in her Department are based in or allocated to regional activities; and what the salary costs of those staff were in the last financial year. [130124]

Angela E. Smith: Communities and Local Government had 950 (Full-Time Equivalent 910) out of a total 2,799 (Full-Time Equivalent 2,681) staff based in the nine Government Offices for the Regions at the end of the last financial year 2005-06. Communities and Local Government's share of these 2,799 staffs costs was broadly pro-rata to its 34 per cent. staff numbers, but that element could be separated from its overall Government Office Administration resource contribution of £138,741,000[1] only at disproportionate cost.

In addition, a number of staff in the Department's HQ contribute to work aimed at delivering the Government's regional objectives. These include those working on regional resilience, on the regional economic performance public service agreement target, on broader cities and regions policy, in planning and housing strategy and on the development of Communities England. They also include the staff of the Regional Co-ordination Unit, which provides central services to all ten Departments operating through the Government Office network.

Again, it is not possible to disaggregate the specifically regional elements of these staffs activities, but the Department's Annual Report 2006 sets out in detail the resources allocated to different work streams.

Departments: Paper

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what mechanisms are in place to ensure her Department's economical use of paper. [128012]

Angela E. Smith: Paper supplied for use in the Department's laser copiers and facilities management document copying machines is of 100 per cent. post-consumer waste materials.

The Department's facilities management contractor operates a waste paper recycling scheme whereby collections are made on a regular basis through the organisation.

The Department's publications, where printed, use paper material of no less than 75 per cent. post-consumer waste. Any printed publications to be destroyed by the Department's storage contractors are sent for pulping and recycling into new products.

Departments: Pay

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what the salary band is of her Department's new Director of Communications; [128443]

(2) what the name is of her Department's new Director of Communications. [128559]

Angela E. Smith: The salary for the Director of Communications falls in line with other major Departments of State, within pay band 2 of the senior civil service pay range, details of which are published on www.civilservice.gov.uk

The names of all directors in the Department are published on the Department's website at www.communities.gov.uk

Departments: Public Appointments

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will list the former hon. Members who left Parliament in 2005 who have since been appointed to public bodies by her Department, broken down by party; and who was responsible for making each appointment. [130138]

Angela E. Smith: Information about the political activity of appointees is recorded and publicised in accordance with the independent Commissioner for Public Appointments' Code of Practice. This shows that no former hon. Members who left Parliament in 2005 have since been appointed to public bodies sponsored by the Department for Communities and Local Government, which was established in May 2006. Those appointed by the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister are as follows:

Name

Candy Atherton

Party

Labour

Appointing Authority

Minister for Housing and Planning.

Departments: Publicity

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many press, information and marketing staff are employed by her Department. [129101]

Angela E. Smith: The members of the Department's Communications directorate are listed in The White Book, published by COI, which is available in the Library of the House.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what public funding her Department has provided to the Media Planet Group for (a) advertorials and (b) supplements in the last 12 months. [129200]

Angela E. Smith: The Department's Communications Directorate has not provided any funding to the Media Planet Group for advertorials or supplements in the last 12 months.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many (a) press, (b) information, (c) communications and (d) marketing staff are employed by her Department. [129276]

Angela E. Smith: The members of the Department's Communications directorate are listed in The White Book, published by COI, which is available in the Library of the House.

Discrimination

Angela Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what progress has been made with the Discrimination Law Review; and when she expects to publish the Review. [131610]

Mr. Woolas: As the Secretary of State announced to the All-Party Parliamentary Group on Equalities on 20 March, the proposals emerging from the Discrimination Law Review will be published for public consultation in May.

Emergency Services: Reorganisation

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what consultation her Department has undertaken on the regionalisation of fire control centres with (a) the police and (b) the ambulance service. [130911]

Angela E. Smith: The Department consulted widely on proposals to establish a network of Regional Control Centres in 2003, before the project was initiated. The FiReControl project remains in touch with developments within the other emergency services and is a member of the 999/112 Liaison Committee, which includes representatives of the police, ambulance services and the coastguard.

Fire Services

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what advice her Department has issued to fire authorities on co-responding following the decision by the Court of Appeal in March 2007. [130912]

Angela E. Smith: No advice about co-responding has been given to Fire and Rescue Authorities since the Court of Appeal decision. The court case was about whether co-responding formed part of firefighters' contracted duties. Firefighters' terms and conditions are a matter for the employers.

We fully support co-responding schemes in principle, given their potential to save lives, and would wish to see all Fire and Rescue Authorities working in partnership with their local Ambulance Service NHS Trusts to introduce such schemes locally if that is appropriate. But decisions on whether to introduce or maintain co-responding schemes are for each Fire and Rescue Authority to make, subject to local needs and resources.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance has been issued to fire (a) authorities and (b) services relating to the installation of CCTV in fire engines. [129751]

Ruth Kelly: Communities and Local Government have issued guidance to authorities/services relating to the installation of CCTV in fire appliances on two occasions. These are given as follows:

A section on the provision of CCTV on fire appliances has been included in the recently published Fire and Rescue Service Circular, 14/2007 (issued 15 March 2007) 'Tackling Violence at Work: Good Practice Guidance Document for Fire and Rescue Services' The extract from this document that relates to CCTV provides evidence that CCTV reduces attacks on crews and appliances. The guidance points out that the use of CCTV cameras comes under the scope of the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 (RIPA) and the Data Protection Act 1988 (DPA).

The circular outlines the importance of CCTV in providing continuity of evidence needed to meet the requirements of The Police and Criminal Evidence Act (PACE), to support the principles of "prevent and deter" and can provide evidence to catch and convict perpetrators. The circular recommended that authorities should consider the use of CCTV in support of staff that may be exposed to violence at work in identified areas of high risk (Ref 7.1.3).

Reference to the provision of CCTV on fire appliances has also been made in the "Pumping Appliance Output Based Specification and Compliance Statement" that forms part of the "Firebuy" Tender framework agreements for pumping appliances, which stated that a CCTV system with 360 vision and a record facility should be offered as part of any tender.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many and which staff working in fire control centres are on short-term contracts. [131228]

Angela E. Smith: This information requested is not held by the Department.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she expects (a) each regional fire control centre to open and (b) staff to migrate to each centre; and what the rental costs are expected to be for each centre in the final year of operation. [131229]

Angela E. Smith: The dates when each FRA control room functions are expected to cut over to the new regional control centre are set out in the following table. The table also gives the annual rent for each RCC building. Prior to cut-over, each RCC building will be equipped with IT infrastructure that will provide the call handling and mobilisation functionality. The RCCs will also be used for staff training and by the regional project management team.

Staff will become employees of an RCC at or around the time of their authority cut-over.

Gaming Clubs: Planning Permission

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether local planning authorities may take the potential for an increase in problem gambling into account when considering the merits of a planning application for a casino or other venue with gambling facilities; and what guidance her Department has published on this issue. [128592]

Yvette Cooper: The Department has published no specific guidance on this issue. Planning policy statement 1: Delivering Sustainable Development advises that the impact of development on the social fabric of communities is a consideration which should be taken into account in the development plan process—this would include the potential impact of the development of a casino, or any other type of development, on the community.

Whether or not a particular consideration is material in the determination of a planning application is a matter for the courts—if it is material, then it is a matter for the decision maker to decide what weight to give it. Any consideration which relates to the use or development of land is capable of being a material consideration.

Ground Rent: East Sussex

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many homeowners in (a) Eastbourne and (b) East Sussex pay rentcharge. [130927]

Mr. Woolas: The precise address and location of a particular property is required to access this information from the Land Registry. It is not possible to provide the quantity of homeowners paying a rentcharge without a description of all the properties relevant to the inquiry. Information on a particular premises can be obtained for a small charge by contacting the Land Registry.

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many rentcharge payers the Government Office for East Sussex has arranged to receive redemption in each of the last five years. [130928]

Mr. Woolas: The National Rentcharge Unit based in the Government Office for the North West has the national responsibility for the administration and appraisal of all applications for the redemption and apportionment of a rentcharge using the provisions of the Rentcharges Act 1977.

Rentcharge redemption data is held at national level within the National Rentcharge Unit database and therefore does not enable us to produce a breakdown of details at regional or sub-regional level. However, a review of manual records shows that no applications have been received from the East Sussex area in the last five years.

Hartlepool Borough Council: Government Assistance

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much was awarded to Hartlepool Borough Council in government grants in each year since 1996. [131363]

Mr. Woolas: The information requested is not easily extracted from the available records and to produce this in the format required would take a considerable amount of time and the cost of compliance would far exceed the appropriate limit.

Heat: Wastes

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the potential for the use of currently unused waste heat from power plants in heat grids to distribute warmth in new sustainable communities. [129108]

Yvette Cooper: The Government are committed to responding to the challenges of climate change and the need for new homes in sustainable communities. On 13 December 2006, Communities and Local Government launched a consultation on the draft of a new Planning Policy Statement on climate change. This makes clear that new development should be located to optimise its carbon performance and make the most of existing and planned opportunities for decentralised, renewable and low-carbon energy supplies. In 2006 the Government amended Part L of the Building Regulations to increase energy efficiency standards. Without prescribing solutions, the regulations set standards for energy performance in a way that enables builders to take into account the benefits of renewable and on-site energy generating systems, thus encouraging their take-up.

Government have not made any specific assessment of the potential for the use of currently unused waste heat from power plants. As promised in the Energy Review Report, we have issued new and improved guidance to power station developers on meeting their combined heat and power obligations. This will encourage the waste heat from plants to be utilised for other purposes, including the distribution of heating in communities.

Home Information Packs

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will place in the Library a full copy of the Central Office for Information Strategic Consultancy report on the impact of home information packs. [103902]

Yvette Cooper: The Strategic Consultancy arm of the Central Office of Information have not been commissioned to produce a report on the impact of home information packs. The COI were asked to advise on communications last June.

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on what date (a) energy performance certificates and (b) home condition reports will become mandatory before a property can be put on the market. [129067]

Yvette Cooper: Energy performance certificates (EPCs) will become mandatory prior to marketing a property for sale from 1 June. An interim energy assessment will have to be provided from the same date for new build properties, and a full EPC for new build properties will be needed for these from October 2007.

Home condition reports (HCRs) are an authorised part of the Home Information Pack and we will continue to promote their roll-out from 1 June. The option of mandatory HCR's remains on the table.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which organisations, agencies and Departments will have access to the Home Condition Report database. [129253]

Yvette Cooper: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 22 May 2006, Official Report, column 1400W.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether (a) a home information pack and (b) an energy performance certificate will be required to purchase an equity stake under the Social Homebuy scheme. [129233]

Yvette Cooper: Home Information Packs are only required for properties put up for sale on the open market. Sales under the Social HomeBuy scheme to sitting tenants by housing associations and local authorities do not involve marketing and therefore do not need a pack. From October 2008, the provisions of the Energy Performance of Buildings (Certificates and Inspections) (England and Wales) Regulations 2007 come into force for non-marketed residential sales and for rental properties and an EPC will be required at that time.

Housing

David Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the number of surplus homes in the North West region which remain to be demolished before restrictions on the number of homes which may be built by local authorities in Cumbria may be removed. [129866]

Yvette Cooper: The existing RSS, which was set out on 31 March 2003, allows for 1,170 dwellings (net of clearance replacement) to be built in Cumbria per year. The total figure for housing in the NW region is 12,790 per year reflecting household growth and the need to support regeneration at that time. The RSS is currently being revised.

Long-term out-migration trends from the core urban areas have been reversed. To reflect this, to cater for increased household projections, to take account of ambitions for economic growth, and to address affordability issues, the draft RSS is proposing an increase of almost 80 per cent. to 22,844—and this is in addition to houses built to replace any demolished.

The draft new RSS allows for 1,850 dwellings a year in Cumbria. We await their report and will prepare Proposed Changes to the document in the light of this. We anticipate that the Final RSS will be published at the end of this year.

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much her Department and its predecessor allocated for (a) major repairs allowance, (b) housing revenue account subsidy, (c) regional housing executive allocations for council housing, (d) regional housing executive allocations for registered social landlord housing, (e) Approved Development Programme for Housing Corporation, (f) arm's length management organisations, (g) private finance initiatives and (h) stock transfer in (i) England, (ii) the West Midlands and (iii) Birmingham in each year since 1997-98. [129907]

Yvette Cooper: The data has been compiled in a series of tables and is lodged in the Library of the House.

The different funding streams referred to in the tables have different financial bases. They relate to the permission to borrow, grants and allowances, this affects how they can be presented with some past figures being allocations but some are actual spend.

(a) Major repairs allowance represents the estimated long-term average amount of capital spending required to maintain a local authority's housing stock in its current condition. The figures are an allowance within the HRA subsidy system.

(b) Housing revenue account subsidy refers to the entitlement local authorities receive from Government to support their housing programmes. 2005-06 is the latest year for which audited figures are available. The figures provided in the table are the annual subsidy entitlement.

(c) Supported capital expenditure is the level of borrowing for capital purposes that is supported by the Government through Housing Revenue Account Subsidy. This value is based on the Regional Housing Boards' allocations.

(d/e) Regional Housing Board recommendations for investment in affordable housing is distributed via the Housing Corporation's Affordable Housing Programme as a grant (formerly the Approved Development Programme). It provides investment to Registered Social Landlords and other developers for the provision of homes for social rent and low cost home ownership.

(f) Arm's Length Management Organisation (ALMO) allowance represents revenue support payable to local authorities to finance borrowing for ALMO purposes.

(g) Housing PFI subsidy payments support the capital costs of PFI projects. HRA subsidy payments are made via the Housing Revenue Account Subsidy System, and payments for General Fund schemes via the General Fund.

(h) Stock transfers can involve two types of expenditure. Payments to the Public Works Loan Board to clear Overhanging Debt held by LAs attributable to transferred housing, and gap funding payments which are grants to some RSLs who receive negative value transferred housing.

Housing Associations: Charities

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on what basis housing associations and trusts are granted charitable status. [130609]

Yvette Cooper: All bodies which exist for purposes which are recognised as charitable in law and operate for the benefit of the public are required to register with the Charity Commission as charities, unless they are exempt or excepted from the need to do so. Housing associations which wish to become Registered Social Landlords (RSLs), registration is dependent on the housing association meeting the Charity Commission and the Housing Corporation's registration criteria.

In addition, RSLs that are charitable Industrial and Provident Act Societies (IPS) have to meet the Housing Corporation and Financial Services Authority's (FSA) registration criteria. The Charity Commission cannot register these bodies. They are registered as legal entities by the FSA with charitable objects (standard model clauses agreed by the Charity Commission, FSA, National Housing Federation and the Housing Corporation). IPS housing associations can apply to the Inland Revenue for recognition as a charity. If recognised they are known as exempt charities. Currently 680 housing associations fall into this category.

Housing Corporation

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the (a) projected and (b) actual expenditure by the Housing Corporation was in each English region in each of the last three years. [115783]

Yvette Cooper: The following table shows actual expenditure through the Housing Corporation's Affordable Housing Programme in each English region for 2003-04, 2004-05 and 2005-06. Expenditure is projected for each region and reviewed several times in the year.

The detailed split of expenditure in 2006-07 and 2007-08 reflects the individual programmes in each region. Each region has a two year completions target with some flexibility between the two years to enable: flexible programming.

Housing: Construction

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many new houses were built in each of the five years, broken down by (a) Government Office Region and (b) local authority area; and how many were built on windfall development sites. [129159]

Yvette Cooper: A table showing the number of new build dwelling completions in each Government Office Region and local authority in England, in each year from 2000-01 to 2005-06, has been placed in the Library of the House. These are as reported by local authorities and the National House Building Council, and therefore are not comparable with other measures which include conveyancing and demolition.

Information is not held centrally on numbers built on windfall sites.

Housing: Disabled

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 21 March 2007, Official Report, column 988W, on housing: disabled, whether there will be a national mutual exchange scheme which provides its services free of charge to replace those schemes run by Scout Solutions Ltd. which her Department has recently terminated. [130828]

Yvette Cooper: The Government have replaced the mutual exchange scheme, which was facilitated by Scout Solutions Projects Ltd., with a number of alternative providers offering a free of charge service. These services can be accessed via the Governments' website www.direct.gov.co.uk/socialhousing. This link also provides information on a wide range of housing related matters.

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what total amount her Department allocated to Hartlepool Borough Council for disabled facilities grants in each of the last five years; and if she will increase in real terms the amount provided in each of the next three years. [131394]

Mr. Woolas: The following table details Hartlepool council's allocations from central Government funding for the last five years.

Hartlepool—disabled facilities grant (DFG) allocation

2003-04	168,000.00
2004-05	180,000.00
2005-06	192,000.00
2006-07	553,000.00
2007-08	264,000.00

DFG funding for the next three years will be decided as part of the comprehensive spending review (CSR). I cannot pre-empt any funding decisions ahead of the CSR.

Housing: Energy

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much has been allocated to the Energy Performance Certificates scheme for (a) start-up costs and (b) 2007-08. [124839]

Yvette Cooper: The Department has allocated some £1.96 million to start-up costs for the Energy Performance Certificates scheme. This money is required to put into place the necessary systems and calculation methodologies to support introduction of energy certificates and to develop guidance, qualifications and quality assurance frameworks for energy assessors. The allocations for 2007-08 are currently under consideration.

Housing: Finance

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which local authorities (a) had a surplus on their housing revenue accounts and (b) received a subsidy for that account in each of the last 10 years; and how much that (i) surplus and (ii) subsidy was in each case. [107486]

Yvette Cooper: Data for the years 1990-93 inclusive can be obtained only at disproportionate cost. Details of housing revenue account subsidy entitlements for individual authorities separated by main income and expenditure items for the years 1994-95 to 2004-05 inclusive are included in a table that has been deposited in the Library of the House.

Housing: Greater London

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many homes for sale on the open market have been built in (a) the London borough of Merton, (b) South West London and (c) London in each of the last five years. [121563]

Yvette Cooper: Communities and Local Government do not collect data on homes for sale on the open market. However, we do collect data on the number of private dwellings that are built and these are presented in the following table.

Communities and Local Government do not define an area for South West London so we have provided figures on the number of new properties for each London borough for 2002 to 2006 as follows:

Housing: Hartlepool

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many (a) affordable and (b) social houses were built in Hartlepool constituency in each of the last five years. [130905]

Yvette Cooper: The numbers of affordable and social rent homes provided in Hartlepool in each of the last five years are tabled as follows. Some affordable homes are provided through the acquisition and refurbishment of dwellings purchased on the open market, these figures have been included.

Affordable housing has been classified to include homes for social and intermediate rent as well as those provided thorough low cost homeownership schemes. Local authorities can require contributions towards affordable housing as part of Section 106 agreements.

Housing: Inspections

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many qualified (a) home inspectors and (b) domestic energy assessors there are on the (i) Buildings Research Establishment, (ii) Royal Institution of Chartered Surveyors and (iii) SAVA Government-accredited schemes. [129069]

Yvette Cooper: As at 23 March there were 1,085 home inspector candidates who had successfully passed their exam. There were over 3,000 DEA candidates who were in or about to begin training, all of whom could qualify by June.

All home inspector certification schemes are operated by private companies, so enquiries on their current membership would be more appropriately addressed to individual schemes.

The contact details for the three schemes are:

(i) Building Research Establishment

Telephone: 01923 664947

Email: enquiries@breinspector.co.uk

(ii) Royal Institute of Chartered Surveyors

Telephone: 0870 333 1600

Email: safeas@rics.org

(iii) Surveyors and Valuers Association

Telephone: 0870 837 6500

Email: info@sava-cs.org.uk

Accreditation schemes for domestic energy assessors are in the process of being approved by the Secretary of State, and will receive formal approval shortly. As no approval has yet been made details cannot be provided.

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what funding her Department provides to government-accredited schemes to train (a) home inspectors and (b) domestic energy assessors. [129070]

Yvette Cooper: No public funding has been provided to the commercial companies currently offering training courses to prospective home inspectors and domestic energy assessors.

The trainees themselves are responsible for payment of their own fees, but have access to the range of Government-backed schemes such as career development loans which are available to those wishing to upgrade their skills or undertake a new career.

Housing: Low Incomes

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps the Government are taking to provide (a) low cost housing for sale and (b) affordable rented housing over the next three years. [130153]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 29 March 2007]: We are on course to meet the target of delivering 30,000 social rented homes by 2008, a 50 per cent. increase on 2004-05.

We are expanding our programme of low cost home ownership, building on innovative private financing to help more people into partial ownership on a shared equity basis. We expect 120,000 households to access home ownership through publicly funded shared equity schemes in the five years to 2010.

Investment for 2008-09 to 2010-11 and plans for increasing social housing supply will be subject to the outcome of Comprehensive Spending Review 2007.

Housing: Racial Discrimination

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what sanctions are applicable to housing bodies which fail to take account of the needs of the Irish community under the requirements of race equality schemes. [128209]

Yvette Cooper: If a body with housing functions is specified in Schedule 1A of the Race Relations Act 1976 ("RRA") when carrying out its functions it will be subject to the general duty in section 71(1) RRA. This is a duty to have due regard to the need to eliminate unlawful racial discrimination and to promote equality of opportunity and good relations between persons of different racial groups. Breaching this duty could make the body subject to a judicial review challenge by the Commission for Racial Equality or any interested party.

Additionally, the body may also be subject to the specific duty in section 71(2) RRA, the purpose of which is to ensure the body's better performance of the general duty. If subject to the specific duty, the body will be under a duty to publish a race equality scheme which must state, among other things, the functions and policies or proposed policies it has assessed to be relevant to the performance of its general duty, the arrangements for assessing and consulting on the likely impact of its proposed policies on the promotion of race equality and arrangements for monitoring its policies for any adverse impact on the promotion of race equality. In assessing whether the body has complied with its specific duty it would be necessary to consider that body's individual race equality scheme. Failure to comply with the specific duty may leave the body open to a compliance notice being served by the CRE under s71D RRA.

Depending on the facts of the case, a failure to comply with its s71 duties may also leave the body open to a claim of unlawful race discrimination.

Housing: West Midlands

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many (a) social rented homes and (b) low cost home ownership properties have been built or acquired in each local authority in the West Midlands in each year since 1997; and how many included a contribution from section 106 planning gain. [120529]

Yvette Cooper: The numbers of social rent and low cost home ownership homes built or acquired in each local authority in the West Midlands, in each year since 1991-92, have been placed in the Library of the House. The numbers of homes provided with a contribution from a section 106 agreement are also shown.

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many homes for sale on the open market have been built in (a) Sandwell Metropolitan Borough Council and (b) the West Midlands in each year since 1997. [120531]

Yvette Cooper: Communities and Local Government do not collect data on homes for sale on the open market. However we do collect data on the number of private dwellings that are built and these are presented in the following table.

Number of private enterprise units completed

	(a) Sandwell metropolitan borough council	(b) West Midlands region[1]

IPPR

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what funding the Disability Rights Commission has provided to (a) the IPPR and (b) IPPR Trading Ltd. in each year since May 1997; and for what purpose. [125728]

Mrs. McGuire: I have been asked to reply.

As the Disability Rights Commission's financial transactions are an operational matter, I have asked the Commission's chief executive to write to you in answer to your question, and I understand that he has done so.

Land Use: Planning

Mr. Yeo: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government in what form the forthcoming proposals for reform of land use planning will be published; on what date they will be published; and if she will make a statement. [129508]

Yvette Cooper: Later this spring, the Government will set out in a White Paper its response to Kate Barker's recommendations for improving the speed, responsiveness and efficiency in land use planning. It will also make proposals for taking forward Kate Barker and Rod Eddington's recommendations for reform of major infrastructure planning. A statement will be made at the time of publication.

Local Authority Land Sales

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidelines there are on the process of land sale decisions by local authorities; what assessment she has made of the appropriateness of such decisions being taken without public knowledge or discussion; and if she will make a statement. [130040]

Yvette Cooper: No general guidelines have been issued to local authorities in relation to the sale of local authority land. However, local authorities have general and discretionary powers under s.123 of the Local Government Act 1972 to dispose of land in any manner they wish. The Secretary of State's only statutory function is to give or refuse consent to a proposed disposal where the authority will receive less than the best consideration that can reasonably be obtained which is usually the open market value of the site.

The General Disposal Consent issued in August 2003 in ODPM Circular 06/2003 gave local authorities a very wide discretion in relation to their land disposals and enables them to make disposals which will contribute to the promotion or improvement of the economic, social or environmental well-being of an area at less than best consideration provided the undervalue does not exceed £2 million. The circular provides advice on making an application for a disposal that falls outside the terms of the general consent and it also makes it clear that, when disposing of land an undervalue, authorities should remain aware of the need to fulfil their fiduciary duty in a way that is accountable to local people.

If the land is held planning purposes it can be disposed of by means of a specific consent under s.233 of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990. Disposal consents have also been issued in relation to housing land under the Housing Act 1985.

Local Government Executive

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many local authorities in England have elected mayors, broken down by mayoral model; on what date a mayor was first elected in each such local authority; and when the date is of the next election in each case. [129747]

Ruth Kelly: 12 local authorities in England have elected mayors. Their details, including mayoral elections, are as follows:

Authority	Model	Inaugural election	Second election	Next election
Bedford Borough Council	Mayor and Cabinet	October 2002	—	May 2007
Doncaster Metropolitan Borough Council	Mayor and Cabinet	May 2002	May 2005	May 2009
Hartlepool Borough Council	Mayor and Cabinet	May 2002	May 2005	May 2009
London Borough of Hackney	Mayor and Cabinet	October 2002	May 2006	May 2010
London Borough of Lewisham	Mayor and Cabinet	May 2002	May 2006	May 2010
London Borough of Newham	Mayor and Cabinet	May 2002	May 2006	May 2010
Mansfield District Council	Mayor and Cabinet	October 2002	—	May 2007
Middlesbrough Council	Mayor and Cabinet	May 2002	—	May 2007
North Tyneside Council[1]	Mayor and Cabinet	May 2002	May 2005	May 2009
Stoke-on-Trent City Council	Mayor and Council Manager	October 2002	May 2005	May 2009
Torbay Council	Mayor and Cabinet	October 2005	—	May 2011
Watford Borough Council	Mayor and Cabinet	October 2002	May 2006	May 2010

[1] In addition, a by-election for the mayor took place on 12 June 2003.

Local Government Finance: Housing

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the total housing debt was for each local authority in each year since 1996; how much principal debt was paid off in each year; how the repayments were financed; what the cost was to each local authority of servicing the debt; and how many homes were owned by each authority. [107142]

Yvette Cooper: I have arranged for a table showing the total housing debt for each local authority for each year since 1996 to be placed in the Library of the House. From 2001-02 onwards authorities with no notional housing debt (the assumed housing debt for the purposes of HRA subsidy) were not required to submit this data to Communities and Local Government.

The Department does not collect data on the actual amount of principal housing debt repaid each year. I have arranged for a table showing the amount each authority was obliged to set aside from the disposal of Housing Revenue Account (HRA) assets since 1996 to be placed in the Library of the House. Set-aside does not equate to debt actually redeemed, as local authorities may make a treasury management decision to keep the housing debt on their books rather than repay it, investing the set-aside elsewhere.

The Department does not keep data on how local authorities finance their housing debt repayments, nor does it have data on what the cost was to each local authority of servicing the housing debt. We only have data of the consolidated rate of interest (CRI) which is the average rate of interest a local authority pays across all its borrowing. The CRI for each year is in the table.

I have arranged for a table showing dwellings owned by each local authority for each year since 1996 to be placed in the Library of the House.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what the (a) elements and (b) totals of housing revenue subsidy were in each year since 1990; and what estimate she has made of each for the next 20 years; [107144]

(2) what housing subsidy has been paid to local authorities with council housing in each year since 1990. [107145]

Yvette Cooper: Data for the years 1990-93 inclusive can be obtained only at disproportionate cost. Details of housing revenue account subsidy entitlements for individual authorities separated by main income and expenditure items for the years 1994-95 to 2004-05 inclusive are included in a table that has been deposited in the Library of the House.

No estimates have been made covering the next 20 years.

Lyons Inquiry

Mr. Curry: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the total cost was to the public purse of the Lyons Report on local government finance. [131133]

Mr. Woolas: The Lyons Inquiry is estimated to cost about £1.76 million. In addition, about £464,637 of funding has been provided by the Government for research commissioned by the Inquiry.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether Sir Michael Lyons' report will be (a) vetted and (b) amended by Government Ministers before its publication. [129682]

Ruth Kelly: The Lyons Inquiry into Local Government was an independent report, and Sir Michael Lyons was entirely responsible for its contents.

Mortgages: Climate Change

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many lenders offer a green mortgage in preparation for the introduction of energy performance estimates; and if she will make a statement. [129358]

Yvette Cooper: We are aware of four lending bodies who currently offer 'green mortgage' products, others have said they are interested in developing products. As the Chancellor stated in the Budget, the Government expect the introduction of Energy Performance Certificates and other initiatives to provide the potential for the market for 'green' financial products to develop further.

Motorway Service Areas

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will postpone relevant determination of a start date for public inquiry into motorway services until such time as all relevant parties are in receipt of agreements and reports currently being negotiated between the Highways Agency, Birmingham International airport, Swayfields and Shirley Estates. [130471]

Ruth Kelly: The inquiry arranged for 12 June into two proposed motorway service areas (MSAs) has been postponed so that negotiations between the Highways Agency (HA) and Swayfields and Shirley Estates (the two developers) can proceed. Detailed nighway proposals can then be considered by the Rule 6 parties prior to the inquiry. The new start date for the inquiry will be discussed at a pre-inquiry meeting to be held on 12 June. It is not considered the non-publication of a finalised Birmingham International airport (BIA) Master Plan or the Birmingham International airport surface access report will prevent the inquiry proceeding.

Parish Councils

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many town and parish councils in England have achieved quality parish council status. [129746]

Ruth Kelly: There are currently 405 town and parish councils in England which have achieved quality parish council status.

Public Requests Ordering Disposal

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will take steps to make the public aware of the right to make Public Requests Ordering Disposal under Section 98 of the Local Government Planning and Land Act 1980. [103849]

Yvette Cooper: Public Requests Ordering Disposal (PROD) were introduced in the early 1980's as a device to encourage derelict land and buildings to be sold for development although their use has been limited due to the nature of the process involved. The Government have already given local authorities greater responsibility for encouraging re-use of derelict land and buildings through the planning system and through their empty homes powers.

The Quirk Review is considering the scope for facilitating community management and ownership of assets and we will await its recommendations regarding whether there is a need to take steps to promote public awareness of their right to make PRODs as a part of this review.

Roads: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much her Department allocated to Hartlepool Borough Council for highways maintenance and repair in each of the last five years; and if she will increase in real terms the amount provided in the next three years. [131395]

Mr. Woolas: Highway maintenance is one of the services supported by formula grant. Formula grant, which comprises revenue support grant, redistributed business rates and principal formula police grant, where appropriate, is an unhypothecated block grant i.e. authorities are free to spend the money on any service. For this reason, and due to the method of calculating formula grant, particularly floor damping, it is not possible to say how much grant an authority received for any particular service.

The comprehensive spending review 2007 will set the framework for support to local authorities for 2008-09 to 2010-11 to enable them to deliver effective services. We have been working closely with local government in the context of the spending review to ensure that we identify the pressures that councils face, along with the scope for efficiencies.

Social Rented Housing

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much land is owned by (a) the Housing Corporation and (b) English Partnerships; and what estimate she has made of its value. [130123]

Yvette Cooper: The Housing Corporation predominantly pursues its objectives through the provision of grant funding and does not currently own any land.

English Partnerships, the national regeneration agency, owns over 8,000 hectares of land being held for phased redevelopment and disposal, with an estimated market value of £1,838 million as at March 2006.

Unitary Councils: Bedfordshire

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what process she expects South Bedfordshire district council and Mid Bedfordshire district council to follow during the consultation exercise on the unitary proposals for Bedfordshire; and if she will make a statement. [131568]

Mr. Woolas: I refer the hon. Member to my reply to my hon. Friend the Member for Bedford (Patrick Hall) and the hon. Member for South-West Bedfordshire (Andrew Selous) of 29 March 2007, Official Report, column 1733W. South Bedfordshire district council and Mid Bedfordshire district council may choose to respond to the consultation by proposing support for the Bedfordshire county council unitary proposal or by proposing support for the Bedford borough proposal, and in doing so, may suggest that the remainder of the county also be made unitary.

Written Questions

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she will answer the questions tabled by the hon. Member for Meriden on (a) 9 January 2007 (114760) and (b) 22 November 2006 (103902) on Home Information Packs. [130880]

Yvette Cooper: I replied to the hon. Member's question (103902) on 11 April 2007. I will answer question (114760) shortly, I apologise for the delay.

Yalberton Valley

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will remove from her Department's website reference to Paignton West (Yalberton Valley) as the preferred site in relation to the New Growth Points application in Torbay; and if she will make a statement. [128196]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 20 March 2007]: There is no reference to Paignton West (Yalberton Valley), as a preferred site in relation to the New Growth Point or otherwise, on the Torbay New Growth Point page of the Department's website. The page does refer to:

> (a) the provision of infrastructure to open up employment areas at Yalberton road, Paignton, but I think this refers to employment development already proposed in the adopted local plan; and,
> (b) a new sustainable community, for the public to debate as part of the Local Development Framework. Torbay council identified a location at the Yalberton Valley as one of several options for this new community, but my information is that no decision has been taken. As the website says, decisions on whether to develop a new community, and where, are matters for the Local Development Framework, which will be the subject of community involvement and public examination by an independent planning inspector.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Adoption: China

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the average length of time for the process for an adult in the UK to adopt a child from China was in each of the last five years; what the current time scale is; and if he will make a statement. [128916]

Mr. Dhanda: There is no centrally held information on the average length of time it takes an adult in the UK to adopt a child from China from the initial approach of the prospective adopters to their adoption agency until an adoption order is made.

There are a number of stages to the intercountry adoption process. These comprise: assessment by a UK adoption agency; the issuing of a Certificate of Eligibility by the Department for Education and Skills; notarisation; legalisation (at the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and the Chinese embassy in London); and processing of the application by relevant authorities in China.

After-school Clubs: East Sussex

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many places were available in after-school clubs for (a) primary and (b) secondary school age children in (i) Eastbourne and (ii) East Sussex in each year since 1997. [130932]

Beverley Hughes: The information requested about child care places broken down by primary and secondary school age children is not collected. The available information on the number of registered child care places in out-of-school clubs for children under eight in East Sussex local authority area is shown in the following tables.

The latest figures on registered child care providers and places are available on the following website www.ofsted.gov.uk/.

Apprenticeships

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what percentage of apprenticeship training providers funded by the Learning and Skills Council were employers in each year since 1997. [128576]

Phil Hope: Data on Apprenticeships and Advanced Apprenticeships are collected on the Learning and Skills Council's (LSC) Individualised Learner Record (ILR). The table shows the percentage of apprenticeship training providers funded by the LSC that were "private organisations in their own right" or "other private organisations". Included within these proportions are employers whose main business activity is the provision of education and training. We are unable to identify such employers separately.

Children: Day Care

Mr. Blunkett: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many free part-time nursery education places there were for (a) three-year-olds and (b) four-year-olds in schools in England in each year from 1997 to 2007; and what proportion of the age group each figure represents. [131152]

Beverley Hughes: The available information is shown in the table. Information relating to 2007 will be available in May.

The latest figures on early education places for three and four-year-olds in England were published in Statistical First Release 32/2006 "Provision for children under five years of age in England—January 2006 (final)" in August, which is available on the Department's website www.dfes.gov.uk/rsgateway/

Mr. Blunkett: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many child care places were available in England in (a) 1997 and (b) 2006. [131153]

Beverley Hughes: As at 31 March 1997 there were 637,700 registered child care places[1] in England. The equivalent figure for 2006 is 1,254,400.

The latest figures on registered child care providers and places are available on the following website, www.ofsted.gov.uk/

[1] Local authorities were responsible for the registration and inspection of children's day care facilities until these responsibilities were transferred to Ofsted in September 2001. With the introduction of the National Day Care Standards and the transfer of responsibilities for registration and inspection of child care providers from local authority social service departments to Ofsted in September 2001, child care places were classified according to the type of day care provided. Previously, child care places were classified according to the type of provider. The figures for 1997 include child minders, day nurseries and out of school clubs. The figures for 2006 include child minders, full day care and out of school care.

City Academies

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what evidence and analysis informed the decision to extend the target for academies from 200 to 400 by 2010. [128186]

Jim Knight [holding answer 19 March 2007]: The decision was informed by the large body of evidence which shows that academies are an effective way of improving performance in underperforming schools and that despite the overall rise in education standards over the last decade there will remain a significant number of schools beyond the initial target of 200 academies which are underperforming and would benefit by becoming an academy.

The percentage of pupils getting five good GCSEs including English and Maths in academies improved last year alone by 6.2 percentage points—six times better than the national improvement rate of one percentage point—and all 21 academies which had students who took GCSEs in 2006 are above the floor targets; 18 of the 24 predecessor schools they replaced were below.

Academies are making dramatic improvements at key stage three—above the national average—with rises last year of 8.1 percentage points in English, 9 percentage points in Maths and 10.5 percentage points in Science compared to previous validated results.

Sixteen academies have had full Ofsted inspections. Key to the future success of the academies is their leadership and management. On this indicator, Ofsted has classed two academies as outstanding, 10 as good, three as satisfactory and one as inadequate.

Academies are popular with parents. There were three applications for each academy place in September 2006. Almost all academies were oversubscribed on opening and each year afterwards.

There is growing support from local authorities. For example, Manchester city council has ambitious plans for eight academies across the city—strategically targeting underperforming schools in disadvantaged communities and forming part of wider programmes of regeneration.

Last year's independent PricewaterhouseCoopers evaluation of academies found strong pupil and teacher support for academies. It included a survey reporting that 81 per cent. of pupils thought their school work had improved since joining the academy and that total attendance in academies had risen and at a faster rate than the national average.

All of the above were factors in the decision to expand the programme to 400. The case has since been reinforced by the positive findings of the NAO report on academies published last month, which found that academies are "on track to deliver good value for money".

The NAO concluded that academies are improving performance compared with predecessor schools, and that the improvement is faster than in comparable schools.

City Academies: Admissions

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills with which provisions of the school admissions code academies are not required to comply; and if he will make a statement. [118564]

Jim Knight [holding answer 7 February 2007]: Academies are required to comply with the admissions code in full; there are no provisions from which they are exempt.

City Academies: Qualifications

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what plans he has (a) to pilot and (b) to introduce specialised 14-19 diplomas in academies. [130746]

Jim Knight: Yesterday we announced the first 145 consortia (groups of schools, colleges and training providers) that have been given approval to offer one or more of the first five 14-19 diplomas from September 2008. The five 14-19 diplomas to be offered from September are: Creative and Media; Society, Health and Development; IT; Construction and the Built Environment; and, Engineering. There are 20 academies involved in successful consortiums, and, as a group, they will contribute to provision across all five diplomas. Each of the diplomas will be piloted for three academic years following its introduction.

Curriculum

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the evidential basis was for the statement in the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority's 2006 Annual Review that there is a broad consensus on the purposes, values and aims for the curriculum. [130269]

Jim Knight: The statement in the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority's Annual Review was based on an extensive informal consultation on the purposes, values and aims for the curriculum with a wide variety of groups. This included some 45,000 teachers and headteachers; 1,000 professionals from local authorities; 2,000 pupils and around 3,000 other stakeholders.

Education: Finance

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills whether research has been funded by (a) his Department and (b) the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority on the empirical validity of the zone of proximal development concept referred to by the Chief Executive of the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority in his speech of 21 March. [130315]

Jim Knight: Neither the Department nor the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA) has funded any specific research into the concept of zone of proximal development.

Education: Standards

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the average (a) contextualised value-added scores and (b) value-added scores were in each (i) selective, (ii) partially selective and (iii) comprehensive local education authority according to the most recent available figures. [129187]

Jim Knight [holding answer 22 March 2006]: Information on the key stage 2-4 contextualised value-added measures for 2005/06 by local authority and their admissions policy is shown in the following table.

For the most recent year (2005/06) it is only possible to provide contextualised value-added figures as value-added figures were not calculated.

[1] Number of pupils on roll at the end of key stage 4 in the 2005/06 academic year.
[2] Including attempts and achievements by these pupils in previous academic years.
[3] Local authority, Government office region and total (maintained sector) figures are adjusted for pupils recently arrived from overseas.
[4] England averages include all schools.
[5] A partially selective local authority has less than 25 per cent. of 13 year old pupils on roll attending one or more selective schools. A selective local authority has 25 per cent. or more 13 year old pupils on roll attending one or more selective schools. A comprehensive local authority is where all of its pupils are attending comprehensive schools. (Definition used in the 2006 Schools White Paper.)

Education: Surveys

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to the answer of 19 March 2007, Official Report, column 943W, on education: surveys, if he will place in the Library copies of the interim reports presented to the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority on 21 March 2007 referred to in the tender documents for analysis of responses to the secondary curriculum review. [130266]

Jim Knight: We have no plans to publish the interim report presented to the QCA on 21 March.

This was an internal milestone report for the QCA produced in order to ensure appropriate contract management of the survey.

ESOL

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the budget was for English for Speakers of Other Languages provision over the last five years. [131005]

Bill Rammell: Since 2001, the funding for English for Speakers of Other Languages (ESOL) has been provided through the Skills for Life strategy in response to regional and local demand.

The Learning and Skills Council (LSC) calculates the total amounts spent on ESOL as £103 million in 2000/01, £185 million in 2001/02, £235 million in 2002/03, £267 million in 2003/04 and £279 million in 2004/05. The 2005/06 final spend has yet to be confirmed by the LSC; figures prior to 2000/01 are not available as ESOL only became part of the Skills for Life strategy in 2001.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the total monetary contribution to the English for Speakers of Other Languages programme was from employers in each of the last five years. [131010]

Bill Rammell: Since 2001, the funding for English for Speakers of Other Languages (ESOL) has been fully funded through the Skills for Life strategy in response to regional and local demand.

Employers (and individuals) are currently not required to contribute to ESOL programmes. However, we are committed to taking forward the dialogue with social partners about securing employer contributions to the cost of learning. New ESOL for Work qualifications will be introduced from September and will have a stronger focus on the language skills needed for the work environment through shorter, less expensive, more work-focused qualifications.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what percentage of students enrolled on English for Speakers of Other Languages programmes are on full fee remission. [130992]

Bill Rammell: All students currently enrolled on English for Speakers of Other Languages programmes are on full fee remission.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many people participated in English for Speakers of Other Languages courses in each London borough in each of the last five academic years for which figures are available. [130993]

Bill Rammell: This information is collected by the national Learning and Skills Council (LSC) and I have asked Mark Haysom, the LSC's chief executive, to write to my hon. Friend with this information and a copy of his reply has been placed in the Library.

GCSE

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how many and what proportion of GCSE-age pupils attempted a full GCSE in (a) mathematics, (b) English, (c) science, (d) design and technology, (e) information and communication technology, (f) physical education, (g) history, (h) geography, (i) art and design, (j) music and (k) a modern foreign language in each of the last 10 years; [128400]

(2) how many and what proportion of GCSE-age pupils eligible for free school meals attempted a full GCSE in (a) mathematics, (b) English, (c) science, (d) design and technology, (e) information and communication technology, (f) physical education, (g) history, (h) geography, (i) art and design, (j) music and (k) a modern foreign language in each of the last 10 years. [128401]

Jim Knight: Information on the number and percentage of pupils attempting a full GCSE by subject is shown in the following tables.

Information on the number and percentage of pupils eligible for free school meals attempting a full GCSE by subject can be provided only at a disproportionate cost.

GCSE: Results

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will list the bottom 200 schools in terms of proportions achieving five or more GCSEs A*-C including English, mathematics, science and a modern foreign language in 2006. [112152]

Jim Knight: The information requested has been placed in the House of Commons Library.

This analysis is based on the revised 2006 KS4 data.

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many and what proportion of pupils left school without at least five GCSEs at grade C or above including one in mathematics and one in English in (a) the last year for which figures are available and (b) each of the previous 10 years. [130157]

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what percentage of pupils gained five A*-C grades at GCSE including mathematics, English, science, history and geography in each year between 1997 and 2006; [123054]

(2) what percentage of pupils gained five A*-C grades at GCSE including mathematics, English, geography, modern languages and double science in each year between 1997 and 2006; [123055]

(3) what percentage of pupils gained five A*-C grades at GCSE including mathematics, English, history, geography, modern languages and double science in each year between 1997 and 2006; [123056]

(4) what percentage of pupils gained five A*-C grades at GCSE excluding mathematics, English, history, geography, modern languages and double science in each year between 1997 and 2006. [123057]

Jim Knight: The information requested is given in the following table:

	Percentage of 15-year-old pupils[1] who gained at least five A-C grades at GCSE or equivalent including mathematics, English, science, history and geography*	Percentage of 15-year-old pupils[1] who gained at least five A-C grades at GCSE or equivalent including mathematics, English, geography, modern languages and double science*	Percentage of 15-year-old pupils[1] who gained at least five A-C grades at GCSE or equivalent including mathematics, English, history, geography, modern languages and double science*	Percentage of 15-year-old pupils[1] who gained at least five A-C grades at GCSE or equivalent, excluding[2] grades A*-C at GCSE in mathematics, English, history, geography, modern languages or double science*

[1] Number of pupils aged 15 at the start of the academic year, i.e. 31 August.
[2] These figures exclude pupils who achieved grade C or above in any of mathematics, English, history, geography, modern languages or double science.

Headteachers: Vacancies

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many head teacher vacancies were advertised in the 10 per cent. of schools with the (a) highest and (b) lowest levels of free school meal entitlement in the latest year for which figures are available. [131296]

Jim Knight: The information is not available in the format requested.

Information on vacancies is not available at the school level and therefore cannot be linked to school meal entitlement.

Health Education: Sex

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what plans he has to improve sex education in schools. [130480]

Mr. Dhanda: We are committed to helping schools improve their planning and delivery of this important area of the curriculum. In addition to the Department's Sex and Relationship Education (SRE) Guidance (2000), all teachers of SRE are encouraged to undertake the Government funded continuing professional development programme for Personal Social and Health Education (PSHE). The programme, which is also open to community nurses, supports standards in the delivery of PSHE teaching including SRE. To date, over 5,000 teachers and nurses have benefited from the programme.

Other measures to support high quality SRE provision include:

(i) DfES funding for the recently launched subject association for PSHE. The association will provide support and advice to teachers on all areas of PSHE, including SRE;

(ii) Increased funding (£13.2 million) in 2007-08 (for the National Healthy Schools programme. This key programme for driving up standards in PSHE, requires schools, for the purposes of accreditation, to demonstrate that they have a SRE programme in line with DfES guidance; and

(iii) Detailed guidance to teachers from the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority, covering how schools can evaluate what young people are learning through PSHE, including SRE.

Higher Education

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the average cost to the public purse of a university degree in England was in each of the last 10 years. [125249]

Bill Rammell: The funding per full-time equivalent higher education student studying at English institutions funded by the Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE) and the Training and Development Agency for Schools (TDA) is shown in the following table; in addition to these totals, institutions have received income from tuition fees, and from September 2006 have been able to charge up to £3,000 for full-time home and EU undergraduates, with the Government, not students, meeting the upfront costs.

Real terms (2004-05 prices)	Funding per planned student (£)
1997-98	4,230	—
1998-99	4,110	—
1999-2000	4,530	—
2000-01	4,530	—
2001-02	4,560	—
2002-03	4,590	—
2003-04	4,740	—
2004-05	4,770	—
2005-06[1]	—	4,820
2006-07	—	4,880

[1] The planned student numbers used in the figures to 2004-05 are taken from a snapshot count. The planned student numbers used in figures from 2005-06 are taken from a whole-year count which replaced the snapshot count method because it is more accurate.

These funds include recurrent resources for teaching and research provided to the HEFCE and the IDA. Figures exclude tuition fee income and expenditure on student support costs.

The total cost per course would depend on the duration of study, and can be calculated from these per annum costs in each case.

The coverage of these figures is Home (i.e. UK) and EU domiciled students, including postgraduates, studying at Higher Education Institutions (HEIs) and Further Education Colleges (FECs) in England.

Higher Education: Sports

Mr. Bailey: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment he has made of the impact of specialist sports colleges on standards in teaching and learning of PE and school sport. [131509]

Jim Knight: Sports colleges have consistently performed at or above the national average for attainment of a good grade in PE. Their wider GCSE performances have also improved since designation. This rate of improvement has been the highest of all the specialisms for the second year running.

Sports colleges play a key role in driving school sport partnerships which are central to the DfES/DCMS Physical Education, School Sport and Club Links (PESSCL) strategy. Ofsted has evaluated the strategy since 2003. Their latest report (2006) found that:

> The school sport partnership programme was helping to improve the quality of provision in physical education and school sport, particularly in primary schools.
> The sport partnership programme had enabled subject leaders to influence their colleagues' teaching and improve provision.

The DfES has also commissioned the Institute of Youth Sport at Loughborough university to carry out a series of independent impact studies on the strategy. The second annual study (2006) found that

> "Not only have school sport partnerships increased considerably the range and quality of sports and PE opportunities available to pupils, the data also shows that the programme still possesses considerable momentum as indicated by the substantial improvement in participation levels and in the quality of the experience of pupils in sport over the twelve months since the last report."

Higher Education: Tees Valley

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what percentage of (a) 18 and (b) 19 year olds from (i) Hartlepool constituency and (ii) Tees Valley sub-region joined university courses in each of the last 10 years. [130902]

Bill Rammell: The latest available figures on participation in higher education by local areas were published by the Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE) in January 2005 in "Young Participation in England", which is available from their website at:

http://www.hefce.ac.uk/pubs/hefce/2005/05_03/.

This report shows participation rates for young people who enter higher education aged 18 or 19 for the years 1997 to 2000. The figures for Hartlepool parliamentary constituency, Tees Valley Learning and Skills Council area and the comparable figure for England, are shown in the following table. HEFCE have not produced participation rates beyond 2000.

The Department uses the Higher Education Initial Participation Rate (HEIPR) to assess progress on increasing first-time participation of English students aged 18-30 in higher education towards 50 per cent: the latest provisional figure for 2005/06 is 43 per cent. The HEIPR is not calculated at parliamentary constituency level or local authority level.

Languages: GCSE

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many and what percentage of students achieved A*-C at GCSE in a modern language in the 10 per cent. of schools with the (a) highest and (b) lowest levels of free school meal entitlement in (i) 2006 and (ii) 1997. [131295]

Jim Knight: The information requested can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Literacy: Assessments

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to his answer of 2 March 2007, Official Report, columns 1610-1W, on the secondary education curriculum, if he will place in the Library a copy of the Assessing Pupil Progress materials for reading and writing that were distributed to all secondary schools in 2006. [126836]

Jim Knight: Yes. Copies will also be sent directly to the hon. Member.

Literacy: Standards

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many and what proportion of pupils left school functionally illiterate in (a) the last year for which figures are available and (b) each of the previous 10 years. [130156]

Jim Knight: The answer to this PQ has been placed in the House of Commons Library.

Local Education Authorities: Tribunals

Mr. Arbuthnot: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills whether his Department keeps records (a) nationally and (b) broken down by authority of the costs to local education authorities of preparing for cases before tribunals. [130506]

Jim Knight [holding answer 29 March 2007]: The Department for Education and Skills does not collect this information. The Special Educational Needs and Disability Tribunal (SENDIST) is no longer managed by the Department. On 1 April 2006 SENDIST became part of the Tribunals Service, an executive agency of the Department for Constitutional Affairs.

Mathematics: Curriculum

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills why it is proposed that there should no longer be a foundation and higher programme of study in mathematics at key stage 4 under the proposed changes to the curriculum of the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority. [126013]

Jim Knight: Mathematics is currently the only subject to have a tiered programme of study at key stage 4. Pupils should be entitled to access all learning relevant to the key stage at the level most appropriate to them. The current tiered curriculum creates an artificial ceiling of expectation for pupils following the foundation tier. The new single programme of study will enable teachers to personalise the curriculum to suit the needs of individual pupils, allowing them to engage with mathematics at all levels.

Numeracy: Teachers

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many teachers who qualified between 1 May 2000 and 30 April 2001 have not passed the numeracy skills test. [130312]

Jim Knight: According to figures provided by the General Teaching Council for England (GTCE) there are currently 538 teachers who qualified between 1 May 2000 and 30 April 2001 and who have not passed the numeracy skills test. GTCE records indicate that of these 538 there are 87 teaching in maintained schools or non-maintained special schools.

Nurseries: East Sussex

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many nursery places for three and four-year-olds there were in (a) Eastbourne and (b) East Sussex in each of the last five years. [130934]

Beverley Hughes: The available information is shown in the following tables.

The latest figures on early education places for three and four-year-olds in England were published in Statistical First Release 32/2006 "Provision for children under five years of age in England—January 2006 (final)". in August, which is available on my Department's website at:

Politics and Government: Children

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the cost was of setting up and maintaining the DirectgovKids website; what its purpose is; and how many visitors it has had. [131360]

Mr. Dhanda: The information requested is as follows.

What is the purpose of DirectgovKids?

DirectgovKids (www.direct.gov.uk/kids) is the single site within Government for five to 11-year-olds.

The purpose of the site is to support the UN convention on the Rights of the Child, to inform children on how Government affect their lives, and to help them learn about and understand the society they are growing up in.

It contributes towards meeting Public Sector Agreement and Every Child Matters targets related to children, e.g. with content on healthy eating and exercise, democracy and participation.

DirectgovKids can be used in the classroom, across the curriculum, as it has many useful lesson materials. It also has more specific applications for the teaching of Citizenship/ Personal, Social and Health Education for Key Stages 1 and 2. Children can also access it from their home personal computer.

What was the cost of setting up and maintaining the website?

The cost of setting up the website was:

2005/06—£983,751 + vat

2006/07—£947,216 +vat

This is 25p on average per year for each child aged 5+ in a primary school in England.

How many visits to date?

Since the launch on 21 March 2007 the site has had 8,218 visits (at 10 April).

Immediately after the launch visits went up from an average of 40 to over 400 visits per day.

Pupils: Absenteeism

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which five local education authorities have the (a) highest and (b) lowest unauthorised absence rates for secondary school pupils. [131012]

Jim Knight: The answer to this request is shown in the following tables:

Five Local Authorities with the Lowest Rates of Unauthorised Absence

Local Authority[1]	Unauthorised Absence
London, City of	0.03
Isles of Scilly	0.21
Rutland	0.22
Harrow	0.27
East Riding of Yorkshire	0.32

[1] The figures by LA relate to maintained primary and secondary schools, excluding maintained special schools, academies and CTCs.

Five Local Authorities with the Highest Rates of Unauthorised Absence

Local Authority[1]	Unauthorised Absence
Tower Hamlets	1.61
Kingston upon Hull, City of	1.63
Bradford	1.66
Manchester	1.84
Greenwich	1.97

[1] The figures by LA relate to maintained primary and secondary schools, excluding maintained special schools, academies and CTCs.

Unauthorised absence is absence without leave from a teacher or other authorised representative of the school. This includes all unexplained or unjustified absences, such as lateness, holidays during term time not authorised by the school, absence where reason is not yet established and truancy.

Further information on pupil absence in schools can be found in the Statistical First Release, "Pupil Absence in Schools in England: 2005/06" which can be found at:

http://www.dfes.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000679/index.shtml

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how many and what percentage of half days were missed due to unauthorised absences among pupils in the 10 per cent. of (a) primary and (b) secondary schools with the (i) highest and (ii) lowest levels of free school meal entitlement in (A) 2006 and (B) 1997; [131288]

(2) how many pupils recorded at least one half day of unauthorised absence in the 10 per cent. of schools with the (a) highest and (b) lowest levels of free school meal entitlement in (i) 2006 and (ii) 1997. [131297]

Jim Knight: The information requested can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Pupils: Eyesight

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what discussions he has had with the Department of Health on (a) the Schools Medical Service and (b) eye checks for children. [130821]

Jim Knight: DfES Ministers have had no meetings with the DH on these topics. We have no plans to press for more eye screening in school-age children, because there is no evidence to support such a move.

Local health services must do one medical check at some point in childhood (usually around age four, not necessarily at school). These normally pick up any eye problems. In addition, DH provides free eye checks for children and recommends that parents take advantage of these if their child experiences a difficulty. We believe these measures are sufficient.

We suggest that teachers who have any cause for concern over a child's eyesight should raise these concerns with the parents/carers.

Pupils: Bullying

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much his Department has spent on anti-bullying measures since 1997. [131708]

Jim Knight: The figures for the anti-bullying strand of the Improving Behaviour and Attendance strategy, which is used centrally to support schools and local authorities in their anti-bullying work, are given as follows:

	Spend on anti-bullying (£)
2002/03	184,000
2003/04	1,054,000
2004/05	1,613,000
2005/06	1,145,000
2006/07	1,400,000

Figures for earlier years are not available because the anti-bullying strand of behaviour work was not disaggregated. Other funding on behaviour and attendance may also have an effect on reducing bullying but is not used exclusively to combat bullying.

Schools: Clothing

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment his Department has made of the possible introduction of formal guidelines governing religious dress in schools. [129874]

Jim Knight [holding answer 28 March 2007]: The Department has not made an assessment of the possible introduction of formal guidelines on religious dress, as governing bodies determine school uniform and dress codes under powers conferred by the School Standards and Framework Act 1998. We issue non-statutory guidance to schools, reminding them of their responsibilities under the Human Rights Act 1998 and anti-discrimination legislation. The guidance also states that schools should be sensitive to pupil's cultural and religious needs and differences and must ensure that their uniform policies are fair and reasonable.

Schools: Complaints

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what appeals process is in place for parents who wish to appeal against the (a) content and (b) operation of a school's complaints procedure. [127414]

Jim Knight: Parents with concerns about the content and operation of a school's complaints procedure can appeal to the Secretary of State. He has powers under Sections 496 and 497 of the Education Act 1996 to intervene in cases where a governing body has acted unlawfully or "unreasonably", which is defined as conduct which no sensible authority or governing body, acting with due appreciation of its legal responsibilities, would have decided to adopt. Section 496 empowers the Secretary of State, where he is satisfied that a governing body has acted unreasonably with respect to the exercise of a power or the performance of a duty, to give such directions as to the exercise of the power or performance of duty as appear to him expedient.

Schools: Energy

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the average cost was of energy usage for an (a) primary school, (b) secondary school and (c) academy in 2005-06. [120895]

Jim Knight [holding answer 19 February 2007]: In 2005-06 an average primary school spent £39 per pupil on energy and an average secondary school spent £56 per pupil. Of the 27 academies open in 2005/06 energy cost figures for 11 academies that were fully occupied are available. The average energy cost of these 11 academies was £84 per pupil.

Reasons for academies consuming more energy than the average secondary school include:

longer opening hours to promote extended use by the community (often hours of darkness); and increased use of ICT.

Significant changes to building regulations were introduced in 2006 requiring a 40 per cent. reduction in carbon emissions compared with those built under the 2002 building regulations. Academies now being designed and built will consume less energy than those open in 2005/06.

Schools: Teenage Pregnancy

Mr. Ames: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what research has been (a) funded and (b) carried out by his Department into the effects of improving the ethos of schools on the rate of (i) teenage pregnancies and (ii) drug abuse; when his Department last undertook an evidence review on the issue that drew on (A) UK and (B) international research; and if he will make a statement. [130837]

Beverley Hughes: No specific research has been commissioned by DfES that looks explicitly at how a school's ethos impacts on the rate of teenage pregnancies or substance misuse.

There is, however, evidence that schools have an important role in tackling the underlying causes of both teenage pregnancy and substance misuse, in particular through their role in raising young people's aspirations and improving their educational attainment. Research by Hosie A & Dawson N (2005): "The Education of Pregnant Young Women and Young Mothers", reports that dislike of school was shown to have a strong independent effect on the risk of teenage pregnancy. This important finding is reflected in the DfES publication, "Teenage Pregnancy: Accelerating the Strategy to 2010", sent to all local authorities in September 2006.

Schools: Transport

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the cost of providing transport for pupils attending denominational schools in (a) Eastbourne and (b) East Sussex was in each of the last five years. [130936]

Jim Knight: The Department does not collect this information.

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what maximum daily journey time is recommended by his Department for a pupil between home and school by (a) bus, (b) car and (c) train; [131193]

(2) what guidance on best practice officials provide to local education authorities on maximum school journey times; and if he will place a copy in the Library. [131194]

Jim Knight: On 11 March the Department completed a consultation on draft Home to School Travel and Transport Guidance. The draft did not recommend specific home to school journey times, as we consider that reasonable journey times will depend on a number of factors, including the age and any individual needs of a child. Our guidance suggests that the maximum journey duration for a child of primary school age could be 45 minutes, while a journey of up to 75 minutes could be appropriate for a child of secondary school age. A child's special educational needs and/or disability might indicate a shorter maximum journey time.

As soon as a printed version of the new guidance is available we will place a copy in the Library.

Secondary Education: Curriculum

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to the answer of 1 March 2007, Official Report, column 1480W, on secondary education: curriculum, whether he expects schools to evaluate the effectiveness of any innovative curriculum plan they undertake. [126009]

Jim Knight: We fully expect that schools will want to evaluate the effectiveness of any innovative curriculum planning they undertake.

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many responses had the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority received to the secondary curriculum review consultation on (a) the programme of study and (b) the supporting materials from (i) teachers,(ii) parents and (iii) pupils as of 21 March. [130309]

Jim Knight: The secondary curriculum review consultation will run until 30 April 2007.

In the first four weeks there have been approximately 230,000 hits on the website and about 2,000 people have participated in the on-line consultation. At this time no analysis has been made as to the category of respondent or the breakdown between responses to the programmes of study and the supporting materials.

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which schools were used as case studies for personal development on the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority secondary curriculum review website. [130313]

Jim Knight: All schools that submitted case studies to the secondary curriculum website were given the option of being identified by name.

In the section of the website that covers personal development, Gaynes School Language College was the only institution which chose to be named.

Secondary Education: Teaching Methods

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment is made by Ofsted during its regular inspections of state secondary schools on the provision of field visits. [130222]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for Ofsted. HM Chief Inspector, Christine Gilbert, has written to my hon. Friend and a copy of her reply has been placed in the House Library.

Letter from Christine Gilbert, dated 2 April 2007:

Your recent parliamentary question has been passed to me, as Her Majesty's Chief Inspector, for reply.

You asked what assessment is made by Ofsted during its regular inspections of state secondary schools on the provision of field visits.

The current school inspection process focuses on the overall effectiveness of the school. It does not specifically require inspectors to make a comment or judgment on the provision of field visits. However, inspectors often make reference to the value of learning outside the classroom in the context of the 'enjoy and achieve' outcome of 'Every Child Matters'. They may also refer to the contribution made by field visits to the curriculum and specifically to the quality and range of enrichment opportunities offered by a school.

More detail is obtained from our programme of subject surveys, obtained from visits to a sample of 30 secondary schools each year. During the last year, as part of our geography survey, we have focused on 'the quality of fieldwork'. A report drawing on this evidence will be published later this year, with examples of good practice. Ofsted has also been commissioned by the DFES to carry out a survey inspection in 2007-08 of education outside the classroom.

Special Educational Needs: Expenditure

Mr. Arbuthnot: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what the costs to local education authorities, excluding the costs of preparation for cases before tribunals, of providing for special educational needs were in the last year for which figures are available; [130507]

(2) what the costs to local education authorities, excluding the costs of preparation for cases before tribunals, of providing for special educational needs out of area were in the last year for which figures are available. [130508]

Jim Knight [holding answer 29 March 2007]: Tables have been placed in the House Library showing:

Local authorities' total planned expenditure on the provision of education for pupils with special educational needs for the 2006-07 financial year; the figures shown include the cost of preparation for tribunals; the Department for Education and Skills is unable to extract these costs; and

Local authorities' budgeted gross expenditure for inter-authority recoupment and local authorities budgeted net expenditure on fees for pupils at independent schools or non-maintained special schools; the figures shown exclude the cost of preparation for tribunals.

Teaching Methods: Finance

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how much funding has been made available by his Department for the promotion of the Learning Outside the Classroom Manifesto; [130208]

(2) what proportion of pupils studying science GCSEs have undertaken investigative fieldwork outside the classroom. [130221]

Jim Knight: Between 2006-08, the Department will make available £2.7 million to support the delivery of the aims of the Learning Outside the Classroom Manifesto. Other funding streams support a range of opportunities, for example, the joint DCMS/DFES Museums and Galleries and the London Challenge New Views programmes. Schools also use their own budgets to provide these experiences for their pupils. The Department does not collect information about the proportion of students undertaking investigative fieldwork outside the classroom.

Teaching Methods: Portsmouth

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills when Admiral Lord Nelson Business and Enterprise College in Portsmouth adopted the two year Key Stage 3 approach referred to in the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority secondary curriculum review supporting materials; and what results were achieved at Key Stage 3 in (a) the year before adopting this approach and (b) each year since adopting this approach. [130317]

Jim Knight: Admiral Lord Nelson Business and Enterprise College in Portsmouth adopted a two year Key stage 3 approach five years ago.

Results achieved by schools at Key Stage 3 have only been published since 2002. The Admiral Lord Nelson Business and Enterprise College Key Stage 3 results from 2002 onwards are reproduced in the following table.

	Percentage of pupils achieving level 5 or above: English	Percentage of pupils achieving level 5 or above: Maths	Percentage of pupils achieving level 5 or above: Science
2002	78	74	70
2003	85	80	76
2004	77	83	59
2005	68	72	61
2006	74	82	72

Train to Gain Programme

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what percentage of the participants in the Train to Gain programme working towards qualifications have received (a) between 0 and 20 hours, (b) between 20 and 30 hours, (c) between 30 and 40 hours, (d) between 40 and 50 hours and (e) between 50 and 60 hours training. [130647]

Phil Hope: The information requested is not collected or held centrally. The cost of collecting such information would be disproportionate, and it would be overly bureaucratic to collect from colleges and training providers.

Truancy

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much his Department has spent on anti-truancy measures since 1997. [131644]

Jim Knight: "Truancy" is one of several reasons why a child may be absent from school without authorisation. My Department has spent the following on measures aimed solely at reducing absence from schools:

£11.25 million to help 530 secondary schools which had higher than average rates of unauthorised absence to purchase electronic registration systems;

£2.0 million on the National Strategies' work to provide support to local authorities on their attendance strategies;

£0.3 million on eight advisers seconded from local authorities to the Department to work with 60 local authorities with high levels of unauthorised absence;

£48,000 on absence data collections (in addition to school census collections);

£0.1 million for publicity and promotion materials; and

£0.2 million on events for local authorities to share effective practice on attendance management.

In addition to these specific measures my Department has funded other initiatives such as the Behaviour Improvement Programme which have had, as part of their overall objectives, the reduction of absence and truancy.

Vocational Education

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the timetable is for the introduction of specialised diplomas; and if he will make a statement. [130874]

Phil Hope: We have met the milestones for development of the new diploma qualifications that we published in the 14-19 Education and Skills Implementation Plan (DfES 2037-2005DCL-EN). This means that we are on track for Diploma courses to be provided for the first time from September 2008.

Youth Services: Hartlepool

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what schemes funded by his Department were instituted in Hartlepool constituency to provide young people with (a) activities and (b) somewhere to socialise in the last five years. [130898]

Mr. Dhanda: Youth programmes of a diversionary and/or development nature which have been funded by DfES, and instituted in Hartlepool, in the last five years include Children's Fund, Local Network Fund, the Neighbourhood Support Fund (NSF), Positive Activities for Young People (PAYP), Millennium Volunteers (MV), Youth Opportunity and Youth Capital Funds. Local authority youth services and the voluntary and community sector also run youth provision with the aim of providing personal, social and educational development for young people. All activities listed provide opportunities for young people to socialise.

Youth Work: Tees Valley

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many youth workers there were in each local authority in the Tees Valley area in each of the last 10 years. [130899]

Mr. Dhanda: Youth workers are recruited and employed locally by local authority youth services. Information is not held centrally on the number of youth workers directly employed at a local level.

HEALTH

Abortions

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many abortions have been performed by Marie Stopes International in the last three years, broken down by (a) grounds, (b) length of gestation, (c) location and (d) nationality of the pregnant woman; how many inspections were carried out on premises occupied by Marie Stopes International in each of the last three years; how many complaints have been received by her Department about Marie Stopes International in the same period; and if she will make a statement. [129525]

Caroline Flint: Information on the number of abortions performed by Marie Stopes International (MSI) in England by grounds, gestation and the woman's place of residence is set out in the following table. The place of termination has been withheld in order to protect individuals' confidentiality. This is in line with the Office for National Statistics' guidance on the disclosure of abortion statistics, 2005.

Approved independent sector abortion clinics are inspected by the Healthcare Commission on an annual basis. Copies of the inspection reports can be viewed at:

www.healthcarecommission.org.uk.

The Department has received a small number of complaints during the last three years which were investigated. Under the Care Standards Act 2000, MSI is required to supply each patient with a written copy of its complaints procedure, fully investigate each complaint and maintain a detailed, written record of each complaint. MSI is also required to send the Healthcare Commission a statement every year with a summary of the complaints received.

In addition, the Healthcare Commission look at these records as part of a clinic inspection.

Accident and Emergency Departments

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 19 March 2007, Official Report, columns 727-28W on accident and emergency (A and E) admissions, how many attendances there were at Eastbourne District General Hospital A and E department in each of the last five years. [130969]

Andy Burnham: Information is not collected centrally at the level of individual hospitals. However, information on the total number of attendances at accident and emergency (A&E) departments at East Sussex Hospitals National Health Service Trust is shown in the table.

	Attendances at accident and emergency
2002-03	86,354

Accidents: Fees and Charges

John Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the start date was of the NHS Injury Cost Recovery Scheme; and if she will make a statement; [131126]

(2) how much the NHS Injury Cost Recovery Scheme is expected to cover each year; and if she will make a statement. [131127]

Andy Burnham: The regulations governing the operation of the national health service injury cost recovery (ICR) scheme came into force on 29 January 2007. The ICR scheme subsumes the existing road traffic accident (RTA) recovery scheme, and expands it to cover all cases where personal injury compensation is paid.

The existing RTA recovery scheme brings in more than £120 million for the NHS each year. We expect that the expanded scheme will recover a further £150 million a year once it is properly bedded down.

Acute Beds: East Sussex

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many acute hospital beds per head of population there were in each year since 1997 in (a) Eastbourne and (b) East Sussex. [130947]

Andy Burnham: The information is not available in the requested format. It is not possible to provide data for the number of beds at acute trusts by resident population or specific catchment areas. The following table contains the average daily number of acute hospital beds at East Sussex Hospitals National Health Service Trust.

	Acute beds

Living Wills

Mr. Laxton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will establish a central database or register for living wills. [130550]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Government have demonstrated the importance they attach to allowing people to make their own decisions about health care by including provisions for advance decisions to refuse treatment in the Mental Capacity Act (MCA). Such advance decisions are currently sometimes called living wills. The Government's intention have always been to allow as much flexibility as possible for those making advance decisions and, therefore, there is no standard form for an advance decision. This makes issues around the formal registration of advance decisions complicated.

The MCA code of practice recommends that people think about whether they want their health care record to reflect that they have made an advance decision. We will consider the practicalities of how this option might be realised within the context of the new national health service care records service.

Air Ambulance Services: Drugs

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether air ambulances are required to cover the cost of their own drugs. [131761]

Andy Burnham: Since 1 April 2002, the costs of clinical staff on air ambulances should be met by the national health service. Any decision to provide funding for drugs administered by air ambulance clinical staff would, however, be a matter for the local NHS ambulance trust.

Alcohol Abuse: Young People

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what (a) specialist treatment and (b) follow up care is available for under-18 year olds admitted to hospital with an alcohol-related diagnosis. [129900]

Caroline Flint: Dependent on their individual circumstances, the vast majority of young people admitted to hospital are admitted following an acute episode of drunkenness. They may not have a substantial alcohol problem requiring treatment, but the hospital team treating them would assess this. Depending on their age and maturity, they may be referred to adult alcohol treatment services or to the local child and adolescent mental health services to address any counselling or mental health needs. If they are developing severe health problems as a result of their alcohol misuse, they would be assessed by the specialist hospital team best placed to treat their particular health conditions.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of measures to reduce alcohol abuse by under 18 year olds; and if she will make a statement. [129901]

Caroline Flint: The Government are determined to reduce the harm caused to young people by alcohol misuse and are committed to educating young people on the very real harm it can cause. We are preventing the sale of alcohol to children by strengthening enforcement of the law on retailers and working with the industry to reduce under-age sales of alcohol—while continuing to educate young people about the harms, both physical and social, of alcohol abuse. Alcohol education is now part of the national curriculum. Updated guidance makes it clear that alcohol education should be about sensible drinking and reducing harm. This includes encouraging schools to look at the influence of the media on attitudes towards alcohol.

The Government have a high profile alcohol campaign, Know Your Limits, aimed at 18 to 24-year-old binge drinkers, warning them of the harms associated with binge drinking.

Ambulance Services: Standards

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment she has made of the effect of ambulance service reconfigurations on response times. [131672]

Andy Burnham: No assessment has been made. Annual national health service ambulance trust performance data for 2006-07 are due to be published this summer.

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will provide a breakdown of how the £25 million allocated to help improve category A ambulance response times has been spent; and what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of that expenditure. [131673]

Andy Burnham: Information on how the £25 million capital incentive scheme monies have been spent is not held centrally.

Currently the clock starts for measuring response times when key information has been obtained from the caller. From April 2008, the clock will start earlier, when the call is connected to the ambulance control room. Response time standards will remain the same. The incentive scheme was designed to help ambulance trusts make the capital investments required to maintain response times from April 2008. It is therefore too early to make an assessment of the effectiveness of that expenditure.

Blood: Contamination

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what potential conflicts of interest were notified to the Permanent Secretary by departmental Ministers between 1997 and 1999 in connection with the handling of compensation claims related to the supply of contaminated blood products by the NHS. [127259]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 13 March 2007]: The Department has no record available relating to notification of conflicts of interest for the period in question. To look into this any further would incur disproportionate cost.

Body Mass Index

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what her Department's estimate is of the average body mass index in (a) England, (b) the East of England, (c) Suffolk, (d) Bedfordshire, (e) Cambridgeshire, (f) Essex, (g) Hertfordshire and (h) Norfolk. [127869]

Caroline Flint: Information is not available in the format requested. The most recent data available on the mean body mass index (BMI) for adults and children in England is from the 2005 Health Survey for England (HSE).

Breast Cancer: Greater London

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) when she expects breast cancer screening services to be resumed at the North London Breast Screening Service; [130231]

(2) what estimate she has made of what the likely backlog will be when screening resumes at the North London Breast Screening Service; [130235]

(3) for what reasons the decision was taken to suspend breast cancer screening services at the North London Breast Screening Service. [130236]

Ms Rosie Winterton: I am advised that the temporary suspension was due to system process errors that were brought to light during a routine audit being carried out by the Quality Assurance Service. The audit flagged up that women were not invited for further assessments, in line with service protocols, following their mammogram. All the women affected received a normal mammogram (i.e. no abnormalities appeared on the mammogram). However, the women had mentioned other possible symptoms during their appointment and guidelines specify that further assessment should take place.

I understand that Enfield Primary Care Trust is currently working towards the completion of detailed plans to reopen the service during April. The service has been subject to an external review by the National Breast Screening Service Quality Assurance Team. The implementation of all the recommendations arising from the review continues to form a key part of the planning process. The trust will be able to confirm the precise arrangements for resuming the service after the review team has completed its work, which is expected by the end of March.

The trust with their partner primary care trusts have an evolving action plan in place for the recommencement of screening and to clear the backlog, including investigating arrangements with other potential service providers and their ability to assist with the backlog.

The unit is currently developing a full plan to facilitate the recommencement of screening services. Once this is complete the trust will be able to advise on estimates. It will also depend on whether arrangements can be put into place to screen women at other sites across London and the surrounding area. Women who have been waiting longest will be seen on a priority basis.

Approximately 3,500 women per month are normally seen by the service and it is estimated that approximately 10,000 women would have been affected by the suspension of the service.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many breast screening appointments were (a) made and (b) cancelled other than by the patient in each London primary care trust in each calendar year since 2000. [130234]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This information is not held centrally.

Breast Cancer: Screening

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many women aged between 50 and 70 years are required to wait more than three years between breast cancer screenings in (a) Surrey Primary Care Trust and (b) England; what estimate her Department has made of the attendance take-up rate of women aged between 50 and 70 years attending breast cancer screenings in each area; and if she will make a statement. [127578]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Surrey Primary Care Trust is covered by the breast screening unit based at the Jarvis Centre, Guildford. According to figures from January to March 2006, the average interval between screens for women at the Jarvis Centre was 33 months, and 92 per cent. of women were screened within 36 months of their previous screen. In England the average interval between screens for the same period was 36 months, with 68 per cent. of women being screened within 36 months of their previous screen.

We take the issue of the 36-month standard between screens very seriously. That is why Professor Mike Richards, the National Cancer Director, wrote to the chief executives of all 10 strategic health authorities in England on 9 February 2007 highlighting the importance of maintaining the 36-month interval.

Burton Independent Sector Treatment Centre

Charlotte Atkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment the Health Care Commission has made of (a) the quality of care delivered at Burton Independent Sector Treatment Centre and (b) the level of patient satisfaction with the delivery of care. [130200]

Andy Burnham: As the independent inspection body for both the national health service and independent healthcare, the Healthcare Commission (HCC) is not part of the Department. Therefore, the information requested is not held centrally. However, information on the reviews of services undertaken by the HCC are available on their website at: www.healthcare commission.org.uk

All Independent Sector providers, including the Midlands Treatment Centre located in Burton, are required to achieve HCC approval before services are commenced and to meet subsequent reviews. We can confirm that the Midlands Treatment Centre did receive HCC approval for the start of services in July 2006.

Charlotte Atkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the targeted case volume is for Burton Independent Sector Treatment Centre; and what proportion of that volume was achieved in each year since it was set up; [130201]

(2) what operating and medical procedures Burton Independent Sector Treatment Centre undertakes; and whether these differ from those carried out in its first two years. [130205]

Andy Burnham: The Midlands National Health Service Treatment Centre, situated in Burton, opened in July 2006. The case mix at the treatment centre continues to include ENT (ears nose and throat), general surgery, gynaecology, OMFS (face/jaw), ophthalmology, pain relief, plastics, rheumatology, trauma and orthopaedics and urology.

The Department measures independent sector treatment centre contract performance on the basis of value rather than activity. This is to allow for the variations, which can occur through substitution of activity between procedures of varying value.

Charlotte Atkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what impact the Burton Independent Sector Treatment Centre has had on (a) capacity and (b) waiting times in Staffordshire hospitals in each year since it was established. [130202]

Andy Burnham: The Midlands Treatment Centre, located in Burton, has been able to provide additional surgical capacity in the Staffordshire area while offering patients a wider choice of provider for their treatment.

It is also believed that the facility has helped local national health service hospitals in achieving their maximum waiting time targets. As at January 2007, no patients in the Stoke on Trent, North Staffordshire and the South Staffordshire primary care trusts were waiting in excess of 26 weeks for inpatient treatment or 13 weeks for an outpatient appointment.

Charlotte Atkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what role Burton Independent Sector Treatment Centre has in training medical staff; [130203]

(2) what staff the Burton Independent Sector Treatment Centre employs; and from where they were recruited. [130204]

Andy Burnham: The Midlands National Health Service Treatment Centre, situated in Burton, provides training and supervision to its medical staff. The training includes continuing professional development, infection control, equipment and information management and technology.

Junior doctors work in the treatment centre alongside consultants as part of their training programme. The consultants remain responsible for clinical care and the training delivered as required. The agreement is that the direction and management of training of clinical trainees largely replicates current NHS training processes.

The treatment centre employs 179 staff (headcount), the majority of which were recruited from the United Kingdom.

Cancer

Dr. Tony Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research is sponsored by her Department to assess the effectiveness of dichloroacetate in attacking cancer cells. [123532]

Caroline Flint: None. The Medical Research Council (MRC), one of the main agencies through which the Government supports medical and clinical research, is currently funding a broad portfolio of cancer research, including early stage trials and basic and underpinning research. The MRC has not received or considered any proposals to assess the effectiveness of dichloroacetate in attacking cancer cells. The Council always welcomes high quality applications for support in any aspect of biomedical research and these are judged in open competition with other demands on funding.

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people diagnosed with cancer there were in (a) England and Wales and (b) Gloucestershire, broken down by type of cancer in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [131171]

John Healey: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 16 April 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking how many people diagnosed with cancer there were in (a) England and Wales and (b) Gloucestershire, broken down by type of cancer in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [131171]

The latest available figures for newly diagnosed cases (incidence) of cancer in England are for the years 2004. Figures for 2000-2004 for (a) England and Wales and (b) the county of Gloucestershire are given in Table 1 below. Table 1 provides data for 'all cancers excluding non-melanoma skin cancer' and the four most common cancers—breast, colorectal, lung, and prostate—which accounted for more than half of new cases of malignant cancer (excluding non-melanoma skin cancer) registered in England and Wales in 2004.

Cancer: Urinary System

Mr. Clelland: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment she has made of the progress of cancer networks in implementing the Improving Outcomes guidance for urological cancers; [128525]

(2) what mechanisms she has put in place to ensure that service providers commissioned by her Department are meeting the Improving Outcomes guidance for urological cancers in relation to (a) multi-disciplinary team working and (a) access to specialist nurses. [128660]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Strategic health authorities were asked to submit action plans to demonstrate how they will implement the guidance on Improving Outcomes in urological cancers. Progress against these action plans is monitored by the Department and the Healthcare Commission. The majority of cancer networks reported at December 2006 that the guidance would be fully implemented by December 2007.

The guidance has also been translated into a series of measures for inclusion in the Manual of Cancer Services 2004. All cancer networks in England have now been peer reviewed against these measures, which include measures about urological cancer multi-disciplinary teams including urology nurse specialists. Reports of the local peer review visits for each cancer network can be found on the Cancer Quality Improvement Network System (CQuINS) database at www.cquins.nhs.uk. A national summary will also be produced and is expected to be available in the summer.

Care Homes

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people in the UK aged 75 years or over are living in (a) public sector residential care homes and (b) private sector residential care homes. [130279]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 27 March 2007]: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many approved care homes for the (a) elderly and (b) other vulnerable people there are in England. [129160]

Andy Burnham: The Commission for Social Care Inspection (CSCI), as the official regulator of social care provision, registers and inspects all care homes in England. It is important to note that care homes are not approved by CSCI. Registration with and inspection by CSCI simply signifies that a home is permitted to operate.

I am informed by the chair of CSCI that care homes are not registered as homes for older people (those aged over 65) or for younger adults (those aged 18-64). Many take in a mix of client groups. The following table shows the number of homes in England which have been regulated by CSCI against the national minimum standards (NMS) for care homes for older people and the NMS for care homes for younger adults.

	Number
Total number of homes	[1]18,718
Care homes regulated against NMS for care homes for older people	10,671
Care homes regulated against NMS for care homes for younger adults	7,428

[1] This total is greater than the sum of the two categories of home due to the fact that some homes (such as new homes) had not been regulated against the NMS by 1 April 2006.

Care Homes: Fees and Charges

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health why Torbay Primary Care Trust (PCT) reimbursed care home fees to Mr. Mike Pearce; what precedent has been set by the PCT's decision; what estimate she has made of the liabilities of the NHS for future repayments of denied continuing care funding; what framework Torbay used to re-assess the case; and what the total NHS expenditure was in England in 2005-06 on (a) care homes and (b) care home places for those with Alzheimer's disease. [119803]

Caroline Flint: Following the Health Service Ombudsman's report "NHS Funding for Long Term Care of Older and Disabled People", the national health service has carried out retrospective reviews of over 12,000 cases where fully funded NHS care was denied, dating back to 1996. The case of Mr. Pearce's mother was one of these retrospective reviews of her eligibility for continuing care. This retrospective review found that Mrs. Pearce was wrongly denied NHS funding for her care, and so Torbay Care Trust reimbursed care home fees for the period of time when they considered they should have been paying for her care.

The care trust will continue to take the same approach to any other retrospective reviews they have to conduct, but no national precedent has been set.

In 2004, primary care trusts (PCTs) estimated that they would pay approximately £180 million in repayment as a consequence of the retrospective reviews of cases following the Ombudsman's report.

Torbay Care Trust used the strategic health authority's (SHA) eligibility criteria, which have been reviewed in accordance with guidance issued by the Department since the Coughlan and Grogan judgments. In their consideration of Mrs. Pearce's case, they used the draft decision support tool, published as part of the Department's consultation in 2006 , to help them gather information about Mrs. Pearce's needs. This information was then tested against the criteria already in place in the SHA.

. Further clarification for PCTs about redress, in cases where it has been found that NHS funding was wrongly withheld, was contained in guidance published by the Department in response to the publication of the joint report by the Parliamentary Commissioner for Administration (Parliamentary Ombudsman) and the Health Service Ombudsman for England, Retrospective continuing care funding and redress, on 14 March 2007.

The information requested on NHS expenditure on care home and care home places is not held centrally.

Care Homes: Manpower

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what regulations determine the ratio of nursing staff to patients in (a) nursing and (b) residential homes; what those ratios are; and if she will make a statement. [130725]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Regulation 18 of the Care Homes Regulations 2001, which apply to both nursing and residential homes, requires that the registered person shall, having regard to the size of the care home, the statement of purpose and the number and needs of service users, ensure that at all times suitably qualified, competent and experienced persons are working in the care home in such numbers as are appropriate for the health and welfare of service users.

Specific ratios are not laid down, either in the Regulations or the national minimum standards, which the regulator, the Commission for Social Care Inspection, must have regard to when inspecting care homes to establish compliance with the regulations.

Staffing ratios must be determined according to service users' health and care needs; these may vary from home to home and from day to day. It is a provider's obligation in law to ensure that their establishment is appropriately staffed on a day to day basis.

Carers: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what proportion of the funding made available to local authorities for respite care for carers in the recent New Deal for Carers statement will be allocated to Peterborough City Council; and if she will make a statement; [123830]

(2) what estimate she has made of the number of carers in the Peterborough City Council area for the purposes of the allocation of funding to assist with respite care are under the New Deal for Carers. [123831]

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to her written statement of 21 February 2007, Official Report, column 49WS, on the New Deal for Carers, how much of the additional £25 million available to local authorities in England for the provision of short term home-based respite care she expects to be allocated to Oxfordshire County Council. [124263]

Andy Burnham: There were 670 carers who received an assessment or a review in Peterborough council during the year 2005-06, of which 200 carers received a break and or carers specific services.

In 2007-08 Peterborough city council will receive £1.959 million for carers, of which £233,000 will support the provision of emergency respite care.

During the same period Oxfordshire county council will receive £0.686 million for carers, of which £82,000 will support the provision of emergency respite care.

A table detailing the amounts each council will be allocated has been placed in the Library.

Cataracts: Surgery

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average waiting time was for cataract operations in (a) North Yorkshire, (b) County Durham and (c) England in the latest period for which figures are available; and how many cataract operations were cancelled and re-arranged following an initial date for the operation being given in the same period. [129489]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The average waiting times for cataract operations in the former strategic health authorities for County Durham and Tees Valley and North and East Yorkshire and Northern Lincolnshire in 2005-06 are given in the following table.

Strategic health authority	Median time waited (days)
County Durham and Tees Valley	62
North and East Yorkshire and Northern Lincolnshire	75
England	69

Notes:
1. Data are for finished admission episodes, i.e. the first period of in-patient care under one consultant with one Healthcare provider.
2. Time waited is the difference between the admission and decision to admit dates.

Source:
Hospital Episodes Statistics (HES), The Information Centre for health and social care.

The Department does not collect data on numbers of cancelled operations for individual procedures such as cataract operations.

Bowel Cancer Screening

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many (a) newly trained non-medical endoscopists and (b) medical endoscopists were delivered by the national endoscopy training programme in each year since its creation; [129628]

(2) what estimate she has made of the number of additional endoscopists required to support a fully-implemented national bowel cancer screening programme. [129629]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 23 March 2007]: Training in endoscopy (bowel scoping) is vital to the diagnosis of bowel cancer. To prepare for the bowel cancer screening programme, we have built on the training established as part of the national health service cancer plan. A national training programme has been established, with three national and seven regional centres, to train medical staff, general practitioners, nurses and other health professionals to carry out vital procedures for diagnosing bowel cancer. The options appraisal analysis for the introduction of the bowel cancer screening programme estimated that an additional 61,274 endoscopies would be required equating to 14 additional endoscopy units staffed by four trained nurse endoscopists and 1.4 whole-time equivalent gastroenterologists. It is for cancer networks to work in partnership with strategic health authorities and postgraduate deaneries to put in place a sustainable process to assess, plan and review their workforce needs and the education and training of all staff linked to local and national priorities for cancer.

Based on current trends and definitions the training programme is projected to deliver the following training courses by the end of 2006-07.

National endoscopy training programme courses

	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07	Total
Medical endoscopists	494	249	618	1,361
Non medical endoscopists	60	61	26	147
Total	554	310	644	1,508

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) further to her Department's press release on the bowel cancer screening programme of 2 August 2005, how the figure of £37.5 million of expenditure will be broken down over the first two years of the programme's implementation; [130553]

(2) pursuant to the answer of 23 March 2007, Official Report, column 1190W, on bowel cancer screening, what funding earmarked for the programme has been included in the Strategic Health Authority bundle for 2007-08. [130595]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 29 March 2007]: Funding for the national health service bowel cancer screening programme is included in the strategic health authority (SHA) bundle, that incorporates a number of budgets formally managed directly by the Department.

Around £10 million was made available for wave one of the programme in 2006-07. The value of the SHA bundle for 2007-08 is £6,945.78 million, and was announced in the NHS operating framework that was published on 11 December 2006 to the NHS. £27.5 million was included in the SHA bundle for the bowel screening programme. Allocations are made direct to SHAs, and they manage the distribution of funds among the different programmes, including the bowel cancer screening programme, taking account of local circumstances.

This is an ambitious project and the Government are committed to ensuring that the necessary funding is available to ensure the full implementation of the bowel cancer screening programme.

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health further to her Department's press release on the bowel cancer screening programme of 2 August 2005, what steps she will take to assess whether the target for 25 per cent. coverage of England by the end of 2006-07 has been met; and what estimate she has made of the proportion of England currently covered by the programme. [130554]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 29 March 2007]: We started the roll-out of the programme slightly later than originally intended. However, we took all the practical steps possible to prepare for the roll-out and to minimise the delay. All five programme hubs in England are now operational, and 15 of the eventual 90 to 100 local screening centres opened in 2006-07. These cover 49 out of 152 primary care trusts in England, covering a population of 13 million, around 26 per cent. of the English population. It is for strategic health authorities working in partnership with their primary care trusts and local stakeholders to organise and deliver services for their local populations. We expect around half of the local screening centres to be operational by March 2008, with full overage in England by December 2009.

The bowel cancer screening programme is an ambitious project, and one of the first of its kind in Europe. When fully implemented, it will screen around 2 million men and women and detect around 3,000 bowel cancers every year. We are committed to implementing this important programme.

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if her Department will extend the national bowel cancer screening programme to those aged (a) 70 and over and (b) between 50 and 60. [130800]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The bowel cancer screening programme is beginning by inviting men and women aged 60 to 69 to be screened as the risk of bowel cancer increases with age, with over 80 per cent. of bowel cancers arising in people who are 60 or over.

The successful national health service pilot study also showed that men and women in their 60s were more likely to take up their invitations for screening than men and women in their 50s.

Within the programme, men and women aged 70 and over are able to self-refer for screening every two years.

When we have rolled out the programme to the whole of England, we will make an assessment of whatever next steps may be required, including looking at the age range.

Colorectal Cancer: Surgery

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many rectal cancer operations were carried out by the NHS in each of the last three years; and what the cost of such operations was in each year. [130483]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Information on the number of operations relating to rectal and colon cancer in the last three years for which figures are available, is shown in the following table.

Information on the cost of these operations is not available.

Count of finished consultant episodes (FCEs) with an operation and with a primary diagnosis of colon and rectum insitu and secondary neoplasms between 2003-04 and 2005-06

	FCEs
2003-04	130,451
2004-05	129,357
2005-06	136,979

Notes:

1. Diagnosis (primary diagnosis): The primary diagnosis is the first of up to 14 (seven prior to 2002-03) diagnosis fields in the Hospital Episode Statistics (HES) data set and provides the main reason why the patient was in hospital.
2. Finished consultant episode (FCE): An FCE is defined as a period of admitted patient care under one consultant within one health care provider. Please note that the figures do not represent the number of patients, as a person may have more than one episode of care within the year.
3. Ungrossed data: Figures have not been adjusted for shortfalls in data (i.e. the data are ungrossed).
4. Main operation: The main operation is the first recorded operation in the HES data set and is usually the most resource intensive procedure performed during the episode. It is appropriate to use main operation when looking at admission details, e.g. time waited, but the figures for "all operations count of episodes" give a more complete count of episodes with an operation.

Community Care: Expenditure

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much (a) local authorities and (b) primary care trusts spent on social care for people in (i) their own homes and (ii) care homes in each of the last five years. [126547]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The following two tables provide information on the gross current expenditure from councils with social services responsibilities (CSSRs) for residential care, home care and other community-based services for both adults and children in England for the years 2001-02 to 2005-06. Expenditure data on social care by primary care trusts are not centrally available.

Dental Services: West Sussex

Nick Herbert: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS dentists there were in (a) Arundel and South Downs constituency and (b) West Sussex in (i) 1997 and (ii) each of the last three years for which figures are available. [127706]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Table 1 shows information on the number of national health service dentists as at 31 March 1997 and 2004 to 2006 for the areas requested, based on the old contractual arrangements.

The latest workforce information, as at 30 June, 30 September and 31 December 2006, is based on the new contractual arrangements, introduced on 1 April 2006, and is available at primary care trust (PCT), strategic health authority (SHA) and England level. This information is provided in Table 2. To provide these data at constituency level would incur disproportionate cost. Data based on the old contractual arrangements are not directly comparable to those under the new contractual arrangements.

Information is taken from the following reports:

NHS Dental Activity and Workforce Report, England: 31 March 2006

NHS Dental Statistics for England Quarter 3, 31 December 2006.

Both reports are available in the Library.

Table 1: General dental services (GDS) and personal dental services (PDS): Numbers of NHS dentists in the specified constituency and PCTs as at 31 March each year

Mid-Sussex PCT	67	110	118	129
Western Sussex PCT	67	88	95	98

Notes:
1. Dentists consist of principals, assistants and trainees. Information on NHS dentistry in the community dental service, in hospitals and in prisons is excluded.
2. A dentist can provide as little or as much NHS treatment as he or she chooses or has agreed within the contract. In some cases an NHS dentist may be listed to carry out NHS work but may not do so for a given period.
3. Information is based on NHS dentists on PCT lists from the BSA.
4. PCT boundaries are as at 30 September 2006.
5. The PCTs listed are those that now form West Sussex PCT as a result of the 1 October 2006 PCT boundary changes.
6. Constituency boundaries may have changed over time therefore these data may not be directly comparable.

Notes:
1. A performer is defined as a dentist who has been set up on the BSA payments online (POL) system by the PCT to work under an open contract during the relevant time period.
2. Data provided are a count of the individuals listed as performers on open contracts within a PCT, including orthodontists.
3. A dentist can provide as little or as much NHS treatment as he or she chooses or has agreed within the contract. In some cases an NHS dentist may be listed to carry out NHS work but may not do so for a given period.
4. Data consists of performers in general dental services (GDS), personal dental services (PDS) and trust-led dental services.
5. PCT boundaries are as at 1 October 2006.
6. The PCTs listed are those that now form West Sussex PCT as a result of the 1 October 2006 PCT boundary changes.
7. Dentists will be counted more than once if they have contracts in more than one PCT.

Nick Herbert: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) adults and (b) children were registered with an NHS dentist in (i) the Arundel and South Downs constituency and (ii) West Sussex in (A) 1997 and (B) each of the last three years for which figures are available. [127707]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Table 1 shows information on the number of adult and child patients registered with a national health service dentist for the areas requested as at 31 March 1997 and 2004 to 2006, based on the old contractual arrangements and under the PCT boundaries as at 30 September 2006.

Under the new dental contractual arrangements, introduced on 1 April 2006, registration data are no longer collected centrally. Instead, there is a new measure on patients seen within the previous 24 months. The latest information on total numbers of patients seen within the previous 24 months is provided in table 2. Information in table 2 is under the primary care trust (PCT) boundaries as at 1 October 2006. To provide these data at constituency level would incur disproportionate cost.

Departmental Contracts

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many contracts her Department has with (a) Alliance Medical, (b) Amicus Healthcare, (c) BUPA Healthcare, (d) Capio Healthcare, (e) Clincienta, (f) Mercury Health, (g) Nations Healthcare, (h) Netcare Healthcare, (i) Nuffield Hospitals, (j) Partnership Health Group and (k) UKSH; what the purpose of the contract is in each case; how long each contract is for; and how much she estimates will have been paid in total via these contracts in 2006-07. [129890]

Andy Burnham: Contracts for the independent sector and the purpose of each is shown in the following table. Contracts are generally for five years.

Provider	Contract
Capio	One contract to provide Independent Sector Treatment Centre (ISTC) services
Alliance Medical	One contract to provide mobile MRI services
Amicus Healthcare	None
Bupa Healthcare	A provider through the Independent Sector Extended Choice Network (IS ECN)[1]
Mercury Health	One contract to provide ISTCs services one contract for diagnostic services.
Nations Healthcare	Two contracts to provide ISTC services
Netcare Healthcare	Two contracts to provide NHS Walk In Centres with a commuter focus one contract to provide ISTC services one contract to provide mobile ophthalmic services
Nuffield Hospitals	A provider through the Independent Sector Extended Choice Network (IS ECN)[1]
Partnership Health Group	Four contracts to provide ISTC services
UKSH	One contract to provide ISTC services

[1] IS ECN providers are members of a framework and are paid on a per procedure basis and do not have five year contracts.

Financial information on individual contracts is commercially sensitive, the total value paid on all the ISTC programme contracts in 2006-07 is £216 million.

Departments: Work Permits

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many work permits were applied for by (a) her Department and (b) its agencies in each of the last five years. [126801]

Caroline Flint: The Department applied for one work permit, in 2005.

The Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency, an executive agency of the Department, applied for two work permits in the last five years —one in 2003 and one in 2006.

NHS Purchasing and Supply Agency, an executive agency of the Department, applied for a total of two work permits—one applied for in 2003 and one in 2007.

Diabetes: Screening

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many registered diabetics had access to blood testing strips for home testing in each year since 1997. [129395]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Data are not collected on the numbers of registered people with diabetes who have access to blood testing strips.

The following table shows the number of blood glucose monitoring strips dispensed in England from 1997 to 2006[1].

	Items
1997	1,971,463
1998	2,438,640
1999	2,857,441
2000	3,372,897
2001	3,987,930
2002	4,702,845
2003	5,077,542
2004	5,330,313
2005	5,553,611
2006[1]	4,263,166

[1] 2006—figures are for the first nine months only

PCA Data

Prescription information is taken from the Prescription Cost Analysis (PCA) system, supplied by the Prescription Pricing Authority (PPA), and is based on a full analysis of all prescriptions dispensed in the community i.e. by community pharmacists and appliance contractors, dispensing doctors, and prescriptions submitted by prescribing doctors for items personally administered in England. Also included are prescriptions written in Wales, Scotland, Northern Ireland and the Isle of Man but dispensed in England. The data do not cover drugs dispensed in hospitals, including mental health trusts, or private prescriptions.

Prescription Items

Prescriptions are written on a prescription form. Each single item written on the form is counted as a prescription item. A person with diabetes may get more than one prescription item each year.

Drugs: Internet

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the availability of (a) phentermine, (b) diethylpropiom, (c) reductil and (d) orlistat from internet suppliers; what mechanisms are in place to promote appropriate medical supervision for those obtaining and using drugs through the internet; and if she will make a statement. [130809]

Caroline Flint: The Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency routinely monitors medicines being offered for sale on the Internet and is concerned about the increase in the online availability of medicines, including slimming pills.

In the United Kingdom (UK), there are strict legal controls on the retail sale, supply and advertisement of medicinal products. These controls apply without distinction to medicines sold or supplied through Internet transactions and mail order.

Slimming drugs are, generally speaking, classified as prescription only medicines (POM) and are available only after a consultation with a healthcare practitioner. Products purchased from Internet sites cannot be guaranteed for their quality, safety and efficacy, nor can their effects on patients be monitored. For these reasons, the supply of POMs is strictly controlled in the UK and breaches in regulatory requirements are investigated.

Additionally, specific information relating to slimming products and other medicines considered to be at risk of counterfeiting are circulated to stakeholders in order to increase vigilance through more focused surveillance and inspections.

Mechanisms for promoting suitable medical supervision, however, are matters of professional practice and are not covered by medicines legislation.

Drugs: Licensing

Mr. Malins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she expects the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence to publish a technical appraisal on naltrexore as a treatment for relapse prevention; and if she will make a statement. [130354]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 27 March 2007]: The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE), published a technical appraisal on naltrexone as a treatment for relapse prevention on 24 January 2007.

The National Treatment Agency (NTA) is supporting the Department in developing an implementation strategy for the dissemination of the NICE technology appraisal on naltrexone and their other current work relating to drug treatment. This strategy will seek to ensure that complementary initiatives undertaken by NICE and the NTA are disseminated in a coherent and co-ordinated way to inform the commissioners and providers of drug treatment.

Drugs: Side Effects

Mrs. Humble: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of the Yellow Card system for reporting adverse reactions to drugs; how many incidents were reported in each of the past three years; what estimate she has made of the level of under-reporting in each of the last three years; and what steps she is taking to improve matters; [121065]

(2) what assessment she has made of the merits of introducing a requirement for doctors to report adverse reactions to (a) licensed and (b) unlicensed drugs; [121229]

(3) what assessment she has made of the merits of extending the remit of the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency in order to allow it to monitor adverse reactions to unlicensed drugs. [121230]

Caroline Flint: The Yellow Card Scheme is used to collect reports of suspected adverse drug reactions (ADRs) associated with any marketed medicinal product, including those available on prescription or purchased from a pharmacy, or a general retail outlet. The scheme encompasses unlicensed as well as licensed products, including herbal products.

The Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) and Commission for Human Medicines (CHM) are continually working to increase the quality and quantity of reports received via the Yellow Card Scheme.

The following table shows the number of reports received in the past three years.

	Number of reports
2006	23,992
2005	22,127

In 2003, an independent review of the Yellow Card Scheme strongly endorsed the value and importance of the Scheme for public health and the benefit of patients. The MHRA is currently developing a strategy in consultation with the CHM to build on these recommendations in order to further strengthen reporting to the Yellow Card Scheme.

It is recognised that voluntary spontaneous reporting systems such as the Yellow Card Scheme are associated with an unknown level of under-reporting. It has been estimated that 10 per cent. of serious ADRs and between 2 and 4 per cent. of non-serious ADRs are reported and that serious reactions are five times more likely to be reported than non-serious reactions.

The value of introducing mandatory reporting of suspected ADRs by healthcare professionals has been considered on several occasions, most recently during the independent review of the Yellow Card Scheme. Available evidence indicates that there is no clear increase in rates of reporting in countries with mandatory reporting when compared with those where reporting is voluntary. Furthermore there would be practical difficulties in enforcing mandatory reporting. The Independent Review did not recommend a mandatory system for suspected ADR reporting in the United Kingdom.

Drugs: Testing

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when the Criminal Investigation Unit of the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency first began investigating the withholding of data from clinical trials of paroxetine; when she expects the Criminal Investigation Unit to take a decision on whether to refer the case to the police; whether she has the ultimate authority to decide whether a matter under investigation by the Criminal Investigation Unit is referred to the police; and if she will make a statement. [118142]

Caroline Flint: The criminal investigation into whether GlaxoSmithKline PLC withheld from the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) information from paediatric clinical trials of their drug Seroxat (the United Kingdom brand name for paroxetine) was commenced by the Enforcement and Intelligence Group of the MHRA on 1 October 2003.The investigation is ongoing.

Criminal investigations into alleged breaches of medicines regulations are the statutory responsibility of the Secretary of State and are carried out by authorised officers in the Enforcement and Intelligence Group at MHRA.

Essex Rivers Healthcare Trust

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) hospital nurses, (b) junior hospital doctors and (c) other nurses were employed in the Essex Rivers Healthcare Trust in (i) 2005-06 and (ii) 2006-07. [129624]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 23 March 2007]: The information is not collected centrally in the form requested. However, the following table shows doctors in training alongside nursing, midwifery and health visiting staff figures as at 30 September 2005.

Hospital and Community Health Services (HCHS): Doctors in training and nursing, midwifery and health visiting staff within Essex Rivers Healthcare National Health Service Trust

General Practitioners: East Sussex

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many GPs in (a) Eastbourne and (b) East Sussex have opted out of working overtime; [130946]

(2) how many GPs in (a) Eastbourne and (b) East Sussex (i) do and (ii) do not work on an out-of-office hours contract. [130965]

Andy Burnham: The information requested is not collected centrally.

General Practitioners: Standards

Mr. Holloboone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what targets for productivity improvement from GP practices she has set for the next three years. [131013]

Andy Burnham: As part of the General Medical Services contract for 2006-07, the BMA and NHS Employers (on behalf of the Department) agreed that primary medical care contractors should be subject to the same level of efficiency improvement placed on other parts of the national health service. This remains our expectation.

Gynaecology

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of patients referred to hospital with fibroid-related dysfunctional uterine bleeding (menorrhagia) underwent (a) myomectomy and (b) uterine artery embolisation as an alternative to hysterectomy in each of the last five years, broken down by strategic health authority. [124949]

Caroline Flint: This information cannot be provided in the format requested.

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many patients were referred to hospital with dysfunctional uterine bleeding (menorrhagia) in each of the last five years, in each strategic health authority area. [124950]

Notes:

Finished admission episodes

A finished admission episode is the first period of in-patient care under one consultant within one health care provider. Please note that admissions do not represent the number of in-patients, as a person may have more than one admission within the year.

Diagnosis (primary diagnosis)

The primary diagnosis is the first of up to 14 (seven prior to 2002-03) diagnosis fields in the Hospital Episode Statistics (HES) data set and provides the main reason why the patient was in hospital.

Selected primary diagnosis codes for Dysfunctional Uterine Bleeding and Menorrhagia

*Dysfunctional Uterine Bleeding

N93.8 Other specified abnormal uterine and vaginal bleeding
Includes dysfunctional or functional uterine or vaginal bleeding NOS

*Menorrhagia

Menorrhagia is the term for excessive or frequent menstruation.
N92.0 Excessive and frequent menstruation with regular cycle
Includes Heavy periods NOS
Menorrhagia NOS
Polymenoirrhoea
N92.2 Excessive menstruation at puberty
Includes Excessive bleeding associated with onset of menstrual periods
Pubertal menorrhagia
Puberty bleeding
N92.4 Excessive bleeding in premenopausal period
Includes Menorrhagia or metrorrhagia
Climacteric
Menopausal
Proclimacteric
Premenopausal
N95.0 Post menopausal bleeding

Data Quality

Hospital Episode Statistics (HES) are compiled from data sent by over 300 NHS trusts and primary care trusts (PCT's) in England. The Information Centre for health and social care liaises closely with these organisations to encourage submission of complete and valid data and seeks to minimise inaccuracies and the effect of missing and invalid data via HES processes. While this brings about improvement over time, some shortcomings remain.

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of patients referred to hospital with dysfunctional uterine bleeding (menorrhagia) underwent (a) a hysterectomy and (b) ablation as an alternative to hysterectomy in each of the last five years, in each strategic health authority area. [124951]

Caroline Flint: This information cannot be provided in the format requested.

HC1 Form

Sir Peter Soulsby: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) people aged under 25 years and (b) higher education students applied for assistance with their health costs through the HC1 form in 2005; and how many people from each category received such help. [108687]

Caroline Flint: The following table provides an estimate of those claiming for help with their health costs via the HC1 form (based on 2005-06 data as figures are not available for the calendar year 2005).

Those in receipt of HC2 certificates receive full help consisting of free prescriptions, sight tests, NHS dental treatment, wigs and fabric supports and travel to receive national health service treatment under the care of a consultant. The HC3 certificate provides partial help with the cost of the above, with the exception of prescriptions which are not free.

Health Professions: Foreign Workers

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) doctors and (b) nurses recruited to the NHS from outside the European Union (i) were found guilty of malpractice in each of the last five years and (ii) are being investigated for malpractice. [128944]

Andy Burnham: The Department does not collect this information centrally. The General Medical Council and the General Nursing and Midwifery Council hold the register of doctors and nurses who practise in the United Kingdom, and make decisions on investigations and erasure from their registers.

Health Services

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what rules govern the purchase of health services from hospitals by primary care trusts with more than one hospital from which to commission services. [124108]

Andy Burnham: "The NHS in England: operating framework for 2007-08" signalled the introduction of a new national health service contract for primary care trusts to use when commissioning acute secondary care services covered by payment by results (PbR), from NHS trusts, NHS foundation trusts and independent sector providers. The NHS contract for acute hospital services covers agreements between primary care trusts (PCTs) and providers for the delivery of acute hospital-based care. The contract enables patients to choose where they are referred for elective care, and hospitals will be paid by PCT commissioners according to PbR rules for the work they do.

The rules and principles relating to the operation of the contract are set out in "Guidance on the NHS Contract for Acute Hospital Services for 2007-08". A copy of this document is available in the Library. All acute NHS trust will adopt the new contract from April 2007. The contract will be applied to NHS foundation trusts either from April 2007 or subsequently, from the earliest point at which their pre-existing contracts become invalid.

The principles of patient choice apply equally to services provided by NHS foundation trusts which remain on the previous form of contract.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 2 March 2007, Official Report, column 1579W, on health services, if she will give a breakdown of her estimate that 90 per cent. of people's contacts with the health service take place outside hospitals. [127605]

Andy Burnham: A breakdown of the 90 per cent. of contacts with the health service that take place outside hospital has been estimated as follows: 26 per cent. with the family doctor service, 59 per cent. prescription items dispensed in the community and 5 per cent. other services, including district nurses and other community based staff.

Health Services: Internet

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health for what reasons the decision was taken not to continue to fund the Best Treatments website; and if she will make a statement. [123567]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 27 February 2007]: Financial resources and new policy developments were deciding factors regarding the contract for Best Treatments. The Department remains committed to providing patients and the public with the information they need to make informed decisions about their healthcare and social care, but needs to target resources where they will be most effective.

The Department will help people to find the excellent information that is already available rather than duplicate production. That is why we are developing information prescriptions and an information accreditation scheme. In this way, we will drive up quality of information and assure people that the information they access is reliable and relevant to them.

Health Services: North West Region

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether any of the bidders for the (a) Integrated Clinical Assessment and Treatment Services and (b) Clinical Assessment Treatment Services centres in the North West are also (i) health care providers in the North West and (ii) owned, wholly or in part, by health care providers in the North West. [131762]

Andy Burnham: Netcare, who are the preferred bidder for the Cumbria and Lancashire Clinical Assessment, Treatment and Support (CATS) electives scheme and one of the two Greater Manchester CATS schemes, provides national health service services in the North West through the Greater Manchester Surgical Centre, part of Wave 1 of the Independent Sector Treatment Centre programme.

Health Services: Overseas Residence

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what estimate she has made of the cost of providing free NHS treatment to UK citizens who are resident abroad in each of the last five years; [130392]

(2) what the estimated revenue from UK citizens resident abroad in NHS fees was in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [130393]

Ms Rosie Winterton: In general, any United Kingdom citizen who resides abroad is treated as an overseas visitor and may be required to pay for national health service treatment under the provisions of the NHS (Charges to Overseas Visitors) Regulations 1989, as amended. Successive Governments have not required the NHS to provide statistics on the number of overseas visitors seen, treated or charged under these provisions, nor any costs involved. It is therefore not possible to provide the information requested.

Health: Irish Community

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps are being taken to target the Irish community with culturally appropriate health promotion strategies in the areas of (a) smoking cessation, (b) healthy diet and (c) exercise. [128175]

Caroline Flint: Smoking cessation campaigns are predominantly targeted at the general population of smokers, and the highest prevalence group of 25-44 year olds in lower socio-economic groups (C2DE). We develop our campaigns with appropriate messaging for this group based on insights into their smoking behaviour, with additional campaign materials developed for communities where cultural factors affect the accessibility of these messages. There has been no evidence yet suggested by research that members of the Irish community in our target audience will be less receptive to the core national campaign messages, or experience accessibility issues. Individual PCTs that have substantial Irish communities within their catchment area may run targeted public health campaigns for this group.

On healthy diet and exercise, we will be rolling out a series of initiatives linking in with partner organisations across the public sector, the food manufacturing and retail sector and with voluntary organisations to support families to live a healthy life based on a healthy diet and increased physical activity. The Healthy Living strategy is about providing support when and where it is required and in a way that people will respond to.

The most extensive survey on behaviours of minority ethnic groups ever carried out in England was published in April 2006. The Health Survey for England 2004 interviewed over 6,000 adults from black and minority ethnic communities including Irish communities. The proportion of Irish adults who met the five-a-day recommendation was 26 per cent. of Irish men and 32 per cent. of Irish women compared with 23 per cent. and 27 per cent. of the general population.

On exercise the proportion of Irish adults who reported physical activity rates at the chief medical officer's recommended level of at least 30 minutes a day, five days a week was 39 per cent. for men and 29 per cent. for women compared with the figures for the general population of 37 per cent. for men and 25 per cent. for women.

A copy of the survey is available in the Library.

Health: Regulatory Impact Assessment

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 21 March 2007, Official Report, columns 1005-06W, on Health: Regulatory Impact Assessment, on which items of legislation for which (a) her Department and (b) other Government Departments are responsible health impact assessments have been incorporated into the regulatory impact assessment process. [130414]

Andy Burnham: The specific information requested could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Regulatory impact assessments (RIAs) for legislation made since health impact assessments were incorporated into the RIA framework are available in the Library and on Government Departments' websites.

Hearing Aids: Gloucestershire

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many patients were provided with a digital hearing aid in each month by Gloucestershire Hospitals Trust since the current programme began. [130256]

Caroline Flint: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Heart Diseases: Bolton

Mr. Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people in Bolton have participated in the Coronary Disease Programme. [130390]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information requested is not held centrally.

Hepatitis

Mr. Laxton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many cases of (a) Hepatitis A, (b) Chronic Hepatitis B, (c) Hepatitis C, (d) Hepatitis D, (e) Hepatitis E, (f) Hepatitis F, (g) Hepatitis G and (h) Hepatitis H were reported in each year since 1997. [129015]

Caroline Flint: The information requested is provided in the following tables.

(a) Hepatitis A

	Number of reports
1997	1,272
1998	1,058
1999	1,357

(b) Chronic Hepatitis B

Data on chronic hepatitis B are not collected.

Data are collected on laboratory reports of acute Hepatitis B. Surveillance of the incidence of acute infection is used to monitor trends, to evaluate the Hepatitis B immunisation programme and to inform the development of national and local control policies.

(c) Hepatitis C

(f) Hepatitis F

Hepatitis F is a hypothetical hepatitis virus. Several hepatitis F virus candidates emerged in the 1990s. Further investigations failed to confirm the existence of the virus, and it was delisted as a cause of infectious hepatitis.

(g) Hepatitis G

Data are not routinely collected on hepatitis G. Extensive worldwide investigation has failed to identify any association between the hepatitis G virus and hepatitis, and its clinical significance is unknown.

(h) Hepatitis H

There is currently no virus designated as hepatitis H.

Home Births

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many and what proportion of deliveries were home births in each year since 1995. [126162]

John Healey: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 16 April 2007:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the number and proportion of deliveries that were home births in each year since 1995. (126162)

The latest year for which we have data is 2005. The attached table shows the number and percentage of maternities that took place at home in England and Wales in each year between 1995 and 2005.

Number and percentage of maternities taking place at home, England and Wales, 1995 to 2005

Hospital Stays

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what benchmarking her Department has undertaken of comparative lengths of hospital stay (a) between hospitals in England and (b) between hospitals in England and those in other countries. [130078]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 29 March 2007]: Data on length of stay by hospital in England is published annually by the Information Centre for Health and Social Care and can be found at www.hesonline.org. The median length of stay in hospital during 2005-06 was two days. Variation will reduce as the national health service continues to make progress towards its target of 18 weeks between referral and treatment.

The Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) publishes annual data which shows that average length of stay in the United Kingdom compares favourably with those in many other countries. This data can be obtained from OECD.

Hospitals: Admissions

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many emergency readmissions there were in each quarter since the quarter ending June 2002; and what percentage of patients was readmitted as an emergency in each quarter. [118157]

Andy Burnham: Currently the best computations of readmission rates are those released by the National Centre for Health Outcomes Development (NCHOD). They publish their data on a website at www.nchod.nhs.uk. Presently there are three years data from 2001-02 to 2003-04 at primary care trust (PCT) level. There are plans to produce an eight-year series up to 2005-06 at PCT and trust level. Other analyses could be produced only at disproportionate cost.

Hospitals: Consultants

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many primary care trusts in (a) England and (b) each region have restricted consultant-to-consultant referrals in each of the last five years; and if she will make a statement. [121241]

Andy Burnham: The information is not available centrally as this is a matter for the national health service locally. Activity is agreed and monitored locally through contracts between co-ordinating commissioners and providers.

The Department published on 14 December 2006 good practice "Care and resource utilisation: ensuring appropriateness of care" that outlines some techniques that aim to ensure a more effective initial assessment, resulting in improved patient progress through the system and thereby reducing delays. The techniques are owned and agreed by clinicians, working in partnership across primary and secondary care, to deliver integrated, well-designed services. The document is available in the Library and at:

Hospitals: Greater London

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many and what proportion of patients have waited (a) under six, (b) six to 12 and (c) over 12 months for hospital inpatient treatment in each London primary care trust in each year since 2003. [128459]

Andy Burnham: The tables show the counts and percentage of finished in-year admissions with a valid time waited from 2002-03 to 2005-06, for all London primary care trusts of responsibility.

Notes:
Finished in-year admissions
A finished in-year admission is the first period of in-patient care under one consultant within one health care provider, excluding admissions beginning before 1 April at the start of the data year. Please note that admissions do not represent the number of in-patients, as a person may have more than one admission within the year.
Ungrossed Data
Figures have not been adjusted for shortfalls in data (i.e. the data are ungrossed).
Time waited (days)
Time waited statistics from Hospital Episode Statistics (HES) are not the same as the published waiting list statistics. HES provides counts and time waited for all patients admitted to hospital within a given period whereas the published waiting list statistics count those waiting for treatment on a specific date and how long they have been on the waiting list. Also, HES calculates the time waited as the difference between the admission and decision to admit dates. Where there is no recorded entry for decision to admit, or when decision to admit and admission date are the same this creates an invalid waiting time. Unlike published waiting list statistics, this is not adjusted for self-deferrals or periods of medical/social suspension. The time band 'one day to under six months' includes those who waited one to 182 days, the 'six months to under 12 months' includes those who waited 183 to 364 days, the '12 months and over' includes those who waited 365 and over days.
Primary care trust (PCT) and strategic health authority (SHA) data quality PCT and SHA data was added to historic data-years in the HES database using 2002-03 boundaries, as a one-off exercise in 2004. The quality of the data on PCT of Treatment and SHA of Treatment is poor in 1996-97,1997-98 and 1998-99, with over a third of all finished episodes having missing values in these years. Data quality of PCT of GP practice and SHA of GP practice in 1997-98 and 1998-99 is also poor, with a high proportion missing values where practices changed or ceased to exist. There is less change in completeness of the residence-based fields over time, where the majority of unknown values are due to missing postcodes on birth episodes. Users of time series analysis including these years need to be aware of these issues in their interpretation of the data.
Data Quality
Hospital Episode Statistics (HES) are compiled from data sent by over 300 NHS trusts and primary care trusts (PCTs) in England. The Information Centre for health and social care liaises closely with these organisations to encourage submission of complete and valid data and seeks to minimise inaccuracies and the effect of missing and invalid data via HES processes. While this brings about improvement over time, some shortcomings remain.

Hospitals: Waiting Lists

Mr. Kemp: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many and what percentage of people in (a) Houghton and Washington East constituency and (b) Sunderland city council area were waiting more than (i) three months, (ii) six months and (iii) a year for an NHS treatment for (A) cancer and (B) heart problems in each year since 1997. [122787]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information is not available in the format requested.

Data on the time patients are waiting for cancer treatment is not collected centrally.

Information is collected on performance against the cancer waiting times standards of a maximum wait of 31 days from diagnosis to first cancer treatment and a maximum wait of 62 days from urgent referral to first cancer treatment, which were introduced for all cancer patients from December 2005. Data giving performance against these standards for the period July to September 2006 shows that patients at the City Hospitals Sunderland National Health Service Foundation Trust achieved 99.4 per cent. and 96.7 per cent. respectively.

More detailed information and historic statistics for these standards and the cancer two week wait has been placed in the Library and are available online at:

www.performance.doh.gov.uk/cancerwaits/

Cardiology waiting times at the City Hospitals Sunderland NHS Foundation Trust have been set out in the table shown.

Hull and East Yorkshire Hospitals NHS Trust: Out-patients

Andy Burnham: This information is not collected centrally.

Hull and East Yorkshire Hospitals NHS Trust: Surgery

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many operations were carried out by private hospitals on behalf of Hull and East Yorkshire Hospitals NHS Trust in each of the last five years. [129482]

Andy Burnham: This information is not collected centrally.

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many operations were carried out by Hull and East Yorkshire Hospitals NHS Trust for (a) heart surgery, (b) ophthalmology surgery, (c) knee surgery,

(d) hip replacements and (e) urology surgery in each of the last five years; and what the average waiting time was for each category of operation in each year. [129483]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information requested is set out in the following tables.

Count of total procedures for selected groups of procedures for finished consultant episodes carried out in Hull and East Yorkshire Hospitals Trust for 2001-02 to 2005-06—NHS Hospitals, England

	Heart surgery	Ophthalmology surgery	Knee surgery	Hip replacements	Urology surgery

2005-06	6,012	8,088	1,375	749	7,922

Notes:
1. Finished consultant episode (FCE). An FCE is defined as a period of admitted patient care under one consultant within one healthcare.
2. All operations count of mentions. These figures represent a count of all mentions of an operation in any of the 12 (4 prior to 2002-03) operation fields in the Hospital Episode Statistics (HES) data set. Therefore, if an operation is mentioned in more than one operation field during an episode, all operations are counted.
3. Main operation. The main operation is the first recorded operation in the HES data set and is usually the most resource intensive procedure performed during the episode. It is appropriate to use main operation when looking at admission details, e.g. time waited, but the figures for "all operations count of episodes" give a more complete count of episodes with an operation.
4. Secondary procedure. As well as the main operative procedure, there are up to 11 (3 prior to 2002-03) secondary operation fields in HES that show secondary or additional procedures performed on the patient during the episode of care.
5. Data quality. HES are compiled from data sent by over 300 NHS trusts and primary care trusts (PCTs) in England. The Information Centre for care and social services liaises closely with these organisations to encourage submission of complete and valid data and seeks to minimise inaccuracies and the effect of missing and invalid data via HES processes. While this brings about improvement over time, some shortcomings remain.
6. Ungrossed data. Figures have not been adjusted for shortfalls in data (i.e. the data are ungrossed).

Human-Animal Hybrid Embryos

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what her policy is on the creation of human-animal hybrid embryos; and if she will make a statement. [129518]

Caroline Flint: The Government's policy proposals following their review of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 were published on 14 December 2006 in the Command Paper "Review of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act: Proposals for revised legislation (including establishment of the Regulatory Authority for Tissue and Embryos)". Copies are available in the Library (Cm 6989). The proposals will form the basis for a bill, to be published in draft, for pre-legislative scrutiny.

Revised legislation will clarify the extent to which the law applies to embryos combining human and animal material. We have proposed that the creation of hybrid and chimera embryos in vitro should not be allowed, in general, while at the same time recognising that there may be valuable avenues of scientific research in this area by the provision of a secondary legislative power to makes exceptions subject to licensing.

The House of Commons Science and Technology Committee is in the process of conducting an inquiry into the Government's proposals for the regulation of hybrid and chimera embryos, and the Government will study carefully any recommendations arising.

Incontinence: Children

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the services and support which are available at a local level for children aged between five and 16 years affected by continence problems and their families. [130322]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Paediatric continence services are assessed by local primary care trusts (PCTs), in line with standard six of the national service framework for children. This standard includes a specific section on paediatric incontinence. There is a benchmarking tool to assist PCTs to evaluate their paediatric continence services, benchmark against other PCTs, and share good practice. This is available online at:

www.cgsupport.nhs.uk/PDFs/articles/good_practice_paediatric_continence_services.pdf

We have also funded the voluntary organisation ERIC (Education and Resources for Improving Childhood Continence) to a maximum of £90,000 over the three years 2006-07 to 2008-09 for their project on the implementation of national integrated continence services.

Independent Sector

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much and what proportion of NHS expenditure she estimates went to the independent sector from (a) central funds and (b) primary care trust allocations in each of the last five years. [129891]

Andy Burnham: Information on expenditure on the independent sector treatment centre (ISTC) programme from central budgets is shown in the table.

	ISTC programme expenditure (£ million)[1]	Total NHS expenditure (£ million)	ISTC expenditure as a percentage of total NHS spend
2003-04	0.4	64,183	—
2004-05	84.7	69,679	0.12
2005-06	113.7	75,830	0.15

[1] Expenditure on locally procured independent sector treatment providers is not separately identified in the annual financial returns of national health service trusts, primary care trusts and strategic health authorities.

Note:

The first ISTC commenced services in 2003. The above figures include central funding provided for the ISTCs, the general supplementary procurement and pathfinder contracts.

NHS spend on independent healthcare providers will be determined by the choices made by patients and those who commission services locally on their behalf.

Insulin

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether she has submitted a request to the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence to undertake a comparison of the different types of insulin in its future work programme. [129918]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 26 March 2007]: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given on 21 March 2007, Official Report, column 1013W.

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 2 February 2007, Official Report, column 546W, on insulin, (1) what adverse effects are associated with the use of (a) animal insulins, (b) synthetic human insulins and (c) analogue insulins; what the incidence is of each effect; and if she will make a statement; [130721]

(2) what the evidential basis is for the assessment that analogue insulins are (a) safe, (b) effective and (c) cost-effective. [130722]

Caroline Flint: Detailed information regarding the adverse effects known or suspected to be associated with a medicine is provided in the summary of product characteristics (the product information for prescribers) and the patient information leaflet.

Generally the side effects observed are broadly similar for all types of insulins with the most commonly observed side effects being hypoglycaemia, visual disturbance and injection site reactions. Tables which summarise the current knowledge of frequencies of adverse reactions with different insulins have been placed in the Library. These provide a breakdown of the types of adverse effects and their frequencies, where known. The tables contain the information relating to animal, human and analogue insulins and are separated by the classification of the medicine into the following four groups: rapid; intermediate; long and biphasic action. It is important to note that a report of an adverse reaction does not necessarily mean that the drug caused it and a number of the adverse reactions reported by patients treated with insulin may be due to the underlying diabetes.

There is less information available on the frequency of side effects for some of the older products. Guidelines for the investigation of the safety and efficacy of new medicinal products have developed over the years and the evidence base available for older products tends to be much less than that available for newer products such as the insulin analogues.

The following aspects of the product are evaluated in detail as the evidential basis for the assessment of safety and efficacy of the analogue insulins:

Manufacturing data, including biological purity, stability and viral removal processes;

Laboratory testing of the product activity such as its binding to the relevant tissues;

Testing on animals for safety and activity;

Clinical trials in healthy volunteers and/or patient volunteers to;

Establish the mechanism of action;

Study distribution of the product within human body;

Evaluate safety in sufficient numbers of volunteers to reflect safety issues that would be usually expected in clinical practice; and

Evaluate efficacy in sufficient number of volunteers to demonstrate that the product in question would be clinically useful as intended.

If it is considered that benefit versus risk profile of the product is positive, on the basis of aforementioned evaluation, a recommendation to license the product would normally be made.

A summary of the available data on safety and effectiveness submitted in support of the licence applications for many of the insulin analogues is made publicly available in the form of a European Public Assessment Report available on the website of the European Medicines Agency (www.emea.europa.eu).

Assessing the cost-effectiveness of a treatment is the responsibility of the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE). The Appraisal Committee of NICE are asked to take account of the overall resources available to the national health service. Decisions on the cost-effectives of a treatment must include judgments on the implications for other patient groups.

Junior Doctors: Career Structure

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health who is responsible for the implementation of the modernising programme for junior doctors. [124718]

Caroline Flint: The four United Kingdom Health Departments are responsible for the overall implementation of modernising medical careers. The Health Departments co-ordinate action through a United Kingdom modernising medical careers strategy group which includes members from the Academy of Medical Royal Colleges, the General Medical Council, the Postgraduate Medical Education and Training Board (PMETB) and national health service employers. Each country also has a dedicated implementation team.

The Royal Colleges are directly responsible for developing the new competency-based curricula which are approved by PMETB. The Royal Colleges also work closely with postgraduate deans over the development of person specifications for the recruitment process and the postgraduate deans themselves oversee selection into posts.

The number of training opportunities available in 2007 was based on local discussions between local NHS employers, strategic health authorities and postgraduate deans.

Maternity Services

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 27 February 2007, Official Report, column 1291W, on maternity services, what information is available on the number of maternity units in (a) 1997 and (b) 2001. [129887]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Data derived from Hospital Episode Statistics show that for 1997 there were 213 hospital trusts providing maternity services and 192 in 2001. Most trusts have one principal hospital site with delivery facilities and the majority of deliveries are reported through that main hospital trust. Any decrease in the number of units is likely to be due to reconfiguration of national health service trusts without any decrease in the number of hospitals, wards and birthing centres offering services.

Maternity Services: Leeds

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment her Department has made of the impact of proposed changes to midwifery services in Leeds on (a) the number and frequency of home visits and (b) the provision of post-natal care; [129135]

(2) what assessment she has made of the impact of proposed changes to midwifery services in Leeds on the distances midwifery staff will have to travel in the course of their duties; and what provision has been made for the effect on costs of such travel; [129136]

(3) what consultation was undertaken on proposed changes to midwifery provision in Leeds with (a) midwifery staff and (b) representatives of the Leeds Primary Care Trust. [129137]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 22 March 2007]: The NHS Yorkshire and the Humber Strategic Health Authority reports that the proposed changes were formulated in November 2006 and consultation involving the Royal College of Midwives, human resources and local staff side commenced in December 2006. Staff have been invited to raise their concerns at one to one meetings. The head of midwifery works in close collaboration with the primary care commissioners, midwifery educationalists, and the health visiting lead, who are aware of the proposed changes and welcome the modernisation schedule for maternity services taking shape. Focus groups have also been held with women to better understand their expectations of the service.

Midwives will continue to be available to provide home visits where appropriate. The provision of home visits will be based on an assessment of risk and need.

The Leeds Teaching Hospitals National Health Service Trust may require staff to change their work base for operational reasons. Eligibility for reimbursement of excess travel does not normally apply in these circumstances under the current agenda for change terms and conditions for staff employed in the NHS.

Mental Health Services: Children

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she expects the 2006 Child and Adolescent Mental Health Services mapping data to be released. [130272]

Caroline Flint: Data will be available online in April at www.camhsmapping.org.uk. The 2006 Child and Adolescent Mental Health Services Mapping report is scheduled to be published in July.

Migraine

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research her Department has conducted into (a) the causes of and (b) the appropriate treatment for migraine attacks. [102528]

Caroline Flint: The main agency through which the Government support medical and clinical research is the Medical Research Council (MRC). The MRC is an independent body funded by the Department of Trade and Industry via the Office of Science and Innovation.

The MRC is not currently funding research specifically relating to migraine. However, a strategic grant award to Dr. Leone Ridsdale, King's College, London for a prospective study on diagnostic management referral and one year outcome for patients with headache in primary care has recently been completed. The aim of this study was to provide evidence about the accuracy of diagnosis, the prognosis, reasons for referral, and the economic costs for patients and society.

The Department funds research to support policy and to provide the evidence needed to underpin quality improvement and service development in the NHS and through its health technology assessment programme has supported a pragmatic, randomised trial into the use of acupuncture for migraine and headache in primary care; and is planning a randomised placebo controlled trial of propranolol and Pizotifen in preventing migraine in children.

Over 75 per cent. of the Department's total expenditure on health research is devolved to and managed by national health service organisations. Details of individual projects, including a number concerned with migraine, are available on the national research register at:

www.dh.gov.uk/research.

Milton Keynes Primary Care Trust: Taxis

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much (a) Milton Keynes primary care trust and (b) Milton Keynes hospital spent on taxis in each of the last five years. [131208]

Andy Burnham: The information requested is not collected centrally. It is for the local health economy to determine how to use its allocated resources.

NHS Budget

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much and what proportion of the NHS budget has been paid to non-NHS providers in each financial year since 1997-98 in (a) cash and (b) real terms. [106124]

Andy Burnham: The information is shown in the table.

Non-NHS bodies include local authorities, other statutory bodies and the independent sector.

	Total cash terms (£ million)	Total real terms (£ million)	As a proportion of NHS expenditure (percentage)
1997-98	1,108.2	1,337.8	3.20
1998-99	1,230.4	1,448.5	3.36
1999-2000	1,301.2	1,501.5	3.24
2000-01	1,549.2	1,782.8	3.53
2001-02	1,793.0	1,993.0	3.66
2002-03	2,239.3	2,414.4	4.14
2003-04	3,315.9	3,471.9	5.26
2004-05	3,681.0	3,749.7	5.31
2005-06	4,435.1	4,435.1	5.81

Notes:
1. Figures include £15.0 million of spending in 2004-05 and £19.6 million in 2005-06 by NHS foundation trusts.
2. HM Treasury Gross Domestic Product Deflator used to provide the real terms figures with 2005-06 as the base year.
3. Figures for 2005-06 are provisional.

NHS Treatment Centres: Personal Records

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether data obtained in processing NHS treatment at a private sector treatment centre may be used for marketing purposes by the company owning the centre. [131054]

Andy Burnham: Currently wave 1 independent sector treatment centre (ISTC) providers do not market their services to national health service patients or referrers.

Choice is a key part of health reform. Going forward, NHS providers, independent and public sector, should be providing patients with information which enables them to make an informed decision about their health care options. This will include information gathered from the treatment of NHS patients.

The marketing schedule for phase 2 ISTC contracts states that marketing brochures produced by the provider for patients of the facilities must include (among other things) patient and provider statistics consistent with those contained in the NHS choice booklets, to the extent that they are relevant to the ISTC programme. These include details of in-patient waiting times, cancelled operations, out-patient waiting times, methicillin resistant staphylococcus aureus infection rates and the results of patient satisfaction surveys.

Marketing brochures produced for Referring Health Service Bodies must include all the above, and in addition should cover complication rates and length of stay/day case rates.

The schedule also provides that marketing material should not include information relating to private health care services or products and services offered by the IS provider, or a third party, which do not relate to the services being provided under the ISTC agreement with the authority.

NHS: Complaints

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what recent representations she has received on the NHS complaints procedure; and if she will make a statement; [128717]

(2) what plans she has to reform the NHS complaints procedure to make it easier for users of the NHS to make a complaint. [128721]

Ms Rosie Winterton: We received representation on the national health service complaints procedure in a joint letter in October 2006 from the Parliamentary and Health Service Ombudsman (PHSO) and the Local Government Ombudsman, providing feedback which welcomes our commitment to establish integrated health and social care complaints arrangements, gives their views on the principles they consider should govern the development and delivery of the new integrated approach, and summarises what they believe needs to be in place to make an effective integrated approach a reality.

The White Paper "Our health, our care, our say" published in January 2006, signals our commitment to "develop by 2009 a comprehensive single complaints system across health and social care [that will] focus on resolving complaints locally with a more personal and comprehensive approach to handling complaints", in response to people's wishes for easy and effective ways of complaining.

We intend to conduct a consultation exercise very shortly on reform of the complaints arrangements across health and social care. In so doing we will take account of the recommendations by the PHSO and Local Government Ombudsman in developing a new complaints system, which we agree should be based on the following principles:

open and easy to access—flexible about the ways people could complain and with effective information and support for people wishing to do so, and specialist advocacy as appropriate; fair—emphasising early resolution so minimising the strain and distress for all those involved; investigation should be robust, effective and comprehensive at this stage; responsive—providing appropriate, tailored and proportionate response and redress; having proper regard to the complainant's legitimate interests; and providing an opportunity for learning and developing—ensuring complaints are viewed as a positive opportunity to learn from patients' experiences and views to drive continual improvement in services.

We have accepted a recommendation of the Shipman Inquiry (Fifth Report) that there should be a statutory recognition of the importance of the proper investigation of complaints to the processes of organisational learning and of monitoring the quality of care. Additionally a fair and responsive system must address the specific needs of vulnerable people, such as those with learning difficulties, mental health problems and communication difficulties.

Throughout the consultation process we will maintain ongoing communication and feedback from key stakeholders, such as the ombudsman, the Local Government Ombudsman, the Healthcare Commission, the Commission for Social Care Inspection and Monitor, the regulator for foundation trusts. We will consult widely on the proposals across all health and social care communities, in the public and private sectors, and with patient and user representatives. As well as written responses we intend to conduct events in London and around the country to encourage thorough debate and feedback.

NHS: Finance

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) funding packages and (b) joint-funding packages were completed by each primary care trust or predecessor bodies for patients whose complex needs cost (i) £100,000 to £249,999, (ii) £250,000 to £499,999 and (iii) more than £500,000 per annum in each of the last three years. [127569]

Andy Burnham: Cost data collected from the national health service do not distinguish between the costs of individual patients.

We are therefore unable to separately identify the number of patients whose complex needs cost £100,000 to £249,999, £250,000 to £499,999 and more than £500,000 per annum in each of the last three years.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Health for what purpose funds from the Centrally Funded Initiatives Services and Special Allocation (CFISSA) described in the 2006 Department of Health Annual Report as CFISSA budgets issued with primary care trust allocations were intended; and how they differ from other primary care trust revenue allocations. [130341]

Andy Burnham: The purpose and value of the centrally funded initiatives services and special allocations (CFISSA) funds issued with primary care trust (PCT) initial allocations are in the following table. These allocations differ from other CFISSA allocations only in that they are incorporated into PCT initial resource limits and are allocated at the start of the financial year. Other funds issued to the national health service from the CFISSA programme are made as in year allocation adjustments.

2005-06 centrally funded initiatives services and special allocations programme - allocations included with PCT initial resource limits

Primary medical services resource limit adjustment	4,517,190
General medical services cash limited rebasing	-702,554
Pension indexation: PCT contribution	1,333,343
NHS funded nursing care	584,000
Palliative care	50,000
Pensions indexation adjustment for personal medical services practice staff	33,171
Neo natal intensive care	20,709
Revascularisation	16,901
Dangerous people with serious personality disorders	12,286
Health Protection Agency	9,674
Dentistry	3,907
Health Protection Agency	2,315
Medium secure services for deaf people	1,394
Non medical education and training	870
Improving services for people with multiple sclerosis	758
Health Protection Agency	610
Pensions indexation	500
Regional directors of public health support	437
Prison healthcare	90
Defibrillator funding to PCTs	66
PRION	52
Multiple Sclerosis service improvements	42
NHS funded nursing care—short-term respite care adjustment	4
National specialist commissioning—pancreatic transplantation	-2,473
Cancer registries	-8,770
National specialist commissioning—children and adolescent mental health services	-12,109
Old long stay	-44,934
Total	5,817,479

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which programmes have been funded by her Department's Centrally Funded Initiatives and Services and Special Allocations (CFISSA) budget so far in 2006-07 financial year; what the value was of each of those programmes; what the total expenditure on the CFISSA budget was in each year since 1997-98; and what the anticipated expenditure on the CFISSA budget is expected to be in 2007-08. [130410]

Andy Burnham: Tables are available in the Library providing:

(a) listings of all allocations by budget title and value to National Health Service organisations from 1997-98 to 2005-06;

(b) total expenditure of the centrally funded, initiatives services and special allocations (CFISSA) programme from 1997-98 to 2005-06;

(c) special allocations issued with initial allocations from 1997-98 to 2005-06; and

(d) special allocations and associated budgets issued to NHS organisations as additional allocations (and which are included in the tables described in (a) and (b) above).

Full year 2006-07 information and anticipated expenditure in 2007-08 on centrally funded initiatives services and special allocations is not yet available. This information will be contained within the 2006-07 Departmental Report that has an estimated publishing date of May 2007.

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 28 March 2007, on changes to the NHS resource accounting and budgeting (RAB) regime, why the Maidstone and Tunbridge Wells NHS Trust was omitted from the list of trusts receiving the reversal of RAB income deductions. [131372]

Andy Burnham: The reversals set out in the written ministerial statement of 28 March 2007, Official Report, columns 96-98WS, are for income deductions applied to NHS trusts in 2006-07 as a result of deficits incurred during 2005-06. No such income deduction was made to Maidstone and Tunbridge Wells NHS Trust as the trust's financial position reported in the 2005-06 final accounts was a surplus of £112,000.

Under the new rules, NHS trusts that had income deductions made in years prior to 2006-07 will be able to agree a disregard for these deductions in the calculation of their statutory breakeven duty. This means that they will no longer have to generate a surplus to recover any part of their cumulative deficit that arose solely from the application of resource accounting and budgeting (RAB) income deductions.

Maidstone and Tunbridge Wells NHS Trust will therefore need to agree with its auditors the impact on its breakeven duty of any RAB income deductions applied in 2005-06 and earlier years. The breakeven note would then be adjusted to exclude these in the 2006-07 final accounts.

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of local improvement finance trusts in the (a) commissioning, (b) financing and (c) building of local primary care health facilities. [131392]

Andy Burnham: The NHS Plan (2000) introduced national health service local improvement finance trusts (LIFT) as a way of supporting the delivery of more investment in primary care premises. LIFT is providing modern integrated super surgeries, often in the heart of deprived communities. As of 31 March 2007, it has delivered 115 new buildings open to patients with another 74 under construction, supported by over £1.2 billion of investment. The NAO report on LIFT, Innovation in the NHS, noted that LIFT is well designed and offered advantages over other forms of procurement.

Information is not held centrally to allow for an assessment on the effectiveness of the buildings commissioning period for each scheme. It is for PCTs to manage the commissioning of their new facilities.

Information is not held centrally to allow for an assessment of effectiveness of the financing of each individual scheme. However, as part of the business case approval for each scheme financing terms are assessed, with the support of expert financial advice. The Department is also assembling benchmarking data to support this analysis in current and future LIFTs.

The Department as part of its Better Healthcare Buildings policy initiative is working closely with the commission for architecture and the built environment who have undertaken a detailed design quality survey of a representational cross section of primary care buildings procured under the LIFT initiative. They are preparing findings, which the Department will learn from and implement policy aimed at continually raising the standards of LIFT buildings.

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when the NHS accounts for the financial year 2006-07 will be published. [131740]

Andy Burnham: Individual national health service accounts must, by statute, be published locally on or before 30 September 2007. The Department expects that this date will be met or bettered by all NHS bodies.

The Department plans to submit draft summarised accounts that consolidate NHS bodies' accounts to the National Audit Office for review by 20 August 2007. The date of publication is a matter for the Comptroller and Auditor General and depends on the date of completion of the audit process.

NHS: ICT

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many trusts she expects to meet the Patient Administration System implementation deadline of 23 April; and if she will make a statement. [131739]

Caroline Flint: The information is in the table.

Patient administration systems (PAS) implemented in:	Deployments to date	Additional deployments planned to be completed by 23 April 2007
Acute Trusts	19	4
Primary Care Trusts	94	5
Primary Care Trusts (PAS with additional clinical functionality)	89	0
Mental Health Trusts	17	0
Total	219	9

The national health service is in the process of moving from being an organisation with fragmented or incomplete systems, with physical processing and storage of records on paper, to a position where national systems are fully integrated, record keeping is digital, and patients have unprecedented access to their personal health records. PAS systems that are compliant with other applications delivered through the national programme for information technology are a key element of this process.

The national programme is providing essential services to support patient care and the smooth running of the NHS, without which it could already not properly function. Thousands of national and local systems have already been successfully deployed on time, including widespread coverage of community PAS where none existed previously. Almost two thirds of hospitals now have digital X-rays and scans, and at the heart of the programme is the NHS care records service which will in due course provide a lifelong electronic personal health record for NHS patients in England.

NHS: Procurement

Mr. Havard: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what requirement her Department makes of NHS Supply Chain (a) to consider and (b) to implement the recommendations on medical devices of the Centre for Evidence-Based Purchasing. [129596]

Andy Burnham: The agreement with DHL requires NHS Supply Chain to comply with government policies on request. NHS Supply Chain is already committed to liaise closely with the Centre for Evidence-based Purchasing either directly or through the NHS Purchasing and Supply Agency.

Mr. Havard: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will issue guidance on best practice on the composition of specialised clinical assessment groups within NHS Supply Chain. [129597]

Andy Burnham: NHS Supply Chain has no current plans to release guidance on best practise for the composition of specialised clinical assessment groups.

Mr. Havard: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what mechanisms her Department has in place to assess whether NHS Supply Chain's procurement process has improved access to medical technologies for patients; and if she will make a statement. [129598]

Andy Burnham: The Department has mechanisms in place to monitor the overall performance of NHS Supply Chain.

The establishment of clinical councils, to help determine what products the national health service requires, will enable clinicians or other trust representatives to raise any failing in trust's access to medical technologies for their patients.

There is a process whereby issues can be escalated to the NHS BSA (Supply Chain Management Division), and ultimately a joint board chaired by the Department's Commercial Director General.

Mr. Havard: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what mechanisms her Department has in place to assess whether NHS Supply Chain's procurement process will produce long-term savings of (a) patient bed days, (b) nursing time and (c) repeat procedures; and if she will make a statement. [129599]

Andy Burnham: The contract with NHS Supply Chain will measure savings based on the reduction to buy price for the national health service.

NHS: Publications

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost to the public purse was for the publication and distribution, including by Braille, audio and large print editions, of 'Days out in the NHS: Listening to the NHS Staff', published by her Department on 31 January. [121567]

Andy Burnham: The total cost was £2,905. This was a web-only publication and therefore no printing or distribution costs. No Braille, audio or large-print versions have been produced.

Northern Lincolnshire and Goole Hospitals NHS Trust: Maternity Services

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many maternity beds were provided by the Northern Lincolnshire and Goole Hospitals NHS Trust in each of the last three years. [129335]

Andy Burnham: The information requested is shown in the table. Beds data is collected annually and 2006-07 figures will not be available until August 2007.

Nurses: Pay

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the starting pay was for nurses at today's prices in each of the last 20 years. [125389]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 5 March 2007]: The starting pay for a newly qualified nurse at 2006-07 prices in each of the last 20 years is set out in the following table.

	Starting pay cash[1, 2]	£ Starting pay real terms[3]
1987-88	7,300	13,955
1988-89	8,025	14,341

Finished admission episodes
A finished admission episode is the first period of in-patient care under one consultant within one health care provider. Please note that admissions do not represent the number of in-patients, as a person may have more than one admission within the year.
Main Operation
The main operation is the first recorded operation in the HES data set and is usually the most resource intensive procedure performed during the episode. It is appropriate to use main operation when looking at admission details, e.g. time waited, but the figures for "all operations count of episodes" give a more complete count of episodes with an operation.
Time Waited (days)
Time waited statistics from Hospital Episode Statistics (HES) are not the same as the published waiting list statistics. HES provides counts and time waited for all patients admitted to hospital within a given period whereas the published waiting list statistics count those waiting for treatment on a specific date and how long they have been on the waiting list. Also, HES calculates the time waited as the difference between the admission and decision to admit dates. Unlike published waiting list statistics, this is not adjusted for self-deferrals or periods of medical/social suspension.
Data Quality
Hospital Episode Statistics (HES) are compiled from data sent by over 300 NHS trusts and primary care trusts (PCTs) in England. The Information Centre for health and social care liaises closely with these organisations to encourage submission of complete and valid data and seeks to minimise inaccuracies and the effect of missing and invalid data via HES processes. While this brings about improvement over time, some shortcomings remain.
Ungrossed Data
Figures have not been adjusted for shortfalls in data (i.e. the data are ungrossed).
Low Numbers
Due to reasons of confidentiality, episodes figures between 1 and 5 and their corresponding waiting times have been suppressed and replaced with "—".

Out-patients: Eastbourne

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of Eastbourne Downs NHS Primary Care Trust outpatients have been discharged back to their GP for their follow-up appointment in the last 12 months. [130972]

Andy Burnham: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Patients: Surveys

Dr. Richard Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the total cost was of the recent GP patient survey sent by post to 5 million patients carried out by MORI. [131431]

Andy Burnham: The 2006-07 general practitioner patient survey was launched in January 2007. The final date for the return of patient questionnaires was 5 April. The total cost will depend upon the survey results which will be made available when the questionnaires are returned and analysed. It is not therefore possible to give a final figure for the total cost until this is complete. The budgeted cost, however, for administration of the survey in 2006-07 is £11 million.

Pharmacy

Mr. McGovern: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) whether she has met (a) pharmacists and (b) pharmaceutical wholesalers to discuss the supply network for British pharmaceuticals since Pfizer began distributing their products through a single company; [131601]

(2) whether she has received any representations on the operation of Pfizer's new distribution model for pharmaceuticals; [131602]

(3) whether she has met (a) Pfizer and (b) UniChem to discuss the operation of their pharmaceutical distribution network; [131603]

(4) what assessment she has made of the extent to which the operation of Pfizer's new distribution model for pharmaceuticals meets the guarantees provided to her Department in October 2006. [131787]

Caroline Flint: Ministers have had no meetings with representatives of Pfizer, UniChem, pharmacists or the pharmaceutical wholesale industry, since the launch of Pfizer's new distribution arrangements on 5 March, to discuss these new arrangements.

Since the launch of the new arrangements, the Department has received eight written representations, as of 2 April, not including the four questions asked by the hon. Member. Officials in the Department continue to monitor the operation of the new system.

Pregnancy

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average age of primagravidas in England was in each of the last five years. [129520]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This information is not available in the format requested. However, data derived from Hospital Episode Statistics (HES) shows the age at which it is most common for women to give birth for the first time over the past five years. This is shown in the table as follows.

1 April to 31 March:	Age in years
2001-02	30
2002-03	30
2003-04	29
2004-05	30

Primary Care Trusts: Per Capita Costs

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much funding was received by each primary care trust per head of population in the most recent year for which figures are available listed in descending order. [130730]

Andy Burnham: 2007-08 revenue allocations were announced in February 2005 for 303 primary care trusts (PCTs). The following table shows allocations per head of population for 152 PCTs following the reduction in their number on 1 October 2006.

Primary Care Trusts: Planning

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) which primary care trusts (PCTs) are (a) reviewing and (b) formally consulting on the future provision of hospital-based services; and by what means she proposes to inform Parliament on progress and decisions made in each PCT area; [129903]

(2) which primary care trusts are (a) reviewing and (b) consulting on the provision of (i) acute services, (ii) accident and emergency provision and (iii) maternity provision in their areas. [129904]

Andy Burnham: Any proposals for the reconfiguration of services are a matter for the national health service locally.

There is a well established and well understood process for managing formal public consultations on proposals for major service change so that the public and other stakeholders can help to inform the local debate.

Primary Care Trusts: Prisons

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which primary care trusts have a prison facility within the geographical area they cover. [130195]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 27 March 2007]: The information requested is shown in the table. The list does not include private prisons, for which primary care trusts do not have responsibility for commissioning health care.

Private Sector Treatment

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the oral answer of 6 February 2007, Official Report, column 703, on private sector treatment, what further assessment she has made of the ability of the Bodmin Private Treatment Centre to achieve the 100 per cent. capacity target of its contract throughout the financial year 2006-07; and what proportion of contracted procedures were completed at the (a) Bodmin and (b) Plymouth treatment centres in each quarter since the contract commenced, broken down by procedure. [130777]

Andy Burnham: The local national health service remains confident that the Bodmin NHS Treatment Centre will reach full utilisation in the near future.

The Department measures independent sector treatment centre contract performance on the basis of value rather than activity. This is to allow for the variations, which can occur through substitution of activity between procedures of varying value.

Public Health Observatories

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on how many occasions public health observatories have been asked to support the development of health impact assessments since 16 November 2004; and in which cases. [130413]

Andy Burnham: The Department does not collect this data. However, our understanding from the Public Health Observatories (PHOs) is that they frequently input into local and regional health impact assessments (HIAs) as well as leading on them.

All PHOs are involved in HIA support and training activity to varying degrees.

PHOs utilise the HIA expertise that exists across their network in order to manage the provision of HIA training and support for local/regional colleagues. Through their network, PHOs are able to offer programmes around the country which contribute to educating colleagues about HIA at a variety of levels.

Quality Health Ltd.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what communications her Department has had with Quality Health Ltd. since March 2001. [130768]

Andy Burnham: The Department is not aware of any direct communications it has had with Quality Health Limited since 2001.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the total expenditure by (a) her Department and (b) NHS organisations was on the services provided by Quality Health Ltd. in each year since March 2001. [130767]

Andy Burnham: The Department has not paid anything to Quality Health Ltd. since 2001. The information requested in respect of the national health service is not held by the Department.

Russells Hall Hospital

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 2 March 2007 to the hon. Member for Ludlow (Mr. Dunne), Official Report, column 1586W, on Russells Hall Hospital, if she will list the private finance initiative projects where the increase in costs has been met by the Department increasing the revenue allocation for the trust and providing additional capital; and how much this amounted to in each such case. [129882]

Andy Burnham: The decision for the Department to meet the additional costs at Russells Hall Hospital arose out of a one off settlement of a contractual dispute between the trust and its private sector partner. To date the Department has not directly met cost increases at any other private finance initiative project.

Scottish Expenditure

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the total amount of expenditure by her Department in Scotland was in each of the last two years, broken down by constituency. [111238]

Andy Burnham: The information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Smoking: Licensed Premises

Mr. Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what guidance she has issued on specifications for (a) size, (b) content and (c) colour of no smoking signage in public houses and clubs; [130386]

(2) what guidance she has issued on specifications and design of smoking shelters in public houses and clubs; [130387]

(3) what plans there are to provide advisory material for publicans and landlords on implementation of the forthcoming smoking ban in public places; [130389]

(4) what guidance she has issued on the specifications and design of no smoking signs in public places. [130391]

Caroline Flint: The Department is providing a range of information and support to businesses to help them be ready for the implementation of smokefree legislation on 1 July 2007.

On 23 March 2007, the Department published the guide 'Everything you need to prepare for the new smokefree law on 1 July 2007' with comprehensive information on smokefree legislation for businesses. The guide will be included within a pack to be posted to all employing and trading businesses in England during April and is available to download on the Smokefree England website at:

www.smokefreeengland.co.uk

The guidance includes full details of the minimum requirements for signage. The guidance packs that businesses will receive will also include no-smoking signs and other support materials.

Smokefree legislation will apply to premises that are enclosed and substantially enclosed, which is explained in the guidance. The Department cannot provide specific guidance on the design or construction of smoking shelters.

Businesses can also contact their local council for information and advice on getting ready for the implementation of smokefree legislation.

A copy of the guidance is available in the Library.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the likely effect on the numbers of smokers of banning the sale of tobacco in pubs and clubs. [130419]

Caroline Flint: The Government have not made an assessment of the likely effect on the numbers of people who smoke of banning the sale of tobacco in pubs and clubs.

Smoking: Public Places

Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations she has received on the health effects of the smoking of shisha pipes in public places. [131756]

Caroline Flint: The Health Act 2006 will prohibit smoking in enclosed and substantially enclosed workplaces and public places. Within the Act, smoking refers to smoking tobacco or anything which contains tobacco, or smoking any other substance. The smokefree provisions within the Health Act will therefore apply to the use of waterpipes such as shisha and hookah.

Smoking of waterpipes was addressed in the regulatory impact assessment for smokefree legislation, the Department's consultation on proposed smokefree regulations and was debated during the passage of the Health Bill through Parliament.

Representations on the health effects of smoking of waterpipes have referred to World Health Organisation (WHO) advice that using a waterpipe to smoke tobacco poses a serious potential health hazard to smokers and others exposed to the smoke emitted. The WHO advice states that second-hand smoke from waterpipes is a mixture of tobacco smoke in addition to smoke from the fuel, and therefore poses a serious health risk for non-smokers and recommends that waterpipes should be prohibited in public places consistent with bans on cigarette and other forms of tobacco smoking (World Health Organisation (2005) "Waterpipe Tobacco Smoke: Health effects, research needs and recommended actions by regulators." WHO, Geneva).

In February 2007, the American Lung Association published advice titled "An emerging deadly trend: waterpipe tobacco use" which cited evidence that waterpipe use may increase exposure to carcinogens because smokers use a waterpipe over a much longer period of time, often 40 to 45 minutes, rather than the five to 10 minutes it takes to smoke a cigarette. Due to the longer, more sustained period of inhalation and exposure, a waterpipe smoker may inhale as much smoke as consuming 100 or more cigarettes during a single session. The American Lung Association report concluded that existing evidence on waterpipe smoking shows that it carries many of the same health risks and has been linked to many of the same diseases caused by cigarette smoking.

Copies of documents referred to are available in the Library.

Smoking: Television

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research her Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on (i) the prevalence of the depiction of smoking on television and in films and (ii) trends in such depiction over the last 10 years; and if she will make a statement. [131146]

Caroline Flint: The Department has not commissioned any surveys on this area. However, we are committed in the 2004 Choosing Health White Paper to pressing the responsible bodies to reduce the depiction of smoking in television and films. As a result, the British Board of Film Classification has revised its guidance to take account of portrayal of smoking in its classification of films. Following pressure from the Department, the Ofcom TV broadcasting guidelines have been tightened up to discourage the portrayal of smoking before the 9.00 pm watershed in a glamorous or positive way, unless editorially necessary. In line with the smokefree law coming into force in July 2007, no smoking will be allowed in this year's Big Brother house.

Soft Drinks

Mr. Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate she has made of the number of litres of fizzy drinks that have been consumed per person in England over the last 12 months. [128381]

Barry Gardiner: I have been asked to reply.

The Government do not collect specific data on the consumption of fizzy drinks.

However, according to the Expenditure and Food Survey England, household residents purchased an average of 65 litres of ready-to-drink soft drinks per person in the year from April 2004 to March 2005. This figure includes still and fizzy soft drinks, including fruit juice drinks, but excludes pure fruit juices and smoothies.

Surgery: Eastbourne

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many Eastbourne Downs NHS Primary Care Trust patients had their operation cancelled on the day of the operation in each of the last five years, broken down by type of operation. [130970]

Andy Burnham: The following table details the number of last minute operations cancelled for non-medical reasons at East Sussex Hospitals National Health Service Trust from 2002-03 to 2006-07.

	Number of last minute cancellations for non clinical reasons
2002-03	302
2003-04	375
2004-05	632
2005-06	491
2006-07	93

Surgery: Eastern Region

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many operations were carried out by Hull and East Yorkshire hospitals in each of the last five years; and what the total cost was of these operations. [129698]

Andy Burnham: The following table shows the count of procedures for finished consultant episodes carried out in the Hull and East Yorkshire Hospitals National Health Service Trust for 2001-02 to 2005-06. Total costs of operations performed by NHS trusts are not held centrally.

	Total number of procedures
2001-2002	83,770
2002-2003	94,954
2003-2004	102,900
2004-2005	104,168
2005-2006	109,316

Notes:
OPCS 4.2 codes A01 to X59
Finished Consultant Episode (FCE)
An FCE is defined as a period of admitted patient care under one consultant within one healthcare provider.
All operations count of mentions
These figures represent a count of all mentions of an operation in any of the 12 (4 prior to 2002-03) operation fields in the HES data set. Therefore, if an operation is mentioned in more than one operation field during an episode, all operations are counted.
Main operation
The main operation is the first recorded operation in the HES data set and is usually the most resource intensive procedure performed during the episode. It is appropriate to use main operation when looking at admission details, for example time waited, but the figures for all operations count of episodes give a more complete count of episodes with an operation.
Secondary procedure
As well as the main operative procedure, there are up to 11 (3 prior to 2002-03) secondary operation fields in Hospital Episode Statistics (HES) that show secondary or additional procedures performed on the patient during this episode of care.
Data quality
Hospital Episode Statistics (HES) are compiled from data sent by over 300 NHS Trusts and Primary Care Trusts (PCTs) in England. The Information Centre for health and social care liaises closely with these organisation to encourage submission of complete and valid data and seeks to minimise inaccuracies and the effect of missing and invalid data view HES processes. While this brings about improvement over time, some shortcomings remain.
Ungrossed data
Figures have not been adjusted for shortfalls in data (for example the data are ungrossed). Source: Hospital Episode Statistics (HES), The Information Centre for health and social care.

Three Rivers Primary Care Trust: Wheelchairs

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent (a) estimate she has made of waiting times for assessments for electrically-powered indoor/outdoor wheelchairs (EPIOC) and (b) assessment she has made of adequacy of funding for EPIOC in Watford and Three Rivers Primary Care Trust (PCT); and how many people over the age of 18 years in the area covered by the PCT were allocated an EPIOC in each of the last three years. [130467]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department does not collect information on waiting times for assessments for electrically-powered wheelchairs.

Funding for all national health service wheelchair services comes out of revenue funding to primary care trusts (PCTs). This funding is not ring-fenced and it is for each PCT to assess local need and allocate funds accordingly.

Information about funding for the provision of electrically-powered wheelchairs and the number of people aged over 18 years in the area covered by the PCT who have been allocated an electrically-powered indoor/outdoor wheelchair, are not held centrally.

Transplant Surgery

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what regulations govern the transplanting of pig organs into human beings; and if she will make a statement; [130883]

(2) what regulations govern the use of combined human and pig (a) organs and (b) cells for research purposes; and if she will make a statement. [130884]

Caroline Flint: To date there have been no human transplant procedures in the United Kingdom using pig organs.

European Union (EU) legislation on medicinal products (Commission Directive 2003/63/EU) and the Clinical Trials Regulations (2004) make specific provision for such transplantation proposals. In December 2006, the Department issued guidance which covers all aspects of animal to human transplant procedures, which reflect international recommendations. The guidance is available in the Library and from the Departments website:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Publicationsandstatistics/Publications/PublicationsPolicyAndGuidance/DH_063075

In addition, the use of animals in such research, or as sources for clinical animal to human transplantation requires appropriate authorisation under the terms of the Animal (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986, which is the responsibility of the Home Office.

The Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 prohibits mixing live human gametes with the live gametes of any animal, except in certain circumstances for testing the fertility or normality of human sperm. The Government have undertaken a wide-ranging review of the law on assisted reproduction and embryology and expects shortly to publish draft legislation for pre-legislative scrutiny.

West Sussex Primary Care Trust: Finance

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate her Department has made of the projected deficit of the West Sussex Primary Care Trust in the forthcoming financial year 2007-08 if the reconfiguration proposed in Fit for the Future was not to take place. [131338]

Caroline Flint: All national health service organisations are currently in the process of finalising their financial plans for 2007-08.

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of the deficit of the West Sussex Primary Care Trust is accounted for by secondary care. [131339]

Caroline Flint: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Wheelchairs: Waiting Lists

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the average waiting time was for provision of a powered wheelchair in each strategic health authority in each of the last five years; [128921]

(2) To ask the Secretary of State for Health what funding was provided by each strategic health authority for the provision of electric-powered wheelchairs in each of the last five years. [128922]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Information about waiting times and funding for provision of electric-powered wheelchairs is not held centrally.

Funding for national health service wheelchair services comes from revenue funding to primary care trusts (PCTs). It is for each PCT to assess local need and allocate funds accordingly, as funding is not ring fenced.

Worcestershire Acute Hospitals NHS Trust: Ophthalmology

Miss Kirkbride: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many complaints have been received in the last two years concerning eye surgery which took place at the (a) Alexandra and Princess of Wales, (b) Worcester Royal and (c) Kidderminster Hospital. [128840]

Andy Burnham: The information requested is not available centrally.

TREASURY

Alcoholic Drinks

Mr. Crausby: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the (a) average per capita and (b) total amount of alcohol consumed in the UK in each of the last five years. [130385]

John Healey: Available statistics are based on the clearances of alcohol products when they are released for consumption in the UK and become liable to duty. Figures on total alcohol clearances and alcohol clearances per adult can be found in the HM Revenue and Customs 'Alcohol Factsheet' section 2, tables 2.1 and 2.3, which are available from the HM Revenue and Customs website address at:

http://www.uktradeinfo.com/index.cfm?task=factAlcohol

Alcoholic Drinks: Misuse

Mr. Evans: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer in respect of how many deaths in (a) Ribble Valley and (b) Lancashire alcohol was cited as the primary cause in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [130736]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 16 April 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking in respect of how many deaths in (a) Ribble Valley and (b) Lancashire alcohol was cited as the primary cause in each of the last five years. (130736)

The attached table provides the number of deaths with an alcohol-related underlying cause in (a) Ribble Valley local authority district and (b) Lancashire county, from 2001 to 2005 (the latest year available).

So that comparison over time is for a consistent area, deaths in the current Blackpool and Blackburn with Darwen unitary authorities, which were part of the former County of Lancashire, have not been included for any year.

Table 1: Number of deaths with an alcohol-related underlying cause of death[1], Ribble Valley local authority districts and Lancashire county[2], 2001 to 2005[3]

	Deaths (persons)
	Ribble Valley	Lancashire
2001	5	179
2002	4	162
2003	5	171
2004	8	178
2005	8	198

[1] Cause of death was defined using the International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision (ICD-10). The specific causes of death categorised as alcohol-related, and their corresponding ICD-10 codes, are shown in the following box.
[2] Based on local authority boundaries as of 2007.
[3] Figures are for deaths registered in each calendar year.

Box 1: Alcohol-related causes of death—International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision (ICD-10)

Cause of death	ICD-10 code(s)
Mental and behavioural disorders due to use of alcohol	F10
Degeneration of nervous system due to alcohol	G31.2
Alcoholic polyneuropathy	G62.1
Alcoholic cardiomyopathy	I42.6
Alcoholic gastritis	K29.2
Alcoholic liver disease	K70
Chronic hepatitis, not elsewhere classified	K73
Fibrosis and cirrhosis of liver (excl. Biliary cirrhosis)	K74 (excl. K74.3-K74.5)
Alcohol induced chronic pancreatitis	K86.0
Accidental poisoning by and exposure to alcohol	X45
Intentional self-poisoning by and exposure to alcohol	X65
Poisoning by and exposure to alcohol, undetermined intent	Y15

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer in how many deaths in (a) Eastbourne and (b) East Sussex alcohol was cited as the primary cause in each of the last 10 years. [130962]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 16 April 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking in how many deaths in (a) Eastbourne and (b) East Sussex alcohol was cited as the primary cause in each of the last 10 years. (130962)

The attached table provides the number of deaths with an alcohol-related underlying cause in (a) Eastbourne local authority and (b) East Sussex county, from 1996 to 2005 (the latest year available).

So that comparison over time is for a consistent area, deaths in the current Brighton and Hove unitary authority, which was part of the former County of East Sussex, have not been included for any year.

Table 1: Number of deaths with an alcohol-related underlying cause of death[1], Eastbourne local authority and East Sussex county[2], 1996 to 2005[3]

	Deaths (persons)
	Eastbourne	East Sussex
1996	10	40
1997	7	42
1998	10	38
1999	9	36

2005	22	81

[1] Cause of death was defined using the International Classification of Diseases, Ninth Revision (ICD-9) for the years 1996 to 2000, and Tenth Revision (ICD-10) for 2001 onwards. The specific causes of death categorised as alcohol-related, and their corresponding ICD-9 and ICD-10 codes, are shown in the boxes below. The introduction of ICD-10 in 2001 means that the numbers of deaths from this cause before 2001 are not completely comparable with later years.
[2] Based on local authority boundaries as of 2007.
[3] Figures are for deaths registered in each calendar year.

Box 1: Alcohol-related causes of death—International Classification of Diseases, Ninth Revision (ICD-9)

Cause of death	ICD-9 code(s)
Alcoholic psychoses	291
Alcohol dependence syndrome	303
Non-dependent abuse of alcohol	305.0
Alcoholic cardiomyopathy	425.5
Alcoholic fatty liver	571.0
Acute alcoholic hepatitis	571.1
Alcoholic cirrhosis of liver	571.2
Alcoholic liver damage, unspecified	571.3
Chronic hepatitis	571.4
Cirrhosis of liver without mention of alcohol	571.5
Other chronic non-alcoholic liver disease	571.8
Unspecified chronic liver disease without mention of alcohol	571.9
Accidental poisoning by alcohol	E860

Assets

Harry Cohen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will set rules for the appointment of the policyholder advocate which ensure that the person is appointed by someone independent of the company holding the orphan assets; what this advocate's role is; to whom he is responsible; who pays him his remuneration; on what basis the advocate can agree to a different division of the orphan assets on reattribution which is a higher percentage for the shareholders than that required on distribution; how the proportions upon reattribution get decided, and by whom, in cases where the independent policyholder advocate indicates dissent to that which is proposed; and if he will make a statement. [131107]

Ed Balls: Supervision of reattribution of inherited estate is the responsibility of the Financial Services Authority (FSA). FSA rules require the appointment of a policyholder advocate either nominated or approved by the FSA. The purpose of the policyholder advocate is to ensure that there will be an independent figure representing policyholders' interests to the firm. The precise role of the policyholder advocate depends on the nature of the firm and its proposed reattribution, but the FSA expects the proposed policyholder advocate to be free from any conflicts of interest which may be detrimental to the interests of the policyholders they represent. Typically, the policyholder advocate will negotiate with the firm on behalf of the with-profits policyholders and advise policyholders on issues such as the allocation of benefits and eligibility. He will also prepare a report on these issues. The FSA expects shareholders to meet a reasonable proportion of the policyholder advocate's costs, for the arrangement to be fair, and for the policyholder advocate to confirm that he is satisfied with it. If no agreement on reattribution is reached, the FSA expects all costs to be met by the party which initiated the process (typically the shareholders). The precise basis on which assets are reattributed will depend on the nature of the firm and the proposed reattribution and is a matter for negotiation between the firm and the policyholder advocate. If the firm decides to make an offer to policyholders which does not have the support of the policyholder advocate, it must tell policyholders why it is doing so. Policyholders may then decide individually whether or not to accept the offer, taking into account the recommendation of the policyholder advocate.

Harry Cohen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) if he will take steps to ensure (a) fairness to policyholders in the treatment of orphan assets and (b) that unreasonable dividends do not accrue to shareholders from orphan assets does not happen; and if he will make a statement; [131108]

(2) if he will introduce rules preventing the reattribution of orphan assets on any basis other than that which would apply to their distribution; and if he will make a statement. [131109]

Ed Balls: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave him on 29 November 2006, Official Report, column 729W.

Harry Cohen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether a (a) policyholder and (b) shareholder is liable for tax on his share of a reallocated orphan asset. [131112]

Ed Balls: A policyholder is liable to tax on any distribution of the inherited estate to him as a bonus in the same way as he is liable on any other gain from a life insurance policy. A shareholder is liable to tax on any distribution of the inherited estate in the same way as on any other dividend or distribution by the company to its shareholders.

Assets: Kazakhstan

Mr. Hands: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the regulations which govern the harbouring of assets such as those acquired by the members of the ruling elite of Kazakhstan; and if he will make a statement. [131384]

Mr. Hoon: I have been asked to reply.

According to the Kazakh constitution, the president is not permitted to hold any other paid positions nor to carry out entrepreneurial activities. The Kazakh Law "On Fighting Corruption" also requires each state executive to submit annual declarations of income received and property owned within and outside the Republic of Kazakhstan. Other members of the presidential family are entitled to perform entrepreneurial activities and own assets. However, the Law on Parliament stipulates that no deputy of Parliament may be employed in any other paid position and conduct entrepreneurial activity. We look to the Kazakh Government to apply these regulations effectively, but are not privy to the sort of information that would enable us to make an informed assessment.

Budgets

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a copy of the Treasury's 2007 internal guidance for staff on security procedures for the Budget. [131340]

John Healey: Internal guidance on security procedures for the Budget is by its nature confidential and it would be inappropriate for it to be made public.

Cannabis: Death

Mr. Evans: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many people under the age of 25 years committed suicide due to cannabis-induced psychosis in 2006; [131201]

(2) how many deaths have been attributed to cannabis-induced psychosis in the last five years. [131202]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 16 April 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent questions asking how many people under the age of 25 years committed suicide due to cannabis-induced psychosis in 2006 and how many deaths have been attributed to cannabis-induced psychosis in the last five years. I am replying in her absence. (131201, 131202)

The most recent year for which figures are available is 2005. In England and Wales there were no suicides[1] in that year where psychosis due to the use of cannabinoids[2] was mentioned on the death certificate.

In the period 2001-2005 there was one death with an underlying cause of psychotic disorder due to the use of cannabinoids.[2]

[1] In routine statistics, ONS defines suicides as deaths from both intentional self-harm and 'injury or poisoning of undetermined intent'. It is likely that most of these latter deaths are cases where the harm is self-inflicted but there 'was insufficient evidence to prove that the deceased deliberately intended to kill themselves.'

The cause of death for intentional self-harm was defined using the International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision (ICD-10) codes X60-X84, and the cause of death for injury or poisoning of undetermined intent was defined using the International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision (ICD-10) codes Y10-Y34 excluding Y33.9 where the Coroner's verdict was pending.

[2] Selected using ICD-10 code F12.5.

Capital Gains Tax

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the revenue impact of charging capital gains tax on residential property owned by non-domiciled and non-resident individuals; and if he will make a statement. [131616]

Dawn Primarolo: Estimates of the numbers, disposal value and gains made on assets disposed of in financial year 2003-04 by type of asset, including residential property, are available in National Statistics table 14.4 on the HM Revenue and Customs website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/capital_gains/menu.htm

Estimates of the revenue impact of charging capital gains tax on residential property owned by non-domiciled and non-resident individuals are not available.

Child Benefit

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his estimate is of the additional cost beyond the standard uprating process of the policy announced on 21 March 2007 to increase child benefit for the eldest child to £20 per week from 6 April 2010; how many children he expects to be removed from poverty as a consequence of this change; and if he will make a statement. [130181]

Ed Balls: The cost of increasing the eldest child rate of child benefit to £20 per week from 6 April 2010, beyond statutory uprating in line with RPI, is £95 million in 2010-11. The increase to £20 per week will provide support to all families in line with the principle of progressive universalism. It is estimated that it would reduce child poverty by up to 10,000 in 2010.

Construction Industry Scheme

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many temporary Construction Industry Scheme 4 cards were issued without the applicant holding a current national insurance number in (a) 2004, (b) 2005 and (c) 2006; [131254]

(2) how many temporary Construction Industry Scheme 4 cards were issued in (a) 2004, (b) 2005 and (c) 2006; and how many such cards are in circulation. [131255]

John Healey: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave him on 20 March 2007, Official Report, column 767W, for the number of temporary Construction Industry Scheme 4 cards issued in 2004-05 and 2005-06. The available data for 2006-07 now show that the number of temporary Construction Industry Scheme 4 cards issued in this year is 76,000[1].

Temporary cards are issued for 12 months where a validated national insurance number cannot be supplied immediately and automatically expire after 12 months. Of the temporary cards 2006-07, 75,000 are currently valid and eligible for use.

Temporary construction industry scheme 4 cards ceased to be used when the new Construction Industry Scheme was introduced on 6 April this year.

[1] Data for 2006-07 are incomplete.

Departmental Staff

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many temporary employees were contracted to work for his Department in 2005-06; and what the total cost of such employees was in (a) 2005-06 and (b) 1997-98. [106701]

John Healey: In 2005-06 the Department spent £863,833 on temporary workers.

The number of temporary workers contracted by the Treasury is not recorded centrally, and the costs for 1997-98 are not available due to a change in finance system.

This information could therefore be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Smith Institute

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) pursuant to the answers of 8 February 2007, Official Report, column 1134W and 1 February 2007, Official Report, column 412W, on the Smith Institute, how many events were held by the Smith Institute at number 11 Downing street in each year since 1997; [123620]

(2) what security costs will be reimbursed to his Department by the Smith Institute. [126189]

Mrs. May: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 1 February 2007, Official Report, column 411W, on the Smith Institute, if he will list the events hosted by the Smith Institute at number 11 Downing street; and what costs were recovered from the institute in each case. [130287]

John Healey [holding answer 26 February 2007]: Since 1997, 67 separate charities have used number 11 of which the Smith Institute is one. A list of these charities is included on the Treasury website.

The Smith Institute asked in 1997 to use the facility for seminars on a once a month basis and sometimes, when they are conducting a series of seminars, on a more regular basis. As previously reported, the Smith Institute held 27 seminars in the last 12 months. Any charities who use or want to use 11 Downing street can apply for more extended access if this is their wish and subject to availability.

Every external organisation who uses number 11 does so on the same basis: the organisers of events at number 11 meet all additional costs associated with holding the event.

Departments: Internet

Mr. Don Foster: To ask Chancellor of the Exchequer which websites his Department has registered in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [130465]

John Healey: The Treasury has registered no websites in the last 12 twelve months.

Departments: Press

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was spent on newspapers and periodicals by his Department in January 2007. [123887]

John Healey: The Treasury's expenditure in January 2007 on newspapers was £1,000 and expenditure on periodicals, including trade, accountancy and economics journals, was £5,000. The combined total represents a reduction of £2,000 or 25 per cent. on the cost of expenditure on newspapers and periodicals compared to the last monthly total published on 7 November 2006, Official Report, column 1022W.

Departments: Pressure Groups

Norman Baker: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what meetings took place between Ministers in his Department and outside interest groups between 1 January and 31 March; and what the date was of each such meeting. [131040]

John Healey: Treasury Ministers and officials have meetings with a wide variety of organisations in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such meetings.

Departments: Public Expenditure

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 27 March 2007, Official Report, columns 1441-2W, on departments: public expenditure, when his Department approved the Home Office's proposals to commit resources to (a) the identity cards scheme and (b) the construction of 8,000 extra prison places announced by the Secretary of State for the Home Department in July 2006. [131373]

Mr. Timms: The decision to introduce ID cards was taken by Cabinet in November 2003. The Home Office has delegated authority to commit resources up to certain defined limits. The total cost of the ID cards scheme will exceed these limits and so the delivery will require Treasury approval. Approval will be sought at an appropriate stage in the project planning process.

The announcement by the Home Secretary of plans to increase prison capacity by 8,000 places was made with the prior agreement of HM Treasury. The individual projects that will deliver the new places will need to receive HM Treasury approval where they exceed the relevant limits. Approval is sought on a project-by-project basis at an appropriate stage in the project planning process.

Departments: Visits Abroad

Mrs. May: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on how many occasions his wife has accompanied him on official business abroad at the expense of the public purse, and at what cost, in each year. [130288]

Mr. Gordon Brown: My wife accompanies me on official visits overseas as appropriate. The costs of such visits are included in the total cost of Ministers' visits overseas which is published on an annual basis. From 2006-07, the number of such visits will be included in the annual list. Copies of previous lists are available in the Library of the House.

Duty Free Allowances

Dr. Tony Wright: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he plans to double the tax-free allowance for international travellers returning from trips outside the EU as described in the pre-Budget report in December 2006. [130466]

John Healey: On 28 November 2006, European Finance Ministers agreed to raise the tax-free allowance for people returning from outside the EU by air and sea to €430 (£290). This doubles the current allowance for all UK travellers returning from third countries. The Government will lay the necessary order to bring the higher allowance into force at the earliest opportunity after parallel EU legislation to increase Customs Duty allowances is adopted. This is expected to be later this year.

Economic and Monetary Union

Mr. Cash: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether the statement that the euro makes us strong contained in the Berlin Declaration of 25 March 2007 forms part of the Government's European policy. [130720]

Ed Balls: The Government's policy on membership of the single currency was set out by the Chancellor in his statement to the House of Commons in October 1997, and again in the Chancellor's statement on the five tests assessment in June 2003. The determining factor underpinning any Government decision on membership of the single currency is the national economic interest and whether the economic case for joining is clear and unambiguous.

The Chancellor announced in Budget 2007 that, "the Government does not propose a euro assessment to be initiated at the time of this budget". The Treasury will again review the situation at Budget time next year as required by the Chancellor's June 2003 statement.

Energy: Conservation

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will bring forward fiscal measures to assist householders living in older housing stock to insulate their homes to reduce energy wastage and carbon emissions. [130369]

Ian Pearson: I have been asked to reply.

DEFRA funds the Energy Saving Trust which works to increase demand for energy efficiency through raising awareness and providing advice and support for action by householders. In addition, the Energy Efficiency Commitment has placed an obligation on energy suppliers to promote improvements in household energy efficiency.

Since its launch in June 2000, the Warm Front Scheme has assisted over 1.2 million households in fuel poverty in England, mainly through energy efficiency measures, including loft and cavity wall insulation.

Fuel poverty is a devolved matter and, in Wales, the Home Energy Efficiency Scheme (HEES) funds insulation and heating measures in order to reduce fuel bills and improve domestic energy efficiency.

Mrs. Hodgson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will offer fiscal incentives to those on low incomes to encourage the use of low energy light bulbs. [130491]

John Healey: Support is available for the purchases of low energy light bulbs under the Government's Energy Efficiency Commitment, which will have provided 40 million bulbs to consumers by 2008, and through the Warm Front Scheme for vulnerable households.

Our existing European agreements prevent us from reducing the VAT rate on low energy light bulbs. However, to encourage the purchase of such bulbs and to reduce their upfront cost, the Chancellor has written to European Finance Ministers and the European Commission to recommend the introduction of a reduced VAT rate for energy efficient products.

Engineering and Physical Sciences Research Council: Finance

Mr. Moore: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether he plans to use end year flexibility to provide the Engineering and Physical Sciences Research Council with funds for (a) postdoctoral fellowships and (b) other purposes. [130615]

John Healey: The allocation of end-year flexibility to specific research councils is a decision for the Secretary of State for the DTI.

European Community

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a list of the attendees, with their affiliations, of public events hosted at 11 Downing street on European Community matters in the last two years. [130632]

John Healey: Number 11 Downing street is used as a venue for Government meetings, official meetings, meetings with external stakeholders and events by charities. As was the case with the previous administration, it is not the Government's practice to disclose lists of individuals.

European Union: Citizenship

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what measures were funded in the UK under the Europe for Citizens programme in the last 12 months for which figures are available. [130656]

Mr. Woodward: I have been asked to reply.

The Europe for Citizens programme began on 1 January 2007. Therefore, no measures were funded in the last 12 months.

Excise Duties: Alcoholic Drinks

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much revenue HM Treasury raised through the duty on (a) cider, (b) sparkling cider, (c) beer, (d) wine, (e) sparkling wine and (f) spirits in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [130520]

John Healey: The total duty receipts by type of alcohols products (cider, beer, wine and spirits) can be found in the HM Revenue and Customs 'Beer & Cider Bulletin', 'Wine of Fresh Grapes or Made Wine Bulletin' and 'Spirits Bulletin', which are available from the HM Revenue and Customs website addresses at:

http://www.uktradeinfo.co.uk/index.cfm?task=bullbeer

http://www.uktradeinfo.co.uk/index.cfm?task=bullfreshgrape

http://www.uktradeinfo.co.uk/index.cfm?task=bullmadewine

http://www.uktradeinfo.co.uk/index.cfm?task=bullspirits

HM Revenue and Customs only collects total duty receipts for alcohol products and does not split the receipts into still or sparkling alcohol products.

Excise Duties: Motor Vehicles

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will introduce measures to assist rural users of four wheel drive vehicles. [130368]

John Healey: The Government believe that it is important that all cars registered from March 2001 are treated consistently on a carbon dioxide emissions basis under vehicle excise duty.

Vehicle excise duty for cars was reformed in 2001 and is now based on graduated CO_2 emissions bands, which give a clear signal to motorists to choose less polluting vehicles. The structure of vehicle excise duty means that vehicles in the same class or of a similar size are in different bands—for example, there are various models of four wheel drive vehicles not in bands F and G. This enables people to choose less polluting vehicles but keep the same type of vehicle.

Mr. Steen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will exempt Land Rovers and similar vehicles in use in rural areas which are necessary for those who work and live there from the additional excise duty mentioned in the Budget. [131318]

Mr. Harper: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the effect of his Budget measures on the vehicle excise duty on drivers resident in rural areas. [130576]

John Healey: Vehicle excise duty for cars was reformed in 2001 and is now based on graduated carbon dioxide emissions bands, which give a clear signal to motorists to choose less polluting vehicles.

Budget 2007 announced rates for the next three years including increases in band G in 2007-08 and for 2008-09 followed by a freeze for 2009-10, along with a reduction in the band B rate for low carbon cars in 2007-08 which will be frozen for the subsequent two years. Band G rates will apply to all cars with emissions above 225 grams CO_2 per kilometre registered from 23 March 2006 onwards.

Budget 2007 changes to vehicle excise duty apply across the UK and across manufacturers, sharpening the environmental signal to all UK motorists to purchase more fuel efficient vehicles. The sharpening of environmental signals will help deliver a 0.1-0.17 MtC reduction in CO_2 emissions by 2020.

Agricultural vehicles are exempt from payment of vehicle excise duty benefiting 283,000 vehicles in 2005.

Financial Ombudsman Service

Gordon Banks: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps he is taking to ensure the independence of the Independent Adviser to the Financial Ombudsman Service. [131433]

Ed Balls: The role of the independent assessor to the Financial Ombudsman Service is not set out in the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000.

Following consultation, the board of (the Financial Ombudsman Service set up the post in 2001, under terms designed to secure the independence of the person appointed.

Under his terms of reference, the independent assessor can consider complaints about the Financial Ombudsman Service's procedures and the behaviour of its staff. Disagreements about the merit of decisions are specifically excluded from his jurisdiction. The independent assessor is authorised to make findings and recommendations for redress in cases where he believes it is justified.

Each year, the independent assessor writes an annual report, which is contained with the Financial Ombudsman Service's annual review. In it, he details the number and nature of the cases referred to him and the outcome of his investigations.

Following a national advertisement and open selection process, Sir Edward Osmotherly was appointed to the post of independent assessor in December 2001. The present incumbent, Michael Barnes CBE, succeeded him in April 2002.

Financial Services: EC Law

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 15 March 2007, Official Report, column 474W, on financial services: EC law, which other European Union member states have transposed the Markets in Financial Instruments Directive since 31 January; and when the Government expects those states which have not yet transposed the Directive to do so. [130211]

Ed Balls: The Commission has asked all member states to confirm when they will complete transposition of the two MiFID directives and this information is available at http://ec.europa.eu/internal_market/securities/isd/mifid_implementation_en_htm.

According to the responses provided so far to the Commission on the above website, as of November 2004 the UK, Ireland and Rumania had reported that they had fully transposed both MiFID directives. Lithuania reported it had transposed the level 1 MiFID directive. And by the end of the summer, the majority of countries plan to have completed transposition.

Financial Services: Regulation

Harry Cohen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the system is for the regulation of independent financial advisers. [131111]

Ed Balls: The provision of financial advice is regulated under the terms of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 (Regulated Activities) Order 2001. Regulatory principles and detailed rules are made and enforced by the Financial Services Authority. These principles and rules require advisers to take a number of steps to ensure they provide suitable advice and treat their customers fairly. Where consumers have a complaint against a financial adviser which cannot be resolved through the adviser's own complaints process, they have access to the Financial Ombudsman service.

Government Departments: Fees and Charges

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the Government rules are on charging by departments for services to the public, with particular reference to full cost recovery. [130861]

Mr. Timms: Government charging policy applies to all services provided by public bodies such as departments, agencies and NDPBs. Charges for statutory services to the public are normally set to recover the full administrative costs of the service (full cost recovery), unless legislation explicitly provides otherwise. The same principle applies where public bodies provide services to one another.

Where public bodies provide discretionary services to the public, often into competitive markets, the policy is that charges should reflect the market price, in the interests of fair competition.

The main exception is charges for information. Government policy is that certain information services should be provided free of charge or at substantially reduced cost.

Heads of State

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he last met a foreign Head of State with the Prime Minister. [128875]

John Healey: No. 10 issues press conference transcripts following meetings with Heads of State. In addition to meeting the Prime Minister some Heads of State have on occasion also met with the Chancellor.

Income: Distribution

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the average wealth Gini coefficient was between (a) 1979 and 1990, (b) 1979 and 1997 and (c) 1997 and 2006; and if he will make a statement. [130726]

Dawn Primarolo: Estimates for the wealth Gini coefficient from 1979-2003 are published in Table 13.5 on the HMRC website at http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal_wealth/table13 5_pdf.

Figures for subsequent years are not yet available.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the average income Gini coefficient was between (a) 1979 and 1990, (b) 1979 and 1997 and (c) 1997 and 2006; and if he will make a statement. [130728]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer the hon. Member to the DWP publication "Households Below Average Income" and the ONS publication "The Effects of Taxes and Benefits on Household Income, 2004-05".

Inheritance Tax

Michael Gove: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the average inheritance tax paid was in each year since 1996-97. [129105]

Dawn Primarolo: 94 per cent. of estates do not pay inheritance tax. For estates that did pay tax, the average amount of inheritance tax paid is shown in the following table, rounded to the nearest £1,000.

Average UK Inheritance Tax Bill

1996-97	90
1997-98	95
1998-99	97
1999-2000	104
2000-01	107
2001-02	110
2002-03	98
2003-04	87
2004-05	91
2005-06	100

Inheritance Tax: Northern Ireland

Sammy Wilson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will link the threshold for inheritance tax in Northern Ireland to the level of house prices there. [131131]

Dawn Primarolo: The inheritance tax nil-rate band increases each year by reference to the retail prices index unless Parliament decides otherwise.

However, the Chancellor announced in Budget 2007 increases in the nil-rate band in excess of the expected retail prices index for each year through to 2010-11 when it will reach £350,000.

Insurance: Pensioners

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps his Department is taking to ensure that older people (a) are able to obtain quotes from insurance companies and (b) are not subject to additional premiums due to their age. [130709]

Ed Balls: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 28 November 2006, Official Report, column 599W. The Government do not prescribe the terms and conditions that insurance companies may set when offering insurance, nor do they intervene in the commercial decisions of insurers.

The Government's Discrimination Law Review is currently considering whether there is a case for prohibiting age discrimination in the provision of goods, facilities and services, including insurance. The Government now expect to publish a Green Paper in May of this year.

Loans: Students

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the maximum period is during which HM Revenue and Customs may retain a student loan payment taken by pay as you earn before the amount is transferred to the Student Loans Company. [130882]

Dawn Primarolo: HM Revenue and Customs transfers student loan repayments remitted by employers each month, along with pay as you earn (PAYE) tax and national insurance contributions (NIC) deducted from employees' earnings, to the Bank of England overnight following the date of receipt. No sums are retained or transferred to the Student Loans Company (SLC) at any stage.

Stephen Williams: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether student loan payments received by HM Revenue and Customs are transferred to the Student Loan Company on an annual or monthly basis; and whether interest earned is credited to the student's account or retained by HM Revenue and Customs. [131056]

Dawn Primarolo: Any student loan repayments received by HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) are transferred overnight to the Treasury's consolidated account with the Bank of England. On a quarterly basis money is then transferred to the Department for Education and Skills.

HMRC does not retain any student loan repayments money nor does it earn any interest on it.

Local Authority Business Growth Incentives Scheme

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether he plans to remove the 70 per cent. scaling factor and ceiling in the Local Authority Business Growth Incentive Scheme. [126740]

John Healey: In the three years to 2007-08 local authorities will receive about £1 billion through LABGI as the Government have previously announced. The Government have abolished the ceiling in LABGI. Due to Judicial Reviews brought by Corby and Slough authorities, this year the Government have retained the 70 per cent. scaling factor for payments to protect the important incentive this scheme creates for authorities both in this year and next year.

Members: Correspondence

Steve Webb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he will answer the letters of 18 December 2006 and 19 December 2006 from the hon. Member for Northavon (our ref: denn/vct and you/lh) on the financing of AIDS treatment around the world. [130863]

John Healey: Both letters were transferred to the Department for International Development on 3 January and the hon. Member was informed on that day.

Ministerial Residences

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which guests have stayed overnight at the flat above number 10 Downing street in the last 12 months. [111291]

John Healey: As was the case with previous administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide lists of people who have visited or stayed at the flat above number 10 Downing street.

Ministers: Travel

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what criteria he uses in deciding what means of transport to use to travel between 11 Downing street and the Palace of Westminster. [130750]

John Healey: Several factors, including security, are taken into account when determining the most appropriate mode of transport on official business.

National Insurance Contributions

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) pursuant to the answer of 19 February 2007, Official Report, column 485W, on voluntary national insurance contributions, how many people his Department estimates will apply for refunds; [130941]

(2) pursuant to the answer of 19 February 2007, Official Report, column 485W, on voluntary national insurance contributions, how many people have applied for refunds in voluntary national insurance contributions paid since 25 May 2006. [130942]

Dawn Primarolo: It is not possible to estimate the number of people who will apply for refunds as this depends on their personal circumstances. The number of people that have applied for refunds of voluntary contributions paid since 25 May 2006 is around 160.

No. 11 Downing Street: Meetings

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which charities have held meetings at 11 Downing street since December 2005. [113337]

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) which receptions he held at number 11 Downing street in December 2006; [115219]

(2) which functions were held at number 11 Downing street in November 2006. [111292]

John Healey: Number 11 Downing street is used as a venue for Government meetings, official meetings, meetings with external stakeholders and events by charities. This is fully in accordance with the ministerial code and long standing conventions governing the use of Downing street as operated by this and previous Governments.

A list of the charities that have used number 11 Downing street since 1997 is set out on the Treasury website.

Official Hospitality

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many functions held at number 11 Downing street in the last two years have been attended by (a) Sir Christopher Evans and (b) Rod Aldridge. [120688]

John Healey: Number 11 Downing street is used as a venue for Government meetings, official meetings, meetings with external stakeholders and events by charities. As was the case with previous administrations, it is not the Government's practice to disclose lists of individuals who have visited No. 11.

Olympic Games: Greater London

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether all the funding to be provided by central government departments towards the cost of the Olympics will be new money allocated in the Comprehensive Spending Review. [131367]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the statement made to the House by the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport on 15 March, Official Report, columns 450-466. This is a matter for consideration in the 2007 Comprehensive Spending Review.

Pay: Public Sector

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the economic effects in Wales of the introduction of regional pay in the public sector. [131188]

Mr. Timms: In reserved areas it is for Government Departments to determine pay settlements within the framework of the Government's pay policy. The Government's pay policy promotes pay settlements which reflect local labour market conditions. In devolved areas it is for the Welsh Assembly government to determine pay settlements.

Pay: Wales

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the likely effect of differential regional pay for public service employees in Wales on the Welsh economy. [131224]

Mr. Timms: In reserved areas it is for Government Departments to determine pay settlements within the framework of the Government's pay policy. The Government's pay policy promotes pay settlements which reflect local labour market conditions. In devolved areas it is for the Welsh Assembly government to determine pay settlements.

Public Bodies: Accountancy

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether public bodies are required to meet international generally accepted accounting principles for accounts published after July 2008; whether he expects compliance to ensure that the costs of the private finance initiative will be included on the public balance sheet; and what effect he expects inclusion to have on total Government borrowing. [130612]

Mr. Timms: As set out in paragraph 6.59 of the 2007 Financial Statement and Budget Report, the annual financial statements of Government Departments and other entities in the public sector are currently prepared using accounting polices based on UK generally accepted accounting practice. From financial year 2008-09, the annual financial statements of Government Departments and other entities in the public sector, will be prepared using international financial reporting standards, adapted as necessary for the public sector. There is as yet no EU-adopted IFRS standard setting out how the public-sector elements of PFI projects should be reported. It is too early to say what an IFRS standard, once introduced, will mean on a deal-by-deal basis for each PFI contract.

Public Expenditure

Danny Alexander: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether it is his Department's policy to allow savings on annually managed expenditure to fund spending through departmental expenditure limits as recommended by the Freud Review. [131143]

Ed Balls: The process for the allocation of funding to Government Departments is set out in 'Public planning and control in the UK—a brief introduction', which is available on the HMT Treasury website.

Public Sector: Fees and Charges

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment his Department has made of the potential effects of expanding co-payment in the public services. [130877]

Mr. Timms: Any assessment of how public services are funded must consider the impact on efficiency and equity of different funding models as well as any wider effects. Guidance on charging for Government services and products where co-payment is deemed appropriate is set out in The Fees and Charges Guide.

Revenue and Customs

Stephen Williams: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many home visits have been made by HM Revenue and Customs to individuals who qualify for this service each tax year since 2001-02; and what assessment he has made of the implications of trends in these figures. [131025]

Dawn Primarolo: The data requested is not available.

Revenue and Customs: Buildings

Mr. Meale: To ask Mr Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will break down by main budget heading the costs of operating and maintaining HM Revenue and Customs' buildings and offices situated on the Castle Meadow site in Nottingham. [130729]

Dawn Primarolo: The cost of operating and maintaining the HM Revenue and Customs buildings and offices at Castle Meadow site in Nottingham from April 2006 to March 2007 are as shown in the following table.

Budget Heading	£ Cost (net of VAT)
PFI Unitary Charge	5,403,368
Business Rates	1,264,360
Utilities	371,501
Total	7,039,229

The PFI unitary charge is for the provision (by Mapeley) of the serviced accommodation at this address, this includes the facility management, maintenance and property costs for this site.

Revenue and Customs: Huddersfield

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will take steps to ensure the provision of accessible premises in Huddersfield for people requiring information and advice from HM Revenue and Customs. [131595]

Dawn Primarolo: The hon. Member will be aware that HMRC has a commitment to retain face to face services at or close by the current location. In the event that they vacate the current office, HMRC will have several criteria for the new building, one of which will be that there is good customer access.

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many employees of HM Revenue and Customs were employed in Huddersfield in each of the past 10 years. [131596]

Dawn Primarolo: The following table shows the number of staff employed by HMRC and, previous to its formation in 2005, by its constituent former Departments (the Inland Revenue and HM Customs and Excise) at offices in Huddersfield during this period.

	Headcount
1 April 1997	138
1 April 1998	128
1 April 1999	131
1 April 2000	135
1 April 2001	138
1 April 2002	131
1 April 2003	127
1 April 2004	131
1 April 2005	131
1 April 2006	120
1 March 2007	107

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will take steps to improve the provision of services and information by HM Revenue and Customs in Huddersfield. [131597]

Dawn Primarolo: In the last 18 months HMRC have made changes to the way their inquiry centres operate to improve the face to face service offered and its efficiency.

HMRC have an effective quality assurance system. Regular assurance checks are carried out by higher grade officers, checking that the processes and approach to customers are nationally consistent. In addition, managers discuss work issues with their staff on a weekly basis and carry out quarterly quality checks on the work of each member of their staff.

Revenue and Customs: Telephone Services

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what the average duration of a telephone call by a member of the public to the national helpline of HM Revenue and Customs was in the last period for which figures are available; [130820]

(2) what the average waiting time was before a telephone call by a member of the public to the national helpline of HM Revenue and Customs was answered by a member of staff in the last period for which figures are available; [130822]

(3) what targets have been set for the management of HM Revenue and Customs for the improved handling of telephone calls to the national helpline by members of the public; and if he will make a statement; [130823]

(4) how many telephone calls to the national helpline for HM Revenue and Customs were answered in 2005-06; and how many have been answered in 2006-07; [130824]

(5) how many full-time equivalent staff are employed to deal directly with telephone calls to HM Revenue and Customs' national helpline; [130825]

(6) how many customers are held in a telephone queue for the national helpline of HM Revenue and Customs before further calls are automatically terminated; [130826]

(7) how many telephone calls to the national helpline of HM Revenue and Customs were automatically terminated during 2005-06; how many have been so terminated in 2006-07; and if he will make a statement. [130827]

Dawn Primarolo: The data is not available in the format requested.

Road Transport

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will give consideration to extending the review of road transport fuels which he has asked Professor Julia King and Sir Nicholas Stern to conduct to include an evaluation of alternatives to kerosene air transport fuel. [130004]

John Healey: The review will focus on road transport fuels and technologies. The Government's objective is to ensure that aviation is included within the EU emissions trading scheme as soon as possible, but in addition the Government will continue to explore areas where support may be appropriate in the development of alternative aviation fuels.

Sick Leave

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people of working age were off work for a period exceeding six months through sickness or disability in (a) 1997 and (b) 2006. [130848]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 16 April 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question about people of working age who were off work for more than six months through sickness or disability in 1997 and 2006. I am replying in her absence. (130848)

Historically, the Labour Force Survey (LFS) collects information about people who were absent from work because of sickness or injury in the week before their interview. The answers to this question give no indication of the overall length of their sickness absence.

More recently, the LFS has been extended to ask whether respondents had been off work for illnesses caused or aggravated by work. This data however excludes non- work related sicknesses or disabilities that did not originate from the workplace. It also excludes those off work for over a year.

As a result, the information necessary to answer the question is not available from the LFS.

Sir Ronald Cohen

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many official functions held at No. 11 Downing Street in the last 12 months have been attended by Sir Ronald Cohen. [128366]

John Healey: No. 11 Downing Street is used as a venue for government meetings, official meetings, meetings with external stakeholders and events by charities. As was the case with the previous administration, it is not the Government's practice to disclose lists of individuals.

Small Businesses: Grants

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what progress his Department has made towards the establishment of a small business development bank. [126579]

Margaret Hodge: I have been asked to reply.

The Government are not progressing any proposal for the establishment of a small business development bank.

Stamp Duty Land Tax

Dr. Cable: To ask Mr Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the reduction in the yield of stamp duty land tax as a result of the sale of commercial and residential property into offshore companies; and if he will make a statement. [131617]

Ed Balls: The purchase of UK commercial property by offshore companies attracts stamp duty land tax. No estimate is available of the subsequent reduction in yield from transactions of shares in those companies instead of the underlying property.

Taxation: Companies

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the effect on UK investment of the Paymaster General's announcement on 2 March limiting sideways loss relief. [131358]

Dawn Primarolo: The changes announced on 2 March 2007 target the continued use of sideways loss relief for tax avoidance and should have no significant effect on genuine investment.

Taxation: Self-assessment

Mr. Malins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many taxpayers who submitted self-assessment tax returns were charged a penalty of £100 for late submission in each of the last three years; how many appealed against the penalty in each year; how many appeals were allowed in each year; what percentage of penalty charges were collected in each year; and how many were not collected due to death or tax due being under £100 in each year. [131420]

Dawn Primarolo: The total number of £100 late filing penalties issued, cancelled and appeals received against throughout the last three years are as detailed in the following table. HMRC does not have information on how many appeals were allowed, the percentage of these penalties collected or how many were not collected due to death or tax being under £100.

	Penalties issued	Penalties cancelled	Penalty appeals received
2003-04	1,640,267	215,851	157,001
2004-05	1,715,775	233,731	139,878
2005-06	1,658,883	190,407	142,993

Unemployment

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many children in (a) Hartlepool constituency, (b) the Tees Valley sub-regions, (c) the North East region and (d) the UK live in a family in which neither parent works. [130909]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 16 April 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent parliamentary question asking how many children in (a) Hartlepool constituency, (b) the Tees Valley sub-regions, (c) the North East region and (d) the UK live in a family in which neither parent works. (130909)

The attached table gives the number of children in families where no parent is working. The numbers in the table include children of lone parents who are not in employment as well as children of couples in which neither partner is in employment.

Estimates are taken from the Labour Force Survey (LFS). As with any sample survey, estimates from the LFS are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

Number of children[1] in a family where no parent is working[2]: October to December 2006

	Thousand
United Kingdom	2,055
North East	95
Tees Valley sub-regions	28
Hartlepool constituency	3

Unemployment: East Sussex

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many economically inactive people of working age there were in (a) Eastbourne and (b) East Sussex in age groups (i) 18 to 24, (ii) 25 to 50 and (iii) over 50 years old in each year since 1997. [130963]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 16 April 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question about how many economically inactive people of working age there were in (a) Eastbourne and (b) East Sussex in age groups (i) 18 to 24, (ii) 25 to 50 and (iii) 50 years old or more in each year since 19911 (130963)

The Office for National Statistics (ONS) compiles statistics of inactivity from the annual local area Labour Force Survey (LFS) and the Annual Population Survey (APS) following International Labour Organisation definitions.

Table 1, attached, shows the number of economically inactive persons, aged 16 to 24, 25 to 49, 50 to retirement age and for all persons of working age, resident in the Eastbourne constituency, from the annual local area LFS for the 12-month periods ending in February from 1997 to 2004 and from the APS for the 12-month periods ending in March from 2005 to 2006. These numbers are also expressed as a percentage of the relevant population. Table 2 shows similar information for East Sussex.

As these estimates are for a subset of the population in a small geographical area, they are based on very small sample sizes, and are therefore subject to large margins of uncertainty. In this case, the sample sizes are not sufficient to give an accurate estimate of even the direction of the change over the period.

All estimates refer to the current administrative East Sussex area.

USA

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer where he stayed overnight on his official visit to Washington in December 2004; and what the cost of the stay was. [129325]

John Healey: All ministerial visits are conducted in accordance with the "Ministerial Code" and "Travel by Ministers". Since 1999, the Government have published on an annual basis, a list of overseas travel by Cabinet Ministers costing in excess of £500 and the total cost of all ministerial travel. Information for 2006-07 will be published as soon as possible after the end of the financial year.

Valuation and Lands Agency: ICT

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his Department's estimate is of the value of the tangible fixed asset of the Valuation and Lands Agency's automated valuation computer database. [129494]

Mr. Hanson: I have been asked to reply.

The current estimated fixed asset value of the database is £3,560,853.

Valuation Office Agency

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a copy of the Valuation Office Agency's documents (a) CT IA 010905 (September 2005) and (b) CT IA 241005 (October 2005). [129491]

John Healey: A copy of the Valuation Office Agency's documents (a) and (b) have been placed in the Library.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) which foreign visits were made by representatives of the Valuation Office Agency on official business in 2006; and what the (a) purpose and (b) destination was in each case; [129510]

(2) pursuant to the answers of 26 January 2007, Official Report, column 2134W, and of 30 November 2006, Official Report, column 845W, on the Valuation Office Agency, what the (a) purpose and (b) destination in each country was of each foreign visit. [129713]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer the hon. member to the answer given on 26 January 2007, Official Report, column 2134W, which sets out the foreign trips made in 2006. These visits were undertaken when the VOA was invited to share their expertise in the field of property valuation, as speakers or delegates at international conferences or providing advice to overseas Government valuation agencies.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what Gateway Reviews (a) have been produced and (b) are underway in relation to projects by the Valuation Office Agency. [129590]

Dawn Primarolo: No Gateway Reviews are currently under way in relation to projects of the Valuation Office Agency. The last review undertaken for a project was in October 2005.

Valuation Office Agency: Travel

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the Valuation Office Agency's policy is on its staff travelling first class by (a) rail and (b) air. [130545]

Dawn Primarolo: The Valuation Office Agency's travel; policy is set out in Section 7 of the Guide to Working in the Valuation Office Agency. The relevant section is enclosed:

All staff should normally use standard (or economy) class travel for:

- all rail journeys
- all air journeys of less than 90 minutes (each way)
- all ferry (or equivalent) travel

However, you may travel first class if:

- you are Band 2 or above, or
- you have reserved rights to travel first class (and you have completed the appropriate declaration), and
- the travel is for business) purposes (i.e. not for investitures, royal garden parties etc)

Nevertheless, even if you are entitled to first class travel, you should still use standard class) if you are undertaking a rail journey of short duration (i.e. of up to ground one hour for a single journey, or around two hours for a return journey). And you are also recommended to consider standard class for longer 'commuter type' travel, even when the journey time may exceed the durations mentioned above.

All staff may travel first class on an APEX ticket provided this is cheaper than the full standard class fare (and no standard class APEX tickets are available). Exceptionally, and subject to approval by your line manager before the journey takes place, you may also travel first class if:

- you have special needs that require you to travel first class
- there is a business need for you to travel with a colleague who may travel first class.

Valuation: Housing

Martin Horwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the priority given by district valuers to conducting valuations under section 128 of the Housing Act 1985 as compared to their other (a) statutory and (b) non-statutory functions. [131148]

Dawn Primarolo: District valuers are appointed by the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs under the Housing Act 1985 to deal with right to buy determinations and this is therefore known as statutory work. All statutory work is given equal priority. Deployment of district valuer staff on non-statutory work will reflect availability within normal fluctuations in demand.

Valuation: Lancashire

Mr. Evans: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many valuations were made under section 128 of the Housing Act 1985 by the district valuer in (a) Ribble Valley and (b) Lancashire between 1 September 2005 and 1 February 2006. [130735]

Dawn Primarolo: Within the time frame 1 September 2005 and 1 February 2006, the numbers of determinations made by the District Valuer under section 128 of the Housing Act 1985 in each district of Lancashire is a follows:

	Number
Burnley	7
Chorley	7
Fylde	0
Hyndburn	11
Lancaster	3
Pendle	7
Preston	10
Ribble Valley	1
Rossendale	7
South Ribble	3
West Lancashire	9
Wyre	0

The total number of determinations in Lancashire is 65, of which one was in Ribble Valley.

VAT: Fraud

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) when he expects to complete the investigations into Missing Trader Intra-Community fraud; and if he will make a statement; [131613]

(2) whether extra resources have been transferred to Missing Trader Intra-Community fraud investigations in order to complete the checks within the appointed time limits. [131615]

Dawn Primarolo: In response to the rapid increase in: Missing Trader Intra-Community Fraud activity in late 2005 and early 2006, HM Revenue and Customs are actively checking a greater number of claims. Each case of verification is treated on its own merits and, given the extremely complex and highly sophisticated nature of the fraud, involving numerous cross-border transactions within and beyond the European Union as well as checks into a wide range of matters involving companies, their directors, financing and, of course, transactions and associations with other parties, the time taken to reach a decision is that required to fully establish the veracity of the claim. The setting of arbitrary time limits to complete investigations would be counterproductive to establishing the correctness of the transaction chains involved. The UK courts have, to date, supported HMRC's policy.

HMRC recognises the importance of VAT repayments to legitimate businesses and have deployed an additional 700 staff to ensure that verification of these claims can be; carried out as effectively and efficiently as possible. Also if at any time during the verification they identify that part or the entire claim is unconnected to MTIC fraud and is otherwise valid, they will make prompt repayment of the amount.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many representations he has received from companies awaiting results of Missing Trader Intra-Community fraud checks regarding the effect on their financial position of the time taken to complete the checks. [131614]

Dawn Primarolo: Treasury Ministers and officials receive representations on numerous subjects from a wide range of organisations and individuals in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such representations.

Welfare Tax Credits: Overpayments

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many notices of warning of legal proceedings if payment was not made were sent to individuals claiming tax credits who were in dispute with HM Revenue and Customs in each month from April 2003 to March 2007; and if he will make a statement. [128930]

Dawn Primarolo: It is HMRC's policy to suspend the recovery of overpayments while a dispute is being considered.

Widowed People: Taxation

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will take steps to ensure that widowed lone parents receive for tax credit purposes the same disregard for their widows' pension as is received by divorcees for their maintenance payments. [125883]

Dawn Primarolo: The child and working tax credits are part of the tax system and tax credit entitlement is therefore generally based on all income of a tax year which is taken into account for income tax purposes. This includes taxable social security benefits such as widowed parent's allowance. Income which is exempt from income tax is disregarded for tax credits. In particular, maintenance received from a former spouse is disregarded to help lone parents in these circumstances to find and keep work and to encourage the payment of maintenance by the former spouse.

However, the widowed parent's allowance, together with some other income, already benefits from a £300 annual disregard which reduces the amount of such income which is taken into account for tax credit purposes.

Working Tax Credit

Mr. McGovern: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer for what reasons those without children and disabilities and under the age of 25 are ineligible to claim working tax credit. [131265]

Dawn Primarolo: The working tax credit provides financial support on top of earnings for households with low incomes, making sure that work pays. It was introduced to tackle poor work incentives and persistent poverty among working people, and to respond to family circumstances, targeting resources on those most in need.

The working tax credit recognises the difficulties that those with children face in combining work with family responsibilities and the difficulties that workers with a disability may face. Workers with neither children nor a disability, aged 25 or over, are entitled to the working tax credit provided they work at least 30 hours a week. Eligibility begins at this point because it is those aged 25 or over who are most likely to face poorer incentives to work or suffer persistent poverty in work.

Working Tax Credit: Dundee

Mr. McGovern: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many people in Dundee West are eligible for the working tax credit; [131257]

(2) how many people in Dundee West (a) are eligible for and (b) claim the child tax credit; [131298]

(3) how many people in Dundee West claim the working tax credit. [131299]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer my hon. Friend to the answers given to the hon. Member for Stroud (Mr. Drew) on 29 March 2007, Official Report, column 1753W.

Alcoholic Drinks: Children

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many retailers were prosecuted for selling alcohol to under-age customers in each year for which figures are available. [130762]

Mr. Coaker: Information from the Court Proceedings Database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform showing the number of retailers prosecuted for selling alcohol to minors, allowing sale to minors and wholesale sale to minors is shown in the following table.

The offence of sale of alcohol to a person under 18 can attract a penalty notice for disorder (PND). The offence was added to the PND scheme on the 1 November 2004, and there were 113 penalty notices issued for the offence in November and December of that year. 2,058 penalty notices were issued in 2005 and provisional data for January to June 2006 shows that a further 1,562 penalty notices were issued for the offence in that period.

Animal Experiments

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what his Department's budget is for the reduction, replacement and refinement of animal experimentation. [130711]

Joan Ryan: We announced on 21 May 2004, Official Report, column 69WS, that the Home Office would transfer its budget for research into the reduction, replacement and refinement of animal experimentation (the 3Rs) to the National Centre for Replacement, Refinement and Reduction of Animals in Research (NC3Rs) once pre-existing commitments had been honoured. Accordingly, the Home Office contributed £35,000, £125,000 and £250,000 to the funding of the Centre in financial years 2004-05, 2005-06 and 2006-07, respectively.

The National Centre for the Replacement, Refinement and Reduction of Animals in Research is an independent organisation, funded by Government, research councils and industry, reporting to the Minister for Science and Innovation, and provides a United Kingdom focus for the promotion, development and implementation of the 3Rs in animal research and testing. The centre funds high-quality 3Rs research and facilitates the exchange of information and ideas, the identification of knowledge gaps, and the translation of research findings into practice to benefit both animals and science.

Animal Experiments: Inspections

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many inspectors are employed to oversee animal experimentation; and if he will take steps to increase the number. [130691]

Joan Ryan: The Animals (Scientific Procedures) Inspectorate assesses applications for animal experimentation licences and inspects licensed work and facilities where work under the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 is carried out. There are currently 28 inspectors based in offices at Cambridge, Dundee, London, Shrewsbury and Swindon. It remains our aim to achieve a complement of 33 inspectors in total. We have no plans for any further increase beyond this target figure at the present time.

Arms Trade: Saudi Arabia

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what requests for information have been received by (a) his Department and (b) the Serious Fraud Office from the US Justice Department on the investigation into the Al Yamamah military contract. [126932]

Joan Ryan: Correspondence between the UK and other countries relating to such matters is by its very nature confidential in order to protect the integrity of any ongoing criminal investigation. It therefore follows that the Home Office can neither confirm nor deny that such requests have been received, considered or made by UK authorities.

Asylum

Mr. Grogan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many asylum seeker claims were not processed within eight weeks in the last year for which figures are available; and how long it took to process those claims. [128866]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 21 March 2007]: The latest published figures show that 76 per cent.[1] of applications in the financial year 2005-06 had initial decisions made and served within two months, 84 per cent. within four months and 87 per cent. within six months.

Information on the timeliness of initial decisions is published quarterly and annually. Copies of these publications are available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office Research, Development and Statistics website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html

[1] Source: A-CID database as at 15 January 2007. "Two months" is defined as 61 days; "four months" is defined as 122 days; "six months" is defined as 182 days.

Asylum: Children

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people seeking asylum in the UK as an unaccompanied child in (a) 2005 and (b) 2006 who were the subject of an age dispute were subsequently found to be aged over 18 years. [130931]

Mr. Byrne: In 2005 there were 2,425 applications from Unaccompanied Asylum Seeking Children (UASCs) in which the age was disputed. As at 12 June 2006 the applicant's age was still recorded as disputed in 1,775 cases (cases may be resolved either if the applicant withdraws their claim to be a minor, or the Home Office receives credible evidence that the applicant is the age claimed).

Statistics on age disputed applications are published annually and figures for 2006 will be published in August 2007. Copies of these publications are available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office Research, Development and Statistics Directorate website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html.

Asylum: Custodial Treatment

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people seeking asylum are held in custody; and what the equivalent figure was for (a) March 2005 and (b) March 2004. [129791]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 26 March 2007]: Information on the numbers of asylum seekers who are held in custody is not held centrally and would not be available except at disproportionate cost.

Asylum: Northern Ireland

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people resident in Northern Ireland are receiving help from the National Asylum Support Service. [127188]

Mr. Byrne: Statistics on the location of asylum seekers in the UK are linked to the available information on the support that the asylum seeker receives.

As at the end of December 2006, 175 asylum seekers were recorded as receiving asylum support in Northern Ireland. This figure excludes those asylum seekers who are living in Northern Ireland but are not receiving support from IND.

The numbers of asylum seekers in receipt of support from IND, broken down by Government office region and local authority, are published on a quarterly and annual basis. Copies of these publications are available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office Research, Development and Statistics website at http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html. Further breakdowns, of those in receipt of support from IND, by parliamentary constituency are also available from the Library of the House.

British Nationality: Gurkhas

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many former Gurkha soldiers (a) applied for and (b) were given British citizenship in each of the last 10 years. [130611]

Mr. Byrne: This information is not readily available and could be obtained only by examination of individual case records at disproportionate cost.

British Nationality: Nepal

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many Nepalese citizens who had not served in the British Army (a) applied for British citizenship and (b) were granted British citizenship in each of the last 10 years. [130587]

Mr. Byrne: The information is not readily available and could be obtained only by examination of individual case records at disproportionate cost.

Bronzefield Prison: Foreigners

Mr. Wilshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many convicted prisoners who served (a) all and (b) the final part of their sentence at HMP Bronzefield have continued to be detained there pending deportation since the prison opened; [128497]

(2) how many convicted prisoners who have completed their sentences are being held at HMP Bronzefield pending deportation; and on what date each such prisoner's sentence was completed. [128500]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Information that would identify time-served foreign national prisoners generally or at a particular prison is not available except at disproportionate cost.

Crime

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people were (a) arrested, (b) charged, (c) prosecuted, (d) found guilty and (e) given a custodial sentence in cases involving (i) domestic violence, (ii) rape, (iii) violence against the person and (iv) burglary in each police constabulary area in each year between 1997 and 2006. [126078]

Mr. McNulty: Information on arrests for offences of domestic violence and rape is not separately identified within the arrests collection held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform. The collection is based on persons arrested for recorded crime (notifiable offences) by main offence group.

Available information from 1999-2000 to 2004-05 (latest available) on persons arrested for violence against the person and burglary offences by police force area is too large to be included in the answer but I have arranged for a copy of the relevant table to be placed in the Library. Information on arrests for the other offence categories is not centrally held. Information on arrests for 2005-06 will be available later this year.

Information taken from the Court Proceedings Database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform showing the number of defendants proceeded against at magistrates courts, found guilty at all courts, sentenced, and sentenced to immediate custody for violence against the person, burglary and rape, for the years 1997-2005 (latest available), is too large to be included in the answer but I have arranged for a copy of the relevant table to be placed in the Library.

Although prosecutions for domestic violence cannot be separately identified from other offences of assault and violence against the person on the Court Proceedings Database, the CPS holds records of proceedings for domestic violence cases since the full implementation of the Compass Case Management System. The number of prosecutions for domestic violence cases completed in each of the 42 areas of the CPS in 2005 and in 2006, together with the number and the proportion of cases resulting in conviction and in an unsuccessful outcome is too large to be included in the answer but I have arranged for a copy of the relevant table to be placed in the Library.

The year-on-year increase in prosecutions for domestic violence, from 44,244 in 2005 to 56,411 in 2006, is believed to reflect both improved levels of reporting of these offences and improvements in the quality of CPS records.

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what (a) the total number of criminal offences, (b) the total number of criminal offences abolished and (c) the total number of criminal offences created in England and Wales was in each year between 1997 and 2006. [130818]

Mr. McNulty: I refer the right hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Rayleigh (Mr. Francois) on 29 November 2006, Official Report, column 778W.

Crime: Rural Areas

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) burglaries, (b) acts of violence against the person, (c) sexual offences, (d) instances of vehicle crime, (e) instances of property crime and (f) acts of vandalism there were in rural police force areas in each year since 1997. [130974]

Mr. Coaker: The requested information is given in the tables.

Note:
The defining of rural police force areas within England and Wales has been taken in accordance with the ACORN ('A Classification Of Residential Neighbourhoods') guidance as published in the Statistical Bulletin 01/02 'Rural Crime England and Wales'. Of the 13 forces given in the table, ACORN defines four of them as 'Most Rural' (Dyfed-Powys, Lincolnshire, North Yorkshire and North Wales), and nine of them as 'Less Rural' (Cambridgeshire, Cumbria, Devon and Cornwall, Durham, Gloucestershire, Norfolk, Suffolk, West Mercia and Wiltshire).

Notes
1. The data in this table take account of the introduction of the National Crime Recording Standard (NCRS) in April 2002.
2. These figures are not directly comparable with those for earlier years.
3. The Sexual Offences Act 2003, introduced in May 2004, altered the definition and coverage of sexual offences.

Crime: USA

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions his Department had with the police departments of (a) Chicago, (b) New York and (c) Los Angeles on methods of countering street gangs and gang culture. [130055]

Mr. Coaker: The Strategic Criminal Use of Firearms Intelligence review was carried out in 2005 jointly by the Home Office Police Standards Unit (PSU) and the Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO) Criminal Use of Firearms Group. This involved visits to New York, Boston and Washington, and discussions with Police Departments, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

The PSU funded ACPO Criminal Use of Firearms Group also visited Washington to learn about gangs and gang culture in the USA. A representative of the Los Angeles Police Department (LAPD) recently attended an ACPO Criminal Use of Firearms Intelligence Sub-Group meeting in the UK and presented details of the LAPD forensic approach to tackling gun crime involving gangs.

The current Director of the Home Office PSU Police and Crime Standards Directorate is Paul Evans, the former Commissioner of Boston Police, who has extensive experience of dealing with gun crime and gangs in the USA.

The learning from these visits and discussions with law enforcement personnel in other jurisdictions is incorporated into police control strategies.

Crime: Young People

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prosecutions for (a) vehicle theft (b) theft and handling, (c) sexual offences, (d) robbery, (e) racially aggravated offences, (f) breach of public order, (g) (i) domestic and (ii) non-domestic burglary, (h) motoring offences, (i) fraud and forgery, (j) drug offences, (k) (i) death and (ii) injury by reckless driving, (l) criminal damage, (m) breach of (i) statutory order and (ii) bail, (n) arson and (o) violence against the person were brought against young people aged 18 years old and under that resulted in (A) acquittal and (B) conviction in each year since 2001; and if he will make a statement. [126113]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Juveniles are defined in law as being aged 10-17 years of age and are subject to a separate sentencing framework to adults. In the interests of clarity 18 year olds, who are defined as adults, have therefore been excluded from this reply.

Data from the court proceedings database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform for the number of prosecutions, convictions, and acquittals brought against young people aged 17 years and under for the years 2001 to 2005 in England and Wales for parts (a), (b), (c), (d), (e), (f) [for (f) see offence code 125 offence against public order], (g), (h), (i), (k) (i) and (ii), (l), (m) (ii) [for (m) (ii) please refer to offence 83 Failing to surrender to bail] can be found in table(s) A to P, which have been placed in the House Library.

Crimes of Violence

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what definition of common assault the police use for the purposes of arresting people for that offence. [129025]

Mr. McNulty: Common assault is committed when a person either assaults another person or commits a battery. An assault is committed when a person intentionally or recklessly causes another to apprehend the immediate infliction of unlawful force. A battery is committed when a person intentionally and recklessly applies unlawful force to another. The full definition applied by the police is set out in the legal guidance provided by the Crown Prosecution Service and available at:

http://www.cps.gov.uk/legal/section5/chapter_c.html#06.

Crimes of Violence: Halifax

Mrs. Riordan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the violent crime rate is in Halifax; and what it was in 1997. [130396]

Mr. Cooker: The number of offences for Halifax is recorded within the Calderdale Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnership (CDRP). CDRPs were set up under the Crime and Disorder Act 1998.The first period in which the total number of offences was recorded for each CDRP is 2001-02.

The available figures are given in the following table.

Number of violent crimes recorded for Calderdale CDRP, 2001-02 to 2005-06

	2001-02	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06
All offences	25,168	26,044	27,626	20,991	22,118
Violent crime	2,158	3,336	5,168	4,824	5,643
Percentage of all offences which are violent crime	9	13	19	23	26

Notes:
Numbers of recorded crime were affected by changes in reporting and recording following the introduction of the National Crime Recording Standard in April 2002. These data are therefore not comparable with earlier years.
Violent crime comprises violence against the person, sexual offences and robbery.

Custodial Treatment

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) which (a) retailers, (b) shopping centres, (c) town centres and (d) local authorities have expressed an interest in having a short-term holding facility; [130047]

(2) what legal advice in relation to (a) employment and (b) safety in the workplace legislation he has received on the introduction of short-term holding facilities. [130048]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 26 March 2007]: The consultation paper "Modernising Police Powers: Review of the Police and Criminal Evidence Act (PACE) 1984" indicates that any short-term holding facility would be under the supervision of a custody officer. Under PACE, a custody officer is appointed by the chief officer for the force concerned for each designated police station. Therefore, we would anticipate that any facility would be under the control of the chief officer. The British Retail Consortium (BRC) believes that the proposal has merit and could help in the fight against rising levels of retail crime if used appropriately. We have had contact with retail outlets and the consultation exercise is seeking views on the appropriateness, use and process of designation of short-term holding facilities.

Departmental Computers

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to his answer of 4 December 2006, Official Report, column 144W, on departmental computers, how many computers (a) were stolen from his Department in 2006 and (b) have been stolen in 2007. [123694]

Mr. Byrne: In 2006, 19 computers were reported stolen from the Department. This number comprises 17 laptop computers, one PDA and one Blackberry.

Three computers have been reported stolen in 2007 to date. This number comprises two laptop computers and one Blackberry.

Departments: Advertising

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what his Department's total spending was on advertising and promotional campaigns in each year since 1997; and what the cost of each campaign was, broken down by costs relating to (a) television, (b) radio and (c) print media. [128088]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 19 March 2007]: Home Office spending on advertising and promotional campaigns in 2004-05 and 2005-06 is set out in the following table. The cost of providing figures for earlier years would be disproportionate. Figures given are for media costs only and exclude VAT.

Departments: Complaints

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many staff worked in dedicated complaints units in his Department and its Executive agencies in (a) 1997-98, (b) 2001-02 and (c) 2005-06; and how many have done so in 2006-07 to date. [121667]

Mr. Byrne: The Home Office does not have any dedicated complaints units and does not hold any historic information on complaints units.

Departments: Contracts

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what payments his Department has made to Intellect in each of the last five years. [125937]

Mr. Byrne: The core Department including the Immigration and Nationality Department has no record of payments to Intellect. One of the Department's agencies, the Identity and Passport Service, has recorded four transactions totalling £2,255 plus VAT.

Departments: Freedom of Information

Mr. Wills: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate he has made of the cost to his Department of monitoring the time spent processing requests for information under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 for the purposes of the proposed fees regulations. [121717]

Mr. Byrne: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given by the Parliamentary Secretary of the Department for Constitutional Affairs on 22 February 2007, Official Report, column 865W.

Departments: Golden Arrow

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many meetings the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State (Criminal Justice System and Offender Management) has attended with representatives of (a) Golden Arrow and (b) Sovereign Strategy since taking office; and if he will make a statement. [131068]

Mr. Sutcliffe: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Wimbledon (Stephen Hammond) on 27 March 2007, Official Report, column 1443W.

In addition, a review of my ministerial diary has indicated that I have not met with representatives of Sovereign Strategy in my official capacity since I became the Parliamentary Under Secretary of State.

On a general basis, Ministers and civil servants meet many people as part of the process of policy development and advice.

Departments: Logos

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether his Department has commissioned work on logos for (a) a Ministry for Justice and (b) other Home Affairs departments. [126190]

Mr. Byrne: Under the machinery of Government changes announced by the Prime Minister on 29 March, there are no plans currently to change the name or logo of the Home Office. Logos for the Ministry of Justice are a matter for the Department of Constitutional Affairs.

Departments: PFI

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of his Department's budget was taken up by private finance initiative commitments in each of the last 10 years for which information is available; and if he will make a statement. [125198]

Mr. Byrne: This information is not readily available and the cost of obtaining it would be disproportionate.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of his Department's budget will be taken up by private finance initiative commitments in each of the next 10 years assuming that the budget grows in line with the Treasury's estimates for gross domestic product over the period; and if he will make a statement. [125199]

Mr. Byrne: The Department's annual payments for private finance initiatives (PFI's) for the next 10 years are:

	Total (£000)
2006-07	51,658
2007-08	54,003
2008-09	55,932
2009-10	58,160
2010-11	58,024
2011-12	60,534
2012-13	60,975
2013-14	60,515
2014-15	63,076
2015-16	62,087

In relation to forecasting the percentage of the Department's budget to be taken up by PFI's for the next 10 years, HM Treasury has stated the following:

While the Treasury makes assumptions about GDP growth in the following decade, the comprehensive spending review is a fundamental assessment of public spending. It would clearly be inappropriate for Departments to forecast their settlements in advance of the review. Where Departments have already settled, the information is publicly available and accurate projections are in place.

Departments: Pressure Groups

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what meetings took place between Ministers in his Department and outside interest groups between 1 January and 31 March; and what the date was of each such meeting. [131033]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Ministers and civil servants meet many people as part of the process of policy development and advice. It is not normal practice to disclose details of such meetings.

Departments: Public Appointments

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the former hon. Members who left Parliament in 2005 who have since been appointed to public bodies by his Department, broken down by party; and who was responsible for making each appointment. [130143]

Mr. Byrne: No former hon. Members who left Parliament in 2005 have been appointed to Home Office public bodies.

Departments: Surveys

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 20 February 2007, Official Report, column 1505W, on Departments: surveys, if he will place in the Library the results of the monthly staff survey for (a) January and (b) February. [127882]

John Reid: The monthly staff survey is used for internal management information purposes.

There is no plan to place the results in the Library of the House.

Departments: Theft

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what items valued at above £100 were reported as stolen from his Department's buildings or premises in the last 12 months. [121977]

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the value was of items stolen from his Department in 2006. [126077]

Mr. Byrne: The central Home Office and Immigration and Nationality Directorate reported thefts or losses for non-IT property in 2006 to the value of £250 in respect of postal orders.

The recorded number of stolen items of IT property for 2006 is 19. Because Home Office IT assets are supplied under managed service contracts, a specific cost cannot be attributed to each item without incurring disproportionate cost.

The Department has guidelines which should be followed in the event of a theft or loss. All reported thefts or losses are investigated and appropriate action is taken in the light of these investigations.

Departments: Trade Unions

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many meetings (a) he and (b) his Department's Ministers held with trade union representatives in 2006. [128756]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Ministers and civil servants meet many people as part of the process of policy development and advice. It is not normal practice to disclose details of such meetings.

Deportation

Mr. Salmond: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what progress he has made in effecting the deportation of Mr. Aleksandr Latsinnek since the Minister's letter to the hon. Member for Banff and Buchan of 21 December 2006; and if he will make a statement. [126020]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 8 March 2007]: It is not our policy to comment on individual cases.

Deportation: Democratic Republic of Congo

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps his Department is taking to monitor the treatment of returned asylum seekers deported from the UK in the Democratic Republic of Congo; and if he will make a statement. [127847]

Mr. Byrne: We would not return people to a country where they had established that they were at real risk of ill-treatment on return and thus were in need of international protection. If specific allegations are made that any returnee has experienced ill-treatment on return from the UK, then these will be followed up through the FCO.

Deportation: Equatorial Guinea

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether Equatorial Guinea is deemed a safe country to which to return failed asylum seekers; and if he will make a statement. [124693]

Mr. Byrne: We continuously monitor the political and human rights situation in all asylum intake countries including Equatorial Guinea through key governmental, non-governmental and other human rights organisations. Asylum decision-makers take into account the situation in the country of origin as it affects each asylum applicant when making a decision on an asylum claim. Individual claimants who have been found by both the Home Office and the Independent Appeals Process not to be in need of protection are expected to leave the UK.

If they do not leave voluntarily, they may have their return enforced.

Deportation: Zimbabwe

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions he has had in 2007 regarding a change in status for enforcement of deportation to Zimbabwe; and if he will make a statement. [129340]

Mr. Byrne: We are not currently enforcing removals to Zimbabwe pending the resolution of a test case relating to such removals. On 6 March the Court of Appeal found that, in reaching its determination that the enforced return of failed asylum-seekers to Zimbabwe does not put them at risk of mistreatment, the Asylum and Immigration Tribunal did not fully consider material parts of the evidence of two of the witnesses in this case and has asked the tribunal to look at that evidence again. We continue to expect those found by the asylum decision making and independent appeals process not to need international protection to return to Zimbabwe voluntarily.

Dispersal Orders: Cleveland

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many dispersal orders were issued in each basic command unit covered by Cleveland police in each of the last three years. [130895]

Mr. McNulty: The numbers of dispersal orders made in the Cleveland police force area for the last three years is as follows:

	Number of dispersal orders
2004	1
2005	4
2006	5

Information is not collected centrally for which basic command unit these orders originated from.

Domestic Violence

Lynda Waltho: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many domestic violence offenders have completed community rehabilitation orders without having (a) started and (b) completed the Integrated Domestic Abuse Programme that was a condition of their sentence. [128838]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many reported incidents of domestic abuse there were in (a) Hartlepool constituency, (b) Tees Valley sub-region, (c) the North East region and (d) the UK in each of the last 10 years. [130901]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Data for the number of reported incidents of domestic violence in the police force areas covering the North East region are available from 2001-02 (see table). Data for Cleveland are only available from 2003-04. Data are not available for Hartlepool constituency, the Tees Valley sub-region and England and Wales as a whole.

Domestic Violence: Greater London

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many cases of domestic violence against (a) men, (b) women and (c) children were reported in each London borough in each of the last seven years. [130744]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not centrally available.

Driving Offences

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many drivers were found guilty of driving (a) without insurance and (b) without a valid driving licence in each police force area in each of the last five years; and what the average penalty imposed in each police force was for such an offence in each year. [130046]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 26 March 2007]: Available information taken from the Court Proceedings Database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform, from 2000 to 2004 (latest available) is provided in the tables.

2005 data will be available later this year.

[2] As from 1 June 2003, 'driving a motor vehicle while uninsured against third party risks' became a fixed penalty offence.
Note:
1. It is known that for some police force areas, the reporting of court proceedings in particular those relating to summary motoring offences, may be less than complete. Work is underway to ensure that the magistrates courts' case management system currently being implemented by the Department for Constitutional Affairs reports all motoring offences to the Office for Criminal Justice Reform. This will enable more complete figures to be disseminated.
2. Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when these data are used.

John Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many drivers were prosecuted for driving without insurance in each year since 1990. [131123]

Mr. Coaker: Information on proceedings for 'using motor vehicle uninsured against third party risks' can be found in the annual Home Office publication "Offences relating to motor vehicles, England and Wales, Supplementary tables" (latest available covers 2004). Copies are available in the Library. The publication is available on the Research Development and Statistics (RDS) website.

The link to the publication on the main website is:

2005 data will be available later this year.

Driving Under Influence

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the (a) maximum, (b) minimum and (c) average penalty imposed for the offence of drink driving in each police authority was in the most recent year for which figures are available. [128918]

Mr. Coaker: Available information taken from the court proceedings database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform, for 2004 (latest available) is given in the following table.

Data for 2005 will be available later in the year.

Drugs: Bridgend

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many people were convicted of drug offences in Bridgend in each of the last five years; [127640]

(2) how many people in Bridgend were prosecuted for drug dealing in the last 12 months; and how many of those prosecutions arose as a result of Operation Crackdown. [127641]

Mr. Coaker: Data on persons found guilty for drug offences under the Misuse of Drugs ACT 1971 at Bridgend courts from 2001 up to and including 2005 are given in the table.

21 people were found guilty under the act for drug dealing offences in Bridgend in 2005. It is not centrally possible to determine which of these were as the result of Operation Crackdown.

Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts, police forces and other agencies. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Drugs: Rehabilitation Centres

Mr. Malins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many beds exist in drug residential rehabilitation centres; how many such places are occupied by convicted offenders; and if he will provide increased funding for such beds. [130344]

Mr. Coaker: Nationally, there are around 120 drug and alcohol residential rehabilitation services in the community with approximately 3,000 bed spaces.

Offenders can access residential drug treatment as part of a Community Order with a Drug Rehabilitation Requirement (DRR)/Drug Treatment and Testing Order (DTTO) or post-custodial licence, where assessed as suitable on an individual basis by a qualified professional. Figures relating to the number of these beds which are occupied by convicted defendants are not held centrally.

The main source of funding for treatment is the Pooled Treatment Budget for substance misuse (PTB). The national PTB for 2006-07 is £385 million. This is 28 per cent. more than the previous year. The PTB in 2007-08 will be a record £398 million which will be nearly three times greater than the original PTB created in 2001-02 (£142 million). Additionally, in February 2007, the Government allocated £54 million for the development of in-patient and residential rehabilitation substance.

Mr. Malins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will increase the number of beds in residential drug rehabilitation centres. [130346]

Caroline Flint: I have been asked to reply.

The Department of Health announced the allocation of £54.3 million to support increases in the capacity and improved outcomes for residential and in-patient drug and alcohol services on 23 February 2007.

£16,757,700 is recommended for spend within the residential rehabilitation sector providing an additional 142 units of residential rehabilitation provision plus improved service quality through refurbishments and improved access for disabled users and families.

Drugs: Testing

Mr. Malins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will introduce (a) mandatory daily drug testing and (b) random drug testing for those defendants subject to a drug rehabilitation requirement under the Criminal Justice Act 2003. [130345]

Mr. Sutcliffe: There is already provision under section 209(1)(b) of the Criminal Justice Act 2003 for the drug testing of offenders subject to a drug rehabilitation requirement of a community order or suspended sentence order.

The frequency of testing, which we consider to be cost effective, is prescribed within National Standards: 2005 which require that:

'Offenders must be tested (and the results recorded) at least twice per week during the first 16 weeks of the requirement, which may be reduced to once per week thereafter if the offender manager evidences that sufficient progress has been made. Where an offender is at the lowest level of the community sentence band drug testing should be at a minimum frequency, of once per week during the first 16 weeks of the requirement. In addition, where an offender is in residential rehabilitation drug testing may be at a minimum frequency of once per week for the first 16 weeks of the requirement.'

Electronic Tagging

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many crimes were committed in each of the last five years by offenders wearing electronic tags; and if he will make a statement. [124142]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Over 137,000 offenders have been released on the Home Detention Curfew scheme from its inception in January 1999 to the end of February 2007.

The following table sets out the number of offenders, who have been cautioned, convicted or are awaiting prosecution for offences while they were subject to the home detention curfew scheme, as currently notified to the National Offender Management Service. It also gives a breakdown of the number of offences committed.

	Number of offenders cautioned, convicted or awaiting prosecution for an offence committed while they were subject to the home detention curfew scheme	Total number of offences committed, or allegedly committed by the offenders
1999	71	131
1999-2000	294	595
2000-01	244	392
2001-02	208	392
2002-03	584	1,071
2003-04	298	2,272
2004-05	1,311	2,155
2005-06	1,214	1,982

Some of those awaiting prosecution will be acquitted or have their charges dropped.

Information on further convictions for offenders subject to other electronic monitoring schemes apart from home detention curfew is not held centrally.

Entry Clearances

Clare Short: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when Yousef Ahmedali HO ref: A1142900, a constituent of the right hon. Member for Birmingham, Ladywood, will receive notice of a decision on his case. [124884]

Mr. Byrne: The immigration and nationality directorate wrote to my hon. Friend on 15 March with the information requested.

Female Genital Mutilation

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessments he has (a) made and (b) published on the effectiveness of the Female Genital Mutilation Act 2003 since the Act was passed. [130521]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Anecdotal evidence suggests that the Female Genital Mutilation Act 2003 has had some deterrent effect, but this is not something that can be measured. There have so far been no prosecutions under the Act but educating communities to abandon the practice is the best way forward to break the cycle of mutilation and the Act is being widely used for that purpose.

Firearms: Crime

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many gun crimes were committed in each of the last 10 years with (a) legally registered weapons and (b) illegally held weapons. [125072]

Mr. McNulty: The requested data are not in a form suitable for publication.

Firearms: Licensing

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether the Police Firearms Licensing Management System is (a) on time and (b) on budget. [130830]

John Reid: The introduction of the National Firearms Licensing Management System (NFLMS) to all 43 forces in England and Wales was completed ahead of schedule on 26 March 2007.

The PNC link between NFLMS and PNC will be switched on as soon as forces have had an opportunity to complete the necessary data cleansing exercise identified during earlier pilots.

The budget allocated to NFLMS for the financial year ending 31 March 2007 was £2.5 million and included development costs, support to forces for data cleansing and capital recharges.

Expenditure to date (from 1 April 2006 to 30 March 2007) before accruals (invoices not yet received for work already carried out) is approximately £2.3 million.

Fraud: Credit Cards

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps he is taking to reduce the risk of credit card fraud. [130893]

Mr. Coaker: The Government are determined to tackle the problem of fraud, whether the victim is a multi-million pound organisation or a single individual and work closely with business and the police to introduce ways of preventing fraud. Recently published figures from APACS (the UK Payments Association) show that losses from plastic card fraud fell by 3 per cent. in 2006 compared with 2005.

A great deal of fraud can be prevented if organisations have proper fraud prevention measures in place and if individuals protect their cards and financial details. Prevention initiatives complement fraud investigation and prosecution. The Home Office therefore supports fraud prevention initiatives being introduced by the finance and retail sectors including Chip and PIN and other technical solutions.

The Home Office provides extra funds to the City of London Police to expand its economic crime department. In addition to taking on a lead force role for tackling fraud across London and the South East the force hosts Operation Halo, the National Cheque and Plastic Card intelligence database. Dedicated officers link up with financial service industry and other police forces. This ensures that intelligence is analysed and assessed in quick time, allowing operational action to be taken.

The Government publish fraud prevention advice on the Home Office and Consumer Direct websites and the Home Office maintains two websites to combat fraud. The 'e-tailing mini site' forms part of the crime reduction website and provides information to help both consumers and businesses protect themselves when buying and selling over the internet. The fraud mini site which is also part of the crime reduction website deals with fraud more generally and provides information for police and crime reduction practitioners, for businesses and for consumers. The Home Office has also published (jointly with the banking industry) a card fraud prevention leaflet that contains useful advice for members of the public. The leaflet was distributed to Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnerships and Crime Prevention Officers in all police forces in England and Wales. The leaflet is also available on the Home Office website.

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many cases of credit card fraud were committed in (a) Hartlepool constituency and (b) Tees Valley sub-region in each of the last 10 years. [130894]

Mr. Coaker: The available information relates to crimes recorded by the police in the Hartlepool Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnership (CDRP). At this level, figures for cheque and credit card fraud are available from 2001-02.

The available figures are given in the following table.

Statistics for the Tees Valley sub-region are not available.

Highly Skilled Migrant Programme: Medicine

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Health on international medical graduates who entered the United Kingdom as part of the Highly Skilled Migrants Programme; and if he will make a statement. [126408]

Mr. Byrne: The Home Secretary has regular discussions with the Secretary of State for Health about immigration and other issues.

Homicide

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps he is taking to tackle honour killings. [130207]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Police Standards Unit in the Home Office has been working closely with the Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO) and National Centre for Policing Excellence (NCPE) to raise the awareness of police officers and staff in relation to the identification and investigation of honour related violence, and developed a risk assessment toolkit for domestic violence incidents which includes the presence of factors in relation of honour crimes. Guidance on Investigating Domestic Violence, produced on behalf of ACPO and CENTREX, the national police training provider, in 2004, contains guidance on investigating cases that may be committed in the name of honour. In October and November 2006 the Attorney-General and Baroness Scotland jointly hosted two seminars on honour killings with community leaders. The Government will shortly be re-launching the national Honour-Based Violence/Forced Marriage Working Group, to bring together a wide range of statutory agencies, Government Departments and NGOs.

Internationally, the UK and Turkey jointly presented the 2004 UN General Assembly Resolution on Working Towards the Elimination of Crimes Against Women and Girls in the Name of Honour.

Human Trafficking

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 5 March 2007, Official Report, columns 1751-52W, on human trafficking, how many of those charged with offences relating to the trafficking of people in 2005 were (a) convicted and (b) foreign nationals. [127380]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 15 March 2007]: Information on charging and the outcome of charging is not held within the Office for Criminal Justice Reform.

From data on the court proceedings database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform, the following table shows the number of persons proceeded against at magistrates courts and found guilty at all courts for various offences relating to trafficking of people in England and Wales, 2005.

These data are not related to data previously provided by the Crown Prosecution Services (CPS) for PQ 122478 answered 5 March 2007, Official Report, columns 1751-52W. The court proceedings database does not hold data on the nationality of the defendant.

The figures previously provided in PQ 122478 refer to the number of offences charged that reach a first hearing. This is different from the number of persons proceeded against and is based on the principal offence only. Hence CPS figures for charging will be higher than our figures for proceeded against, and found guilty.

The CPS does not hold any information on the outcome of proceedings at specific offence level, only a count of the number of offences falling under specific acts and sections of Acts.

CPS systems do not include an analysis of the nationality of defendants.

[3] Prosecutions are counted by date of final outcome in the magistrates court. Guilty figures are counted by the date of sentence in both magistrates courts and Crown Courts. Hence guilty figures can exceed prosecutions where they reflect cases of people being found guilty in the magistrates court and committed for sentence to the Crown Court, the two events being counted in two different years.

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will bring forward proposals to establish a UK Commissioner on Human Trafficking. [127927]

Mr. Coaker: We recognise the need for a more formalised identification and referral procedure and a referral mechanism will be developed as part of the implementation of the Council of Europe Convention. Further consideration will need to be given as to the most suitable structure and agency for operating this process. The model adopted will take into account existing best practice and the need to tailor any system to suit the national circumstances of the United Kingdom.

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many beds are provided by the Poppy Project; and what the percentage occupancy figures were for these beds in each of the last six months. [128518]

Mr. Coaker: The Government fund the Poppy project to provide an outreach service and 35 bed-spaces, of which 25 are crisis intensive support places and 10 are resettlement places. Women who apply for asylum continue to be supported by the Poppy project but are accommodated by the National Asylum Support Service. This helps to free crisis spaces for new referrals.

Additionally, there are a number of independently funded voluntary organisations that are able to accommodate and support victims of human trafficking for sexual exploitation.

The Government published a UK Action Plan on Tackling Human Trafficking on 23 March 2007. This outlines a range of measures to help improve the identification and referral of victims.

The table details the bed-space occupancy figures for the Poppy project in the last six months.

Percentage of Poppy project bed-spaces occupied in the last six months

	Percentage of bed-spaces occupied (out of 35)
September 2006	42
October 2006	49
November 2006	49
December 2006	37
January 2007	40
February 2007	51

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the Minister expects the UK to ratify the Council of Europe Convention against Trafficking in Human Beings. [130320]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 27 March 2007]: The Home Secretary signed the Council of Europe Convention on 26 March and we are now beginning to develop details on how implementation will be taken forward.

It will inevitably take some time to move from signature to ratification of the Convention. Unlike some of our Council of Europe colleagues the UK will not ratify the Convention until all changes to domestic legislation, processes and guidance are in place to ensure that we fully comply with its terms.

Human Trafficking: Wales

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate he has made of the number of people trafficked into Wales in each of the last three years; and if he will make a statement. [127928]

Mr. Coaker: We are not fully aware of the extent and nature of trafficking into the United Kingdom.

Home Office research suggests that in 2003 in the United Kingdom there were approximately 4,000 women who were victims of human trafficking for the purposes of sexual exploitation. There are no available regionalised figures, however the initial findings from Operation Pentameter suggest that the problem is not confined solely to England as the recent case at Cardiff Crown indicates.

As stated in the UK's Action Plan on tackling Human Trafficking, copies of which I have placed in the Library of the House, we intend to carry out further research to establish the scale and extent of the problem within our borders in relation to trafficking both for sexual and non-sexual purposes.

Hunting: Yorkshire and Humberside

Mrs. Riordan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many hunts in Yorkshire have been prosecuted for breaking the law since the hunting with dogs ban was introduced. [130407]

Mr. McNulty: The Hunting Act 2004 came into effect on 18 February 2005.

Data from the court proceedings database held by the Office for Criminal Justice reform show that there were no prosecutions in Yorkshire police force area for hunting a wild mammal with a dog under the Hunting Act 2004 Sections 1 and 6.

Identity Cards

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to his answer of 7 February 2007, Official Report, column 987W, on identity cards, what charges will be made for verification through the Employer Verification Service; and what the features will be of the proposed enhanced service. [127881]

John Reid: Employers are not being charged for the Employer Verification Service during the initial development period.

We are engaging with organisations in the piloting of the service. Through this activity, and through planned market research, we will identify what enhancements employers would like to see from any future services and what would benefit them. We will continue to keep this matter under review.

Identity Cards: Newspaper Press

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department to how many local papers Ministers in his Department have written on identity cards; and at what cost. [129659]

Joan Ryan: I, or Ministerial colleagues, have written 56 letters to local newspapers since 14 November 2006, including letters that may have been printed in more than one local publication that forms part of a larger newspaper group. These letters have clarified the Government's proposals for introducing interviews for first-time passport applicants together with the plans for the National Identity Scheme, including identity cards. They have been in response to a number of local press articles or letters to the newspapers' editors. The cost has not been separately identified as it forms part of our routine work.

Illegal Immigrants

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many individuals were taken into police custody in England and Wales suspected of being illegal immigrants during January 2007. [123961]

Mr. Byrne: The information requested regarding the immigration status of all those arrested is not collated centrally by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform. Records are not broken down by police force and therefore an answer to this question could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Illegal Immigrants: Northern Ireland

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent estimate he has made of the number of people who are living in Northern Ireland illegally; how many were so living in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement on the steps being taken by his Department to reduce the number. [125063]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 2 March 2007]: As my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary set out in his evidence to the Home Affairs Select Committee on 23 May 2006, no Government have been able to produce an accurate figure for the number of people who are in the United Kingdom, including Northern Ireland, illegally, and that remains the case.

Illegal Immigrants: Prostitution

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate he has made of the number of female illegal immigrants being forced to work in the sex industry in (a) England and (b) Lancashire. [127099]

Mr. Coaker: Given the nature of problem it is difficult to estimate the extent and scale to which this crime takes place into, and within, the UK.

Home Office research suggests that in 2003 in the United Kingdom there were approximately 4,000 women who were victims of human trafficking for the purposes of sexual exploitation. Of these it is not known how many entered the UK illegally but intelligence suggests that many victims of trafficking for sexual exploitation enter the country legally. There are no available regionalised figures. However, the initial findings from Operation Pentameter suggest that the problem is not confined to solely the major conurbations.

As stated in the UK's Action Plan on Tackling Human Trafficking, copies of which I have placed in the Library of the House, we intend to carry out further research to establish the scale and extent of the problem within our borders.

Immigrants: Detention Centres

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many children of failed asylum applicants are held in immigration detention centres; and what the equivalent figure was for (a) March 2006 and (b) March 2005. [129794]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 22 March 2007]: Statistics are published showing the number of people detained solely under Immigration Act powers on the last Saturday of each quarter.

As at 26 March 2005, there were 40 asylum applicants, including dependants, recorded as being under 18, detained solely under Immigration Act powers. As at 25 March 2006, there were 50 asylum applicants, including dependants, recorded as being under 18, detained solely under Immigration Act powers. These figures are rounded to the nearest five.

The number of children detained with their families solely under Immigration Act powers will change from day to day. However, internal management information shows that, as at 22 March 2007 there were 67 minors detained with their families solely under Immigration Act powers. This figure includes asylum applicants and non-asylum cases. This figure does not constitute part of National Statistics as it is based on management information. This information has not been quality assured under National Statistics protocols and should be treated as provisional.

It is not possible to identify, within three figures, which stage of the asylum process a person has reached when detained; this information would be available by examination of individual records only at disproportionate cost. The decision to detain is made on a case by case basis and may be appropriate in one or more of the following circumstances: to effect removal; while a person's identity and basis of claim are established; where a person presents a risk of absconding or where an asylum application is capable of being decided quickly.

Minors are detained only in two limited circumstances: first, as part of a family group whose detention is considered appropriate; second, when unaccompanied, while alternative care arrangements are made and normally just overnight. While the detention of families with children is very regrettable, it nevertheless remains necessary in appropriate cases in order to maintain an effective immigration control and to tackle abuses of the asylum system.

Information on the number of persons detained solely under Immigration Act powers is published in the Quarterly Asylum Bulletins, on the Home Office's Research, Development and Statistics website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html.

Immigrants: Employment

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions he has had with the Treasury on allowing immigrants the right to work while awaiting a decision on their immigration status. [128730]

Mr. Byrne: There have been no discussions with the Treasury about allowing those awaiting a decision on their immigration or asylum applications to work.

Immigrants: Wales

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people suspected of being in the United Kingdom illegally have been taken into custody by each of the police forces in Wales since April 2006. [123875]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 27 February 2007]: The information requested regarding the immigration status of all those arrested is not collated centrally by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform. Records are not broken down by police force and therefore an answer to this question could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many persons taken into custody by the police forces in Wales as suspected illegal immigrants have been released on Immigration Service instructions and failed to report to the destination indicated by the immigration services since April 2006. [123877]

Mr. Byrne: Current management information systems cannot provide comprehensive information: this is made more difficult if an unverifiable identity is given at the time of arrest.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) when (a) he and (b) officials in his Department were first made aware of the case of the five men in North Wales whom the Immigration and Nationality Directorate office in Liverpool instructed to be released; and what actions he took in consequence; [123879]

(2) whether the five individuals apprehended by North Wales Police and then released on Immigration and Nationality Directorate instructions to attend the Liverpool offices reported to those offices or any other immigration facility. [123876]

Mr. Byrne [holding answers 27 February 2007]: I wrote to the chief constable of North Wales on 9 March about the incident and have asked the heads of Enforcement and Removals to meet with him to discuss arrangements between the Border and Immigration Agency and North Wales Police and discuss how the response to such events can be strengthened. This meeting is scheduled to take place later in the month.

The recently published enforcement strategy "Enforcing the Rules" also announced an increase in resources to position enforcement officers in a number of police centres around the UK to help improve how these referrals are handled.

Immigration

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when a decision will be taken on the immigration status of Hussein Mohammed Abdillahi, reference A572376. [102486]

Mr. Byrne: I wrote to the hon. Member on 3 April 2007.

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he plans to introduce each tier of the points-based system for managed migration. [126439]

John Reid: The points-based system will be introduced in line with the dates already announced in the IND review, i.e. April 2008 for highly skilled migrants (referred to as Tier 1) and April 2009 for other tiers applying to skilled workers, students, youth mobility and temporary workers.

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he expects to determine the application of Tahsin Taha Mohammad Ali (reference A1148096) for indefinite leave to remain in the UK. [128996]

Mr. Byrne: The Immigration and Nationality Directorate wrote to my hon. Friend on 22 March 2007 explaining the details in this case.

Immigration and Nationality Directorate

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many people applied for compensation from the immigration and nationality directorate in each of the last five years for which figures are available; and in how many cases compensation was paid consequently; [112232]

(2) how many applications from individuals for compensation from the immigration and nationality directorate are under consideration; [112233]

(3) how many compensation payments of (a) less than £500, (b) between £501 and £1,000, (c) between £1,001 and £2,000 and (d) more than £2,000 were paid by the immigration and nationality directorate in the most recent year for which figures are available. [112234]

Mr. Byrne: I wrote to the hon. Member with the available information and with apologies for the delay in providing this on 20 March.

Immigration Cases

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether his Department has forwarded to the Foreign and Commonwealth Office the decisions of the Immigration Judge on 23 May and of the Tribunal on 18 August (reference OA/17132/2005) in the case of Mr. W. G. of Pakistan, husband of Mrs. A. M. of Aylesbury; and if he will make a statement. [107367]

Mr. Byrne: I wrote to the hon. Member on 3 April 2007.

Immigration Controls

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many mobile telephone numbers of people given temporary leave to remain were held by his Department as of 28 February. [127286]

Mr. Byrne: In order to make it easier for people who come here legally to comply with the rules, IND plans to increase the level of proactive contact with individuals with limited leave to come to Britain, for example by using proactive phone calls and text messaging to people whose visas are about to expire.

We will be able to use both fixed and mobile phone numbers to send text messages to individuals and initial data retrieval indicates that we have around 200,000 telephone numbers for people given temporary leave to remain.

In relation to failed asylum seekers, the New Asylum Model (NAM) involves an assigned IND caseworker having daily/weekly contact with asylum applicants either in person or over the telephone. This vigorous contact management approach will ensure that regular contact is maintained with the asylum applicant throughout the whole asylum process.

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many mobile telephone numbers of failed asylum seekers were held by his Department as of 28 February. [127287]

Mr. Byrne: In relation to failed asylum seekers, the New Asylum Model (NAM) involves an assigned IND caseworker having daily/weekly contact with asylum applicants either in person or over the telephone. This vigorous contact management approach will ensure that regular contact is maintained with the asylum applicant throughout the whole asylum process.

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which organisations he consulted before setting up the Employers' Task Force on the points based system of immigration control. [128527]

Mr. Byrne: Prior to establishing the Employer Taskforce we consulted with the Confederation for British Industry, British Chamber of Commerce, Federation of Small Businesses, Recruitment and Employment Confederation, the DTI and the Treasury on the membership of the Taskforce. Based on their advice, membership has been drawn from a cross section of employers, both large and small, who employ migrant workers, have an interest in working in partnership with the Home Office to shape migration policy and who can represent the interests of all employers.

Membership is regularly reviewed and supplemented with bilateral and other meetings with interested bodies.

Immigration Controls: Fishguard

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) on which occasions since 2005 officials from the Immigration and Nationality Directorate have carried out checks at the ports of (a) Fishguard and (b) Pembroke Dock. [125264]

(2) how many Immigration and Nationality Directorate personnel are located at the ports of (a) Fishguard and (b) Pembroke Dock. [125269]

Mr. Byrne [holding answers 5 March 2007]: This information cannot be disclosed as this could provide information of value to those seeking to circumvent immigration controls, thereby prejudicing the prevention and detection of immigration offences.

Immigration Controls: Irish Republic

Mr. Walter: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) on what date he was informed by the Irish Government of the suspension of the provisions of the Common Travel Area at Irish airports; [128864]

(2) what representations he has made to the Irish Government on (a) the suspension of the provisions of the Common Travel Area at Irish airports and (b) the systematic requests made by the Irish authorities of passengers arriving at Irish airports from the United Kingdom, the Isle of Man and the Channel Islands to produce passports; [128865]

(3) how many people entering the United Kingdom from the Irish Republic in 2006 by (a) land, (b) sea and (c) air were asked to produce passports or other identity documents. [128784]

Mr. Byrne [holding answers 21 March 2007]: As the Common Travel Area (CTA) is not the result of a treaty or law, it is subject to change (by either side) without negotiation. UK Home Office officials were made aware, in advance, of the introduction of ID checks at Irish airports from 28 June 1997.

The police service, who carry out selective enforcement and security operations on people entering the United Kingdom from the Irish Republic, retain no central records of the volume of passengers asked to show travel documents.

UK and Irish officials regularly meet to discuss practical arrangements within the Common Travel Area and any proposed changes to these arrangements by either side.

Immigration: Detention Centres

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the reasons are for differences in the average cost of detaining individuals for one week in different immigration and removal centres. [127211]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 13 March 2007]: The difference in the average cost of detaining an individual in different immigration removal centres reflects the differences between the centres, and the market-place at the time of tender. The key differences between the centres are the design, age and location of the buildings and the specific services and facilities that the centres provide.

Immigration: India

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many Indian nationals have been detained at Oakington removal centre in the last 12 months; what the longest period of detention is of one of those nationals; how many Indian nationals have been detained for longer than (a) six months and (b) three months; and if he will make a statement. [124145]

Mr. Byrne: The accompanying table shows the number of Indian nationals detained in Oakington Reception Centre solely under Immigration Act powers as at the last Saturday of the first three quarters of 2006, broken down by length of detention. Information relating to persons detained as at 30 December 2006 broken down by length of detention is not available due to a change in the system in which detention information is collected.

Information on the number of persons recorded as leaving Oakington Reception Centre solely under Immigration Act powers, which would provide details on the longest period of detention, is not available. Oakington data are centrally recorded only on one day per week. This enables snapshots of statistics for Oakington to be published but is not sufficient for published statistics relating to persons leaving detention solely under Immigration Act powers.

Information on the number of persons detained solely under Immigration Act powers is published in the Quarterly Asylum Bulletins, on the Home Office's Research, Development and Statistics website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html

Note:
n/a = Figures not available.

Immigration: Manpower

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many full-time equivalent staff are employed by his Department and its agencies as immigration officers at (a) Bristol International airport, (b) Shoreham (Brighton city airport), (c) Leeds Bradford airport, (d) Bournemouth airport, (e) Blackpool airport, (f) Birmingham International airport, (g) Aberdeen airport, (h) Belfast George Best city airport and (i) Belfast International airport. [124510]

Mr. Byrne: This information cannot be disclosed as this could provide information of value to those seeking to circumvent immigration controls, thereby prejudicing the prevention and detection of immigration offences.

Lancashire Police: Special Constables

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many special constables were recruited by the Lancashire police force in each of the last five years. [130734]

Mr. McNulty: The available data are given in the table.

Special constables (headcount) recruited[1] by police force from 2002-03 to 2005-06[2]

Lancashire	Number of special constables
2002-03	74
2003-04	70
2004-05	63
2005-06	92

[1] Recruits include those specials joining as direct recruits to the constabulary, and exclude transfers and rejoiners.
[2] Financial year runs 1 April to 31 March inclusive. Data are not available prior to 2002-03.

Leyhill Prison

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps he has taken to apprehend escaped prisoners from Leyhill open prison; how many prisoners are still at large; and what offences they are guilty of. [131083]

Mr. Sutcliffe: When a prisoner absconds from an open prison, the police are informed immediately. Their apprehension is then a police matter. The following table sets out the number of prisoners who are still unlawfully at large after absconding, during the last five financial years. Offence details could be provided at disproportionate cost only.

Number of prisoners unlawfully at large after absconding, 2002-2007

[1] Data accurate as of 2 April 2007

Members: Correspondence

Clare Short: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he will reply to the letter dated 7 February from the right hon. Member for Birmingham, Ladywood on the briefing on the arrests made in Birmingham of nine young men for terrorist offences. [124763]

Mr. McNulty: I refer my right hon. Friend, the Member for Birmingham, Ladywood, to my right hon. Friend, the Home Secretary's letter of 19 March 2007.

Migrant Workers

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many self-employed migrant workers there are in (a) Wales, (b) England, (c) Scotland and (d) Northern Ireland. [126829]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 12 March 2007]: This information is not available.

Miscarriages of Justice: Compensation

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department for what reasons, and on what legal basis, the revised fee structure for the Independent Assessor of compensation for miscarriages of justice was implemented on 26 July 2006; and who (a) designed and (b) authorised the revised fee structure. [131057]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The legal basis for the payment of fees to the Assessor is set out in Schedule 12 and section 133 of the Criminal Justice Act 1988.

The fee structure implemented on 26 July 2006 took account of the increase in the complexity of cases and the requirement, following the Court of Appeal judgment in Mickey and O'Brien, for the Assessor to provide a more detailed breakdown of the elements of his assessment. The new fee structure was proposed by officials following discussion with the Assessor. It was authorised by the Home Secretary on 5 July 2006.

Due to an oversight, formal Treasury approval for the revised fee structure was not given until 15 February 2007. This oversight, which is regretted, has been brought to the attention of the Home Office accounting officer

Money Laundering

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will undertake a review of the capability of the Suspicious Activity Report regime; and if he will make a statement. [131612]

Mr. Coaker: At the request of the Government, Sir Stephen Lander, Chairman of the Serious Organised Crime Agency (SOCA), carried out a comprehensive review of the Suspicious Activity Report regime in 2005-06. The report, which was completed after extensive consultation with public and private sector stakeholders, was published in April 2006. A copy is available on SOCA's website. The report made 24 recommendations.

21 of the recommendations have been delivered and the remainder are on track to be implemented. An annual report on the regime's functioning, covering October 2006 to October 2007, will be published in the autumn.

Motoring Offences

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) males and (b) females were convicted of motoring offences in (i) Tamworth, (ii) Staffordshire and (iii) England and Wales in the most recent year for which information is available, broken down by offence. [129994]

Mr. McNulty: Data from the court proceedings database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform on the number of males and females found guilty at all courts for motoring offences in Staffordshire police force area and England and Wales in 2005 can be found in the following table. It is not possible to identify those found guilty in Tamworth, as the data are not collected at this level of detail

Court proceedings data for 2006 will be available in the autumn of 2007.

[1] These data are on the principal offence basis.
[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

National Crime Intelligence Service: National Crime Squad

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much and what percentage of their budget each police force in England and Wales contributed to (a) the National Criminal Intelligence Service and (b) the National Crime Squad in each year since 1998. [130189]

Mr. McNulty: The National Criminal Intelligence Service (NCIS) and the National Crime Squad (NCS) were funded by a levy on police forces until 1 April 2002. On average, forces contributed about 1.75 per cent. of their budgets to fund the two bodies.

From 1 April 2002, NCS and NCIS were financed primarily by grant in aid from the Home Office, and individual forces no longer contributed.

Naturalisation Test

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate he has made of the percentage of British citizens who could pass the Life in the UK naturalisation test. [130017]

John Reid: No such estimate has been made.

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what consultations were carried out on the (a) content and (b) method of the Life in the UK naturalisation test. [130019]

John Reid: The questions for the Life in the UK test are based on "Life in the United Kingdom: A Journey to Citizenship", the second edition of which has just been published. Advice on the content of the test was taken from the Advisory Board on Naturalisation and Integration (ABNI), the members of which were selected on the basis of open competition. ABNI, together with educational experts and information technology experts, were also consulted about the testing method.

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the subject matters which are included within the Life in the UK naturalisation test. [130037]

John Reid: As from 2 April the Life in the UK Test will be based on chapters two to six of the publication "Life in the United Kingdom: A Journey to Citizenship" (second edition).

For a period of three months after 2 April facilities will be made available for people who studied the first edition of "Life in the United Kingdom" to take a Life in the UK Test based on that edition.

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether the questions for the Life in the UK naturalisation test were tested on British citizens. [130039]

John Reid: The Life in the UK Test was piloted in June 2005 at eight test centres. Candidates included long-term and more recent migrants as well as some British citizens. 25 per cent. of the total number of participants were British citizens.

Oakhill Secure Training Centre

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 19 February 2007, Official Report, column 120W, on Oakhill Secure Training Centre, how many members of staff have resigned since January 2005. [122841]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 23 February 2007]: Between 1 January 2005 and 31 January 2007, 224 members of staff resigned. These figures have been supplied by the Youth Justice Board and relate to employees of the contractor, G4S Justice Services. They do not include those employed by sub-contractors, for example providing health care or education services.

G4S recognises that this is a high number of resignations. It is in part attributable to the particular employment conditions in Milton Keynes, where Oakhill is located. The Youth Justice Board and G4S are working on an action plan to address performance issues identified by the Commission for Social Care Inspection. This should help promote stability and reduce the number of staff leaving the centre.

Offenders: Deportation

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many foreign national prisoners were served with formal notice warning of liability to deportation (IM3 form) in each year since 2001; how many of these prisoners were released into the care of his Department at the end of remand or sentence; and how many were released into the community. [130401]

Mr. Byrne: The requested information is not available and could be obtained only by the detailed examination of individual case records at disproportionate cost.

On 19 February the director general of the immigration and nationality directorate wrote to the Home Affairs Committee to provide the most recent information available on the deportation of foreign national prisoners. A copy of this letter is available from the Library of the House.

Offenders: Rehabilitation

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate he has made of the weekly cost of (a) a violence reduction programme and (b) a prison place. [131169]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Probation Service run a range of offender behaviour programmes, including several which focus on violence. Unit costs for individual programmes are currently being developed by the Probation Service and will be available in the autumn of this year.

The average weekly cost per prison place in 2005-06 was £556.

Offenders: Republic of Ireland

Stephen Pound: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many Irish nationals have been transferred at the completion of a custodial sentence from a prison to an immigration removal facility in the last 10 months. [121869]

Mr. Byrne: Accurate and robust information for the period requested is not available.

In my written ministerial statement of 19 February 2007, Official Report, column 43WS, I explained that those Irish national prisoners whose deportation cases were not considered exceptional and whose sentences had expired would be released from custody.

This has now been activated.

Offensive Weapons

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many and what percentage of people convicted of having an article with a blade or point under section 139 of the Criminal Justice Act 1988 had a previous conviction at the time of their sentence, broken down by (a) offence and (b) age group; [131182]

(2) how many and what percentage of people convicted of encouraging violent behaviour involving the use of a knife under the Knives Act 1997 had a previous conviction at the time of their sentence, broken down by (a) offence and (b) age group; [131217]

(3) how many people and what percentage of people convicted of carrying an offensive weapon under section 1 of the Prevention of Crime Act 1953 had a previous conviction at the time of their sentence in each of the last 30 years, broken down by (a) offence and (b) age group. [131242]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Information on previous convictions is not available at the level of individual offences. Figures on criminal histories broken down by types of offence can be found on the Home Office's website in Table 6.3 of Sentencing Statistics 2005:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs07/hosb0307.pdf

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department in how many incidents of recorded violent crime a samurai sword was used as an offensive weapon in each year since 1997. [131239]

Mr. Coaker: From the information collected on recorded crime, it is not possible to identify those offences which are sword/knife related. Such offences are not specifically defined by statute and details of the individual circumstances of offences do not feature in the recorded crime statistics.

Figures are collected for homicides involving the use of sharp instruments but they do not separate identify knife-related offences. The Home Office is working closely with ACPO to develop a knife-enabled crime action plan and is seeking to collate the numbers of knife-related offences for grievous bodily harm through the Annual Data Requirement in 2007-08.

Passports

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Sheffield, Hallam, of 21 March 2007, Official Report, column 972W, on passports, what the error rate was on checks provided by the Passport Validation Service in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [131382]

Joan Ryan: The Passport Validation Service provides confirmation that information on a passport presented to a user organisation corresponds with the information held on central passport records for the purpose of combating fraud and identity theft.

This has been provided since 2002 via a computer interface. A call centre service also commenced operation on 1 August 2006.

On the basis of PVS records we are satisfied that no check has resulted in any erroneous confirmation being provided to a user organisation.

Passports: Applications

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to section 6(7) of the Identity Cards Act 2006, whether applicants for passport renewal who apply solely for a passport prior to 1 January 2010 will have their details entered on the National Identity Register. [120392]

Joan Ryan: Once passports are designated under section 4 of the Identity Cards Act 2006, anyone applying for the first time or for renewal of a passport will have their identity details entered on the National Identity Register which, apart from the recording of biometrics, will hold exactly the same sort of identity information that is already required for the issue of passports and other official documents. Prior to 1 January 2010 section 6(7) of the Identity Cards Act makes it possible for anyone, who wishes to do so, to opt out of being issued with an identity card, but after that date anyone applying for a passport would be issued with an identity card together with a passport. This principle was accepted by Parliament when the Identity Cards Act was passed in 2006.

Passports: Interviews

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 22 March 2007, Official Report, column 302W, on passports: interviews, on which days of the week each office will be open; and for how many hours each office will be open on each day. [131189]

Joan Ryan: The days per week each interview office referred to will open are:

(a) Barnstable[1] - Wednesday and Saturday
(b) Bristol - Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday
(c) Exeter - Tuesday, Friday and Saturday
(d) Yeovil - Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday

All the offices will be open 8.00am to 6.00pm each day they are open.

[1] IPS originally proposed to locate this office in Barnstable but we have not been able to secure suitable premises and are now extending our search to neighbouring towns.

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 22 March 2007, Official Report, column 301W, on passport interviews, if he will assess the merits of hosting remote access facilities for passport interview centres in Taunton. [131190]

Joan Ryan: Remote passport interview facilities will be located in sparsely populated parts of the UK, as defined by the Office of National Statistics (ONS). Somerset is not defined as a sparsely populated area in this context.

Police

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of gross revenue expenditure by (a) Devon and Cornwall Police Authority and (b) all police authorities was financed by (i) central Government provision and (ii) revenue from council tax in each year since 1992. [112701]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested where available is set out in a table which has been placed in the Library.

Revenue funding includes all grants inside aggregate external finance (AEF) (i.e. revenue grants paid for councils' core services), and includes formula grant and all specific grants.

The figures exclude grants inside AEF such as housing benefit subsidy, capital grants, funding for local authorities' housing management responsibilities and those grant programmes (such as European funding) where authorities are simply one of the recipients of funding paid towards an area.

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people are employed within the (a) Policing Policy and Operations Directorate, (b) Police Leadership and Powers Unit and (c) Police Human Resources Unit; and what the cost of their salaries is in each case in 2006-07. [129370]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 23 March 2007]: As at the end of March 2007, the Policing Policy and Operations Directorate (a) employed 204 full-time equivalents. Of this number, 47 were employed within the Police Leadership and Powers Unit (b) and 46 within the Police Human Resources Unit (c). The cost of the salaries for 2006-07 was (a) £10.9 million; (b) 2.7 million; and (c) 2.7 million.

Police Custody: Wales

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what proportion of spaces available in Wales under Operation Safeguard were used in each week since the operation came into force; and if he will make a statement. [128424]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 19 March 2007]: The usage of Operation Safeguard by individual police forces is held for use as management information only.

Police Patrols

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department further to his answer of 6 March 2007, Official Report, column 1930W, if he will provide the figures by each police force. [130199]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 28 March 2007]: The following table sets out by force the proportion of police officer time spent on front-line duties. The information asked for on the time spent in each force on patrol and paperwork is not available as these data are collected by forces for internal management purposes only.

Police: Advisory Groups

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the role is of independent advisory groups for police constabularies and authorities; how they are appointed; who the members are of each such group; what qualifications are recognised for this role; for how long members serve; what remuneration members receive; to whom such groups report; and if he will make a statement. [129568]

Mr. McNulty: Independent advisory groups have been set up by a number of police forces at the discretion of the chief constable and the role, composition and means of appointment are a matter for them.

Police: Bolton

Mr. Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many police officers were stationed in Bolton in each year since 1997; [130382]

(2) how many community support officers were provided in Bolton in each year since 1997. [130409]

Mr. McNulty: Information on the number of police officers in basic command units is collected annually and has only been available since March 2002. For Police Community Support Officers BCU numbers has only been collected since June 2005. The data for the Bolton Metropolitan Borough Division is set out in the following table. The deployment of police officers and police community support officers to basic command units and to other specialist operational units is a matter for the Chief Constable.

Police: Business

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps his Department is taking to encourage police authorities to improve links with local people and businesses. [126025]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 13 March 2007]: Section 96 of the Police Act 1996 places a duty on police authorities to make arrangements for obtaining the views of people in the force area about matters concerning the policing of the area. It is for the police authority to determine the means of doing so after consulting the chief constable.

The standard membership of a police authority is 17 of which five are independent members who are local people who represent a wide range of interests in the police area and with relevant skills.

The Department is working with the Association of Chief Police Officers to ensure effective engagement on crime against businesses.

Police: Cadets

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps he has taken to encourage young people to join the Police Cadets. [128852]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 20 March 2007]: Cadet schemes are run locally by a number of forces. Forces undertake their own initiatives to attract young people from their local communities. Cadet programmes are intended to give young people an idea of what it is like to be a police officer and to help forge links within local communities. Cadet activities include:

Crime prevention
First aid
Self-defence
Sport and fitness
Police procedures and law

Cadets also take part in local crime prevention initiatives and stewarding at events.

Police: Community Support Officers

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police community support officers were employed as of 31 December 2006, broken down by police authority area. [130049]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 26 March 2007]: The most recently available data are published in the Home Office Statistical Bulletin, Police Strength in England and Wales, 30th September 2006 (04/07), and are given in the following table.

The bulletin is available in the Library of the House and can be downloaded from:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs07/hosb0407.pdf

Table three in the bulletin contains the police community support officer numbers in England and Wales as at 30 September 2006.

Police: Databases

Nick Herbert: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what the current timetable is for implementation of the Police National Database; [127293]

(2) what the timetable is for the implementation of the IMPACT Cross Regional Information Sharing Project programme; [127294]

(3) what the cost of the IMPACT programme has been; and what he expects its projected final cost to be. [127298]

Mr. McNulty [holding answers 13 March 2007]: As my hon. Friend, the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department, the hon. Member for Enfield, North (Joan Ryan) said during the Adjournment debate called by the hon. Member for Barnsley, Central (Mr. Illsley) on 28 February 2007, Official Report, column 307WH, we are currently evaluating options for delivering maximum value to the police service through the IMPACT programme while capitalising as much as possible on the investment already made by the Home Office and police forces. We expect to be making an announcement on the results of that evaluation shortly and this will include a timetable for implementing future IMPACT solutions.

As at the end of January, the Home Office had invested £64.9 million in the IMPACT programme. This includes the successful delivery of the IMPACT Nominal Index; the delivery of a programme to improve information management in police forces and the allocation of substantial grant funding to forces to enable them to prepare their data for sharing. The projected final costs of the programme will be reassessed once a decision has been made on the options evaluation. We will be able to say more on this in the 4th Report on Progress on the Bichard Inquiry Recommendations, which we plan to publish in the spring.

Police: Equal Opportunities

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what targets are set for police authorities on the recruitment of police officers on the basis of (a) gender and (b) ethnicity. [126026]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 8 March 2007]: In 1999, the Home Secretary published race equality employment targets for the police service to be achieved by 2009. An annual report is published showing the progress that the service has made against those targets.

While there are no comparable targets for gender, the Police Performance Assessment Framework (PPAF) includes performance indicators on female officer representation.

The Home Office is committed to providing equality of opportunity for police officers and staff regardless of gender. The Home Office encourages forces to adopt positive action initiatives to promote the recruitment of women officers. The Police Minister chairs the Women in Policing Steering Group. The group has sponsored guidance on flexible working, and gender equality schemes in forces. It has recently commissioned work on whether further targets should be set for the recruitment, retention and progression of female police officers.

Police: Forms

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate he has made of the number of forms used by the police. [126884]

Mr. McNulty: My right hon. Friend the Home Secretary has consistently made clear his commitment to reducing police bureaucracy, placing this important work at the heart of his vision for policing through:

A review of the Police and Criminal Evidence Act which was announced July last year, to examine potential areas for reducing bureaucracy on the Police Service.

A Statement of Common Values on the Police Service made on six March, which included a commitment to reduce bureaucracy and make policing more public-facing.

A Review of Policing announced on 27 March, which includes Sir Ronnie Flanagan leading work on how to deliver a step-change in bureaucracy, reporting in August.

A key feature of these plans is the commitment to ensuring that administrative demands do not distort or hinder front-line policing priorities. However, the information required of each police force to make an assessment of the number of forms they use is not held centrally.

Police: Retirement

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 15 March 2007, Official Report, column 550W, on police: retirement, what categories of data will be provided by forces. [130334]

John Reid: Data will be collected in respect of exit interviews as part of the annual data requirement in categories for rank, gender, length of service, ethnicity, and reason for leaving. In terms of the reason for leaving these are categorised as domestic reasons, work commitments, the individual's role, pay and conditions, training/career, management issues, organisational culture, colleagues, fairness at work, discrimination, taking another job, and on promotion.

Ports

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many ports of entry there are in the United Kingdom. [126438]

John Reid: For the purposes of the Immigration Act 1971 there are 57 ports of entry in the United Kingdom.

Prison Places

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many additional prison places were provided in each year since 1997; and how many more are planned; [129935]

(2) what the average cost was of each new prison place built in each year since 1997. [129936]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The following table shows how many new prison places have been created in the years in question and the average capital building cost per new place. 8,000 new prison places were announced in the Criminal Justice System Review in July 2006. These will be provided using a combination of new prisons and expansion at existing sites.

£000

Financial year	Number of new prison places[1]	Average capital building cost per new place[2]
1997-98	4,716	60
1998-99	1,222	67
1999-2000	1,646	65
2000-01	640	61
2001-02	920	79
2002-03	1780	57
2003-04	1376	77
2004-05	2570	100
2005-06	940	119

[1] The number of new places includes a mixture of places at new prisons as well as places provided by expansions at existing prisons. It does not take into account any places provided through prisoners sharing cells; nor does it take into account any places that have been taken out of use.

[2] The costs shown cover the capital building costs of each new place only. No adjustment has been made for inflation.

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department in which prisons an increase in capacity is planned; what the current capacity is of each; what increase is planned; and by what date he expects the new accommodation to be available. [129937]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The building programme to provide new prison places by 2012, both in new prisons and at existing sites, is still under development. Decisions on the location of the places will be determined by greatest need; and where possible, they will be provided in areas of highest demand. Specific sites are subject to detailed internal planning, acquisition and planning consent.

Prison Sentences

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer to the right hon. Member for Birkenhead of 20 February 2007, Official Report, column 643W, on prison sentences, whether there is a difference in average length of sentences for British and foreign offenders who committed the same offence; and if he will provide average sentence lengths for (a) foreign and (b) British offenders in each category of offence. [126436]

John Reid: Information on the average sentence length by offence for foreign national and British offenders held in custody in all prison establishments in England and Wales can be found in the following table.

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prisoners are serving over tariff incarceration on the grounds of their refusal to confess their guilt. [129657]

John Reid: The information is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Denial of guilt is not of itself a bar to release of prisoners from custody. There is no rule or policy that automatically prevents those who, for whatever reason, deny their guilt from progressing through the prison system provided their risk is assessed as having reduced to a level that is compatible with protecting the public from harm. The assessment of a prisoner's current level of risk is the pre-eminent factor in determining suitability for release.

Release of tariff-expired indeterminate sentence prisoners is a matter for the independent Parole Board. The main criterion governing the Board's consideration is the level of risk of serious harm that the prisoner may pose to others. For that reason it is unlawful for the Board to refuse release simply on the ground that the prisoner continues to deny guilt.

Prisoners Transfers

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what percentage of prisoners serving a sentence of (a) zero to three months, (b) six to 12 months, (c) 12 to 18 months, (d) 18 to 24 months and (e) 24 months or more were transferred (i) once, (ii) twice, (iii) three times, (iv) four times, (v) five times, (vi) six times, (vii) seven times, (viii) eight times and (ix) more than eight times during their sentence in the last year for which figures are available. [130532]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 29 March 2007]: This information is not held centrally.

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prisoners were transferred to another prison during their sentence in each of the last five years. [130548]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The table shows the number of prison to prison transfers of prisoners in England and Wales, recorded by the Inter Prison Transfer contractor, for each financial year from April 2002 until March 2007, the latest date for which figures are available.

There are also a number of prisoner movements between prisons managed locally that are not reported centrally.

Financial year	Number of transfers
2002	71,145
2003	72,746
2004	70,128

Financial year	Number of transfers
2005	68,430
2006 (to March)	71,809

Prisoners: Age

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prisoners are aged (a) 50 to 64 years and (b) 65 years and over. [129926]

Mr. Sutcliffe: There were (a) 5,507 prisoners aged 50 to 64 years and (b) 1,036 prisoners aged 65 and over detained in prison establishments in England and Wales as at 31 January 2007.

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Prisoners: Foreigners

Mr. Wilshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) convicted prisoners and (b) offenders who had completed their sentence were kept in prison pending deportation, in each of the last five years, broken down by prison establishment; and what the cost of keeping such people in prison was in each facility. [128495]

Mr. Byrne: The information requested for the time period concerned is not available.

The Director General of the Immigration and Nationality Directorate wrote to the Home Affairs Committee on 19 February 2007 and provided the latest information held by the Department on deportation matters. A copy of this correspondence was placed in the Library of the House.

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prisoners from (a) EU countries and (b) countries outside the EU are serving sentences in England and Wales; and what the number was in each of the last three years. [131387]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Information on the numbers of prisoners in prison establishments in England and Wales from European Union countries and countries outside the EU between June 2005 and February 2007 can be found in the following table.

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Prison population of all prison establishments in England and Wales showing numbers from EU and outside EU, 2005 to 2007

	30 June 2005	30 June 2006	28 February 2007

Prisoners: Human Rights

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department to what extent prisoners in (a) state and (b) privately-run prisons are protected by the provisions of the Human Rights Act 1998. [130847]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Within the member states of the Council of Europe, human rights standards in places of detention are monitored by the European Committee for the Prevention of Torture who have established a system of regular visits to places of detention.

The Human Rights Act 1998 brought the European Convention of Human Rights into UK law. The Convention contains absolute, limited and qualified rights. Article 5 (the right to liberty) is limited under explicit circumstances, specifically where detention is authorised by law. Prisoners remain covered by the Act but some interference with qualified rights comes with detention, e.g. Article 8 (the right to respect for private family life, home and correspondence). Such interference is permissible if it can be shown to be necessary and proportionate.

Responsibility for considering different aspects of equality and human rights in relation to prisoners is shared between staff responsible for setting policy and those responsible for managing and operating prisons. The issues are considered in all policy decisions and covered in mainstream training.

If adhered to, the policies contained in Prison Service Orders and Standards which underpin Prison Rules, represent a good framework within which the prisons support the UK obligations under treaties such as the United Nations Convention against Torture and the European Convention on Human Rights.

Prisoners: Humberside

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much his Department spent on reimbursing the relatives of prisoners in the Humber region for Humber Bridge tolls incurred whilst visiting prisoners in each of the last three years. [130536]

Mr. Sutcliffe: This information is not routinely collected and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Prisoners: Location

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prisoners were held in prisons over 50 miles from their homes in each of the last five years. [125548]

John Reid: The information requested is provided in the following table. Where no home address is listed for a prisoner, the committal court is used as a proxy address.

	Snapshot of number of prisoners held over 50 miles from their homes (to nearest 100)
2002	25,700
2003	26,800
2004	27,300
2005	27,600
2006	27,800

Prisoners: Per Capita Costs

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average cost was of keeping a prisoner in each (a) prison establishment and (b) young offender institution in the latest period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [130807]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 29 March 2007]: The following table shows the 2005-06 cost per prisoner for each prison establishment, broken down by function. This includes all young offender institutes (YOI).

[1] Prisons re-roled from female to male during 2005-06
[2] HMP Weare closed in August 2005.

Prisoners: Taunton

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) males and (b) females whose home area was recorded as falling within Taunton constituency are (i) on remand and (ii) convicted prisoners being held in a prison (A) up to 50 miles, (B) between 50 and 100 miles and (C) over 100 miles from their home. [130534]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 29 March 2007]: The information requested is contained in the table. The data is for males and females whose home address area was recorded as within Taunton constituency, and is for January 2007.

	Males		Females
	(i) Unconvicted	(ii) Convicted	(i) Unconvicted	(ii) Convicted	Total
(A) Under 50 miles	9	59	0	0	68
(B) Between 50 and 100 miles	2	21	0	2	25
(C) Over 100 miles	1	18	0	3	22
Total	12	98	0	5	115

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors arising from data entry and processing. For this reason the data may not be wholly accurate due to the relatively small numbers involved.

Prisons

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to his answer of 22 February 2007, Official Report, columns 891-2W to the hon. Member for Harborough (Mr. Garnier) on prisons, for what reasons the IT system could not provide the information, provided in the answer of 12 June 2006, Official Report, column 1035W to the hon. Member for Monmouth (David T.C. Davies) on life sentences. [126444]

John Reid: Answering the question of 12 June 2006 involved significant manual checking of records and was integral to informing the need for a data quality review in the Department. Since then the data quality review has begun and, as part of that review we are developing a new database that will enable us, in time, to collect the data requested centrally. But, at this time to answer the question would involve a disproportionate cost.

Prisons: Construction

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the total (a) capital and (b) repayment value is of the new prisons to be constructed in (i) Maghull and (ii) Woolwich. [125943]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Home Secretary recently announced that new prisons will be built at Maghull and Belmarsh through one or more PFI competitions.

The capital value and repayment value of the new prisons will not be known until we have received and evaluated bids from potential suppliers and selected a preferred bidder.

Prisons: Drugs

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many mandatory drugs tests were carried out in prisons in each of the last five years; and how many were (a) positive and (b) negative in each case, broken down by prison. [130198]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 28 March 2007]: The following tables give details of the number of tests, the number of positives and negatives under the random mandatory drug testing programme for each prison over the last five years.

[1] Year to date April 2006 to January 2007.

Prisons: Genetics

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether the DNA Prisoner Sampling Exercise in 2003 was carried out in every prison establishment in England and Wales. [122875]

John Reid: The 2003 DNA Prisoner Sampling Exercise was carried out in all prison establishments where prisoners were identified as not having had a sample taken, with the exception of young offenders institutions.

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prisoners were identified through the Prisoner Sampling Exercise in 2003 as not having their DNA on the National DNA Database; and what proportion of those prisoners subsequently had a sample taken before their release. [122876]

John Reid: Data on prisoners and patients in secure mental establishments as at 28 February 2003 was examined during the Prisoner Sampling Exercise. 5,400 of these were identified as having no DNA profile on the National DNA Database. 3,772 of these prisoners and patients (70 per cent. had a DNA sample taken and added to the National DNA Database.

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prisoners in England and Wales had their DNA samples taken during the course of the DNA Prisoner Sampling Exercise carried out in 2003. [122905]

John Reid: 3,772 individuals had DNA samples taken, of which 3,188 were prisoners and 584 were prisoners in secure mental establishments.

Prisons: Location

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average distance in miles was between (a) females and (b) males in prison and their registered home address in each year since 1997. [130533]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 29 March 2007]: The information requested for the last five years is contained in the table.

Distance from home is calculated using either home address, or where no home address is listed the committal court is used as a proxy.

Average distance from home area

Miles

	Male	Female	Male and Female
2002	53	64	53
2003	52	68	53
2004	51	67	52
2005	50	55	50
2006	50	58	50

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) males and (b) females are (i) on remand and (ii) convicted prisoners being held in a prison (A) up to 50 miles, (B) between 50 and 100 miles and (C) over 100 miles from their home. [130535]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 29 March 2007]: The information requested is contained in the table. The data is for January 2007.

Distance from home is calculated using either home address, or where no home address is listed the committal court is used as a proxy.

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors arising from data entry and processing. For this reason the data may not be wholly accurate due to the relatively small numbers involved.

Average distance of prisoners from home by gender and custody status January 2007

	(A) Under 50 miles	(B) Between 50 and 100 miles	(C) Over 100 miles	Total

Unconvicted	6,793	670	310	7,773
Convicted	39,641	15,302	9,100	64,043
(b) Female
Unconvicted	384	137	23	544
Convicted	2,082	884	676	3,642
Total	48,900	16,993	10,109	76,002

Prisons: Manpower

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 19 February 2007, Official Report, column 325W, on prison capacity, how many additional prison officers he expects to be recruited in 2007 to oversee the additional prison places created. [124408]

John Reid: The number of prison officers and custody officers varies depending on the regime and the type and location of the prison. We estimate that around 500 additional prison officers and prison custody officers will be required to staff the 2,500 additional places that will come into use in 2007.

Probation: Greater London

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the budget allocation for the London Probation Area (a) was for 2006-07 and (b) is for 2007-08; and what assessment he has made of the potential impact of a change in the budget on service delivery. [130070]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information is as follows:

(a) London Probation Board's total budget for 2006-07 was £137.5 million.

(b) London has received a total provisional allocation for 2007-08 of £144.6 million.

This provides for a 5.1 per cent. cash increase on the 2006-07 figure. Regional offender managers are currently negotiating service level agreements with each probation board setting out what services are delivered within agreed resources.

Prosecutions: Hunting

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 8 January 2007, Official Report, column 144W, on illegal fox hunts, what the names were of the defendants in the prosecutions referred to where all proceedings are complete. [128204]

Mr. McNulty: It is not appropriate for the Home Office to provide such information.

Refugees

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate he has made of the number of refugees who will be eligible for integration loans. [129948]

Joan Ryan: Those granted refugee status or humanitarian protection under the immigration rules and their respective dependants on or after the date on which the loan scheme comes into operation will be eligible to apply for an integration loan. Numbers of eligible applicants will be dependant on how many individuals are granted the appropriate status but we are working on the assumption that there will be no significant rise in numbers from last year. In 2006, 2,170 individuals were granted refugee status and 60 were given humanitarian protection.

The payment of a loan is not automatic and each application will be considered on its own merits.

Reoffenders: Hartlepool

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people in Hartlepool have broken the terms of their (a) bail conditions, (b) antisocial behaviour orders and (c) acceptable behaviour contract in each of the last five years. [130908]

Mr. McNulty: Data extracted from the Court Proceedings Database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform showing the number of defendants proceeded against and found guilty of "Failing to surrender to Bail" in the Hartlepool local justice area (LJA) and the Cleveland police force area are shown in the following table.

Data are not collected centrally on other breaches of bail condition. The figures given for Hartlepool LJA will include defendants who do not necessarily live in Hartlepool itself, but their cases were heard in Hartlepool.

Antisocial behaviour order (ASBO) breach data are available at criminal justice system (CJS) area level only. These data relate to cases where individuals have been proven in court to have broken the terms of their ASBO.

Data on the number of acceptable behaviour contracts (ABCs) are not collected by the Home Office as they are voluntary agreements and therefore unsuitable for central data collection.

Number of defendants proceeded against at magistrates courts and found guilty at all courts for failing to surrender to bail, in the Hartlepool local justice area and Cleveland police force area, 2001 to 2005[1, 2]

	2001		2002		2003		2004		2005
	Proceeded against	Found guilty	Proceeded against	Found guilty	Proceeded against	Found guilty	Proceeded against	Found guilty	Proceeded against	Found guilty
Hartlepool UA	268	252	287	252	270	240	257	245	151	138
Cleveland Police Force Area	811	658	995	742	1,123	882	1,243	1,079	892	801

[1] These data are on the principal offence basis.

[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Roads: Accidents

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many car accidents involving a pedestrian being injured or killed (a) resulted in police successfully prosecuting a motorist and (b) were hit and run cases with no one apprehended in each of the last five years; and what the average sentence was in each prosecution. [130051]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 26 March 2007]: While the Department for Transport monitors details of road traffic accidents including 'hit and run', this information is not linked with details of any subsequent arrests and prosecutions.

Information collected on the Court Proceedings Database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform does not identify the type of vehicle and casualty (i.e. pedestrian, driver or passenger) involved in road traffic accidents where proceedings have been brought.

Information held on the database on the number of prosecutions and findings of guilt for 'accident' offences under the Road Traffic Act 1988 section 170(4) and (7) does not distinguish those offences which resulted in injury from those which resulted in damage or both injury and damage.

Samantha Jackson

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 27 February 2007, Official Report, column 1229W, on Samantha Jackson, when he expects a decision to be taken on the case of Samantha Jackson (reference 410144101). [130408]

Mr. Byrne: IND made a decision on 5 March 2007. The associated paperwork was despatched to Ms Jackson on 27 March 2007.

Secure Accommodation: Young Offenders

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many young people were held in (a) secure children's homes, (b) secure training centres and (c) young offender institutions in each month since 2002; and if he will make a statement. [126006]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information requested can be found in the table. It relates to young people serving juvenile sentences in secure training centres, secure children's homes and juvenile young offender institutions. It does not include young adults in young offender institutions for over 18-year-olds.

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Security Guards: Licensing

Mr. McGovern: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) which organisations the Security Industry Authority consulted before implementing the latest increase in licence fees for security officers; [130319]

(2) whether he was consulted by the Security Industry Authority before they implemented the latest increase in licence fees for security officers. [130321]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 27 March 2007]: The fee to be paid on application for a licence under the Private Security Industry Act 2001 is prescribed by the Secretary of State in regulations. Following consideration by the Home Office of the SIA's proposals for an increase in the fee the Secretary of State agreed to make the necessary regulations.

An updated regulatory impact assessment was published on 12 January 2007, setting out the case for an increase from 6 April in the fee, which must be set at a level to enable the SIA to recover its costs.

The fee will increase when the Private Security Industry Act 2001 (Licences) Regulations 2007 come into force on 6 April.

Security: Heathrow Airport

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what role his Department is playing in the miSense project at Heathrow Airport. [128052]

Mr. Byrne: IND staff were directly involved in enrolling passengers for the miSensePlus and miSenseAllclear scheme but played no role in the miSense trial. All the miSense trials are a proof of concept and delivered by a collaboration of nine partners led by the British Airports Authority (BAA). Participation in the schemes was on an entirely voluntary basis and following the end of the trial period, all personal data are being erased.

Sentencing

Ann Coffey: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he expects to make a decision on the recommendations of the Sentencing Advisory Panel on guidelines for sentencing shoplifters. [129988]

Mr. Sutcliffe: It is not for the Secretary of State to make decisions on recommendations by the Sentencing Advisory Panel. The Sentencing Advisory Panel produces advice for the Sentencing Guidelines Council, whose role it is to consult and draw up final guidelines. The Government will have an opportunity to comment on any draft, but the final decision on the content of guidelines is for the Sentencing Guidelines Council.

Serious Organised Crime Agency

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many seizures of Class A drugs have been made by Serious Organised Crime Agency officers since 1 April 2006; and what the estimated total value of these seizures is. [124770]

John Reid: For the period April 2006 to September 2006 SOCA was involved in the seizure of the following Class A drugs as shown in the table.

Drug	Quantity (approximate)	Numbers of Seizures
Heroin	1,300 kg	47
Cocaine	15,000 kg	64
Ecstasy	4.2 million pieces	10
Opium	100 kg	1
LSD	1 million doses	1

The estimated street value of these seizures would have been approximately £1.8 billion.

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much has been spent on (a) stationery for the Serious Organised Crime Agency (SOCA) and (b) promotional merchandise branded with SOCA's name and logo. [124772]

John Reid: It has not been possible for SOCA to give an exact figure for their spend on office stationery to date, however, for the period April 2006 to September 2006, SOCA spent £522,500 on stationery and office consumables. Of this, SOCA estimates that £189,000 was spent on stationery.

For the period April 2006 to September 2006, SOCA spent £12,714.74 on promotional material branded with SOCA's name and logo (excluding headed stationery).

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what system of accountability is in place to monitor the work of the Serious Organised Crime Agency. [130190]

Mr. Coaker: The chair, non-executive directors and the director general of SOCA are all appointed by the Home Secretary; SOCA publishes an annual plan before the beginning of each financial year; and an annual report as soon as possible after the end of each financial year. This is in line with the requirements of the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005.

Before the commencement of SOCA a management statement and financial memorandum was drawn up setting out the overarching framework within which the organisation will operate and a copy of SOCA's MS/FM was placed in the Library.

Regular meetings take place between the chair and director general of SOCA and the Home Secretary and Ministers. The chair and the director general have made several appearances before Select Committees in the House of Commons and the House of Lords, as well as meeting various all-party parliamentary groups. Senior managers of SOCA also have regular meetings with the Home Office sponsor team.

Shoplifting: Lancashire

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many shoplifting offences were recorded in Lancashire in each of the last five years. [130715]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is given in the table.

Offences of theft from shops in Lancashire

	Number of offences
2001-02	8,050
2002-03[1]	7,781
2003-04	8,579
2004-05	8,254
2005-06	8,655

[1] The National Crime Recording Standard was introduced in April 2002. Figures before and after that date are not directly comparable.

Stop and Search: Terrorism

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 15 March 2007, Official Report, column 557W, on stop and search: terrorism, how many of those searched in each category were subsequently charged with (a) terrorism-related offences and (b) other offences. [130333]

John Reid: The Office of Criminal Justice Reform does not collate charge data following a stop-search under section 44 of the Terrorism Act 2000.

Terror Suspects

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many of the people who were detained without charge on suspicion of terrorist offences between 11 September 2001 and 31 December 2006 were held for (a) more than 10 days, (b) longer than 20 days and (c) 27 or 28 days; [129933]

(2) how many of the persons who were detained without charge on suspicion of terrorist offences between 11 September 2001 and 31 December 2006 were held for (a) more than 10 days, (b) longer than 20 days and (c) 27 or 28 days before a charge was brought against them. [129934]

John Reid: The maximum period of detention pre-charge was extended to 14 days on 20 January 2004 and subsequently up to 28 days with effect from 25 July 2006. The following table shows a breakdown of detention statistics compiled from police records covering the period 20 January 2004 to 31 December 2006.

Period of detention	Number of persons detained	Charged	Released without charge
10-20 days	55	45	10
20-27 days	0	0	0
27-28 days	6	3	3
Total	61	48	13

Terrorism

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 6 March 2007, Official Report, column 1945W, on terrorism, when he expects to publish Lord Carlile of Berriew's report on the definition of terrorism. [130766]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 29 March 2007]: Lord Carlile of Berriew's report was published on 15 March.

Terrorism Act 2000

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will break down by ethnicity the number of those (a) arrested, (b) charged and (c) convicted under the Terrorism Act 2000 since its inception. [129374]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 28 March 2007]: The Home Office does not collate information on the ethnicity of individuals arrested, charged or convicted under the Terrorism Act 2000.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been arrested under the Terrorism Act 2000 since 1 January 2006; and how many were held within 24 hours of the maximum allowable period. [129375]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 28 March 2007]: Statistics compiled from police records show that from 1 January 2006 to 31 December 2006 156 arrests were made under the Terrorism Act 2000. The maximum period of detention pre-charge was extended to 28 days with effect from 25 July 2006.

Statistics compiled from police records show that from 25 July 2006 to 31 December 2006 six people have been held for 27-28 days.

Terrorism: Crime Prevention

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many incidents have been reported to the anti-terrorism hotline since its introduction; and if he will make a statement. [129185]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 22 March 2007]: Records of the number of calls received by the hotline have been kept from 1 January 2004. The total number of calls until 31 March 2007 was 9,474.

	Number of calls
2004	860
2005	[1]7,422
2006	929
2007[2]	263

[1] This figure includes the period 7 July 2005 until 8 August 2005 during which time 6,468 calls were recorded. This was in the immediate aftermath of the terror attacks on London on 7 July 2005.
[2] 1 January 2007 to 31 March 2007.

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people are employed to handle calls received by the anti-terrorism hotline. [129186]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 22 March 2007]: The anti-terrorist hotline is staffed by two civilian staff and two police officers between the hours of 7 am and 6 pm, and outside these hours by one civilian staff and one police officer. The hotline is based within the Counter Terrorism Command at New Scotland Yard.

In the event of a major incident a contingency plan has been devised substantially to increase the capacity to answer incoming calls. This is an operational matter for the police. We cannot comment further.

Terrorism: Detainees

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many of those detained under the Terrorism Acts (a) were seeking asylum at the time of their detention and (b) have subsequently claimed asylum. [130815]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Terrorism: Lancashire

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people (a) arrested, (b) charged and (c) convicted under the Terrorism Act 2000 were from (i) Lancashire and (ii) Ribble Valley. [130427]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 30 March 2007]: The Home Office does not collate statistics by geographical or force area. From 11 September 2001 to 31 December 2006 there have been a total of 1,166 arrests of which 1,126 arrests were made under the Terrorism Act 2000 and 40 arrests under legislation other than the Terrorism Act, where the investigation was conducted as a terrorist investigation.

Of the 1,166 arrests, 117 were charged with terrorism legislation offences only, 104 were charged with terrorism legislation offences and other criminal offences and 186 were charged under other legislation. Of those charged, 40 were convicted under the Terrorism Act 2000 and 180 convicted under other legislation.

Terrorism: Telephone Services

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many telephone calls were received by the Anti-Terrorism Hotline in each of the last 12 months for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [130808]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 29 March 2007]: From the period 1 January to 31 March 2007, 263 calls were received by the Anti-Terrorism Hotline. From 1 January to 31 December 2006, 929 calls were received. A monthly breakdown is detailed in the table.

Tobacco: Young People

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prosecutions for under-age tobacco sales there were in each year since 1997; and how many convictions resulted from these prosecutions. [130418]

Mr. McNulty: Data extracted from the court proceedings database held by the Office for Criminal Justice reform showing the number of defendants proceeded against and found guilty for under-age tobacco sales is shown in the following table.

Number of defendants prosecuted against at magistrates courts and found guilty at all courts, for under-age tobacco sales, England and Wales, 1997 to 2005[1, 2]

	Proceeded against	Found guilty
1997	130	112
1998	166	129
1999	127	102
2000	161	134
2001	117	90
2002	99	78
2003	117	93
2004	73	57
2005	88	69
Total	1,078	864

[1] These data are on the principal offence basis.

[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Trespass

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been (a) arrested for trespass and (b) stopped by police on suspicion of trespassing in each of the designated areas established by the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 since their designation. [129654]

Mr. Ingram: I have been asked to reply.

The Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 defines a "designated" site as meaning a site specified or described in an order by the Secretary of State. A "protected" site is defined as a nuclear site or a designated site. Therefore, all designated sites and nuclear licensed sites are protected sites.

There are a number of designated sites in the Ministry of Defence. They are:

Her Majesty's Naval base Clyde
Northwood Headquarters
RAF Brize Norton
RAF Croughton
RAF Fairford
RAF Feltwell
RAF Fylingdales
RAF Lakenheath
RAF Menwith Hill
RAF Mildenhall
RAF Welford
Royal Naval Armaments Depot Coulport
Sea Mounting Centre Marchwood.

In addition to the above designated sites the MOD has three protected (nuclear) sites at:

AWE Aldermaston
AWE Burghfield
HMNB Devonport.

Since 2005, 11 arrests have been made by the Ministry of Defence Police (MDP) for trespass; one at Atomic Weapons Establishment (AWE) Aldermaston, two at RAF Menwith Hill and eight at RAF Lakenheath. No one has been stopped by the MDP on suspicion of trespass in any of the designated areas.

Victor Makarov

Mr. Atkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will meet Mr. Victor Makarov, to discuss arrangements for his future security and well being in the UK. [131233]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 2 April 2007]: Mr. Makarov's local police force are aware of his background and are best placed to offer advice.

Walking

Geraldine Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will launch a public awareness campaign to encourage people to walk more for health reasons. [118024]

Mr. Byrne: No.

This is the responsibility of the Secretary of State for Health.

Work Permits

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department further to the answer of 5 March 2007, Official Report, column 1769W, on work permits, to applicants of which 10 nationalities the most work permits carrying a potential entitlement to settlement in the UK were granted in (a) 2001 and (b) 2005. [126447]

Mr. Byrne: Statistics on grants of settlement on the basis of employment are published annually in table 5.4 of the Command Paper entitled "Control of Immigration: Statistics United Kingdom". The latest edition is that for 2005. Copies are available from the Library of the House and on the Home Office Research Development and Statistics Directorate website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html

Work Permits: IT

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of work permit applications made by IT professionals were successful in the last period for which figures are available; and what percentage of work permits awarded in that period were granted to IT professionals. [129676]

Mr. Byrne: In 2006, 94 per cent. of work permit applications made by IT professionals were successful.

Work permits issued to IT professionals accounted for 23 per cent. of all work permits issued to individuals in 2006.

The figures quoted are not provided under national statistics protocols and have been derived from local management information and are therefore provisional and subject to change.

Young Offenders

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the population of (a) secure children's homes, (b) secure training centres and (c) young offender institutions was in each month since March 2006; and if he will make a statement. [130870]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The figures requested can be found in the following table.

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Notes:
1. Secure children's homes and secure training centres are for under 18-year-olds only. Young offender institutions also hold those aged 18+.
2. Secure children's home figures do not include young people placed by local authorities for welfare reasons

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) boys and (b) girls under the age of 18 years were received into young offenders institutions (i) under sentence and (ii) on remand in each year between 2000 and 2006. [131214]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Information on the numbers of juvenile receptions into all prison establishments in England and Wales in each year from 2000 to 2005 can be found in the following table.

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

The figures given in this answer relating to the numbers of prisoners held in prison establishments have been drawn from administrative IT systems. Although care is taken when processing and analysing the returns, the detail collected is subject to the inaccuracies inherent in any large scale recording system, and although shown to the last individual the figures may not be accurate to that level.

Young Offenders: Prisoners on Remand

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what percentage of prisoners in young offenders institutions were on remand in each of the last 10 years. [126882]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 14 March 2007]: The number and percentage of juveniles and young adults who were on remand in prison establishments in England and Wales in each of the last 10 years can be found in the following table. Young offender institutions hold sentenced offenders, while those on remand are held in establishments under prison rules.

These figures have been drawn from administrative data systems.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what proportion of prisoners in each young offenders institution are remand prisoners; and how many remand prisoners have been detained for (a) over 30 days, (b) over 60 days and (c) over 100 days. [126883]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 14 March 2007]: The number and proportion of juveniles and young adults who were on remand in prison establishments in England and Wales at 31 January 2007, and for the specified numbers of days, can be found in the following table. Young offender institutions hold sentenced offenders, while those on remand are held in establishments under prison rules.

These figures have been drawn from administrative data systems. Although care is taken when processing and analysing the returns, the detail collected is subject to the inaccuracies inherent in any large scale recording system. It is for this reason that the information is not provided by individual prison establishment, as the numbers are not necessarily accurate to this level of detail.

Young adults and under 18s on remand by length of time on remand, and proportion of total sentenced and remand population at 31 January 2007

	Number

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average period spent on remand by prisoners in young offenders institutions was in each of the last 10 years. [126920]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 14 March 2007]: Information on the average time spent on remand by young adults and under 18s held in prison establishments in England and Wales between 1996 and 2006 can be found in the following table. Young offender institutions hold sentenced offenders, while those on remand are held in establishments under prison rules.

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Average time spent on remand by young adult and under 18 year olds in prison establishments in England and Wales, 1996-2006

	Number of remand receptions	Average annual population	Average time spent on remand (days)
1996	19,890	2,941	54
1997	20,455	2,982	53
1998	21,639	2,936	50
1999	22,485	2,930	48
2000	22,099	2,607	43
2001	19,926	2,347	43
2002	20,688	2,558	45
2003	18,904	2,428	47
2004	17,956	2,415	49
2005	17,602	2,440	51
2006	17,602	2,634	55

Young Offenders: Prisons

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) male and (b) female prisoners aged 17 to 21 years were accommodated within the adult prison estate on (a) 1 March 2007 and (b) the first day of each of the previous 12 months, broken down by prison. [125669]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Information on the numbers of male and female prisoners by the banded age groups aged 17-20 and aged 21 and over, held in prison establishments within England and Wales at the end of each month since February 2006, can be found in a table which has been placed in the Library. Many establishments include more than one unit.

The figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems and as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Youth Crime

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which non-governmental organisations his Department has funded in the last three years in relation to combating (a) gang culture, (b) youth crime and (c) street violence. [129441]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 27 March 2007]: The Home Office funds a number of programmes focused on tackling gangs, youth crime and street violence.

The Connected Fund was established in May 2004 and provides small grants for community-based organisations working in this area. Details of the 300 organisations funded to date can be found on the Connected website at www.connected.gov.uk The sixth round of the Fund, focusing specifically on gangs, was launched on 1 March this year.

In addition, since 2004-05 the Home Office has provided grants to support the following organisations whose work is aimed at tackling youth crime, gun crime and gangs: Street Pastors, the Peace Alliance, Social Action Radio, Trident IAG, the Damilola Taylor Trust, Be Safe, Urban Concepts and Truce.

The Home Office has also provided funding for combating youth crime to: the Fostering Network, the Hampton Trust, the Trust for the Study of Adolescence, the Magistrates Association and Crime Concern (an independent, non-profit registered charity working to reduce crime). The Positive Futures Programme is currently managed nationally by Crime Concern and funded by the Home Office's Crime and Drug Strategy Directorate. There may also be other non-governmental organisations that have received indirect funding from the Home Office via bodies such as the Youth Justice Board or local youth offending teams.

CHURCH COMMISSIONERS

Churches: Repairs and Maintenance

Miss McIntosh: To ask the hon. Member for Middlesbrough, representing the Church Commissioners what discussions he has had with the Chancellor of the Exchequer on the funding of church repairs; and if he will make a statement. [131704]

Sir Stuart Bell: I regularly speak with my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer about a range of church issues. On the issue of church repairs, we continue to engage with all levels of Government and press for the great contribution that churches and cathedrals make to their communities and the whole nation to be better reflected in the funds they receive from the state.

We were therefore very pleased that the Chancellor announced in his Budget statement that he and the Culture Secretary would in the run up to the Spending Review examine the help which Government could give to the churches.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Communities England

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much has been allocated for the annual (a) administrative costs and (b) total budget of Communities England. [129753]

Ruth Kelly: Communities England is expected to combine over £4 billion of public spending on housing and regeneration annually. This estimate is based on current budgets, with the final budget to be agreed as part of CSR07.

Compensation Payments

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 8 January 2007, Official Report, column 365W, on compensation payments, on what dates the damage to the hire vehicles occurred; what divisions of the Department hired the vehicles; what the purpose was of hiring the vehicles; and how the damage occurred. [129430]

Ruth Kelly: These compensation payments, made by the Communities and Local Government predecessor—Office of the Deputy Prime Minister (ODPM)—relate to incidents which occurred on 30 July 2004, 17 February 2005 and 3 March 2005. The vehicles involved were hired by the ODPM's Local Government Beacon Councils Team, its Counselling Support Service and the Eastern Rent Assessment Panel for use in the normal course of business. The incidents involved damage to a bumper as a consequence of a vehicle being reversed into a post, damage incurred following a collision with another vehicle and a broken windscreen.

Council Tax

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the amount of uncollected council tax in England in each of the last five years. [129761]

Ruth Kelly: The amount of council tax uncollected in England, in each of the last five years, is shown in the following table.

	Amount not collected (£ million)	Amount not collected as percentage of net collectable debit
1993-94	n/a	7.4
1994-95	n/a	6.6
1995-96	n/a	5.5
1996-97	n/a	4.7
1997-98	428	4.5
1998-99	463	4.4
1999-2000	507	4.4
2000-01	518	4.2
2001-02	518	3.9
2002-03	531	3.6
2003-04	582	3.5
2004-05	594	3.4
2005-06	592	3.2

The figures in the table show the amount of council tax in respect of the financial year not collected in that year. The final column shows this figure as a percentage of the net collectable debit in respect of that year's council taxes—i.e. the income authorities would collect if everyone liable paid, net of estimated receipts of council tax benefit.

Collection of council taxes continues once the financial year to which they relate has ended. This means that the amount not collected will eventually be lower than the figure shown above, and the final amount not collected as a percentage of net collectable debit will be somewhere between the figures shown here and zero. The data are as reported on QRC4 forms submitted by all billing authorities to Communities and Local Government each year.

Departmental Meetings

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 19 January 2007, Official Report, column 1352W, on departmental meetings, if she will place in the Library a copy of the documentation produced (a) for and (b) by the stakeholder representatives at the meeting on 1 November 2006. [129432]

Ruth Kelly: Information relating to internal discussion is not normally disclosed as to do so could harm the frankness and candour of discussion between Ministers, advisers and stakeholders.

Departments: Publicity

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much her Department spent on (a) sponsoring newspaper or publication supplements and (b) advertorials in newspapers or other publications in the latest year for which figures are available; and what the topic was of each publication. [129442]

Angela E. Smith: Where costs for supplements and advertorials are available they are as shown.

The Department has undertaken advertising and advertorials for the Home Information Pack take up campaign but the disaggregated costs could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The Local E-Gov Take-Up campaign aimed at encouraging citizens to make greater use of on-line council services. There were two phases of advertising in 2006-07. The total spend across both phases was £1.6 million. Of this (a) £24,000 was spent on supplements and on (b) £193,580 was spent on advertorials.

The Female Fire Fighter Awareness campaign aimed at encouraging women to consider the Fire and Rescue Service as a viable career option. There was one burst of advertising in 2006-07. The total spend was £800,000. Of this (a) £5,000 was spent on advertorials and (b) £93,255 was spent in women's press titles.

The Fire Safety campaign aimed at reducing the number of deaths and serious injuries. Of the total spend of £3.3 million, the spend on advertorials was £6,860 that ran in the BME media.

Departments: Redundancy

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) how many people in her Department and its predecessor participated in (a) involuntary and (b) voluntary staff exit schemes in each year since 1997-98; and if she will make a statement; [131540]

(2) how many people in her Department and its predecessor who undertook (a) involuntary and (b) voluntary staff exit schemes in each year since 1997-98, were paid between (i) £0 to £25,000, (ii) £25,001 to £50,000, (iii) £50,001 to £75,000, (iv) £75,001 to £100,000 and (v) over £100,000; and if she will make a statement. [131565]

Angela E. Smith: For details of the staff exit schemes run by the Department for Communities and Local Government and its main predecessor (the former Office of the Deputy Prime Minister) I refer the hon. Member to my earlier answer of 5 March 2007, Official Report, column 1785W.

Details of the numbers of staff in the department and its main predecessor (the former Office of the Deputy Prime Minister) exiting under these schemes, together with information on the lump sums payable to them on exit are set out as follows.

			Number undertaking exit schemes by compensation lump sum amounts
	Scheme	Total	£0 to £25,000	£25,001 to £50,000	£50,001 to £75,000	£75,001 to £100,000	Over £100,000
2005-06	Office of the Deputy Prime Minister: voluntary scheme	97	60	15	18	0	4
2006-07	Communities and Local Government: voluntary scheme	155	76	33	20	19	7
2006-07	Government offices for the regions: voluntary scheme	106	59	21	17	3	6
2006-07	Communities and Local Government—Marchington: involuntary scheme	[1]34	25	5	3	1	0
Total		392	220	74	58	23	17

[1] Of which 21 were voluntary exits and 13 involuntary exits.

The compensation paid is calculated using the Civil Service Compensation Scheme rules and is based on the category of exit (voluntary, involuntary, severance or retirement), age, years of eligible service and grade/pay band in the Department.

Numbers are grouped by compensation lump sum amounts received at exit. Each leaver departing after their 50th birthday is also eligible for a monthly compensation amount until they reach normal retirement age (age 60). The monthly compensation amount is based upon, but not equal to, the monthly pension payment in normal retirement.

Departments: Temporary Employment

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much her Department and its predecessor spent on temporary staff in 2005-06; and how many individual staff were employed on a temporary basis. [129749]

Ruth Kelly: In 2005-06 the Department and its predecessor spent just over £2.34 million on salaries for 166 casual staff and 17 staff appointed on fixed term contracts of less than one year. Over the same period payments were made to agency employees, but the extraction of this information would be at disproportionate cost.

Fire Stations: Rayleigh Weir

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she expects the new fire station at Rayleigh Wier to be operational. [132247]

Angela E. Smith: Construction of the new fire station at Rayleigh Wier is expected to be completed by mid-2009 when the commissioning process will begin with a view to the fire station becoming operational by the end of 2009.

Home Information Packs

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent estimate she has made of the average cost of a home information pack (HIP); what factors will determine the (a) cost and (b) price of a HIP; and if she will make a statement. [129757]

Ruth Kelly: The price of a home information pack will be set by the market, not by Government. The main components affecting costs are the searches and the energy performance certificate. Searches are already paid for in housing transactions at the moment and their cost varies substantially from area to area. Energy performance certificates are the only new element and could save buyers hundreds of pounds in fuel bills as well as having the potential to help them get access to green mortgages or grants from utility companies for energy saving improvements.

The price of HIPs will also be affected by the level of competition and economies of scale as well as factors such as the size and type of the property. At least one estate agent has said it will provide HIPs for free and others will provide them on a 'no sale, no fee' basis.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the requirement for home information packs will apply to homes put on the market prior to 1 June 2007 but whose sales have not reached completion before that date. [129762]

Ruth Kelly: Properties put on the market before 1 June 2007 will not be required to obtain a home information pack unless they remain on the market after 31 December.

Housing Data Warehouse

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) pursuant to the answer of 19 January 2007, Official Report, column 1354W, on the Housing Data Warehouse, whether the data provided by the Valuation Office Agency include (a) address data, (b) names of the residents, (c) banding data on individual properties and (d) dwelling house code and value significant code data; [129465]

(2) what the purpose is of the Housing Data Warehouse; how much has been allocated to it for 2007-08; and which Government agencies and Departments will have access to it. [129743]

Ruth Kelly: The data provided by the Valuation Office Agency are limited to the address and council tax banding of domestic properties.

For the purpose of the Housing Data Warehouse I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 8 November 2006, Official Report, column 1571W, to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles).

There is no specific allocation for the Housing Data Warehouse in 2007-08 as the running costs are contained within existing resources.

Only Communities and Local Government has direct access to the Housing Data Warehouse. There are no plans to extend direct access to other Government agencies or Departments. Specific requests for data from other Government agencies and Departments would be considered on a case by case basis and with regard to the need to avoid disclosure of personal information.

IPPR

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what funding the Government Office for (a) London and (b) the North East has provided to (i) the IPPR and (ii) IPPR Trading Ltd in each year since May 1997; and for what purpose. [125737]

Ruth Kelly: The Government Office for London used IPPR's services in 2004-05 when a member of staff attended an event organised by the company. The event was called "New challenges for race equality and community cohesion in the 21st century", which took place on 7 July 2004 and the cost of attendance was £58.75 including VAT. Other than that, the Government Office for London and the Government Office for the North East have not made any payments to IPPR or IPPR Trading Ltd through running cost or ODPM/CLG programme funding.

Financial records prior to 2003-04 are held on a different records system and can be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Local Authorities: Newspaper Press

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on what matters local authorities have statutory obligations to place notices in local newspapers. [129748]

Ruth Kelly: We do not hold centrally, information on matters for which local authorities have statutory obligations to place notices in local newspapers.

Local Government

Kitty Ussher: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the written statement of 27 March 2007, Official Report, columns 71-73WS, on local government, what recent assessment she has made of the structure of local government across the whole of Lancashire. [131678]

Mr. Woolas: The Secretary of State has made no assessment of the structure of local government across the whole of Lancashire other than those announced in my written statement of 27 March 2007, Official Report, columns 71-73WS.

Kitty Ussher: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the written statement of 27 March 2007, Official Report, columns 71-73WS, on local government, what her assessment was of the joint bid for unitary status made by Burnley and Pendle borough councils against each of the five criteria. [131679]

Mr. Woolas: The Department's assessment against all five criteria, including affordability and value for money, are set out in Burnley and Pendle borough councils' decision letter of 27 March 2007. This is available on the Department's website at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/pub/137/DecisionletterPendleandBurnleyBoroughCouncils_id1509137.pdf

Local Government Executive

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the average effect on local government election turnout of an elected mayoral system being established in (a) the first year and (b) subsequent years. [129755]

Ruth Kelly: We have made no estimate of this. Details of local government election turnout each year in the 12 mayoral authorities since those authorities adopted mayors can be found in the Local Government Chronicle Election Handbook, published by university of Plymouth.

Local Government Finance: Chorley

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the level was of central Government grant to local government for social services in Chorley's local authority area in the most recent year for which figures are available. [110546]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I have been asked to reply.

The level of central Government formula grant to Lancashire county council which covers the Chorley area for services (including social services) for 2007-08 is £232.482 million (increase of £10.165 million or 4.6 per cent.). Formula grant is not hypothecated and decisions on how it is used are made locally. In addition, the Department has made available £33.714 million in respect of personal social services grants.

Local Government Reform

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 19 January 2007, Official Report, column 1354W, on local government reform, whether local authorities which are not small districts but which adopted a committee structure as a fallback option after the executive model was voted down, will be allowed to continue with a committee structure. [129467]

Ruth Kelly: The Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Bill provides that any authority currently operating alternative arrangements must move to executive arrangements where the resident population of the authority's area on 30 June 1999 was 85,000 or more.

Local Government: Training

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether her Department is still supporting the Future Leadership programme. [129767]

Ruth Kelly: The Future Leadership hip programme was commissioned as an investment in leadership capacity in order to raise the long-term performance of local government. Since 2004, 353 people from across local government have completed the programme. In 2006-07 and 2007-08 a total of £3.5 million has been provided to regional improvement partnerships by the Department to enable them to purchase places on a suite of capacity-building programmes including the Future Leadership programme.

Population: Slough

Fiona Mactaggart: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many individual written representations she has received about the statistics of the population of Slough; and how many of those were pre-printed postcards. [126330]

Mr. Woolas: Since November 2005, the Department has received 28 written representations that contain, in part or in full, issues relating to the population statistics for Slough.

In addition, since January 2007, the Department has received 86 pre-printed postcards and newsletter cut out response slips about the population statistics for Slough.

Sir Michael Lyons: Pay

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much has been paid to Sir Michael Lyons in expenses in relation to his work on his inquiry into local government. [127060]

Ruth Kelly: Since he started work on his inquiry in the autumn of 2004 Sir Michael has so far been paid expenses of £21,039.16 plus VAT. He is expected to submit a further claim relating to the final few months of his work.

Travelling People

Julie Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the number of unauthorised Gypsy Traveller caravans on unauthorised (a) developments and (b) encampments. [131235]

Meg Munn: The Department for Communities and Local Government publishes data on the number of Gypsy and Traveller caravans on authorised public and private sites, and unauthorised encampments and developments twice yearly. Copies of the latest publication "Count of Gypsy Caravans on 19 July 2006: Last Five Counts" have been distributed to the Libraries of the House. An electronic version is also available on the Department's website at http://www.communities.gov.uk/index.asp?id=1153575

Valuation Office: Databases

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) how much funding her Department and its predecessor has provided to the Valuebill project since its inception; and how much will be provided in the next 12 months; [129710]

(2) what the timetable is for the rollout of the Valuebill project; and how many local authorities are participating in Valuebill. [129760]

Ruth Kelly: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister allocated £2,660,950 of start up funding to the Valuebill project between 2002 and 2005 through the local e-government national projects programme. No further funding has been provided by my Department since then or will be provided in the next twelve months.

Lead responsibility for Valuebill rested initially with the London borough of Newham and now rests with London Connects. My Department does not hold information on the number of local authorities who are currently making use of Valuebill or when and if others may participate in the project. We are however aware of positive outcomes in participating authorities in terms of improved address data and the more timely billing, improved cash flow and reduced debt chasing that flows from that.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Legal Aid

26. Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how her Department's plans to reform the legal aid system reflect the advice contained in the Otterburn report on criminal legal aid. [131531]

33. Mr. Leech: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what plans she has to reform the legal aid system to reflect the recommendations contained in the Otterburn report on criminal legal aid. [131538]

Vera Baird: The Government presented their plans for legal aid reform on 28 November last year.

The reform programme took account of over 2,000 responses to consultation, over 25 meetings which I had personally with legal aid practitioners as well as the conclusions of Mr. Otterburn's report to the LSC.

In the light of everything that was presented to us the Government made changes to the timing, sequencing and detail of a number of Lord Carter's original recommendations for legal aid reform.

The Government continue to consider and to take into account all evidence and consultation responses as we move forward on the detailed elements of our reform programme.

28. John Robertson: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what assessment she has made of trends in the number of cases brought by offenders with custodial sentences which attract legal aid; and if she will make a statement. [131533]

Vera Baird: The eligibility for legal aid of those serving custodial sentences is no different from other members of society. Individuals will be eligible for legal aid if the matter is within scope and the individual satisfies the means test. There is therefore no specific monitoring of cases brought by those serving custodial sentences.

However, some form of legal aid is available exclusively to those serving custodial sentences. This is to cover advocacy assistance at prison discipline hearings and parole board hearings. The volume of cases where advice and assistance has been provided has risen from 11,263 in 2002-03 to 20,186 in 2005-06.

29. Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs when she next plans to meet representatives of the legal profession to discuss proposed changes to legal aid. [131534]

31. Mr. Harper: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs when she next plans to meet representatives of the legal profession to discuss proposed changes to legal aid. [131536]

Vera Baird: My Department and the Legal Services Commission regularly meet with legal aid practitioners as part of the ongoing consultations on the detail of implementation, and to discuss aspects of the reform programme.

Lyn Brown: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what representations she has received on the eligibility for legal aid in criminal cases. [131528]

Vera Baird: Since the introduction of the new means test for criminal legal aid representation in the magistrates courts, which came into effect on 2 October 2006, I have received approximately 75 written representations from MPs, solicitors and members of the public, about eligibility for criminal legal aid.

Magistrates Courts

27. Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what change is planned to the number of magistrates courts in 2007; and if she will make a statement. [131532]

Ms Harman: There are 360 magistrates courts in England and Wales. We are currently reviewing the provision of courts across England and Wales to consider access to justice, the most efficient use of public monies and the condition and facilities within courthouses.

Electoral Register

30. Dr. Whitehead: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs if she will take steps to place a duty on electoral registration officers to use all available databases to compile the electoral register. [131535]

Bridget Prentice: The Electoral Administration Act 2006 introduced a new duty to help Electoral Registration Officers (EROs) increase registration rates and compile a more accurate register. This duty includes:

Sending the annual canvass form more than once to any address;

Making house to house inquiries on one or more occasions; and Inspecting any records that the ERO is permitted to inspect, such as council tax and housing databases.

And the good news for democracy is that the new duty is making a difference. I am pleased to say that as of 1 December 2006, the number of registered electors in the UK has increased by just over half a million.

Mediation

32. Kali Mountford: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what plans she has to encourage parents to go to mediation instead of court to resolve disputes over their children. [131537]

Ms Harman: The Government are committed to encouraging greater use of family mediation. We have established the Family Mediation Helpline and supporting website, sponsored a public awareness campaign, are facilitating judicial awareness seminars and supporting in-court referral schemes.

Provisions of the Children and Adoption Act 2006 will enable the court to direct parties in child contact disputes to attend a meeting about mediation. Referrals will also be encouraged through changes to court rules and court forms, particularly in relation to disputes over children.

Constitutions: Channel Islands

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs whether the Channel Islands are part of the United Kingdom; and what their constitutional status is. [131746]

Bridget Prentice: The Channel Islands are not part of the United Kingdom. They are self-governing dependencies of the Crown, which—acting through its Privy Council—is responsible for their good governance. The UK is responsible for their defence and international relations, but the Channel Islands have their own directly elected legislative assemblies, administrative and fiscal systems and courts of law, and UK legislation does not apply to them unless specifically extended.

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what rights and responsibilities are enjoyed by the Channel Islands under the terms of their relationship with the EU under Protocol 3 of the UK's treaty of accession. [131747]

Bridget Prentice: Under Protocol 3 of the UK's Treaty of Accession, the Channel Islands are part of the customs territory of the European Union. Consequently, the common customs tariff, levies and agricultural import measures apply to trade between the Islands and non-member countries. There is free movement of goods between the Islands and the member countries. Other Community Rules do not generally apply.

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what rights and responsibilities are enjoyed by the Channel Islands under the terms of their relationship with the UK. [131748]

Bridget Prentice: The UK is constitutionally responsible for the defence and international representation of the Channel Islands. The Channel Islands make annual voluntary contributions towards the cost. As a more general principle, the Channel Islands have a right to respect for their autonomy in domestic affairs and a responsibility to give all reasonable assistance and co-operation to the UK in the exercise of its domestic and international responsibilities. The UK in turn has a right to expect this co-operation, and a responsibility to give all reasonable assistance to the Islands, and to respect their autonomy and work for its preservation. The most recent statement of the relationship between the UK and the Channel Islands is to be found in Part XI of Volume 1 of the Report of the Royal Commission on the Constitution (1973).

Courts: Pay

Keith Vaz: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what estimate she has made of the rate of local court staff turnover following implementation of the new pay system, broken down by region. [128608]

Ms Harman: The ongoing negotiations with the Trade Unions address a range of important issues, including how the new pay system will better enable the department to retain court staff. I will write to my right hon. Friend once the negotiations have been concluded.

Departments: Pressure Groups

Departments: Redundancy

Justine Greening: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many people in her Department and its predecessor participated in (a) involuntary and (b) voluntary staff exit schemes in each year since 1997-98; and if she will make a statement. [131541]

Ms Harman: The information is as follows:

(a) There have been no involuntary staff exit schemes since 1997-98.

(b) The number of employees who have taken voluntary early departure since 1997-98 is set out in the following table. These figures are for the period 1 April to 31 March.

	Early Retirement	Early Severance
1997	118	251
1998	24	45
1999	3	0
2000	2	1
2001	0	0
2002	0	0
2003	0	0
2006	76	58

Justine Greening: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many people in her Department and its predecessor who participated in (a) involuntary and (b) voluntary staff exit schemes in each year since 1997-98 were paid between (i) £0 to £25,000, (ii) £25,001 to £50,000, (iii) £50,001 to £75,000, (iv) £75,001 to £100,000 and (v) over £100,000; and if she will make a statement. [131561]

Ms Harman: The information is as follows:

(a) There have been no payments made in respect of involuntary staff exit schemes since 1997-98.

(b) Information about redundancy costs for staff who left between 1997 and 2005 is not held centrally since departures were managed and funded locally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. Information is available for the voluntary early departure schemes that were undertaken during 2006 to contribute towards the Department's Gershon efficiency target. This information is set out in the following table. These costs relate to the cost to the department which are higher than the payments individuals leaving on early retirement terms receive, as the department is liable for the cost of enhancement to pension and the cost of early payment of the lump sum.

April 2006-March 2007

	Early Retirement	Early Severance
£0 to £25,000	16	14
£25,001 to £50,000	9	12
£50,001 to £75,000	12	10
£75,001 to £100,000	10	10
Over £100,000	29	12

Lord Chancellor's Department: Official Residences

Mr. Heald: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many functions have taken place at a cost to the public purse in the Lord Chancellor's official residence since the Lord Chancellor took up residence; and what the occasion was of each function which incurred a cost to the public purse. [129843]

Ms Harman: Since taking up residence on 11 October 2006, there have been 16 official functions at a cost to the public purse. All functions comply with section 4.2 of the Ministerial Code.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Olympic Games

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate she has made of the amount to be paid by taxpayers outside London towards the Olympics. [126638]

Tessa Jowell: I refer my hon. Friend to my statement of 15 March 2007 where I set out that up to £6.0 billion (including £2.7 billion of programme contingency funding) was being provided from the Exchequer to support the Olympic park, infrastructure and regeneration. This includes around £840 million to meet the Olympic Delivery Authority's liability for value added tax.

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the annual expenditure profile is of the revised Olympics budget. [131408]

Tessa Jowell: This will be detailed in the Olympic Delivery Authority's Corporate Plan which they are currently developing and which they plan to publish by the end of the summer.

Mr. Andy Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment she has made of the effect of the additional funding for elite athletes for the Olympic and Paralympic games in 2012 since it was announced in the 2006 Budget. [131675]

Mr. Caborn: The additional funding for elite sport, which was made available from 1 April last year, has enabled UK Sport to increase significantly the level of support for all Olympic and Paralympic sports (except football and tennis). In particular, it has allowed UK Sport to support those Olympic and Paralympic sports which had not previously received any high performance investment, including hockey, volleyball and handball.

While it is too soon to link the additional investment to recent successes, it is clear that this enhanced level of support is beginning to bear fruit. For example, since the additional investment was made available:

11 out of 12 sports with performance medal targets for their major championship either met or exceeded their medal count, agreed with UK Sport.

In the 11 sports which competed at world championship level in 2006, 23 medals were won in Olympic disciplines, including six world champions.

Particular successes include the British Paralympic swimming team, which came first in the medal table in the 2006 IPC World Swimming Championships in South Africa, and the British cycling squad who finished top of the medal table at the recent UCI World Track Cycling Championships in Mallorca, winning a total of 11 medals, seven of which were gold. Team GB also came first in the medal table at the 29th European Indoor Athletics Championships in Birmingham with a haul of 10 medals, including four golds.

UK Sport's investment strategy is also having a major impact on the professionalism and governance of British Olympic and Paralympic sports. At the time of the Budget announcement, UK Sport introduced a series of 'Funding Triggers' aimed at ensuring that the National Governing Bodies are all 'fit for purpose' to receive public funding and that the sport is able to deliver its agreed targets.

Television: Broadcasting Reception

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent discussions she has had with the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on the account taken of the impact of new development on television reception in the planning system. [131667]

Mr. Woodward [holding answer 16 April 2007]: There has been no recent discussion with the Department for Communities and Local Government on this matter.

Guidance to local planning authorities on this issue can be found in Planning Policy Guidance 8 (PPG 8): Telecommunications and is available from the Department for Communities and Local Government. This is supplemented by guidance available from the BBC, Ofcom and the transmission operators.

DEFENCE

Armed Forces: Discharges

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the outflow was from the regular Army for each year since 2001, broken down by (a) rank of officer and (b) other ranks. [131696]

Derek Twigg: The information requested is as follows:

1 Figures show all outflow from Army UK Regular Forces including recalled reservists on release and outflow to the Home Service battalions of the Royal Irish Regiment. Figures do not include promotion from ranks to officer or crossflows into Royal Navy or Royal Air Force.
2 Annual rates are calculated by taking the number of exits as a percentage of the average trained strength (defined as a 13-month rolling average of the trained strength in the individual months) of each rank (or totals thereof).
Note:
Due to the founding methods used, totals may not always equal the sum of the parts. When founding to the nearest 10, numbers ending in five have been rounded to the nearest multiple of 20 to prevent systematic bias. Percentages are calculated from unrounded figures.

Army: Official Hospitality

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how much was spent on entertainment by the Chief of the General Staff in (a) 2005 and (b) 2006, broken down by event; [118171]

(2) how much was spent on entertainment by the Adjutant General in (a) 2005 and (b) 2006, broken down by event. [118172]

Derek Twigg: The Chief of the General Staff and his immediate predecessor incurred £22,378.03 of expenditure for official entertainment in 2005 and £21,214.25 in 2006. This includes the cost of hotel accommodation for visiting dignitaries and their immediate staff where appropriate. The events were:

Type 45 Destroyers

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence by when he expects to agree an acceptable price for the seventh and eighth Type 45 destroyers. [131769]

Mr. Ingram: No decision has yet been made to order the seventh and eighth Type 45 destroyers. A number of factors will be taken into account as part of the decision making process including affordability, value-for-money, and the wider context of the Defence Industrial Strategy.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Civil Servants: Conduct

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many civil servants have been found to be in breach of Civil Service Code provisions relating to dealings with Parliament since 1997; and if she will make a statement. [131160]

Hilary Armstrong: Information is not collected in the format requested.

Delivery Unit

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster which Government (a) projects and (b) policy areas her Delivery Unit is reviewing. [131343]

Hilary Armstrong: The Prime Minister's Delivery Unit works in partnership with No. 10, other parts of the Cabinet Office, the Treasury and stakeholder departments, to assess delivery of PSA targets on Health, Education, Home Affairs, and Local Area Agreements. The Unit also provides performance management for key delivery areas.

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if she will list the names of all delivery teams in the Prime Minister's Delivery Unit. [131344]

Hilary Armstrong: The Unit has worked most closely with the Department of Health, Home Office, Department for Constitutional Affairs, the Department for Education and Skills and Communities and Local Government. Accordingly, the Unit's current delivery teams are organised around the following policy areas:

Justice
Asylum and Migration
Local Area Agreements
Health Education

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster which projects the Prime Minister's Delivery Unit's Commissioned Projects Team has reviewed in the last 12 months. [131346]

Hilary Armstrong: The PMDU commissioned project team organised the two Public Service Reform conferences hosted by the Prime Minister and Cabinet Ministers in June 2006 and March 2007, and assisted other government departments to support them in delivering education, health, home affairs and social exclusion targets and to facilitate cross government working more generally.

Departments: Public Appointments

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if she will list the former hon. Members who left Parliament in 2005 who have since been appointed to public bodies by her Department, broken down by party; and who was responsible for making each appointment. [130148]

Hilary Armstrong: Information about the political activity of appointees is recorded and publicised in accordance with the independent Commissioner for Public Appointments' Code of Practice. This shows that the following former hon. Member who left Parliament in 2005 has since been appointed to a public body now sponsored by the Cabinet Office. The information requested is shown in the table.

Name:
Chris Pond

Party:
Labour

Appointing authority:
Secretary of State for the Home Office

Departments: Redundancy

Justine Greening: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many people in her Office who participated in (a) involuntary and (b) voluntary staff exit schemes in each year since 1997-98 were paid between (i) £0 to £25,000, (ii) £25,001 to £50,000, (iii) £50,001 to £75,000, (iv) £75,001 to £100,000 and (v) over £100,000; and if she will make a statement. [131556]

Hilary Armstrong: The Cabinet Office, which includes the Prime Minister's Office, approved departures under voluntary exit schemes in each of the financial years since 1997 as follows:

1 April to 31 March:	Number of employees
1997-98	0
1998-99	0
1999-2000	4
2000-01	6
2001-02	3
2002-03	10
2003-04	35
2004-05	1
2005-06	4
2006-07	1
Total	64

The Cabinet Office has not held involuntary exit schemes in any of these years.

The Cabinet Office aims to ensure that it has a diverse and skilled workforce to meet its business needs. Voluntary departures schemes are one of the tools it uses, as an alternative to redundancy, to reduce headcount, to refresh skills and to tackle staff surpluses. The criteria for such schemes are governed by the Civil Service Compensation Scheme, which provides compensation to civil servants who leave via an exit scheme before their pension age.

Information on costs of voluntary departure schemes is available only at disproportionate cost.

Social Exclusion

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what recent discussions she has had with the Secretary of State for Education and Skills on tackling social exclusion. [131402]

Hilary Armstrong: I have regular discussions with all my ministerial colleagues at the Department for Education and Skills (DFES). The Social Exclusion Task Force works closely with DFES on many of its initiatives to tackle exclusion. Currently, DFES is making an important contribution to the Nurse-Family Partnership pilots, which are testing a model of early identification and preventive health led intensive home visiting as a means to reduce the risk of social exclusion in later life.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Children's Centres

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the criteria are for deciding the location of children's centres; and whether he expects such centres to be established in (a) Eastbourne and (b) East Sussex. [131419]

Beverley Hughes: Local authorities have been issued with planning guidance that sets out the criteria for the location of children's centres. We have asked them to ensure that all children under five in the 30 per cent. most disadvantaged areas of England have access to integrated Sure Start services by 2008. These areas are defined by super output areas as developed by the Office for National Statistics. The exact location within these areas is determined by local authorities in consultation with local partners. When appropriate plans have been made to serve the most disadvantaged areas with children's centre services, the local authority then has the flexibility to decide where to locate further centres according to the resources available.

There are currently 10 designated children's centres in East Sussex, including two in Eastbourne. By 2010 there will be a children's centre serving every community in England.

Children's Centres: Curriculum

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to his answer of 27 March 2007, Official Report, column 1391W, on children's centres, on what grounds he decided that (a) history, (b) geography, (c) science, (d) design and technology, (e) citizenship and (f) personal, social and health education were content heavy. [131272]

Jim Knight: Prior to asking the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA) to review the secondary curriculum, the clear view of subject communities and those involved with young people reported that they wanted to see less content in history, geography, science, design and technology, citizenship and personal, social and health education. The QCA also expressed the view that the programmes of study in those subjects were too prescriptive.

City Academies

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what (a) meetings and (b) correspondence took place between his Department and the Prime Minister's Office on the target for academies to be created by 2010 prior to the Prime Minister's announcement on 30 November 2006 that the target was being doubled from 200 to 400 by 2010. [131294]

Jim Knight: There was a range of discussions and correspondence between the Department and the Prime Minister's office, prior to this announcement.

Class Sizes

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many and what proportion of (a) Key Stage 1 and (b) Key Stage 2 pupils were taught in classes of (i) 29-30 and (ii) over 30 in each year since 1997. [131289]

Departments: Databases

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what databases are controlled by his Department and its agencies; and what percentage of the data in each database he estimates is inaccurate or out of date. [124040]

Mr. Dhanda: The information as requested is not readily available centrally within the Department for Education and Skills. To respond fully would involve an extensive internal and external information collection exercise which would exceed the recommended disproportionate cost threshold.

Departments: Redundancy

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how many people in his Department participated in (a) involuntary and (b) voluntary staff exit schemes in each year since 1997-98; and if he will make a statement; [131543]

(2) how many people in his Department who participated in (a) involuntary and (b) voluntary staff exit schemes in each year since 1997-98 were paid between (i) £0 to £25,000, (ii) £25,001 to £50,000, (iii) £50,001 to £75,000, (iv) £75,001 to £100,000 and (v) over £100,000; and if he will make a statement. [131563]

Mr. Dhanda: There have been no involuntary exit schemes in the Department since 1997 and we remain committed to minimising recourse to compulsory redundancies. The Department has managed part of its staff reductions through voluntary early releases.

From the 1997-98 financial year to the end of the 2006-07 financial year, the total number of such releases were as follows:

	Number of releases
1997-98	101
1998-99	51
1999-00	50
2000-01	61
2001-02	84
2002-03	57
2003-04	28
2004-05	332
2005-06	204
2006-07	156

Information on individual voluntary exit scheme payments to staff for each of those years is not available in the form requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Education Maintenance Allowance: North East Region

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what percentage of young people in (a) Hartlepool constituency and (b) Tees Valley sub-region received (i) £30, (ii) £20 and (iii) £10 in education maintenance allowance in each year since the scheme began; [129785]

(2) what percentage of young people in (a) Hartlepool constituency and (b) Tees Valley sub-region received education maintenance allowance in each year since the scheme began. [129787]

Phil Hope: These are matters for the Learning and Skills Council, who operate the education maintenance allowance (EMA) scheme for the DfES and hold the information about take-up and payments made under the scheme. Mark Haysom, the council's chief executive, has written to my hon. Friend with the information requested and a copy of his reply has been placed in the Library.

Letter from Mark Haysom, dated 11 April 2007:

I am writing in response to your recent Parliamentary Questions that asked:

"What percentage of young people in (a) Hartlepool constituency and (b) Tees Valley sub-region received (i) 30, (ii) 20 and (iii) 10 in education maintenance allowance in each year since the scheme began" and; "What percentage of young people in (a) Hartlepool constituency and (b) Tees Valley sub-region received education maintenance allowance in each year since the scheme began?"

Information on the number of young people who have applied, enrolled and received Education Maintenance Allowance (EMA) is available at Local Authority Level, but not at constituency level. EMA take-up is defined as young people who have received one or more EMA payments in the academic year.

The following tables show EMA take-up data split by payment band for Hartlepool Local Authority area and Tees Valley LSC during each academic year since the scheme's inception.

In the first year of national roll out EMA was available to all 16 year olds across England and to 17 and 18 year olds in former pilot areas (young people who are 19 are entitled to receive EMA in certain circumstances). In 2005/06 EMA roll out continued and EMA was available to all 16 and 17 year olds nationally. In 2006/07 EMA is available to all 16, 17 and 18 year olds nationally. In calculating the percentage of young people receiving EMA only take up and population figures for age groups where EMA was available nationally have been used. The fall-off in later years reflects that age groups are included that are less likely to be in education.

The following table shows the percentage of young people receiving EMA in Hartlepool Local Authority area and Tees Valley LSC during each academic year since national roll out.

Percentage of population receiving EMA in each academic year

	Hartlepool	Tees Valley
2004/05 (16 year olds only)	45	40
2005/06 (16 and 17 year olds)	41	37
2006/07 to end February (16, 17 and 18 year olds)	37	32

I hope this information is useful and addresses your question.

Education: Finance

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much was spent on (a) primary and (b) secondary school education in (i) Hartlepool constituency, (ii) the Tees Valley sub-region, (iii) the North East region and (iv) England in each year since 1992. [130910]

Jim Knight: Hartlepool constituency falls within the Hartlepool local education authority. The information requested is shown in the following tables.

Notes

1. Expenditure was not distinguished between the pre-primary and primary sectors until the inception of section 52 for financial year 1999-2000. School based expenditure in local authority maintained nursery schools was not recorded in 2002-03 and comparable figures are not available for 2003-04 onwards.

2. School-based expenditure includes only expenditure incurred directly by the schools. This includes the pay of teachers and school-based support staff, school premises costs, books and equipment, and certain other supplies and services, less any capital items funded from recurrent spending and income from sales, fees and charges and rents and rates. This excludes the central cost of support services such as home to school transport, local authority administration and the financing of capital expenditure. Central local authority expenditure cannot, in all cases, be attributed to a particular phase of education and consequently is excluded from the tables.

3. 1999-2000 saw a change in data source when the data collection moved from the RO1 form collected by the ODPM to the section 52 form from the DfES. 2002-03 saw a further break in the time series following the introduction of Consistent Financial Reporting (CFR) and the associated restructuring of the outturn tables. The change in sources is shown by the blank row.

4. The calculation for 2002-03 onwards is broadly similar to the calculation in previous years. However, 2001-02 and earlier years includes all premature retirement compensation (PRC) and Crombie payments, mandatory PRC payments and other indirect employee expenses. In 2001-02, this accounted for approximately £70 per pupil. From 2002-03 onwards, only the schools element of these categories is included and this accounted for approximately £50 per pupil of the 2002-03 total. Also, for some local authorities, expenditure that had previously been attributed to the school sectors was reported within the central local authority part of the form from 2002-03, though this is not quantifiable from existing sources.

5. Local government reorganisation (LGR) prior to the 1996-97 financial year in the county of Cleveland resulted in the creation of four new unitary local authorities (Hartlepool, Middlesbrough, Redcar and Cleveland, and Stockton-on-Tees). Consequently figures for Hartlepool LA are not available prior to 1996-97.

6. The Tees Valley sub-region comprises of the four unitary authorities created by the local government reorganisation of the county of Cleveland in 1996 (namely Hartlepool, Middlesbrough, Redcar and Cleveland, and Stockton-on-Tees LAs) along with the borough of Darlington which became a unitary authority in 1997. Consequently figures for the Tees Valley sub-region are not available prior to the 1997-98 financial year.

7. Spending in 1997-98 reflects the transfer of monies from local government to central Government for the nursery vouchers scheme. These were returned to local government from 1998-99.

8. The 1999-2000 figures reflect the return of grant maintained schools to local authority maintenance.

9. Figures are rounded to the nearest £1,000. Cash terms figures as reported by local authorities as at 2 April 2007.

Educational Attainment

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many pupils at the end of key stage 4 attending (a) maintained secondary schools and (b) independent secondary schools achieved each grade in GCSE (i) English, (ii) mathematics, (iii) a modern foreign language, (iv) history and (v) geography in each year since 1996. [117653]

Jim Knight: This information has been placed in the House Library.

English Language: Asylum

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many failed asylum seekers took English for Speakers of Other Languages courses in each London borough in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [130991]

Bill Rammell: Currently all English for Speakers of Other Languages learners are eligible for full fee remittance and this includes asylum seekers. However, those refused asylum and not granted leave to remain are not eligible for Learning and Skills Council funded provision.

Extended Schools: Tees Valley

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many schools in (a) Hartlepool constituency and (b) Tees Valley sub region offer extended hours; what activities are provided in the schools offering extended hours; and if he will make a statement. [131361]

Jim Knight: There are five primary schools and three secondary schools in the constituency of Hartlepool providing access to the extended schools full core offer of services. In the Tees Valley area there are 104 primary schools and 31 secondary schools providing access to the full core offer of services. The core offer includes primary schools providing access to childcare from 8 am to 6 pm all year round in response to demand, all schools offering access to a range of study support activities beyond the school day, parenting support, swift and easy referral and opening up facilities to the wider community.

As well as the schools already delivering the extended schools full core offer, a further seven primary schools in Hartlepool and 37 primary schools in the Tees Valley provide access to childcare and a further 27 schools in Hartlepool and 55 schools in the Tees Valley provide access to a varied menu of study support activities. The Department does not collect data on the range of study support activities but these typically include homework clubs, sporting activities, music and drama clubs.

By 2010 all schools in England will be offering the extended school core offer of services.

Free School Meals

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment he has made of the reliability of free school meal take-up rates as an indicator of the level of deprivation among pupils within a school; and if he will make a statement. [131590]

Mr. Dhanda: Free school meal rates give a broad indication of the level of deprivation among pupils attending a particular school. FSM information is collected by schools and accurately records pupils who are known by the school to be eligible for and claiming free school meals. The criteria for FSM eligibility are consistent across schools nationally.

When assessing the level of deprivation among pupils within schools, the Department makes use of a range of different deprivation indicators. free school meals is an important indicator because it is the only one which reflects the actual home situation of individual pupils. Other indicators of deprivation, such as the Index of Multiple Deprivation, the Income Deprivation Affecting Children Index (IDACI), or ACORN categories, cannot directly identify pupils who are living in deprived households as they are only available on an "area" basis. These other indicators are used by linking to pupils indirectly through their home postcodes, and therefore can only reflect the extent to which pupils live in deprived areas.

In certain contexts such as the calculation of contextual value added scores in the achievement and attainment tables, FSM is used together with an area-based indicator (IDACI) so that the two indicators together give a rounded picture of the levels of deprivation affecting each school.

Further Education

Mr. Blunkett: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the successful completion rate was for further education courses in each year from 2001 to 2006. [131159]

Bill Rammell: Success rates for LSC-funded provision delivered through FE colleges and external institutions are detailed in the following table. Data for 2005/06 are not yet available but will be published later this month.

	Percentage
	FE colleges	External institutions
2000/01	59	57
2001/02	65	61
2002/03	68	62
2003/04	72	65
2004/05	75	66

Targets for FE college learner success rates have been set at 76 per cent. by 2007/08 with a further stretch to 80 per cent. by 2010/11.

Success rates for LSC-funded work-based learning (WBL) courses are shown in the following table. Again, data for 2005/06 will be published later this month.

	Work-based learning (Percentage)

n/a = Not available.

Data on successful completion rates are not available for adult and community learning or for school sixth forms.

GCE A Level: Classics

Mr. Quentin Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which maintained secondary schools in England offer A level courses in (a) Latin and (b) Ancient Greek; and if he will make a statement. [127981]

Jim Knight: The information required to answer the question is not available.

GCSE

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to the answer of 6 March 2007, Official Report, column 1912, on languages, how many of the schools that entered no pupils for a GCSE in history and geography entered a pupil for a GCSE in humanities. [126831]

Jim Knight: The following table lists the maintained mainstream schools where no pupils at the end of Key Stage 4 (KS4) were entered at GCSE in history and geography but did enter pupils in humanities and gives the number of pupils entered for humanities as well as the number at the end of KS4 who attended these schools in 2006.

Data for 2006 are revised.

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills, pursuant to the answer of 6 March 2007, Official Report, column 1912W, on languages, which of the schools that entered no pupils for a GCSE in history or geography also entered no pupils for a GCSE in humanities. [126832]

Jim Knight: The following table lists the maintained mainstream schools where no pupils at the end of Key Stage 4 (KS4) were entered at GCSE in history and humanities or no pupils at the end of Key Stage 4 (KS4) were entered at GCSE in geography and humanities and gives the number of pupils entered for history and geography and the number at the end of KS4 who attended these schools in 2006.

Data for 2006 are revised.

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many maintained schools did not enter any pupils for a GCSE in (a) English, (b) mathematics, (c) history, (d) geography, (e) biology, (f) chemistry and (g) physics in each year between 1997 and 2006. [119021]

Jim Knight: The answer to this request is in the following table.

Number of maintained mainstream schools who did not enter any 15 year old pupils for GCSEs in English, mathematics, history, geography, biology, chemistry and physics by subject and year

	1996	1997	1998	1999	2000	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006

Headteachers: Pay

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to the answer of 26 March 2007, Official Report, column 1286W, on head teachers' pay, whether his Department holds information on the salaries of teaching staff and school leaders in academies. [131786]

Jim Knight: The DfES does not hold information on academy teaching staff, school leader or principals' salaries as these are matters for academy governors to resolve as independent schools with their principals. We are aware that head teachers' salaries in academies tend to be higher as they expect to recruit experienced head teachers and the challenges they can face are often immense. Sometimes, academy principal salaries are identified in advertisements and in March 2007 there were two academy principal posts currently advertised with identified salaries. These were in Sheffield, which offered a salary of £80,000 and in Darlington, which offered a salary "circa £85,000".

Higher Education: Admissions

Mr. Blunkett: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what proportion of higher education students was drawn from low participation neighbourhoods in (a) 1997, (b) 2001 and (c) 2005; [131155]

(2) how many students at English Russell Group universities were drawn from state schools in (a) 1997 and (b) 2006. [131156]

Bill Rammell: The latest available information on entrants from low participation neighbourhoods is shown in the following table:

Proportion of UK-domiciled young entrants to full-time first degree courses at higher education institutions in England, who are from low participation neighbourhoods

Academic year	Proportion from low participation neighbourhoods
1997/98	11.4
2001/02	12.4
2004/05	13.1

Source:
'Performance Indicators in Higher Education' published by HESA

The 2005/06 figure will become available by the end of July 2007.

Estimates of the numbers of entrants to English Russell Group institutions from state schools can be derived from the state schools performance indicator in higher education. The latest available information is shown in the following table:

Number of UK-domiciled young entrants to full-time first degree courses at Russell Group Institutions in England, who are from state schools

Academic year	Number from schools
1997/98	27,225
2004/05	35,975

Note:
Numbers are rounded to the nearest five.

2005/06 figures will become available by the end of July 2007, and 2006/07 figures will become available in 2008.

Higher Education: Scholarships

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what the expected cost is of fee loans and fee grants for full-time students on undergraduate degrees linked to Higher Education Funding Council for England and Training and Development Agency-funded provision in 2007-08; [131579]

(2) what the planned cash cost is of maintenance income contingent loans for full-time higher education students in England in 2007-08; [131581]

(3) what the planned cash cost is of grants for (a) full-time and (b) part-time undergraduate students in England in 2007-08. [131582]

Bill Rammell: Planned expenditure on student support in FY 2007-08 is shown in the following tables. Figures are based on current policies and relate to support provided to English domiciled students studying in UK institutions, and EU students studying in English institutions. Table 1 refers to full-time students: Table 2 refers to part-time students.

Table 1: 2007-08 Full-time support planned expenditure (figures rounded to the nearest £10 million)

Full-time support type[1, 2]	FY 2007-08 (£ million)
1. All grants[3]	860
Of which:
Tuition fee grant[4]	160
2. Fee loan RAB cost[5]	350
or as cash cost[6]	1,060
3. Maintenance loan RAB cost[5]	580
or as cash cost[6]	2,740

[1] All figures cover full-time undergraduates, but also PGCE students and part-time initial teacher training students.
[2] All figures consistent with those published in the departmental annual report—2006.
[3] Includes maintenance grant, higher education grant, tuition fee grant, special support grant, childcare grant, parents learning allowance and disabled student allowances.
[4] Tuition fee grants are only available to students entering HE prior to 2006/07.
[5] The cost to the public purse represents the resource cost of providing loans. This is based on the RAB charge, which is an estimate of the percentage of the face value of loans (issued in a given year) which reflects the true cost to the government over the expected life of the loan.
[6] Cash outlay figures refer to the total value of funds made available to students through loans.

Table 2: 2007-08 Part-time support costs (figures rounded to the nearest £10 million)

Part-time support	FY 2007-08 (£ million)
4 Part-time grants[1, 2, 3]	60

[1] Includes course grants and fee grants.
[2] Figure covers part time undergraduates (excluding students on part-time ITT courses and PGCE courses).
[3] Figure consistent with those published in the departmental annual report—2006.

Primary Education: Assessments

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many national tests a primary school pupil takes between the ages of five and 11. [131284]

Jim Knight: Primary schools are required to administer national curriculum tests at the end of key stages 1 and 2, which for most pupils is at ages seven and 11.

During the final year in key stage 1, teachers are required to administer at least one task or test in reading, writing and mathematics to pupils who are working at national curriculum level 1 or above. The outcomes of those tasks and tests are used to underpin teacher assessment and feed into a single overarching teacher judgment rather than being reported separately. The arrangements are flexible: teachers must administer sufficient tasks and tests to help them to arrive at a secure judgment, and time limits are not specified for tasks and tests, which can be taken at any time during the school year.

In the final year of key stage 2, schools are required to administer three tests to pupils working at level 3 or above, consisting of the following papers:

English—three test papers: writing (shorter task), and spelling, writing (longer task); and reading;

Mathematics—three test papers, one of which is a mental mathematics test;

Science—two test papers.

The tests in key stage 2 take in total five hours 20 minutes to complete.

School Leaving

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many 16 to 18-year-olds were not in education, employment or training in the 10 per cent. of local education authorities with the (a) highest and (b) lowest levels of free school meal entitlement in (i) 1997 and (ii) 2006. [131289]

Jim Knight: The following table gives the estimated number and percentage of 16 to 18-year-olds not in education, employment or training (NEET) in the 10 per cent. of local authorities with the (a) highest and (b) lowest levels of free school meal entitlement between November 2005 and January 2006. Data on NEET to the local authority area are not available for 1997.

Estimated number and percentage of 16 to 18-year-olds in (a) highest and (b) lowest 10 per cent. of local authorities by free school meal entitlement who were not in education, employment or training (NEET), November 2005 to January 2006

[1] Secondary Schools, January 2006

These figures are drawn from the operational client management systems maintained by Connexions services. It only includes those people known to the service (about 85 per cent. of the population); some young people who attended independent schools or were at school outside England are excluded. The age relates to those of calendar year age 16-18 on the date of measurement.

This NEET measure is that used for setting and monitoring local authority performance. The definition differs from that used to measure the national departmental PSA NEET target. Along with not covering the entire population, the Connexions NEET measure excludes those on gap years, or in custody. The PSA measure is for academic rather than calendar age 16-18.

Schools: Admissions

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what support he is providing to local authorities who wish to pilot anonymised admissions procedures. [130742]

Jim Knight: During debate on the Education and Inspections Act, we supported the suggestion that local authorities or other third parties might assess applications for school places on behalf of admission authorities in the area, with their agreement. Officials have now met local authorities who expressed an interest in piloting the 'admissions administration' approach, and two have taken this interest further and are discussing the idea locally. Limited funding may be available to cover implementation costs, and the Department's officials have asked for details of what these might be.

Schools: Intimidation

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills whether he has issued guidance to schools on the supervision of changing rooms for the purposes of combating bullying. [131677]

Jim Knight: The Department's current anti-bullying guidance, "Don't Suffer in Silence", advises schools to work with pupils to map the places on the school premises where bullying occurs. This enables schools to improve the school environment and reduce the potential for incidents of bullying to occur. The guidance is currently being revised and, as part of that process, we will look at how we might strengthen its advice.

The Department's forthcoming guidance on cyberbullying will include more specific advice on the supervision of changing rooms, and the use of mobile phones in these settings.

Science: Teachers

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many of the 7,500 new science teachers hired in 2005 referred to in the Prime Minister's speech Our Nation's Future—Science in November 2006 are specialists in (a) physics, (b) chemistry and (c) biology. [130478]

Jim Knight: The 7,500 referred to in the Prime Minister's speech, "Our Nation's Future—Science", is the number of trainees registered to enter mainstream[1] science, technology, engineering and mathematics Initial Teacher Training (ITT) courses in the academic year 2005/06. The breakdown of science courses into the individual specialisms was not available prior to 2006/07. Provisional data for recruitment to ITT courses in 2006/07 were published in January 2007 and are available at: http://www.dfes.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000681/index.shtml

[1] Mainstream ITT providers include Universities and other Higher Education Institutions, SCITT and OU, but excludes employment based routes

Secondary Education: Curriculum

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) pursuant to his answer of 27 March 2007, Official Report, columns 1406-7W, on secondary education: curriculum, how many parents will be invited to attend the regional events on the secondary curriculum review; [131270]

(2) which local authorities have been asked to host the regional events for parents on the secondary curriculum review. [131271]

Jim Knight: The Qualifications and Curriculum Authority, working with St. Martins College, held events for parents in Sandwell on 16 March 2007 and in Bristol on 22 March 2007. The two local authorities asked schools to invite parents to take part in the events.

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to his answer of 27 March 2007, Official Report, column 1407W, on secondary education: curriculum, whether the Director of Curriculum produced a report on his visit to South Africa. [131277]

Jim Knight: The Director of Curriculum visited South Africa at the request of the Western Cape Education Department. He provided a verbal report to the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority Chief Executive and relevant colleagues.

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what scientifically based research was (a) commissioned, (b) produced and (c) consulted by the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority on the approach to the curriculum adopted in the secondary curriculum review. [131285]

Jim Knight: The Qualifications and Curriculum Authority's (QCA) approach to the curriculum adopted in the secondary curriculum review is built on evidence from ongoing work with schools and colleges. The 'futures in action' programme, which has been running since 2005, has continued to demonstrate a high degree of consensus about many of the characteristics of how the curriculum should be shaped. QCA's work is also supported by the results of its annual curriculum monitoring programme which includes interviews and questionnaires with head teachers, deputy heads, teachers and pupils.

Special Educational Needs: Lancashire

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what proportion of children in (a) Lancashire and (b) Ribble Valley (i) had special educational needs and (ii) were educated in special schools in each year since 2000. [130737]

Mr. Dhanda: The information requested is shown in the following tables.

Special Educational Needs: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many children resident in the Peterborough local education authority area with special educational needs were placed in schools outside that area in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [121149]

Mr. Dhanda [holding answer 21 February 2007]: This information has previously been requested in PQ117437. A table showing the number and percentage of children with statements of special educational need who were educated at a special school outside their local authority area, by each local authority for the years 2002 to 2006 was placed in the House of Commons Library on 30 January 2007.

Students: Loans

Mr. McGovern: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will ensure that the interest rates charged by the Student Loans Company are not raised by any more than the inflation rate for the next five years. [131301]

Bill Rammell: The Teaching and Higher Education Act 1998 specifies that the interest rate charged by the Student Loans Company must be no higher than that required to maintain the value of the loan in real terms. Any change to this limit would require the agreement of Parliament.

Teachers: Early Retirement

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many and what percentage of teachers in the leadership group have taken early retirement in each of the past 10 years. [131268]

Jim Knight: The following table provides the number and percentage of leadership group teachers retiring from the maintained school sector in each year from 1996-97 to 2005-06, the latest information available.

Head, deputy head and assistant head teacher retirement benefits[1] from the maintained schools sector, 1996-97 to 2005-06

	Retirements
Financial year (1 April to 31 March)	Premature[2]	Ill health[3]	Total	Percentage[4]

[1] Teachers awarded benefits from the Teachers Pension scheme.
[2] The effect of the change in the Teachers' Pension scheme as from 31 August 1997 was that many more teachers took early retirement in 1997 than in previous years. Premature includes actuarially reduced benefit retirements from 2000-01.
[3] Changes in the statutory regulations governing ill-health retirement came into force on 1 April 1997. To qualify for ill-health retirement benefits a teacher must now be regarded as permanently unfit to teach.
[4] Total retirements as a percentage of full-time and part-time teachers in service.
[5] For retirement proportions, teacher numbers have been provided from the DfES annual survey of teachers in service and teacher vacancies (618G survey) from 2001-02. Teacher numbers were not available from this, the department's preferred source of teacher numbers, prior to this and therefore have been provided from the Database of Teacher Records.
[6] Provisional.
Note:
Totals may not appear to equal the sum of their component parts because of rounding.

Teenage Pregnancy

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many students in each local education authority recorded absences from school as a result of teenage pregnancy in each of the last five years, broken down by ethnic group. [127738]

Jim Knight: The information required to answer the question is not available.

Trade Unions

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many meetings (a) he and (b) his Department's Ministers held with trade union representatives in 2006. [128762]

Mr. Dhanda: According to our records, during 2006 (a) the Secretary of State for Education and Skills, and his predecessor, had 15 meetings with trade union representatives and (b) Department for Education and Skills' Ministers had a total of 46 meetings with trade union representatives.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Departments: Energy

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what strategy he has put in place for (a) the use of renewable energy and (b) meeting energy targets in his Department's buildings; and if he will make a statement. [125406]

Ian Pearson: The information is as follows:

(a) Strategy for use of renewable energy

Cross-government targets are to source at least 10 per cent. of electricity from renewable sources by 2008. In 2005-06 DEFRA purchased 63 per cent. of its electricity from renewable sources.

All major new build or refurbishment projects are subject to a sustainability review to ensure they fully embrace the Government's sustainability objectives. Renewable energy is a major element of this process.

(b) Strategy for meeting energy targets

Cross-government targets on carbon emissions and energy efficiency mandate DEFRA to:

reduce carbon emissions by 12.5 per cent. by 2010-11, relative to 1999-2000 levels;

reduce carbon emissions by 30 per cent. by 2020, relative to 1999-2000 levels;

central Government's office estate to be carbon neutral by 2012; increase energy efficiency per m^2 by 15 per cent. by 2010, relative to 1999-2000 levels; and increase energy efficiency per m^2 by 30 per cent. by 2020, relative to 1999-2000 levels.

To achieve these targets, DEFRA has signed up to a Carbon Management Programme (CMP). Working with the Carbon Trust, the programme has enabled the Department to develop a systematic approach to carbon management and take a strategic approach to reduce its carbon dioxide emissions through operational improvements, reduced energy costs, staff awareness and monitoring initiatives.

Utility information systems have enabled the Department to monitor and analyse energy consumption across the estate. This has enabled a focussed approach to identifying significant energy/carbon savings. Pilot projects have recently been implemented with a view to wider rollouts in the near future.

Packaging

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many cases of infringement considered since the introduction of the Packaging (Essential Requirements) Regulations 2003 have not resulted in prosecutions. [131730]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 16 April 2007]: I have been asked to reply.

Trading Standards investigate many cases of infringement on a range of legislation, the majority of which are dealt with through other means (e.g. meetings with the company or correspondence) than prosecution. Data on unsuccessful prosecution cases and infringements dealt with by other means are not centrally collected with regard to the Packaging (Essential Requirements) Regulations 2003.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan: Frontiers

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions

she has had with her counterpart in Afghanistan on progress in policing that country's borders; how many border guards are in place; and what surveillance is in use at checkpoints. [131276]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has regular contact with Foreign Minister Spanta and discussed border management with the Government of the Islamic Republic of Afghanistan during her recent visit to Afghanistan on 28 February to 1 March.

The issue of policing Afghanistan's borders is covered by the International Police Coordination Board, on which our embassy in Kabul is represented by its chief police adviser. Embassy officials also attend monthly International Police Coordinated Action Group meetings chaired by the German Police Project Office (GPPO).

Currently the official establishment of the Afghan Border Police (ABP) is set at 12,000. However, should the overall establishment of the Afghan National Police rise from 62,000 to 82,000, as is currently being considered, then the revised establishment of the ABP will increase to 18,000. Presently, the actual number of ABP is approximately 7,900, deployed at 13 official land border crossing points, four international airports (Kabul, Kandahar, Herat and Mazar-e-Sharif), and within a Quick Reaction Force and their HQ at the Ministry of Interior. In addition to static security at these fixed locations, they attempt to police at least another 400 unofficial land border crossing points located around the country. While it would be inappropriate to comment in detail on the precise surveillance techniques used at the border crossing points, we are aware this remains an area where the potential for major development exists.

Developing the ABP remains one of the top priorities for the GPPO and will also be covered by the proposed European Security and Defence Policy mission to Afghanistan. The UK will continue to keep a keen interest in the ABP's development given its significance in helping to stem the flow of insurgents and weapons through the eastern and southern border areas, as well as the fight against the narcotic trade and other illicit smuggling activities. On the northern border, the UK is contributing to a European Commission project to build border infrastructure and capacity for the Afghan border police and customs in Badakhshan province.

Departments: EU Action

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which projects were funded in the last 12 months for which figures are available by (a) the Committee of the Regions and (b) the Economic and Social Committee on informing people in the European spirit; and what role her Department has played in the development of such projects in the UK. [130665]

Mr. Hoon: The Committee of the Regions (CoR) and the European Economic and Social Committee (EESC) organise a number of communication projects. These include the CoR OPENDAYS and the EESC's local stakeholder forums. These are funded from an overall communications budget of €2.2 million per year for the CoR and €900,000 per annum for the EESC. The annual communication budget for both committees does not indicate the funding for individual projects. Although the Foreign and Commonwealth Office leads on the selection of members to the UK delegations to both committees, both institutions act independently of member state governments. The Government have not been actively involved in any initiatives by either Committee.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will place in the Library a list of the attendees, with their affiliations, at each of the last five public events that her Department has hosted on European Community matters. [130633]

Mr. Hoon: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) has hosted several events relating to EU issues in recent months. On 23 and 24 March, the FCO hosted a conference organised by the University Association for Contemporary European Studies entitled "Reflections on European Integration: 50 years of the Treaty of Rome".

On 22 March, I hosted a reception in Lancaster House to mark the EU's 50th Anniversary and the launch of 'Learning Together'. This initiative aims to encourage more schools in the UK to take part in educational partnerships with schools across Europe. It will provide schools across the UK with information about the exciting opportunities available. Teachers and heads with experience of joint learning projects with other countries will become "Learning Together Ambassadors", and share their experience with other schools interested in joining.

On 9 March, the FCO hosted an event organised by the European Youth Parliament. At this event, pupils from secondary schools across the south-east took part in a debating competition on European issues.

On 16 January, the FCO and Department for Education and Skills hosted a reception to relaunch the Life Long Learning programme. This programme aims to enable learners and trainees to work with their European peers through joint projects, exchanges and work experience.

On 10 January, the FCO hosted a reception to mark the accession of Romania and Bulgaria to the EU.

The FCO does not keep records of all event attendees. Guests at the above events were drawn from a range of organisations and included European Ambassadors, representatives from the EU institutions, hon. Members from relevant select committees, teachers, students, representatives from non-governmental organisations and business groups.

Departments: Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what measures are in place to limit the amount of money spent on alcohol for hospitality purposes by her Department. [132201]

Mr. Hoon: The budget administered by Government Hospitality for official ministerial hospitality is carefully managed by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO). The head of Government Hospitality is advised on suitable expenditure on stock for the Government cellar, and other hospitality for which the Department is responsible, by the Government Hospitality Advisory Committee for the Purchase of Wine (GHACPW). The GHACPW is an advisory non-departmental public body which answers directly to Ministers in the FCO.

EU Action: Finance

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what Government funding grants are available to (a) think tanks, (b) youth groups and (c) campaigning organisations on EU issues; and what funds were allocated to those groups in each of the last two years. [129259]

Mr. Hoon: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) Europe Directorate's EU Communications Budget funds activity in the UK to achieve greater domestic awareness of EU issues and a more mature debate about them. The FCO Europe Directorate and other Directorates provide funding to conferences held at Wilton Park, a non-departmental public body of the FCO, think tanks or other events in the UK, including on EU issues. This funding may come from Directorates' Programme Budgets or the FCO Global Opportunities Fund.

In the 2005-06 financial year (FY), the following amounts were allocated to such organisations for activity in the UK on EU issues:

£1,615 to the Foreign Policy Centre for printing the "Europe in a Global Age" publication written by the then Minister for Europe my right hon. Friend, the Member for Paisley and Renfrewshire, South (Mr. Alexander) (Europe Directorate EU Communications Budget);

£3,598 in support of European Youth Parliament events (Europe Directorate EU Communications Budget);

£270,000 to a range of Wilton Park conferences on European issues (Europe Directorate and Consular Directorate Programme Budgets); and £10,000 to a Chatham House conference (International Security Directorate European Security and Defence Policy Public Diplomacy Budget).

In the 2006-07 FY, the following amounts were allocated to such organisations for activity in the UK on EU issues:

£5,065 in support of European Youth Parliament events (Europe Directorate EU Communications Budget);

£176 to the Plain English Campaign to audit our website (Europe Directorate EU Communications Budget);

£300,000 to Wilton Park conferences on European issues (Europe Directorate Programme Budget, Global Opportunities Fund and Global and Economic Issues Programme Budget); and £18,000 to a Chatham House Conference on EU-China interdependencies on climate change and energy (Global and Economic Issues Directorate Programme Budget and Central Unit Programme Budget).

Other FCO-sponsored activity by such organisations may have touched on EU issues. However, this information is not held centrally and it would incur disproportionate cost to confirm.

Separately, think tanks, youth groups or campaigning groups may apply for funding from the FCO Global Opportunities Fund "Reuniting Europe Programme", for projects that support countries in the EU integration process in their efforts to meet the Copenhagen Criteria, particularly in the fields of improved governance and economic growth. Such organisations may also be involved in activity funded by embassies and consulates throughout Europe in line with their post objectives and the FCO's strategic priorities.

EC Institutions: Visits

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many (a) civil servants, (b) public officials and (c) special advisers have been invited on information and study trips hosted by (i) the European Parliament and (ii) the European Commission since May 1997. [130683]

Mr. Hoon: The figures requested by the hon. Member are not held by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and could not be obtained without incurring disproportionate cost.

However, both the Commission and the European Parliament organise visits. For example in 2006 the Commission organised 64 visits from the UK with a total of 1,852 participants, this included visits by civil servants, public officials and special advisers. Figures before 2006 are unavailable. The programmes are tailor-made according to the themes requested by the group and last between a half day and full day. The costs are provided for in the Commission budget.

EU Information and Communication Programmes

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the objectives are of the EU Information and Communication programmes for non-member countries (EU budget item 22 04 02); what input her Department has to decisions on the allocation of funding; and if she will make a statement. [130641]

Mr. Hoon: The UK does not have a direct input into this programme. However, we support this work which is underscored by the commitment at the 2006 December European Council to ensure "broad and sustained public support [for enlargement], which should also be promoted through greater transparency and better communication".

This budget line funds communication activities on enlargement by the Commission regarding candidate and potential candidate countries. The objective is to enhance support for enlargement, the association and stabilisation processes. It aims to strengthen EU visibility in those countries and generate public support for the reform process during the accession and pre-accession periods. Target groups include the general public, youth, media, opinion leaders and rural population. Further information can be found on the Commission's website at:

http://eur-lex.europa.eu/LexUriServ/site/en/oj/2007/l_077/l_07720070316enl7511753.pdf.

EU: Constitutions

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what conferences have been held in the UK on the future of the EU

Constitution funded by (a) the EU and (b) the Government. [130630]

Mr. Hoon: Since the French and Dutch referendums on the Constitutional treaty in May and June 2005, there have been two conferences at Wilton Park funded by the Government with a focus on the future of Europe, including the Constitutional treaty.

"The Enlarged European Union One Year On: Political, Constitutional and Economic Challenges" 4-7 July 2005; and "Which way Forward for the European Union?: Political and Constitutional Challenges" 6-8 February 2006.

Details can be found on the Wilton Park website at www.wiltonpark.org

The representations of the European Commission and the European Parliament in the UK have organised a range of activities on EU issues. The Government have not worked with the EU institutions to organise any conferences on the future of the Constitutional treaty in this period.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what conferences have been held in Brussels funded by (a) the EU and (b) the UK Government on the future of the EU Constitution. [130666]

Mr. Hoon: The EU Institutions have organised a range of activities on EU issues in Brussels including an inter-parliamentary conference at the European Parliament on 8 May 2006. The Government have not worked with the EU Institutions to organise any conferences on the future of the EU Constitutional treaty in this period.

Since the French and Dutch referendums on the Constitutional treaty in May and June 2005, there have been no conferences held in Brussels directly funded by the Government on the future of the EU Constitutional treaty.

European Commission: Consultants

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what consultants the European Commission employs to provide advice on (a) public relations and (b) information campaigns. [130657]

Mr. Hoon: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office does not hold the information requested.

European Parliament

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what funding streams are available to the UK Permanent Representation to the European Union for (a) hosting and (b) sponsoring (i) events and (ii) organisations locally, under the office's own management and authorisation; what monitoring of spending takes place; and if she will make a statement. [129258]

Mr. Hoon: All Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) missions, including the UK Permanent Representation to the EU, have funds for hosting events in support of their objectives. Management of those funds is in accordance with FCO regulations and financial procedures, which include audit and monitoring. Funds for sponsoring events or organisations are provided to some missions to support strategic priorities, but such funds are not provided to the UK Permanent Representation to the EU.

Kazakhstan: Human Rights

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what recent assessment she has made of (a) the human rights situation in Khazakhstan and (b) the imprisonment of Mahambet Abzhan and Azamat Zheteisbayev; and if she will make a statement; [131355]

(2) if she will instruct the UK's Ambassador to Kazakhstan to visit Mahambet Abzhan and Asamat Zhetpisbayev to assess (a) the conditions in which they are being held and (b) the manner in which they are being treated. [131369]

Mr. Hoon: We welcome the steps that the Government of Kazakhstan has taken on human rights and democratic reform since independence. These include a moratorium on the death penalty, progress on prison reform including reduction of the number of persons in detention and the introduction of public monitoring of places of detention, and in December 2005 ratification of the UN International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights and the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights.

Political pluralism has, however, been affected negatively by recent legislation which restricts freedom of expression, association and assembly. The powers of the Parliament and Government and the independence of the judiciary could be further enhanced to introduce checks and balances into the system of administration. In December 2005, the Organisation for Security and Co-operation in Europe's (OSCE) Office for Democratic Institutions and Human Rights International Observation Mission noted that despite some administrative improvements, the presidential election did not meet international standards.

Wherever possible, we look to work with the Kazakh authorities to improve the human rights situation. We have funded projects aimed at improving the conditions in prisons, preventing torture in places of detention and encouraging the abolition of the death penalty. We have continuing dialogue with the Government of Kazakhstan on transparency issues and are working closely with non-governmental organisations on this too. We also stand ready to work with President Nazarbayev on his programme of democratic reforms.

The OSCE has looked into the cases of Makhambet Abzhan and Azamat Zhetpisbayev and attended several of the related court hearings. We, with the OSCE and the EU, will keep a watching brief on both cases in view of the importance of respect for human rights and good governance in Kazakhstan.

Non-Governmental Organisations: Finance

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which non-governmental think tanks and organisations working in the domain of European Communities affairs have received financial support from her Department in the last 12 months. [130676]

Mr. Hoon: In addition to those listed in the reply I gave to the hon. Member today (UIN 129259), the following have received support from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO).

German British Forum;

UK-German Connection;

Koenigswinter Conferences;

International Journalist Programme;

College of Europe;

Franco-British Council;

British Association for Central and Eastern Europe; and Birmingham University Contemporary European Studies course.

In addition a number of organisations have received financial support to deliver capacity building activities in countries and regions that are beneficiaries of the FCO's Global Opportunities Fund Re-Uniting Europe Programme. A full list of the organisations and projects funded and financial support provided is available on the FCO website at:

http://www.fco.gov.uk/servlet/Front?pagename=OpenMarket/Xcelerate/ShowPage&c=Page&cid=1070989565087.

Zambia: Politics and Government

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment she has made of (a) the political situation in (b) international relations with and (c) human rights in Zambia; and if she will make a statement. [131423]

Mr. McCartney: Zambia held elections at presidential, national assembly and local government level in September 2006. As my noble Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, Lord Triesman of Tottenham, said on 3 October 2006, we believe that they were conducted in a free and fair manner, and that Zambia had set a strong example to other Southern African Development Community (SADC) countries by conduct of the elections. The political situation in Zambia remains stable.

Zambia is a member of the UN, African Union, SADC and other international organisations. We maintain an excellent relationship and active dialogue with Zambia in all these forums.

Zambia has signed 16 of the International Conventions on human rights. We are encouraging the further enforcement and implementation of these. With our EU partners we continue to press for the abolition of the death penalty. President Mwanawasa has declared that he will not allow executions to take place during his tenure of office. We welcome the positive contributions Zambia has made within the UN Human Rights Council, including on Sudan.

HEALTH

Abortion

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent estimate she has made of the earliest gestational age at which an unborn child may be capable of being born alive; when her Department last undertook an evidence review on the issue that drew on (a) UK and (b) international research; and if she will make a statement. [130839]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: While there continue to be medical advances in caring for premature babies, it is very rare for babies born at 22 weeks gestation or under to survive. Data from the 1995 EPICure Study, which followed infants born between 20 and 25 weeks of gestation, found that only 1 per cent. of babies born at 22 weeks of gestation survived to six years of age. A second EPICure study, due to report later this year, will show whether survival rates have changed since 1995.

The Department regularly reviews evidence on this issue, most recently the Nuffield Council of Bioethics report on critical care decisions in foetal and neonatal medicine, published in November 2006.

Abortion: Euthanasia

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what her Department's policy is on (a) abortion and (b) assisted suicide; which organisations and individuals she has consulted about each policy; and if she will make a statement. [130844]

Caroline Flint: Parliament has decided that abortions may lawfully be carried out in the circumstances specified in the Abortion Act 1967, as amended by the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990.

The Department most recently set out its policy on sexual health, including abortion, in the "National Strategy for Sexual Health and HIV" in 2001, and associated documents. In addition, recommended quality standards for the provision of abortion services are included in "Recommended Standards for Sexual Health Services", published in 2005. The strategy and the standards document were subject to a public consultation exercise.

Assisting a person in committing suicide is unlawful under the Suicide Act 1961 and is subject to a penalty of up to 14 years' imprisonment. The Government have no plans to change this legislation. Any proposals to change the law would be dealt with as a matter of conscience.

Abortions: Disabled

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research has been (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated by her Department on abortions performed on grounds of handicap in (a) NHS hospitals and (b) non-NHS hospitals where the unborn child was subsequently found to be without disability or handicap; and if she will make a statement. [129524]

Caroline Flint: The Department has not commissioned or evaluated research on abortions performed on the grounds of foetal abnormality where the unborn child was subsequently found not to have an abnormality.

Accident and Emergency Departments: Maidstone

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate has been made of the likely savings which would result from the closure of the accident and emergency department in Maidstone Hospital. [130998]

Caroline Flint: There are no plans to close the accident and emergency unit at Maidstone Hospital.

Alcoholic Drinks: Misuse

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage the £15 million earmarked to improve alcohol interventions in 2007-08 represents of the total uplift in revenue for primary care trusts (PCTs) for that year; and how much of that funding each PCT has received. [131709]

Caroline Flint: The 2006-07 and 2007-08 primary care trust (PCT) revenue allocations separately identify £342 million funding in support of public health initiatives, including £15 million for alcohol interventions in 2007-08. £15 million is 0.25 per cent. of the £6 billion uplift in 2007-08 PCT allocations. PCTs have been encouraged to invest additional funding to improve their local arrangements for commissioning and delivering alcohol treatment services based on local need.

PCTs were informed of their shares of the £342 million funding but not their shares of each initiative.

Anabolic Steroids: Misuse

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress her Department is making in tackling the illegal use of anabolic steroids; and what steps she is taking to make young people aware of the dangers of such use. [127275]

Caroline Flint: The Department recognises the harms associated with the misuse of anabolic steroids.

FRANK, the cross-Government campaign which provides advice to young people in relation to substance misuse, includes information on the harms associated with the misuse of anabolic steroids via its website, helpline and literature.

The harmful short and long-term effects of anabolic steroid use are also described in the most recent version of the Department publication —Dangerousness of drugs: A guide to the risks and harms associated with substance misuse (January 2003).

The Department for Education and Skills (DfES) is responsible for the funding of education programmes in schools. In 2004, DfES published 'Drugs: Guidance for Schools, guidance for primary and secondary schools on all matters relating to drug education and the management of drugs within the school community. This guidance sets out the issues relating to drug education that schools should cover with children of different ages, and includes drugs available on prescription among the substances that this education should cover.

The table shows prevalence of anabolic steroid use in young people, taken from figures in a school survey of 11 to 16-year-olds, recently published within the headline figures of 'Smoking, drinking and drug use among young people in England in 2006'.

Percentage

	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006
Anabolic steroids	0.2	0.2	0.2	0.2	0.3	0.5

Figures for the proportion of 16 to 24-year-olds reporting having used anabolic steroids in the last year is shown in the table. The results have been taken from 'Drug Misuse Declared: Findings from the 2005-06 British Crime Survey[1]' (England and Wales).

[1] This statistical bulletin reports on the results of 29,932 respondents who completed the drugs module of the BCS and an additional 2,259 16 to 24-year-olds who were interviewed as part of the 2005-06 BCS youth boost.

Percentage

Year	2001-02	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06
Anabolic steroids	0.2	0.1	0.4	0.4	0.3

Anabolic steroids are only available legally via prescription and are controlled as a class C drug.

Anabolic steroids are included on the world anti-doping agencies (WADA) prohibited list. This list sets out the substances that are prohibited for athletes. Educating athletes of all ages about the consequences of doping comprises part of the anti-doping programme, and is delivered through UK Sport's renowned 100 per cent. ME education programme.

UK Sport, the United Kingdom's national anti-doping organisation runs an anti-doping programme, together with sport's national governing bodies, which is aimed at deterring athletes from using prohibited substances, and to catch those who do. Currently typical sanctions for those caught using prohibited substances range from a two-year ban from sport for a first offence to a lifetime ban for a second.

Audiology Services

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the extent to which those directly employed by the NHS to provide audiology services are working to the same standards set out in the accreditation process for independent sector providers employed through public-private partnerships. [103717]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: It is important that common standards should apply to national health service services whichever organisation provides them. The Department is working with NHS providers and the independent and voluntary sectors to ensure harmonisation. This work includes the development of education and training programmes for introduction during 2007-08.

The public private partnership (PPP) was initially set up in October 2003, to enable NHS audiology services to supplement their own capacity as part of the wider modernising hearing aids services programme. The PPP contract stipulated that staff employed to provide services under the PPP must be registered hearing aid dispensers and should be fully trained in the provision of the services detailed within the specification to the same level as audiology staff in the partner NHS trust. In addition, the contractor had to ensure that staff employed to provide services under the PPP complied with the provisions of the Hearing Aid Council's code of practice.

The PPP ended on 31 March 2007. However, the Department will continue to procure audiology capacity through the independent sector treatment centre (ISTC) schemes. When audiology services are being procured through ISTC schemes, providers have to adhere to the same rigid recruitment protocols as the NHS.

Cannabis: Mental Health

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research she has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated into links between cannabis use and psychosis. [130255]

Caroline Flint: The Department's policy research programme has funded an expert review of the most recent evidence concerning the impact of cannabis use on people with mental health problems, and severe mental illness in particular, and effective interventions aimed at reducing such use. The review has been completed and results will be published shortly.

In addition, the National Institute for Health Research has recently awarded a £2 million programme grant to support research on improving physical health and reducing substance use, particularly cannabis use, in severe mental illness. Research on cannabis use and psychosis will also form part of the work programme of the institute's South London and Maudsley NHS Trust and Institute of Psychiatry Biomedical Research Centre which the Department is funding from April 2007.

Care Homes: Drugs

Dr. Richard Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the degree of compliance of general practitioners with the National Service Framework for Older People's requirement for regular reviews of medicines prescribed for older people living in care homes; and if she will make a statement. [131330]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested is not collected centrally.

However, under the General Medical Services Quality and Outcomes Framework, 8,052 out of 8,409 general practices (95.8 per cent.) achieved an acceptable level in 2005-06 against the indicator:

A medication review is recorded in the notes in the preceding 15 months for all patients being prescribed four or more repeat medicines (excluding over the counter and topical medications).

Care Homes: Human Rights

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health to what extent residents of (a) state and (b) privately-run care homes who are (i) publicly and (ii) privately or self funded are covered by the provisions of the Human Rights Act 1998. [130846]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: A local authority running a care home is under a duty to act in a way which is compatible with the European Convention on Human Rights as required by section 6 of the Human Rights Act (HRA), 1998 because a local authority is a public authority for the purposes of that section.

However, under current case law, the interpretation by of the Court of Appeal of section 6 of the HRA has led to the position that private care homes do not exercise public functions as referred to in that section when providing care and accommodation under contract to a local authority. Such a home is not, therefore, directly subject to the Human Rights Act.

On the recommendations of the Parliamentary Joint Committee on Human Rights (JCHR), guidance was published in May 2005 on contracting for services. Councils are expected to take account of the relevant aspects of the HRA in their contracting arrangements, including those with care providers. Residents placed in a private care home under a council contract should, therefore, have their human rights protected through the contract.

Residents in private care homes who fund the entire cost of their own care are not covered by the provisions of the HRA.

Care Homes: Standards

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the national service framework standards are for review of medication prescribed for the elderly; and what steps have been taken in each of the last five years to achieve compliance with the standards; [131783]

(2) what steps she has taken (a) to monitor and (b) to audit the compliance with national service framework standards for review of medication prescribed for the elderly by care homes; [131796]

(3) what instructions she has issued to management and staff of care homes for the elderly on compliance with national service framework standards for review of medication; [131797]

(4) if she will take steps to increase understanding of the national service framework standards for review of medication among residents and their families. [131799]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Use of medicines is a fundamental component of each of the national service framework (NSF) standards and there are common medicines elements for every standard. A document entitled 'Medicines for Older People' on implementing medicines-related aspects of the NSF for older people was included with the NSF documents when they were published. No specific information on compliance with the standards is collected centrally. However, national health service trusts are encouraged to make use of the medicines management framework which is specifically designed for hospitals as a self-assessment tool to evaluate processes in place to ensure clinical and cost-effective medicines use. Identifying whether medication review has taken place is generally only possible from patients' medical records.

Care homes should meet the performance standards and milestones on medicines management set by the National Care Standards Commission. Care homes should seek advice from pharmacists about medicines in line with national minimum standards (NMS) for care homes for older people, and inspection teams' visits to care homes should focus on medicines systems.

Care homes are governed by the Care Homes Regulations 2001 and associated NMS, which are concerned with ensuring that services are safe and of good quality. The regulator, the Commission for Social Care Inspection, must have regard to the NMS when inspecting care homes to establish compliance with the regulations.

The regulations and NMS, copies of which are available in the Library, include requirements for the recording, handling, safekeeping, safe administration and disposal of medicines in care homes. The NMS contain specific requirements for staff to monitor the condition of service users on medication, to call in the service user's GP if they are concerned about any change in condition that may be a result of medication, and prompt the review of medication on a regular basis. The NMS are under review at present.

Departmental Expenditure

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much programme expenditure sponsored by her Department was spent via each of the Government Offices for the Regions in the most recent year for which figures are available. [116760]

Caroline Flint: The expenditure for regional public health groups' programme expenditure (direct spend and budget transfers) for the financial year ending 31 March 2006 is in the following table.

Regional director for public health	£000
North East	2,113
West Midlands	3,296
North West	3,523
East Midlands	2,513
East of England	2,727
South West	3,400
South East (including South Central)	3,111
London	3,635
Yorkshire and Humberside	2,939
Total	27,257

Departmental Staff

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many staff were employed on a consultancy basis in (a) her Department and (b) each of its agencies in each of the last five years for which information is available; and what the (i) average and (ii) longest period was for which a consultant was employed in each year. [102969]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department does not collect information that would identify the numbers of consultants engaged for the years requested. Contracts do not usually specify the precise numbers of consultants and the numbers can vary during a contract.

The Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency does not collate this information and is therefore unable to supply it.

NHS Purchasing and Supply Agency employs businesses to provide a variety of consultancy services with specific outcomes. It does not monitor consistently which individuals provide the service or how long they spend on the work.

Departments: Advertising

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what her Department's total spending was on advertising and promotional campaigns in each year since 1997; and what the cost of each campaign was, broken down by costs relating to (a) television, (b) radio and (c) print media. [128090]

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much her Department has spent on (a) sponsoring newspaper and publication supplements and (b) funding advertorials in newspapers and publications in the last year for which figures are available; and what the topic of each was. [129962]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Departmental campaign expenditure for funding advertorials in newspapers or publications in 2005-06: Tobacco Control £46,181; Flu Immunisation £103,665.

We have not incurred departmental campaign expenditure on sponsoring newspaper or publication supplements.

Departments: Focus Groups

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much her Department spent on focus groups in each of the last five years. [131401]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: A list of expenditure by the Department on focus groups in each of the last five years could be provided only at disproportionate cost, as the Department does not hold this information centrally.

However, information on focus groups commissioned by the Department's Communications Directorate is available from April 2004. Since April 2004, the Communications Directorate has spent £314,800 on focus groups with the public and national health service staff.

We are committed to consulting and involving the public and NHS staff to help inform both policy formulation and the delivery of better quality public service. Responsive public services are an important part of the Modernising Government initiative.

Departments: Office Expenditure

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many litres of bottled water her Department purchased, and at what cost, in each of the last three years; and if she will make a statement on her Department's provision of water for staff and visitors. [129376]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 23 March 2007]: No detailed records of all bottled water purchases are maintained by the Department.

Bottled water for the London Administrative estate for hospitality purposes is provided by the Departments catering contractor. There is no record of purchase made for 2004.

In 2005, 45,738 litres were purchased at a cost of £89,189.10

In 2006, 52,861 litres were purchased at a cost of £103,078.95

The Department jointly occupies a building in Leeds for which the Department of Work and Pensions provides the hospitality service. Their contractor is unable to provide the information required.

Within this building the Department does provide water coolers in their appointed tea points. The only record of costs is for 2006 where the purchase was for; 1,240 x 11 litre bottles at a cost of £6,997.62 (including servicing), 34 x 18 litre bottles at a cost of £303.43 (including servicing).

Departments: Opinion Polls

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much her Department spent on opinion polling in each of the last five calendar years; which polls were conducted; and how much was paid to companies conducting polling. [131400]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: A list of expenditure on opinion polling in each of the last five years could be provided only at disproportionate cost. The Department does not hold this information centrally.

However, information on opinion polling commissioned by the Department's Communications Directorate since April 2004 is available in the following table:

We are committed to consulting and involving the public, NHS staff and our stakeholders to help inform both policy formulation and the delivery of better quality public service. Responsive public services are an important part of the Modernising Government initiative.

Departments: Postal Services

Mr. Fraser: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which postal companies handle mail dispatched by her Department and its agencies. [128241]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Royal Mail is the sole contracted mail supplier that handles mail dispatched by the Department and its agencies.

Departments: Press

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate she has made of the expenditure of her Department on newspapers, magazines and periodicals in each year since 1997. [128045]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department's library service is responsible for central purchasing of newspapers, magazines and periodicals for library use and for retention by individual units. Suppliers who have been chosen by competitive tendering every three to five years are used.

Expenditure details are kept on a central system but it does not differentiate between expenditure on newspapers, magazines and periodicals.

[1] Estimate of final out-turn

Departments: Surveys

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what expenditure was incurred by her (a) Department, (b) agencies and (c) non-departmental bodies in each year since 1997 on (i) opinion polling, (ii) focus groups and (iii) other forms of market research; and if she will list the surveys commissioned and the purpose of each. [128037]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department does not hold this information centrally and to do so would incur disproportionate costs.

Departments: Trade Unions

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many meetings (a) she and (b) her Department's Ministers held with trade union representatives in 2006. [128757]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Ministers and civil servants meet many people, including union representatives, as part of the process of policy development and advice. A Minister chairs a monthly meeting with NHS employers and union representatives, the social partnership forum, to promote effective partnership working on the workforce implications of policy.

Drugs: Pilot Schemes

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress has been made with the pilots on injectable diamorphine prescribing in England; and what data on (a) outcomes relating to the health of the individuals participating in the pilots and (b) their offending rates have emerged from the pilots. [131569]

Caroline Flint: The Randomised Injectable Opiate Treatment Trial (RIOTT) is currently under way. The National Addiction Centre, supported by Government, is examining injectable diamorphine, injectable methadone and oral methadone treatments in a randomised controlled trial. The trial is due to be completed in 2008. The results on outcomes will only be published after completion of the trial and following peer review.

Eyesight: Testing

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health at what age her Department recommends that children should receive eye check-ups. [131385]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: All children should have their eyes examined at birth and again at six to eight weeks by a health visitor or nurse. The national service framework for children, young people and maternity services recommends an optometrist-led screening programme for children aged four and five.

Female Genital Mutilation

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people were treated for the effects of recent female genital mutilation in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [130519]

Caroline Flint: This information is not collected centrally.

Health Services: Disabled

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what national minimum standards the Government set for the provision of care to disabled people by local authorities; and what mechanisms the Department uses to ensure that there are no regional variations in the provision of such services. [131777]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: All of the national minimum standards that the Government set apply to providers of services to disabled people.

The regulations and the national minimum standards ensure that providers across the country are inspected and regulated according to consistent, nationally applied standards. The Commission for Social Care Inspection, which regulates social care, has strong enforcement powers and will take action if necessary to protect the welfare of all service users.

Health Services: Publications

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she expects the Audit Commission to publish the result of its investigation into the Fair Access to Care Services guidance. [131778]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: We are not aware of any plans by the Audit Commission to conduct a national investigation of Fair Access to Care Services guidance.

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the total cost was of publicising and marketing the End Waiting, Change Lives initiative. [127973]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The total cost of publicising and marketing the End Waiting, Change lives initiative during the financial year ending 2006-07 was £164,100.

Hearing Aids: Greater London

Derek Conway: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the reasons are for the waiting time for digital hearing aid assessments in (a) Bexley and (b) Bromley; and if she will make a statement. [129093]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: This is a local matter but we are aware that both Bexley and Bromley are experiencing long waiting times for digital hearing aid assessments.

To address this, the Lewisham hospital national health service trust and Queen Mary' Sidcup NHS trust, which treat Bexley patients, are replacing a vacant post by that of a locum audiologist, two audiologists are being trained to fit digital hearing aids and the systems are being restructured to be more efficient. These measures are expected to substantially reduce the backlog by summer.

Bromley Hospital NHS trust, which treats Bromley patients, has taken action by arranging for private sector treatment, by increasing staff numbers and improving clinical and administrative processes.

Home Helps

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 12 March 2007 to the hon. Member for South Cambridgeshire, Official Report, column 129W, on home helps, how many people received home help in the sample week in each year from 1997 to 2006; and how many hours were delivered in the sample week in 2006. [131791]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: We are only able to provide information relating to the publicly funded home care. This information is included in the following table. This information was first collected in 2000. Data for 2006 are not yet available.

Estimated number[1] of clients receiving home help during a sample week in September, 2000 to 2005, England

	Number of clients
2000	414,700
2001	395,500
2002	382,000
2003	373,700
2004	368,600
2005	367,700

Hospital Beds

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on progress in the provision of community and domiciliary support to facilitate reductions in average hospital lengths of stay. [130079]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 29 March 2007]: The Government are committed to reducing the number of patients who are delayed in hospital, when they could be better cared for elsewhere. Councils and their national health service partners have already made significant progress in reducing delays in hospital. Between September 2001 and December 2006, the number of people over the age of 75 delayed in hospital reduced from 5,673 to 1,651—a reduction of 71 per cent. Total delays for the same period were reduced from 7,065 to 2,190—a reduction of 69 per cent.

Intermediate care can be used to facilitate discharge from hospital, reducing the period of time the individual has to stay there. This aims to help speed recovery, re-establish the individual's independence and maintain social and community links. It can be used to respond to, or avert, a health crisis and thereby act as an alternative to hospital admission. This policy also has the effect of reducing demand on secondary care resources, making beds available and reducing the likelihood of readmission. As at 31 March 2006, there were 29,644 intermediate care places, benefiting over 393,000 people.

A key goal of the White Paper, "Our health, our care, our say", is to provide better prevention and early intervention for improved health, independence and well-being. Support for implementation is being provided by various pilot sites. These include 30 care closer to home demonstrations that are working across six specialties to offer more care in community settings, including step-down facilities allowing people to be discharged from hospital to facilities near their home.

Hospitals: Voluntary Organisations

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make it her policy to encourage the formation of not-for-profit organisations to run non-medical services for patients; and if she will make a statement. [120024]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Government's vision of a modern health and social care system is to develop a cost-effective, fair and transparent commissioning-led environment in which commissioners ensure the provision of flexible and responsive services through an increasingly diverse range of providers, including the third sector (voluntary and community sector, social enterprise and other not-for-profit organisations).

The Commissioning Framework for health and well-being, published for consultation on 6 March 2007, sets out the proposed model for health and social care commissioning from April 2008 and how commissioners should procure effectively and fairly from a wide range of providers and actively shape the provider market. We are supporting the development of third sector and social enterprise approaches to service delivery though Section 64 General Scheme of Grants and the Social Enterprise Fund.

Hyperactivity: Drugs

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what her policy is on the use of methylphenidate drugs in the treatment of children over the age of six and adolescents who suffer from attention deficit and hyperactivity disorder; and if she will make a statement; [130759]

(2) how many people in England were diagnosed as suffering from attention deficit and hyperactivity disorder in each year between 1997 and 2006. [130760]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: In March 2006, the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) published guidance on the use of drugs to treat attention deficit and hyperactivity disorder (ADHD). NICE has estimated that around 5 per cent. of school-aged children meet the diagnostic criteria for ADHD, equivalent to 366,000 children and adolescents in England and Wales, but not all these children will require medication.

NICE has recommended that drug treatment for ADHD should only be initiated by an appropriately qualified healthcare professional with expertise in ADHD and should be based on a comprehensive assessment and diagnosis. Continued prescribing and monitoring of drug treatment may be performed by general practitioners, under shared care arrangements. Drug therapy should only be part of a comprehensive treatment programme that includes advice and support to parents and teachers.

Information is not collected on the number of people diagnosed with ADHD.

Influenza: Vaccination

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the possible effects of administering Tamiflu to (a) 25 per cent., (b) 50 per cent. and (c) 75 per cent. of the population in the event of a pandemic influenza outbreak with an attack rate of (i) 25 per cent., (ii) 30 per cent., (iii) 40 per cent., (iv) 50 per cent. and (v) 75 per cent. [126545]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Predicting the effect of the administration of Tamiflu is dependent on whether or not the unknown virus will be sensitive to Tamiflu, the clinical attack rate, the characteristic complications profile of the as-yet unknown virus, the antiviral policy (such as targeted treatment or treating everyone), other interventions, and the effect of antivirals and other interventions on reducing spread. It is not a fixed figure. We use 25 per cent., 35 per cent. and 50 per cent. as our standard raw clinical attack rates for planning purposes because the pandemics of the 20th century had attack rates between 25 per cent. and 35 per cent. in the UK whereas 50 per cent. is the reasonable worst case.

Overall, on prescribed medical and scientific advice, the administration of antivirals is expected to reduce the proportion of clinical cases who require hospitalisation and the case fatality rate—possibly by up to 50 per cent. In such calculations many assumptions need to be made, of which only two are that Tamiflu will be as effective against a pandemic strain as against seasonal influenza, and that antiviral treatment will reach the patient within 24 hours of the onset of symptoms.

Insulin

Mr. Dunne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what recent discussions her Department has had with the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence regarding a future work programme on insulin treatments; [131406]

(2) what discussions her Department has had with the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence on its future work programme on insulin treatments; [131324]

(3) what discussions her Department has had with the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence regarding its future work programme on insulin treatments. [131792]

Caroline Flint: Departmental officials routinely discuss with the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence a wide range of potential topics for inclusion in the Institute's work programme.

Legal Advice

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was spent by the Department on external legal advice in each of the past five years. [109109]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost. However, Department figures for the cost of external legal services procured by the Department's own lawyers is set out in the table.

Medicine

Mr. McGovern: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much it costs to provide all medical students with copies of each edition of the British National Formulary in each of the past three years; and what the forecast cost is for 2007-08. [130349]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 27 March 2007]: The following table shows the amount allocated to fund the provision of a copy of the British National Formulary in each of the years from 2004-05 to 2006-07.

Funding for the provision of the British National Formulary to medical students

	Allocation (£000)
2004-05	100
2005-06	110
2006-07	125

There is no allocation to fund the provision of the British National Formulary in 2007-08.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she will reply to the letter of 29 January 2007 from the right hon. Member for Manchester Gorton with regards to Ms. E. Waite. [128681]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: My right hon. Friend replied on 30 March 2007.

MRSA

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research she has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the potential incidence of MRSA and like infections in GPs' surgeries. [129575]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department is not at present funding studies that relate specifically to methicillin resistant staphylococcus aureus (MRSA) and general practitioners' premises. Much of the current research aimed at improving our understanding of environmental influences on infection spread, and on cleaning and decontamination methods, will however be relevant to that setting. Additionally, the increasing recognition of the need to improve our understanding of spread of MRSA within the community will influence future research priorities.

NHS: Finance

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many Local Improvement Finance Trust (LIFT) projects were successfully completed in each year since the scheme was introduced; what the (a) shortest and (b) longest period of time has been for completion of a LIFT project from commissioning phase to operational opening; what lessons her Department has learned to achieve better value for money and effectiveness for future LIFT schemes; and how best practice is disseminated to partners within LIFT schemes. [131396]

Andy Burnham: The first National Health Service Local Improvement Finance Trusts (LIFT) schemes became operational in 2004. The following table provides information on schemes successfully completed from 2004, broken down by year.

	Number of new LIFT facilities open to patients
2004	4
2005	46
2006	56
2007[1]	57

[1] This is total number of buildings that are expected to open in 2007. This includes those opened by 31 March and those expected to open in the remainder of the year.

Information is not collected centrally on the time scale from the commissioning phase of construction to the building opening to patients.

Individual LIFT schemes currently demonstrate that they are value for money through two routes: the LIFT company being established as a result of a competitive procurement, as a result of which an initial tranche of schemes are priced; and on an on-going basis, through the annual lease plus payment for each scheme being signed off by the district valuer as value for money in comparison with other similar facilities in the locality.

The Committee of Public Accounts report of 2006 made the point that value for money of both the LIFT programme and its schemes needed to be measured more effectively. The Department is currently addressing this by developing a database to benchmark the constituent costs of LIFT schemes and also by introducing the use of a public sector comparator in the business case for any single LIFT facility with a capital value in excess of £20 million.

Partnerships for Health, working with the Department, has developed a network for the public sector procurement teams to share learning, best practice and drive continuous improvement.

NHS: ICT

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the lifetime contract value is of the National Programme for Information Technology, broken down by major cost area; and how much has been spent in each cost area. [123183]

Caroline Flint: The information requested is shown in the table

Programme area	Lifetime contract value	£ million Expenditure to 31 December 2006

Nutrition: EC Law

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether her Department holds a definitive list of when each EU member state intends to close its list for receiving health claims made under article 13 of regulation (EC) No. 1924/2006 on nutrition and health claims made on foods. [131775]

Caroline Flint: The regulation allows member states until 31 January 2008 to submit their lists of health claims under article 13. The Food Standards Agency opened the United Kingdom list in October, prior to the publication of the regulation, and intends to close the UK list in September in order to allow time for claims to be assessed for eligibility and put into a format that can be submitted to the Commission. The agency does not hold a definitive list of when each European Union member state will close its list.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what measures her Department is considering to support small and medium-sized enterprises to comply with the requirements of regulation (EC) No. 1924/2006 on nutrition and health claims made on foods; and if she will make a statement. [131776]

Caroline Flint: The Food Standards Agency has worked closely with the Small Business Service and in consultation with small businesses to find ways to help them comply with the regulation. The Agency is currently out to consultation on detailed guidance on compliance, which it has sought to tailor to the needs of small businesses. In addition, the Agency has decided to make public the developing list of United Kingdom health claims on its website, which should help small businesses monitor what claims are available for general use and help them co-ordinate efforts to register missing claims.

The regulation refers to the importance of small businesses in the European food industry, and makes it a requirement for the Commission, in close co-operation with the European Food Safety Authority, to make available technical guidance and tools to assist them in the preparation and presentation of an application for authorisation of a claim. The UK is pressing for early publication of this guidance.

Ophthalmic Services: Children

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has to improve ophthalmic services for children; and if she will make a statement. [130845]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Free sight tests are available under the national health service for children under 16 and those aged 16-18 in full time education. Sight tests allow the opportunity to review all aspects of eye health, including investigations for signs of disease.

The National Service Framework (NSF) for Children, Young People and Maternity Services set out a 10-year programme to improve children's services. The NSF highlighted a need for an orthoptist-led programme for pre-school vision screening. Local agencies have the flexibility to plan and prioritise how the NSF standards should be met.

Radiography: Manpower

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many radiographers there were in the NHS in January (a) 1997, (b) 2001 and (c) 2007 in (i) North Yorkshire and (ii) England. [131121]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The number of radiographers in the specified areas are shown in the table for 1997, 2001 and 2005 as these are the latest data available.

National health service hospital and community health services: qualified radiography staff in England and each specified strategic health authority (SHA) area by area of work as at 30 September each specified year

Royal Surrey County Hospital

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many representations her Department has received about possible closure of the Royal Surrey County hospital. [116254]

Caroline Flint: The Department is aware of approximately 2,017 letters about the future of the Royal Surrey County hospital.

Smoking

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much funding has been allocated to (a) primary care trusts, (b) acute hospital trusts, (c) strategic health authorities, (d) mental health trusts, (e) ambulance trusts and (f) local authorities to implement the smoking ban provisions of the Health Act 2006; and how spending of this funding is being monitored. [131671]

Caroline Flint: The national health service has been smokefree since 1 January 2007, in line with commitments set out in the "Choosing Health" White Paper published in 2004. The Department has, therefore, not identified any specific funding for NHS bodies to implement the smokefree requirements set out in the Health Act 2006. NHS bodies will receive materials from the Department to support them in preparing for the introduction of smokefree legislation.

I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 5 March 2007, Official Report, column 1698W for information on funding for local authorities.

Social Marketing

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much money the NHS spent on social marketing in England in each of the last five years. [103746]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested is not held centrally.

Social Services: Cornwall

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the Cornwall and Isles of Scilly Primary Care Trust's, or its predecessors', budget was for each year from 2001; and what departmental funding was provided each year over the same period for adult social care in Cornwall. [130510]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 29 March 2007]: The total resource limit, which is made up of revenue and capital for each of the financial years from 2001-02 to 2005-06 for the predecessors of the Cornwall and Isles of Scilly Primary Care Trust (PCT) is shown in table one. The most recent period for which figures are available is 2005-06. The figures have been extracted from the audited final accounts of the relevant PCTs. Central Cornwall PCT and North and East Cornwall PCT were established in 2001-02 but did not become operational until 1 April 2002. Therefore, no final accounts were submitted for 2001-02. Central Cornwall PCT was the successor to Carrick PCT therefore figures for Carrick PCT for 2001-02 have been included.

The majority of Cornwall's social care spending is funded from the formula grant which contributes to all local government services. Specific grant funding from the Department for social care from 2001-02 to 2005-06 is shown in table two.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Animal Experiments: Primates

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many overseas establishments in the (a) EU and (b) USA are approved by his Department as sources of primates imported for research; and how many of these establishments comply fully with International Primatological Society guidelines for the acquisition, care and breeding of non-human primates; [127598]

(2) which overseas establishments outside the EU and USA are approved by his Department as sources of primates imported for research; and how many of these establishments comply fully with International Primatological Society guidelines for the acquisition, care and breeding of non-human primates. [127599]

Joan Ryan: There are two breeding and supply centres within the European Union that are accepted as suitable sources of non-human primates intended for use in scientific procedures in the United Kingdom, none in the USA, and five outside the European Union. It is not Home Office policy to name overseas supply centres.

The guiding principle applied in appraising overseas breeding and supply centres is that they should meet the relevant standards set out in the Home Office code of practice for the housing and care of animals in designated breeding and supplying establishments at least in respect of animals destined for the United Kingdom. Minor deviations from those standards, such as minor variations in cage heights, may be acceptable provided that they do not have adverse consequences for the welfare of the animals at the centre.

The International Primatological Society (IPS) guidelines for the acquisition, care and breeding of non-human primates are not a set of minimum compliance criteria for supplying animals for use in the United Kingdom. Rather, they are considered to provide guidance on good practice to which all breeders of non-human primates should aspire. Except where they differ from the requirements of the United Kingdom code of practice, Home Office policy is that compliance by overseas centres with the IPS guidelines is generally expected and overseas centres are required to identify any areas in which they do not meet the standards of the IPS guidelines when seeking acceptance as suppliers to the United Kingdom. However, not all of the IPS guidelines are appropriate in all circumstances. For example, providing a fixed light-dark cycle cannot apply where, as is the case in many source countries, animals experience natural daylight/day length throughout the year.

Providing that any deviation from the UK code of practice provisions does not have a material adverse effect on animal welfare, centres may be deemed acceptable as overseas sources. On this basis, all of the overseas supply centres currently accepted by the Home Office as suitable sources of non-human primates are judged to have appropriate animal welfare standards, even though they do not comply with every provision of the code of practice and IPS guidelines.

Asylum

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many cases have been resolved from the backlog of asylum seekers whose cases have failed since July 2006; and what his most recent estimate is of the backlog of such cases. [130708]

Mr. Byrne: Information on asylum applications, initial decisions and appeals by nationality are published quarterly and annually. Copies of these publications are available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office Research, Development and Statistics website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html.

The Chief Executive of the Border and Immigration Agency wrote to the Home Affairs Committee on 19 February with an update on the Legacy Programme announced by the Home Secretary in his statement to Parliament on 19 July 2006. A copy of the letter is in the Library.

Asylum: Iraq

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what package of assistance has been provided by the Government for failed Iraqi asylum applicants under the UK enforced returns programme in each year since 2004. [131592]

Mr. Byrne: Enforced returns to Iraq commenced in accordance with the memorandum of understanding in 2005. The package of support provided includes a small cash sum in pocket money, onward ground transportation to people's home towns or villages, and the opportunity to participate in a re-skilling programme designed to fit them for employment in Iraq.

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what representations he has had from (a) the United Nations, (b) other international organisations and (c) the Iraqi Kurdistan Regional Government on the consequences of returning Iraqi asylum seekers in the UK to Iraq; what responses he has made; and if he will make a statement. [131663]

Mr. Byrne: UNHCR in their December 2006 position paper advised that no Iraqi from southern or central Iraq should be forcibly returned to Iraq until such time as there is substantial improvement in the security and human rights situation in the country. When considering the return of Iraqis from the three northern governorates of Iraq, UNHCR advise that returns should be conducted in a phased and orderly manner, closely co-ordinated with the Kurdistan Regional Government (KRG) authorities. At present we are enforcing the removal of only those individuals who are from the KRG area of Iraq, which is in line with the UNHCR position.

Ministers and officials from the Home Office and the Foreign and Commonwealth Office have discussed the issue of returning Iraqi failed asylum seekers to Iraq with the Kurdish Regional Government on a number of occasions.

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what monitoring mechanism has been put in place of failed Iraqi asylum applicants returned to Iraq under the UK voluntary returns programme since 2004. [131668]

Mr. Byrne: For those Iraqis returning under the Voluntary Assisted Return and Reintegration Programme (VARRP) and availing themselves of reintegration assistance, there is a monitoring exercise that takes place three months, six months and 12 months into the implementation of their reintegration activity.

Therefore an individual who chooses to set up a business would be contacted/visited within three, six and 12 months of the establishment of the activity. After one year, the monitoring ceases.

Asylum: Travel

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average time taken to process travel documents for asylum seekers with exceptional leave to remain in the UK when applying for permission to leave and return to the United Kingdom was in the last period for which figures are available. [131086]

Mr. Byrne: The information requested is not available and could be obtained only by interrogating individual records to establish a breakdown of decisions by document type, which would incur disproportionate cost. The performance targets for processing all types of travel document applications are:

70 per cent. dispatched in 20 working days; and

90 per cent. dispatched in 70 working days.

The latest performance data available for February 2007 are:

91 per cent. dispatched in 20 working days; and

95 per cent. dispatched in 70 working days.

British Nationality

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department on which occasions the Chancellor of the Exchequer consulted him before making his speech on requiring immigrants to complete community service before becoming British citizens. [130765]

Mr. Byrne: Ministers routinely discuss matters that may be of interest across their respective Departments.

Departments: St George's Day

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans his Department has to celebrate St. George's day. [125780]

Mr. Byrne: The Home Office flies the Union flag on St. Georges day.

Driving Offences: Courts

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many driving offences were tried in (a) magistrates courts and (b) Crown courts in each of the last five years; and what average penalty was handed down in each case. [130044]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 26 March 2007]: Information on proceedings, convictions and sentences imposed at criminal courts for motoring offences can be found in the annual Home Office publication 'Offences relating to motor vehicles, England and Wales, Supplementary tables' (latest available covers 2004). Copies are available in the Library. The publication is available on the Research Development and Statistics (RDS) website.

2005 data will be available later this year.

Drugs: Rehabilitation Centres

Mr. Malins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of his Department's overall drugs treatment budget is spent on residential rehabilitation beds. [130347]

Caroline Flint: I have been asked to reply.

The commissioning for residential rehabilitation is carried out at local level and the funding for it comes via a number of streams. It is therefore not possible to identify how much of the pooled treatment budget is spent on residential rehabilitation beds.

Foreign Prisoners

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prisoners being held in HM prisons are (a) non-British EU nationals and (b) non-EU foreign nationals. [129995]

Mr. Byrne: Figures showing the numbers of (a) non-British European Union nationals and (b) non-European Union foreign national prisoners held in all prisons in England and Wales on 31 January 2007 can be found in the following table.

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Non-British European Union nationals and non-European foreign national prisoners held in prison establishments in England and Wales as at 31 January 2007

	Number
Non-British EU nationals	2,480
Non-EU foreign nationals	8,874
Not recorded	904
UK nationals	67,361
Total	79,619

The following is a link to show European Union membership:

http://www.fco.gov.uk/servlet/Front?pagename=OpenMarket/Xcelerate/ShowPage&c=Page&cid=1139991776535

Mr. Wiltshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many convicted prisoners in England and Wales are (a) illegal immigrants and (b) non-British citizens whose entitlement to be in the UK is in doubt; and what percentage of the total number of convicted prisoners each category represents. [128494]

Mr. Byrne: My right hon. Friend the Home Secretary set out on 23 May 2006 in a written ministerial statement that there is currently no unique personal identifier for individuals who come into contact with the criminal justice, immigration and asylum systems.

Information about the immigration status of persons convicted of a crime is therefore not routinely collated or held centrally by the Department and only available at disproportionate cost.

The Border and Immigration Agency and the criminal justice agencies are testing new processes for establishing and recording nationality within the criminal justice system. In the longer term the National Identity scheme offers a way of moving towards a comprehensive approach to identity management across all our systems.

Highly Skilled Migrants Programme

Martin Salter: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department for what reason changes to the highly skilled migrants programme are to be applied retrospectively; and if he will make a statement. [131136]

Mr. Byrne: The changes made to the highly skilled migrant programme (HSMP) last year are not being applied retrospectively. The criteria which individuals need to satisfy are those in place at the time they make their application: grants of leave made before the changes are not being re-assessed under the new criteria.

Identity Cards

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he plans to publish a code of practice on penalties under section 34 of the Identity Cards Act 2006. [131391]

Joan Ryan: An initial draft code of practice was published for information during the passage of the Identity Cards Bill in December 2005 and can be viewed on the Identity and Passport Service website at:

http://www.identitycards.gov.uk/downloads/05-12-05_DRAFT_Code_of_Practice.pdf

This initial draft does not reflect the changes that were subsequently made to the Identity Cards Bill before it obtained Royal Assent in March 2006 and so a further revised draft will be published for consultation in due course and before the code of practice is laid before Parliament for approval.

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many persons were (a) arrested, (b) prosecuted and (c) convicted of an offence under section 25 of the Identity Cards Act 2006 in each month since its coming into force; how many and what percentage of those convicted received custody; how many of those who received custody received (i) 0 to six months imprisonment, (ii) six to 12 months imprisonment, (iii) 12 to 18 months imprisonment and (iv) over 18 months imprisonment; and of those convicted how many received a recommendation for deportation. [131416]

Joan Ryan: Section 25 of the Identity Cards Act 2006 created new criminal offences relating to the possession of false identity documents and came into force on 7 June 2006.

Information on arrests for recorded crime offences under section 25 of the Identity Cards Act 2006 is not separately identifiable within the arrests collection held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform. The collection is based on persons arrested for recorded crime (notifiable offences) by main offence group (i.e. fraud and forgery, violence against the person, robbery, burglary, criminal damage etc.) only. The Crown Prosecution Service has no defendant-based information relating to particular offences.

Court proceedings data for 2006 will be available in the autumn of 2007.

Immigration and Nationality Directorate: Compensation

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the largest sum was paid by the Immigration and Nationality Directorate to a member of the public in settlement of a compensation claim in each of the last three financial years for which figures are available. [130674]

Mr. Byrne: I wrote to the hon. Gentleman on 21 March.

Immigration Controls

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department who the members are of the Employers Task Force on the points-based system for immigration control. [128528]

Mr. Byrne: A list of the current members of the taskforce is in the following table.

Membership list for the Employers Taskforce

Immigration and Visa Applications

Adam Price: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what his Department's policy is on the future appeals system for failed visa applications; and if he will make a statement. [112705]

Mr. Byrne: Those who are refused entry clearance to come to the UK under the new points-based system will not have full rights of appeal. In cases where entry clearance is refused, unsuccessful applicants will be able to apply for an administrative review of the refusal. The entry clearance officer's refusal notice will set out precisely why the decision has been made, referring back to the criteria for which points are awarded. When applying for administrative review the applicant must set out which aspect of the decision, as justified in the refusal letter, was incorrect. Administrative review will provide applicants with a swift and effective remedy where a factual error has been made.

Family visitors and dependants are not covered by the points-based system.

Immigration: EC Enlargement

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what methodology is used to estimate the number of residents from accession states who are in the UK. [121964]

Mr. Byrne: Since Parliament unanimously approved the Free Movement of People Directive in 2006 accession nationals have the right of free movement across the UK.

The Home Office has not made an estimate of the number of residents from accession states that are in the UK.

IND Policy

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what action his Department has taken on the recommendation of the Home Affairs Select Committee on 13 July 2006 that the Immigration and Nationality Directorate should re-examine its policy of not providing information to third parties. [115433]

Mr. Byrne: I am currently actively reviewing our policy in this area.

Internal Reviews

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which internal Home Office reviews have been instigated since 6th May 2005; which of those reviews (a) have been completed and (b) are ongoing; and what the estimated cost is of conducting each review. [110579]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 24 January 2007]: To identify every review that falls under this broad category of "internal Home Office reviews" could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Migrant Workers: Agriculture

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people entered the UK under the seasonal agricultural workers scheme in each of the last 10 years, broken down by country of origin; and if he will estimate the number of those workers who failed to return to their country of origin in each year. [122078]

Mr. Byrne: Statistics are recorded on the nationality of persons admitted to the UK under the seasonal agricultural workers scheme. These are given in the following table.

Offensive Weapons

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department in how many incidents of recorded violent crime a crossbow was used as an offensive weapon in each year since 1997. [131238]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not available centrally. Offences involving crossbows cannot be identified in the recorded crime statistics.

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many times the power to authorise stop and search for offensive weapons within a specified area for the period of 24 hours under Section 60 of the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 has been enacted by a senior police officer in each year since the Act came into force. [131246]

Mr. McNulty: Available information on stops and searches under Section 60 of the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 from 1995 to 2004-05 of persons or vehicles can be found in table PB of the Home Office Statistical Bulletin 'Arrests for recorded crime (notifiable offences) and the Operation of Certain Police Powers under PACE, 2004-05 England and Wales', given in the following table. It is also available on the web at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs05/hosb2105.pdf.

Information for 2005-06 will be available later in 2007.

Prison Overcrowding

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether he plans to extend early release provisions in order to alleviate prison overcrowding. [129656]

John Reid: I have no plans to do so. The National Offender Management Service is dealing with pressures on the prison estate by building more capacity. We will always ensure that there will be prison places for those serious, sexual and seriously persistent offenders who ought to be in prison.

Prisons: Visits

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many visits were received by (a) male and (b) female prisoners in each of the last five years. [130531]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 29 March 2007]: Statistics on the number of visits to prisoners are not centrally collated and there is currently no national system for recording such data. Prisoners have a statutory entitlement to social visits and are also able to earn additional visits under the Incentives and Earned Privileges Scheme.

Serious Organised Crime Agency: Manpower

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many serious crime agency officers are embedded in (a) other law enforcement agencies and (b) private organisations within the financial sector (i) within the UK and (ii) overseas. [131683]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is in the following table.

	UK	Overseas
Other law enforcement agencies	32	23
Private organisations	0	0

Young Offenders

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 27 March 2007, Official Report, column 1460-1W, on young offenders, what steps his Department is taking to improve the accuracy of statistics recorded for breaches of (a) supervision orders with conditions, (b) curfew orders, (c) community punishment and rehabilitation orders, (d) community punishment orders, (e) detention and training orders, (f) reparation orders, (g) action plan orders, (h) attendance centre orders, (i) supervision orders without conditions and (j) drug treatment and testing orders; and if he will make a statement. [131736]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 16 April 2007]: Although about 5 per cent. of breach data are reported to the Office for Criminal Justice Reform (OCJR) by the Crown Court, the rest covering magistrates courts are reported by either magistrates courts or police forces. Responsibility for processing, validating and disseminating the data rests with OCJR.

A link between the new case management system for magistrates courts, being developed by the Department for Constitutional Affairs and OCJR, is replacing the current reporting systems employed by magistrates courts and the police.

It is expected to provide the necessary improvement in the data supplied and will begin replacing data under those systems later this year.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Heating

Norman Baker: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what the total cost of heating the buildings on the House of Commons estate was in each of the last three years; and what targets are in place for future years. [120548]

Nick Harvey: It is not possible to determine the total cost of heating the buildings on the House of Commons estate. All the buildings are heated by natural gas boilers which are not metered separately; the gas meters record total consumption for providing hot water services as well as heating. The approximate total gas consumption and cost for each of the last three years has been:

	Consumption MWh	Cost (£ million)
2003-04	21.5	0.3
2004-05	20.0	0.3
2005-06	21.6	0.4

The increase in cost for 2005-06 is mainly due to significant increases in the unit price of gas in that year. Gas consumption reduced in 2004-05 and then increased in 2005-06; due to fluctuations in heating energy consumption caused by variations in outside temperatures measured in degree days. The following table shows the degree days for the Thames Valley region which includes London. From these figures a higher consumption would have been expected in 2005-06. That it was not so is due to the installation of more efficient Palace boilers in 2004.

	Degree days
2003-04	1,740
2004-05	1,703
2005-06	1,869

A target

"to reduce energy consumption measured in terms of kWh of fuel and electricity used per square metre of building floor area by 15 per cent. by 2010-11, relative to 1999-2000" is contained in the Energy and Water Saving Policy adopted by both Houses.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Community Relations

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what organisations applied for funding under the community relations core funding scheme 2007-10; and which organisations were (a) successful and (b) unsuccessful with their application. [131680]

Maria Eagle: The Department of Education received 59 applications. Twenty-six organisations were successful and are listed at A. Thirty-three organisations were unsuccessful and are listed at B.

Point A lists the organisations that were successful in securing funding.

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland which organisations appealed the decision not to grant funding under the community relations core funding scheme 2007-10; and which organisations were (a) successful and (b) unsuccessful with their appeals. [131681]

Maria Eagle: The organisations listed as follows appealed the Department's decision not to grant funding under the community relations core-funding scheme 2007-10:

Forward Learning
Lurgan YMCA
Tides Training
Armagh City and District Council
Harmony Community Trust
Christian Education Movement
The Horizon Project (Ireland) Ltd.
St. Patrick's Centre.

Harmony Community Trust was the only group to make a successful appeal.

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland who the members are of the (a) decision making group and (b) appeals panel for the community relations core funding scheme 2007-10; and why each was appointed. [131682]

Maria Eagle: The information is as follows:

(a) Advisory Panel Members (Decision Making Group)

Mrs. Phyllis Richardson—Chairperson, Community Relations Branch, Department of Education

Mr. James Peel—Youth Advisor, South Eastern Education and Library Board

Ms Frances McCandless—Northern Ireland Council for Voluntary Action

Mr. Paul Jordan—Community Relations Council

Mr. Walker Ewart—Education and Training Inspectorate, Department of Education.

(b) Appeal Panel Members

Mrs. Louise Warde Hunter—Chairperson, Head of Policy, Research and Youth Division, Department of Education

Mr. Richard Hodgett—European Funding Unit, Department of Education

Ms Geraldine McGreevy—Senior Youth Officer, Belfast Education and Library Board.

Members of both the Advisory and Appeals panels were appointed on the basis of their experience of community relations education and youth sectors and knowledge of funding and accountability requirements.

Fly Tipping

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what representations he has received from the Irish government on the police investigation into an incident in County Tyrone in February 2004 when a journalist found briefing papers originating from the Irish Department of Justice at an illegal dump. [131022]

Mr. Hain: There have been no representations received from the Irish Government in relation to this incident.

Prescriptions: Fees and Charges

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment he has made of the impact on pharmacy practice planning of clawing back sums for multiple dispensing of prescription items. [130690]

Paul Goggins: The Department recently withdrew its intention to reduce the multiple dispensing fee for 2006-07 and reinstated the rate of all fees to their former levels for 2006-07, pending the outcome of further negotiations with the Pharmaceutical Contractors' Committee (PCC). The February claw-back has therefore been reversed and repaid to pharmacies in the March monthly payment.

Negotiations recently concluded will result in an increase in the pharmacists' main dispensing fee from £1.04 to £1.11 per item for both 2006-07 and 2007-08. This will mean a further arrears payment shortly for those 2006-07 prescription items already processed by the Central Services Agency.

Recent discussions with PCC have led to meaningful progress towards resolution of multiple dispensing and medicines management issues, with both parties agreeing to look urgently at this issue as part of the ongoing negotiations on the new pharmacy contract.

PRIME MINISTER

Former Ministers: Business Interests

Norman Baker: To ask the Prime Minister if he will make it a requirement that former Ministers wishing to take up appointments subject to scrutiny by the Advisory Committee on Business Appointments within two years of leaving office must seek clearance from that body. [131070]

The Prime Minister: Guidance for Ministers on the acceptance of appointments after leaving ministerial office is set out in the ministerial code.

Minister Policy Advisers: Autobiography

Mrs. May: To ask the Prime Minister what assessment he has made of the merits of requiring former Government advisers to submit draft manuscripts of their memoirs to the Secretary of the Cabinet for comment and approval. [130764]

The Prime Minister: The requirements placed on former civil servants, including special advisers, in relation to the publication of memoirs are set out in section 4 of the Civil Service Management Code.

Ministers: Codes of Practice

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Prime Minister if he will make it his policy for oversight of the ministerial code to be vested in Parliament; and if he will make a statement. [131018]

The Prime Minister: Section 1 of the Ministerial Code sets out the lines of accountability.

Petitions

Stephen Williams: To ask the Prime Minister (1) how many petitions on the Downing Street website have so far been (a) received, (b) approved and (c) rejected; [131571]

(2) what the average time is to approve or reject a petition request for the Downing Street website. [131584]

The Prime Minister: Information on e-petitions is available on the No. 10 website (http://www.pm.gov.uk/output/Page11051.asp). A copy of this web page has been placed in the Library of the House.

Public Sector: Standards

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Prime Minister what recent steps he has taken to foster and promote the public's trust in those in public life. [131166]

The Prime Minister: The Ministerial Code was last updated in July 2005. In March 2006 I appointed Sir John Bourn KCB as independent adviser on Ministers' interests. I have renounced my right as Prime Minister to nominate individuals directly for honours and announced an independent review of party funding, which has now concluded. A new Civil Service Code was also issued last year.

In addition, this Government were the first to publish a Ministerial Code, the document Travel by Ministers, a model contract and Code of Conduct for Special Advisers as well as annual lists of travel by Cabinet Ministers and gifts given to Ministers.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Biofuels

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the potential contribution of biomass to the security of energy supply to the UK. [129053]

Malcolm Wicks: The potential contribution of bioenergy towards the Government's energy policy and climate change objectives was reported on by the Biomass Task Force in October 2005 and in the Government's Response to the Task Force published in April 2006.

The Government are expecting to publish a UK Biomass Strategy in May 2007. The Biomass Strategy outlines how our policies on biomass for industry, energy and transport jointly operate to provide a clear, coherent and co-ordinated framework for the development of biomass as a whole and identifies the challenges to delivery.

Business Link

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what representations he has received on the regionalisation of Business Link. [105800]

Margaret Hodge: Decisions concerning the operational delivery arrangements have been devolved to the regional development agencies (RDAs) who have carried out full consultation with local stakeholders on delivery arrangements.

However, any proposals by RDAs in awarding contracts for the delivery of Business Link branded service are subject to clearance from the DTI's Secretary of State by submitting their proposals to the Central Project Review Group (CPRG) process. CPRG is used to establish value-for-money during the process of awarding contracts. CPRG consists of representatives from DTI, HM Treasury and the Small Business Service.

I apologise for the delay in responding. This was due to an administrative error.

Businesses: EC Countries

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what methods of finding a business partner in another EU member state for the purposes of an application under the European Research and Development Programme are open to UK businesses. [130675]

Malcolm Wicks: The European Commission provides, through its well-established "CORDIS" service, a free on-line partner search service to help organisations find research partners, either in the context of specific EU-funded R and D projects or broader searches for technology-oriented partnerships. This service can also be used by organisations to advertise project ideas, partnering needs and expertise requirements. The service can be accessed at:

http://cordis.europa.eu/fp7/partners_en.html

The European Union's R and D Framework Programme also funds a number of thematic-specific databases, including:

"SMEs go Health" which offers profiles of SMEs and research institutes interested in becoming involved in Framework Programme research projects, as well as partner searches of research consortia looking for SME partners.

"Ideal-ist Partner Search Facility" provides helps find partners for ICT project ideas.

"NAnoMITEC" helps SMEs interested in micro and nano technologies by supporting them in joining R and D projects.

In addition, the European Commission occasionally organises brokerage events in certain areas of the Framework Programme.

UK organisations can also contact the relevant UK Framework Programme National Contact Point who should be able to" help identify potential partners. Details of these contact points can be found on the UK Framework Programme website at:

http://www.fp7uk.dti.gov.uk/

EC Energy Policy

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what discussions he has had with the EU on establishing a common energy policy across all 27 member states. [131261]

Malcolm Wicks: The formation of a common EU energy policy was agreed by Heads of State and Government at the Hampton Court informal summit, during the UK presidency of the EU in 2005. Since then, the formation of a common EU energy policy has been discussed at:

the December 2005 European Council, attended by the Prime Minister;

the March 2006 Energy Council, which I attended as Energy Minister; the March 2006 European Council, attended by the Prime Minister;

the June 2006 Energy Council, which I attended as Energy Minister; the June 2006 European Council, attended by the Prime Minister;

the October 2006 informal European Council, held at Lahti, Finland, attended by the Prime Minister;

the November 2006 Energy Council, attended by Lord Truscott; the December 2006 European Council, attended by the Prime Minister; and the February 2007 Energy Council, attended by Lord Truscott.

In addition, the Secretary of State, Lord Truscott and I have had numerous bi-lateral meetings with our opposite numbers around the EU and with the Commission.

At the spring European Council, 8 to 9 March 2007, Heads of State and Government discussed the Strategic Energy Review, published by the Commission on 10 January 2007, and adopted an Energy Action Plan.

Electronic Equipment: Waste Disposal

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what advice his Department is making available to small businesses on compliance with the Waste Electrical and Electronic Equipment Directive. [129348]

Malcolm Wicks: The Department has made extensive efforts to inform all industry, including small businesses, of the requirements of this directive since its publication in the EC's Official Journal in February 2003.

These have included, most recently, the publication in February this year of Government Guidance Notes clarifying the obligations that will be brought into force from 1 July 2007. The Department also ran a series of roadshows across the UK in January and February this year, specifically targeted at small and medium-sized businesses, and is continuing dialogue with a number of organisations representing the small business community, including the Federation of Small Businesses and RETRA (the Radio, Electrical and Television Retailers' Association).

Energy Technologies Institute

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what criteria will be taken into account in selecting the (a) location and (b) partners for the Energy Technologies Institute. [131649]

Malcolm Wicks: Research organisations across the UK were invited in January to provide information on energy-related research capacity, capabilities and resources and to indicate any interest in hosting the Energy Technologies Institute (ETI) director and support staff. The submissions are being considered by representatives of the industrial and public sector funding partners who will prepare initial advice for the ETI Board, once legally established, and the director, once appointed, to consider in detail and to follow up as appropriate. Decisions will be a matter for the ETI itself. The key criteria being used to assess the submissions to host the ETI director are:

Reputation and culture: in particular, a world class reputation for research and development across a range of energy themes; and strong existing industrial and academic relationships, with sustained collaborative working and networking track record;

Space, facilities and location: including ability to expand to provide a suite of office/conferencing facilities commensurate with the developing needs and aspirations of the ETI, thus providing a showcase for the ETI; with good communications and access;

Commitment to support and promote ETI; and Value for money.

An update will be available on the ETI website at http://www.dti.gov.uk/science/science-funding/eti/ shortly.

Once specific research and development programmes have been determined by ETI, the selection of research partners will be based on those best equipped to undertake the programmes.

Enterprise Week

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) what the cost was of (a) creating and (b) running the Enterprise Week website in (i) 2004, (ii) 2005 and (iii) 2006 to date; [113187]

(2) what the cost was of (a) creating and (b) running the Make Your Mark campaign website in (i) 2004, (ii) 2005 and (iii) 2006 to date. [113188]

Margaret Hodge: The information is as follows.

www.starttalkingideas.org is the website of Enterprise Insight's Make Your Mark campaign, and includes the dedicated Enterprise Week sub-pages, accessible by the URL www.enterpriseweek.org Enterprise Insight have advised that separate figures for the Enterprise Week sub-pages are not kept, as they come under the contract for the main website.

They also advise that the total costs for creating the campaign website were:

1 January 2004 to 31 December 2004	139,516
1 January 2005 to 31 March 2006	156,947
1 April 2006 to 31 December 2006	88,007

The total costs for running the campaign website were:

1 January 2004 to 31 December 2004	100
1 January 2005 to 31 March 2006	916
1 April 2006 to 31 December 2006	6,166

I apologise for the delay in responding. This was due to an administrative error.

Low Carbon Buildings Programme

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many households were allocated grants under the low carbon buildings programme in each month from May to November 2006. [129501]

Malcolm Wicks: The information is as follows.

	Number of households allocated grants
May 2006	121
June 2006	349
July 2006	573
August 2006	499
September 2006	392
October 2006	1,071
November 2006	1,050

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many applications have been received by the Low Carbon Buildings programme since 2006. [131252]

Malcolm Wicks: Since the launch of the Low Carbon Buildings programme in April 2006, we have received 6,331 applications to date. The breakdown of this is as follows:

Stream	Number of applications
1A—Household	6,020
1B—Community	112
2A—Business, public sector, non-profit (< £100,000 grants)	190
2B—Business, public sector, non-profit (< £1 million grants)	9

Low Carbon Buildings Programme: Wales

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many applications to the Low Carbon Buildings programme have been (a) made and (b) granted in Wales, broken down by parliamentary constituency. [131253]

Malcolm Wicks: For the Low Carbon Buildings programme, we only hold statistics for specific areas in Wales as set out in the following table.

Area	Number of applications	Number of grants
Anglesey	1	1
Cardiff	23	16
Cardigan	1	1
Carmarthenshire	7	6
Ceredigion	4	1
Clwyd	35	30
Denbighshire	2	1
Dyfed	91	83
Flintshire	2	1
Glamorgan	2	1
Gwent	36	32
Gwynedd	54	47
Mid Glamorgan	21	19
Monmouthshire	1	1
Pembrokeshire	8	7
Port Talbot	1	1
Powys	112	103
South Glamorgan	14	11
Swansea	19	15
Torfaen	1	1
West Glamorgan	10	9

Natural Gas: Greater London

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what information the Government hold on the condition of London's gas mains; what estimate he has made of the funding necessary to improve conditions; how much is being spent on improvements; and if he will make a statement. [130464]

Malcolm Wicks: The Government do not retain information on the condition of London's gas mains.

However, on 26 March, Ofgem published its gas distribution price control review fourth consultation document which contained some relevant information. National Grid gas distribution is forecasting that it will spend £332 million (in 2005-06 prices) on mains replacement between 2008-09 and 2012-13 in its north London network as well as an additional £158 million on associated service replacement. Scotia is forecasting that it will spend £521 million over the same period in its south England network as well as an additional £384 million in associated service replacement.

This document sets out Ofgem's consultants' initial recommendations on whether this level of spend was efficient. Ofgem will be publishing their initial proposals on the appropriate level of expenditure for each gas distribution network for 2008-09 to 2012-13 at the end of May.

Natural Gas: Pipelines

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will allow National Grid to consult on all sections of the new national grid natural gas pipeline complying with section 2 of the Public Gas Transporter Pipeline Works (Environmental Impact Assessment) Regulations 1999. [130057]

Malcolm Wicks: Regulation 10 of the 1999 Regulations requires an application to be advertised and a period given for representations to be made to the Secretary of State.

Ofgem

Mr. Donohoe: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of Ofgem's performance in fulfilling its duty to have regard for the interests of low-income consumers; and if he will make a statement. [131293]

Malcolm Wicks: Under the Gas Act 1986 and the Electricity Act 1989, as amended, the Authority is required, in carrying out its functions, to have regard to the interests of, among others, individuals with low incomes. While the DTI does monitor the overall performance of the energy market and its regularity framework, Ofgem's accountability for its performance against its statutory duties is to the Public Accounts Committee.

Renewable Energy: Grants

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what grants were made to domestic households in England for renewable energy in each month since April 2006; and for how many days in each month those grants were available. [128789]

Malcolm Wicks: [holding answer 29 March 2007]: The Low Carbon Buildings programme phase 1 was launched in April 2006. The following table shows the grant commitments to householders and the number of days that grants were available in each month since the scheme was launched.

	Grant commitments	Number of days grants available
May 2006	121	31
June 2006	349	30
July 2006	573	31
August 2006	499	31
September 2006	392	30
October 2006	1,071	31
November 2006	1,050	30
December 2006	344	18
January 2007	263	12
February 2007	199	1
March 2007	192	1

In the Budget 2007, it was announced that a further £6 million will be made available to the household stream of the low carbon buildings programme, taking the total available for householders to more than £18 million.

Before deciding how to make best use of the extra funding, the household stream will be suspended for the monthly allocation in April so that it can be re-shaped.

Small Businesses

Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry pursuant to the answer of 19 March 2007, Official Report, column 637W, on small businesses, what estimate he has made of (a) the total number of businesses in the UK and (b) the total number of businesses in the UK which are categorised as family businesses. [131660]

Mr. Darling: [holding answer 16 April 2007]: The DTI produces estimates of the number of businesses in its small and medium enterprise statistics publication. At the start of 2005 there were 4.3 million businesses in the UK.

The DTI in its annual small business survey defines a family business as one "majority owned by members of the same family". The 2005 survey found that 65 per cent of all small and medium-sized enterprises were family businesses, which equates to 2.8 million businesses in the UK.

Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry pursuant to the answer of 19 March 2007, Official Report, column 637W, on small businesses, what estimate he has made of the total percentage of UK gross domestic product which is derived from the activities of family businesses. [131661]

Mr. Darling: [holding answer 16 April 2007]: It is not possible to provide precise estimates of the total contribution of family businesses to UK gross domestic product from statistical data on the business population.

However the DTI Annual Small Business Survey 2005 indicates that 65 per cent. of all small and medium-sized enterprises are family businesses. Based on this proportion we would expect family businesses that are also small and medium-sized enterprises to contribute around £220 billion in gross value added to the UK economy.

Solar Power

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the potential for solar power to contribute to the energy mix over the next five to 15 years; and what policies he has to maximise solar heat and solar electricity production. [127407]

Malcolm Wicks: The Energy Saving Trust undertook a study on behalf of the DTI (Potential for Microgeneration: Study and Analysis)—http://www.dti.gov.uk/energy/sources/sustainable/microgeneration/index.html that examines the potential of all microgeneration technologies to contribute to the energy mix over the next 45 years.

The Government's Microgeneration Strategy (published in March 2006)—http:/www.dti.gov.uk/energy/sources/sustainable/microgeneration/strategy/page 27594.html sets out a number of measures aimed at promoting microgeneration technologies, including solar power. The Code for Sustainable Homes and the Building a Greener Future consultation (both published in December 2006 by Communities and Local Government Department—http://www,communities.gov.uk/index.asp?id=1503251) contain measures that should further promote microgeneration.

TRANSPORT

Road Haulage

9. John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what measures his Department has considered to reduce the transportation of goods by road; and if he will make a statement. [131458]

Dr. Ladyman: The Department provides grant funding for rail and water freight where appropriate. In 2005-06 we provided over £23 million that have removed 840,000 lorry journeys from the roads. The Government also promote efficiency within the road sector through the Freight Best Practice and other programmes.

School Transport

10. Mr. Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps he is taking to encourage more sustainable school transport. [131459]

Gillian Merron: The Government are promoting sustainable school travel and transport through the Travelling to School project, supported by more than £100 million funding up to 2008. Our stated objective is for all schools to have an approved school travel plan by 2010. In addition, the Education and Inspection Act places a duty on local authorities to promote sustainable travel to school to all children and to increase the free home to school transport provision for children in low-income families.

Railway Stations

11. Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many railway stations are expected to receive Access for All funding. [131460]

Mr. Tom Harris: We have announced 92 stations in England and Wales that we expect Network Rail to improve up to 2011 and are developing the list of stations that will be included in the programme between 2012 and 2015.

Work at more than 500 other stations has been approved up to March 2008 under the Access for All small schemes programme. There will be further rounds of bidding each year until at least 2015.

Public Transport: Overcrowding

12. Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what measures are being considered for the alleviation of public transport overcrowding. [131461]

Gillian Merron: The Government are tackling overcrowding on public transport through a combination of investment in additional capacity and improved use of existing capacity.

Railways: Overcrowding

13. Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps he is taking to reduce overcrowding on the railways. [131462]

17. Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps he is taking to ease congestion on trains. [131466]

Mr. Tom Harris: We will continue to increase capacity through the franchising process and in other ways. In particular, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State announced on 14 March that the High Level Output Specification, to be published in the summer, will include a commitment to a thousand extra carriages. They will be targeted at the most congested routes on the network.

Rail Infrastructure

14. Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent discussions he has had with Network Rail on improvements to rail infrastructure. [131463]

Mr. Tom Harris: I have regular discussions with the chief executive of Network Rail over a range of issues including infrastructure improvements. Departmental officials are continually engaged with the company over the development and implementation of enhancements to railway capacity and performance.

Train Services: Shropshire

15. Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions he has had with the Office of the Rail Regulator on train services in Shropshire. [131464]

Mr. Tom Harris: Department for Transport officials have had several meetings with counterparts from the Office of Rail Regulation concerning the emerging track access requirements of both franchised and open access train operators, in the light of the ongoing competition for the new cross country and west midlands franchises, and the application for access rights made by the Wrexham, Shropshire and Marylebone open access railway company.

Railway Usage

16. Mark Tami: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will undertake a benchmarking exercise to assess railway usage in the UK against other EU member states. [131465]

Mr. Tom Harris: A range of comparative information is collected at European level and the Department draws on this in the development of its policy. We have no plans to undertake any specific exercise to benchmark rail demand.

Environmentally Friendly Vehicles

18. Mr. Scott: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps his Department is taking to encourage motorists to choose more environmentally friendly vehicles. [131467]

Dr. Ladyman: The Government have introduced fiscal incentives for consumers to buy cleaner vehicles. A communications campaign currently provides advice on purchasing cleaner vehicles and on fuel efficient driving. The Government have also supported the car fuel economy label helping consumers make informed choices when buying a new car.

Train Services: Disabled Passengers

19. Mr. Malik: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what progress has been made in providing more accessible trains for disabled passengers. [131468]

Mr. Tom Harris: Over 4,500 new fully accessible train carriages comply with the Rail Vehicle Accessibility Regulations, which were introduced in 1998. This represents over a third of the national heavy rail fleet. In addition, improvements to the accessibility of almost all older trains are made when their interiors are refurbished.

Cycling

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the extent to which second round Local Transport Plans (LTPs) include commitments to support Government policies on cycling; and to what extent the inclusion of such commitments has influenced the Government's assessments of LTPs and the resulting funding allocations. [131222]

Gillian Merron: The guidance offered by the Department to local authorities on the preparation of the second Local Transport Plans included many references to cycling policies, and authorities were required to include a target on cycling trips in their plans. With one minor exception, every plan proposes to increase or stabilise levels of cycling locally.

The assessments of LTPs considered evidence that the plans addressed the problems and opportunities across the full range of transport modes, including cycling. A detailed technical note on the method of assessment and the implications for funding can be found on the Department's website at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/regional/ltp/capital/ltpsettle06/

Cycling: Accidents

Emily Thornberry: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps he is taking to reduce the number of cyclist fatalities involving heavy goods vehicles. [131453]

Dr. Ladyman: There were 24 cyclist fatalities involving HGVs during 2005, which is 33 per cent. fewer than the average for 1994-98. The Highway Code advises drivers and cyclists how to avoid these casualties. The Department's leaflet 'Drive Safe Cycle Safe' also encourages drivers and cyclists to share the road safely. RoSPA has produced a DVD on safety for cyclists and lorries, funded by the Department.

Departments: Lobbying

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what guidance he has issued on the conduct of relations between lobbyists and (a) officials and (b) Ministers in his Department; and if he will make a statement. [130796]

Gillian Merron: Ministers and civil servants act in accordance with the requirements of the Ministerial Code and the Civil Service Code. Detailed guidance on contacts between civil servants and lobbyists is set out in the Directory of Civil Service Guidance, which is in the Libraries of the House and on the Cabinet Office website.

Heathrow Airport: Greenhouse Gas Emissions

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether account is being taken of the impact of the planned Colnbrook incinerator in the assessment of pollution levels at Heathrow Airport if a third runway is constructed, with particular reference to nitrogen dioxide and particulate matter. [131110]

Gillian Merron: The modelling of future third runway scenarios at Heathrow takes account of industrial emissions in the surrounding area. We are advised that the new Colnbrook incinerator is unlikely to have a material impact on emissions around Heathrow but detailed emissions data for the new plant are being obtained in order to confirm the position.

Heathrow Express Line

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what work his Department has undertaken to investigate a second line on the Heathrow Express to St. Pancras. [131753]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Department for Transport has not carried out any work on this proposal.

London Airports: Greenhouse Gas Emissions

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the level of emissions of oxides of nitrogen attributable to aircraft landing and take-off was at (a) Heathrow, (b) Gatwick and (c) Stansted airports in each year since 1995; what forecasts have been made of future such emissions; and if he will make a statement. [131735]

Gillian Merron: All of the data requested are not readily available. At Heathrow, over 1997 to 2004 there has been no significant trend in the contribution of on-airport sources of NOx which varied between 80 and 100 microgrammes per cubic metre. BAA figure indicates that in 2002, there were 3,780 tonnes of NOx from aircraft during landing, take-off and up to 1,000m. The Project for the Sustainable Development of Heathrow (PSDH) is currently modelling and forecasting future emissions for Heathrow and we will be consulting on this later in the year.

Pedestrian Crossings

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many schemes have been completed under the Highways Agency's non-motorised user crossings programme. [131196]

Dr. Ladyman: To date, the Highways Agency has completed investigations at 188 crossing points for non-motorised users and has delivered appropriate works. All of these sites were identified within the non-motorised user crossings programme.

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what budget is committed for the non-motorised user crossings programme in the 2007-08 financial year; and which schemes are expected to be completed in that year. [131197]

Dr. Ladyman: Non-motorised user crossings improvements are delivered as part of larger schemes within the Highways Agency's programme of road improvement works. As such, costs that are specific to non-motorised user crossings improvements are not recorded separately.

The following table lists sites from the non-motorised user crossings list, published in October 2003, that are currently forecast to be addressed during 2007-08.

Region	HA area number	Route	Location
East	6	A12n	Denmark Road/Katwijk Way
South East	4	A21	Holy Trinity
South East	4	A23	Tilgate Forest Row
South East	4	A27	Selmeston to Alciston
East	8	A428	Eltisley B1040 to Biggleswade
East Midlands	8	A43	Brackley South Roundabout South Crossing
East	8	A5	Little Brickhill Bypass
East Midlands	8	A5	Pottersbury Village
South East	5	M25	Almners Road Overbridge
North East	14	A19	Moor Farm Roundabout
East Midlands	7	A52	South Stapleford
West Midlands	11	M6	Madeley
South West	1	A35	Winterbourne Abbas (scheme 66)
South West	1	A38	Doublebois
South West	1	A36	Old Inn, Kilmington
South East	3	A31	Snells Corner H/A3/3/300
South East	3	A34	Forge Farm H/A34/120

Railways

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport on how many railway lines selective door opening is running. [128096]

Mr. Tom Harris: All modern rolling stock produced in the last 10 years, including Pendolino, Voyager, Meridian, Adelante, Electrostar, Turbostar, and Desiro trains, has a facility for selective control of door opening. Nationally this represents over 1/3 of the UK rolling stock fleet.

The Train Operating Companies use this facility wherever short platforms make it necessary on the lines over which these trains operate, and I have deposited a current list of these lines in the House Library.

Railways: Bicycles

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make it his policy to support proposed European legislation that would require facilities for bicycles on all European trains. [131195]

Mr. Tom Harris: The UK supports the Common Position reached by the Council and Commission on the International Rail Passengers' Rights and Obligations proposal. This does not mandate facilities for bicycles on all European trains, recognising the limitations of space on some services, particularly during peak hours.

Railways: Freight

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will seek to meet the Secretary of State for Communities, Local Government and the Regions to discuss the planning regime in respect of Railfreight Interchanges following introduction of the Government's proposed Planning-Gain Supplement (Preparations) Bill. [130797]

Mr. Tom Harris: I have no plans to seek a meeting with my right hon. Friend, the Secretary of State for Communities, Local Government and the Regions on this issue. However, officials from both Departments will shortly be meeting with representatives of the Railfreight Interchange Investment Group to discuss issues relating to the planning regime in respect of railfreight interchanges, including the potential introduction of a Planning Gain Supplement.

Railways: Milton Keynes

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what (a) percentage and (b) actual change he expects there to be in numbers of seats on (i) peak and (ii) off-peak services from Milton Keynes Central from January 2009. [132325]

Mr. Tom Harris: Once the examination of bids for the new west midlands franchise has been completed and new timetables for the Virgin West Coast trains (incorporating additional stops) have been further refined it will be possible to provide a full response. I anticipate that train operators will be able to provide accurate details later in the year.

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) fast, (b) semi-fast and (c) slow trains he expects to be available per hour from Milton Keynes during (i) peak and (ii) off peak times when the platform upgrade at Milton Keynes station is completed. [132328]

Mr. Tom Harris: The basic pattern of services will consist of three fast Virgin West Coast trains an hour northbound from Milton Keynes Central and two fast services an hour southbound. The exact pattern of services on the semi-fast and slow services will remain broadly unchanged but is dependent upon the bids submitted for the new west midlands franchise. I expect the operator of this franchise and Virgin West Coast trains to provide full details later this year to passengers and stakeholders.

Railways: West Midlands

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he plans the new west midlands rail franchise operator to be announced. [132326]

Mr. Tom Harris: The new west midlands rail franchise operator is expected to be announced during summer 2007.

Rolling Stock

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many and what value of (a) rail vehicles and (b) carriages are expected to be delivered in (i) 2007, (ii) 2008 and (iii) the Control Period 4 (2009-14), broken down by (A) (1) manufacturer and (2) franchise on which they are expected to operate and (B) (x) orders already in place and (y) future planned orders. [131793]

Mr. Tom Harris: It is too early to comment on the deployment, value and orders of the additional rolling stock.

The deployment of new rolling stock will be agreed with the industry following the publication of the High Level Output Specification and the long-term rail strategy this summer.

The rail industry will respond to the HLOS in October 2007 with proposals for delivering the sought extra capacity.

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many rail vehicles and carriages (a) on order and (b) expected up to 2014 will be (i) replacement vehicles for existing rolling stock and (ii) additional rolling stock which will add to the total potential loading capacity of the rail network. [131794]

Mr. Tom Harris: It is too early to predict how many of the existing fleet of approximately 11,400 rail carriages will be replaced by 2014. I can, however, re-iterate the Government intention to commit to contracting with train operators for 1,000 additional carriages by 2014. This will form part of the capacity sought in the rail High Level Output Specification to be published in July and will be in addition to any carriage replacements.

Speed Limits: Cameras

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many speed cameras there were in each police authority area in 1997. [131795]

Dr. Ladyman: The Department does not hold this information, but does have the information for the areas covered by the Safety Camera Partnerships. The following table shows the number of fixed and mobile camera sites that are recorded as having been established in 1997.

	Number
Avon and Somerset	74
Bedfordshire	9
Cambridgeshire	8
Cheshire	8
Cleveland	1
Derbyshire	18
Devon and Cornwall	22
Dorset	29
Essex	18
Gloucestershire	21
Greater Manchester	38
Hampshire	1
Hertfordshire	11
Kent and Medway	12
Lancashire	29
Leicestershire	6
London	182
Mid and South Wales	2
Norfolk	4
Northumbria	22
Nottinghamshire	2
South Yorkshire	24

	Number
Staffordshire	41
Surrey	11
Sussex	13
Thames Valley	185
West Mids	24
Wiltshire	4

The National Safety Camera Programme ceased on the 31 March and the response represents data held as at that date. Future operation and deployment of safety cameras will be under the control of local partnerships, which will be better able to supply up-to-date information.

Walking: Pupils

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans his Department has to extend Walking to School initiatives. [131566]

Gillian Merron: The Government are funding over 3,000 schools to increase walking to school: 1,903 schools to set up and sustain a walking bus and 1,328 to set up and sustain an alternative walking initiative, following my right hon. Friend, the Secretary of State for Transport's announcement of 22 November 2006. More than one in six primary schools in England chose to apply and were eligible for the grant. The House and schools were informed of the allocations for 2007-08 on 26 March.

The successful schools will be eligible for further grants in 2008-09 and 2009-10 if they deliver the modal shift from car to walking that their head teachers promised and they have a reasonable expectation that this will continue.

Wolverton Station: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport by what date the grant of £400,000 for the upgrade of Wolverton station must be spent. [132323]

Mr. Tom Harris: The grant, provided through the Community Infrastructure Fund, must be used by 31 March 2008.

TREASURY

Crossrail Line: Finance

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether he expects to take a decision on the funding of Crossrail as part of the 2007 comprehensive spending review. [125761]

Ed Balls: Crossrail funding and financing issues will be considered further in the context of Sir Michael Lyons' recommendations and wider spending pressures and priorities. However, the affordability challenge represented by the scheme remains significant.

Departments: Secondment

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer from which NHS trusts his Department received secondees in each of the last five years. [131341]

Mr. Timms: The Sunderland teaching primary care trust seconded an employee to the Treasury during 2006. No other NHS trusts have seconded an employee to the Treasury in the last five years.

EC Budget

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which EU budget items allow spending on information campaigns targeted at journalists. [130652]

Ed Balls: The information published by the Commission does not detail for all EC budget lines whether these include spending on information campaigns targeted at journalists.

Chapter 16 02 of the 2007 EC budget entitled 'Communication and Media' does allow spending on communication with the media. This chapter is made up of budget lines 16 02 02 (Multimedia Actions), 16 02 03 (Information for the Media) and 16 02 04 (Operation of Radio and Television Studios and Audiovisual Equipment).

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was spent by the EU on special annual events (budget item 15 06 06) in each of the last five years; what the money was spent on; and if he will make a statement. [130654]

Ed Balls: The information published by the European Commission on budget line 15 06 06 details the outturn on special annual events in 2005, 2004, 2003 and 2002. In 2005 the outturn of payment appropriations was €2,900,000, in 2004 it was €1,725,000 and in 2003 €3,729,325.18. There was a nil outturn for payment appropriations under this line in 2002. Outturn figures are not yet available for this line for 2006, but commitment appropriations were set at €5,500,00 and payment appropriations at €5,000,000.

These appropriations were designed to support special annual events. These have included, inter alia: the European Year of Mobility for Workers; the 50th Anniversary of the Treaty of Rome; the European Union campaign for democracy; the 15th Mediterranean Games and the 25th Anniversary of the Solidarity movement in Poland.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was spent by the EU on European Political Foundations (budget item 15 06 07); what the money was spent on; and if he will make a statement. [130655]

Ed Balls: This budget line is new in the 2007 EC Budget. Commitment and payment appropriations were set at €1,000,000. These appropriations are planned to cover the cost of activities carried out by European political foundations such as: observing, analysing and contributing to the debate on European public policy issues; European seminars, conferences and studies on these issues among stakeholders; and creating a European framework to facilitate collaboration between political foundations and academics.

EuroGlobe Programme

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the (a) objectives and (b) costs are of the EuroGlobe programme. [130640]

Ed Balls: EuroGlobe is an initiative of the European Parliament. This pilot project aims to provide a European public space fostering debate about: Europe and European culture; and political participation and learning. Both commitment and payment appropriations for the EuroGlobe project were set at €1,500,000 in the 2007 EC budget.

European Communities Interinstitutional Centre

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the (a) assets and (b) costs to the taxpayer are of the European Communities Interinstitutional Centre at Overijse; how many people use it; what facilities it has; and if he will make a statement. [130669]

Ed Balls: The European Communities Interinstitutional Centre at Overijse does not have a budget line in the 2007 EC Budget and its exact cost is therefore not detailed in the 2007 EC Budget document. The budget of the centre is met by the Commission's general administration budget. The Government do not hold details of the centre's assets, the number of the people who use the centre, or information on the centre's facilities.

European Union: Citizenship

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the (a) objectives and (b) costs are of the EU pilot project to promote active European citizenship; and if he will make a statement. [130653]

Ed Balls: No appropriations have been entered into the budget line 15 06 01 for the 'pilot project in favour of citizenship' in the 2007 EC Budget. Its budget was set at €500 000 for both commitment and payment appropriations in the 2006 EC budget. The objective of this pilot project was to prepare the launch of the new 'Citizens for Europe' programme, starting from 2007, through which the Commission aims to reduce the gap it perceives between citizens and the EU.

Local Government Finance Funding Changes Independent Inquiry

Mrs. May: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the total cost was of the Lyons Review on local government finance. [131586]

John Healey: The Lyons Inquiry is estimated to cost about £1.76 million. In addition, £464,637 of funding has been provided by the Government for research commissioned by the Inquiry.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 26 March 2007, Official Report, column 1319W, on parliamentary questions, on how many occasions this advice has been given in the last 12 months. [131368]

John Healey: The Treasury provides guidance to Departments as and when the need arises. Comprehensive records are not maintained of the number of occasions that advice is given.

PRINCE Programmes

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the purpose is of the PRINCE—Role of the European Union in the World programme; what its target audience is; what activities occur in the UK under the programme; whether public relations consultants are employed under the programme; what input his Department has into the programme; and if he will make a statement. [130635]

Ed Balls: The budget line 'PRINCE—Role of the European Union in the World' funds information and communication activities directed towards the citizens of the EU and European Neighbourhood Policy countries. Its aim is to explain the EU's external actions activity to citizens.

There have been no activities conducted in the UK under this budget line and HM Treasury has no input into this programme. DG RELEX has employed external contractors to help with the logistics and organisation of its seminars, visits to third states, and in developing publications and its website.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the objectives are of the PRINCE—Information and Communication Strategy (EU budget item, code 22 04 01); what its target audience is; what activities occur in the UK under the programme; whether public relations consultants are employed by the programme; what input his Department has to the programme; and if he will make a statement. [130636]

Ed Balls: PRINCE—Information and Communication Strategy (budget line 22 04 01) is a European Commission programme which funds information and communication activities on priority EU policies. The aim of the programme is to facilitate an effective dialogue on enlargement between European citizens and the EU institutions. Target audiences include the general public, youth groups, the media, opinion leaders and rural populations.

HM Treasury has no input into this programme. We understand that the Commission has funded several seminars in the UK. HM Treasury does not hold information on public relations consultants employed by the Commission in support of the aforementioned activities.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps the UK is taking under the EU (a) PRINCE-Euro and (b) PRINCE programmes; and if he will make a statement. [130659]

Ed Balls: PRINCE is made up of a number of budget lines which include: Euro—PRINCE; PRINCE—Area of Freedom, Security and Justice; PRINCE—Information and Communication Strategy; and PRINCE—Role of the European Union in the World.

PRINCE—Euro is a European Commission information programme aimed at informing European citizens of matters relating to the introduction of the euro. The UK Government policy is to join the euro if Government, Parliament and the people, in a referendum, all agreed that it would be the right thing to do. In advance of any such decision, the UK is not undertaking any communication activities funded by this programme.

Public Expenditure: NHS

Mr. Bone: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he last discussed the NHS budget with the Secretary of State for Health and the chief executive of the national health service. [130599]

Mr. Timms: The Chancellor of the Exchequer regularly meets with the Secretary of State for Health to discuss a range of issues.

Small Businesses: Northern Ireland

Lady Hermon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the impact of the Budget on small businesses in Northern Ireland; and if he will make a statement. [130954]

John Healey: The latest published information[1] shows that in 2005 there were around 115,000 small businesses in Northern Ireland. The small business tax reforms announced at the Budget will reduce the differential between incorporated and unincorporated small businesses and refocus investment incentives. The self-employed will also be impacted by the announced changes to the personal tax system, including a reduction of the basic rate of income tax to 20p.

Any small business in Northern Ireland that invests will benefit from the introduction of the new Annual Investment Allowance, which allows 100 per cent. of capital expenditure up to £50,000 to be offset against the business's tax liability.

In addition, the Budget announced a new Northern Ireland innovation fund for jobs and industry to be available to the restored Northern Ireland Executive.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Child Support Agency

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average cost of processing Child Support Agency cases (a) electronically and (b) clerically was in the latest period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [122883]

Mr. Plaskitt: Unfortunately the information is not available in the format that you have requested.

Child Support Agency: Debt Collection

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many cases have been referred to debt collection agencies by the Child Support Agency in the last 12 months; how many of these resulted in the successful collection of the debt; and if he will make a statement. [118463]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is the matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the right hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 17 April 2007:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the secretary of state promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many cases have been referred to debt collection agencies by the Child Support Agency in the last 12 months; how many of these resulted in the successful collection of the debt; and if he will make a statement. [118463]

The Agency signed contracts with two debt collection agencies on 7th July 2006 and began transferring cases to these agencies in August 2006. By the end of February 2007 almost 24,000 cases had been transferred to these agencies and some or all of the debt had been collected in 3,895 of these cases.

The total amount collected by the debt collection agencies by the end of February 2007 was around £1.1 million. A letter sent by the Agency to inform clients that their debt is to be transferred to the external debt collection agencies had also resulted in an additional £795,000 collected by the Agency by the end of February 2007.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Children: Maintenance

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to his letter of 3 October 2006 to the hon. Member for Totnes, reference PO5(4)10535/99, what progress he has made in his consideration of the current rules that allow the Child Support Agency to ignore the earnings of members of the Territorial Army. [128195]

Mr. Plaskitt: My officials continue to look at this matter and are considering whether it is appropriate to make suitable amendments to existing Child Support legislation. All matters in relation to maintenance assessments, including the scope for further simplification, are being reconsidered as part of the consultation on the White Paper, "A New System of Child Maintenance". The period of formal consultation ended on 13 March and we are currently analysing the responses received.

Mr. David Hamilton: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what powers the Child Support Agency has to pursue a non-resident parent who moves overseas to (a) an EU state and (b) a non-EU state. [128342]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is the matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 17 April 2007:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Questions about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, what powers the Child Support Agency has to pursue a non-resident parent who moves overseas to (a) an EU state and (b) a non-EU state.

The Child Support Agency retains the power to pursue a non-resident parent who moves overseas, only where the non-resident is regarded to be habitually resident in the UK. The criteria for establishing Child Support jurisdiction when a non-resident parent leaves the United Kingdom is described at Section 44 of the Child Support Act. There is no distinction made between an EU state and a non-EU state.

There are certain cases where the nature of employment will bring the non-resident parent under the jurisdiction of the Child Support Agency, for example those employed in the Civil Service or a member of the naval, military or air forces. The Agency may also have jurisdiction where a non-resident parent is employed by a company that is prescribed in Child Support (Maintenance Arrangement and Jurisdiction Regulations) 1992, Regulation 7A(2).

If the non-resident parent is not regarded as habitually resident in the UK, then the Agency has no power to pursue. However the courts may be able to help the parent with care in obtaining ongoing child support maintenance, whether there is already a court order or not. The Department for Constitutional Affairs in the UK is responsible for the administration of reciprocal enforcement arrangements with more than 100 countries and territories.

Once an application is sent to the foreign authorities it will be dealt with according to laws and procedures of that country. The UK has no control over how long that process will take but will periodically check on the progress of a case with the foreign authorities.

I hope you find this response helpful.

Mr. David Hamilton: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many cases the Child Support Agency has where (a) the non-resident parent (NRP) lives in Scotland and the parent with care (PWC) lives in England and (b) the NRP lives in England and the PWC lives in Scotland. [128343]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 17 April 2007:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many cases the Child Support Agency has where (a) the non-residential parent (NRP) lives in Scotland and the parent with care (PWC) lives in England and (b) the NRP lives in England and the PWC lives in Scotland.

Information regarding the region of residence of NRPs and PWCs in cases with an assessment or calculation is published in table 25 of the December 2006 Child Support Agency Quarterly Summary Statistics, a copy of which is available in the House of Commons Library, or on the internet via the following link: www.dwp.gov.uk/asd/asd1/child_support/csa_quarterly_dec06.asp.

However, this is not a complete picture because it does not include cases without an assessment or calculation. Information on both types of cases is included in the following table.

It should be noted that we do not have the information requested for some cases:

Those cases without an assessment on the old computer system—around 29,000 cases.

Cases without an assessment on the new computer system where the region of residence for the PWC, the NRP or both is not yet known—around 38,200 cases.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Country of residence of non-resident parents and parents with care, December 2006

Number of cases where	With an assessment or calculation	Without an assessment calculation	Total
NRP lives in Scotland, PWC lives in England	11,800	1,100	12,900
NRP lives in England, PWC lives in Scotland	13,900	1,500	15,400

Notes:

1. New-scheme cases being processed clerically are excluded from this analysis.
2. Cases have been allocated to government office regions through matching the postcode for a residential against the Office for National Statistics postcode directory.
3. This table relates to cases. Therefore, individuals included in more than one case are included multiple times.
4. In December 2006 there were around 67,200 cases where we do not have information on the region of residence. This was made up of:

29,000 cases on the old computer system that did not have an assessment or calculation;

38,200 cases on the new computer system which had either not yet reached the point in the process at which details on the region of residence of the parent with care could be identified, or where the region of residence for one or both of the NRP and PWC was unknown.

5. Volumes are rounded to the nearest hundred.

New Deal Schemes: Self-employed

Mr. Martlew: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number of customers who will participate in the new deal self-employment programme in 2007-08; and how many did so in each of the previous three years. [128665]

Mr. Jim Murphy: I refer the hon. Member to the written answer I gave to him on 23 March 2007, Official Report, columns 1184-86.

Pensioners

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will put in place a national strategy for older people. [130501]

James Purnell: The national strategy for older people and an ageing society: Opportunity Age, Meeting the challenges of ageing in the 21st century was launched in March 2005. It focuses on promoting independence and well-being in later life, extending opportunities to work in later life, supporting healthy active ageing in our communities and giving older people more choice and independence in how they use the services at their disposal. The strategy celebrates the fact that people are living longer lives and highlights the valuable and increasing contribution that older people make to our society.

Already, much has been achieved: We have made major reforms of policies (including the biggest package of reform on pensions since the Second World War); started modernising services around the needs of the customer, including through a wide range of pilot programmes such as Link-Age Plus, Individual Budgets, and PoPPs. We have significantly increased spending for older people (on pensions and benefits, health, care, free bus travel, winter warmth).

Incomes of pensioners have increased broadly in line with those in work; and for the first time ever in a period of sustained economic growth, pensioners are now no more likely to be living in poverty than people of working age. Older people's well-being has improved across a broad range of indicators.

The strategy also addresses the needs of the baby boomer generation by helping them make the right choices to ensure retirement is a time of opportunity: by tackling age discrimination; ending the cliff edge from work into retirement; and helping them to balance work and caring responsibilities.

Pensions

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what criteria will be used to ensure that funds invested by the proposed Delivery Authority for the personal accounts scheme will be invested in the best interests of its members. [130783]

James Purnell: The personal accounts Delivery Authority will not operate the personal accounts scheme and, as such, will not invest members' contributions. The Delivery Authority's role will be to set up personal accounts prior to any members joining the scheme.

As with existing defined contribution occupational pension schemes, trustees will be responsible for the investment of members' contributions in accordance with existing legislation, including the requirement to act in the members' best interests.

Policy relating to investment choices for personal accounts is under development and will be presented in the second Pensions Bill currently planned for introduction later this year.

Pensions: Regulation

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what consideration was given to the potential effect of additional funds to be invested in financial markets during the production of the regulatory impact assessment for the Pensions Bill. [130774]

James Purnell: The Pensions Bill does not introduce measures which will directly lead to additional funds being invested in the financial markets. Because of this the Pensions Bill regulatory impact assessment does not specifically consider the effect of increased investment.

The Government will publish a further regulatory impact assessment looking at personal accounts when the second Pensions Bill is published.

Vocational Training: Hartlepool

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what (a) support, (b) assistance and (c) re-training opportunities are available to people in Hartlepool who live in (i) neighbourhood renewal areas and (ii) non-neighbourhood renewal areas for (A) improving skills in manufacturing and (B) other areas. [129418]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Jobcentre Plus in conjunction with its partner organisations locally provides a wide range of support, assistance and re-training opportunities across the whole of Hartlepool. This includes basic skills training, mentoring and occupational training.

In addition some wards in Hartlepool have recently been given Deprived Area Fund (DAF) status and these areas match with neighbourhood renewal areas. DAF will give the Tees Valley District Manager more flexibility to deal with local employability issues by enabling the implementation of tailored support or provision to suit local circumstances.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Age: Discrimination

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to bring forward legislation to give older people the same protection against discrimination as is available to other groups; and if she will make a statement. [126246]

Mr. Woolas: The Government are considering whether there is a case for introducing legislation to prohibit harmful age discrimination in the provision of goods, facilities and services as part of the Discrimination Law Review.

Community Development: Public Participation

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the level of interaction between New Deal for Communities boards and residents; and if she will make a statement. [131645]

Mr. Woolas: NDCs are governed by partnership boards of which, on average, 59 per cent. of members are local residents.

We also monitor the engagement of local people in the wider activities of the NDC through a National Evaluation of the programme. The last household survey, undertaken in 2006, showed that more than a fifth of NDC residents were engaged in NDC activities.

Council Tax: Valuation

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the Valuation Office Agency drafted or produced a privacy impact assessment for the council tax revaluation. [129680]

Ruth Kelly: I refer the hon. Member to the answers given on 1 February 2007, Official Report, column 414W and 6 February 2007, Official Report, column 783W.

Housing: Valuation

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will estimate (a) the average value of all homes valued in excess of £1 million in the UK and (b) how many homes in the UK are valued in excess of £1 million. [131116]

Mr. Woolas: Information in the form requested is not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

New Deal for Communities

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the expenditure on new deal for communities programmes for each council was in each of the last five years. [131684]

Mr. Woolas: New deal for communities (NDC) provides grants to local authorities with NDC Partnerships for them to spend on regenerating their neighbourhoods. NDC Partnerships are made up of local people and residents working in partnership with people from local agencies such as the local authority.

NDC grant is paid through an accountable body (usually, but not always, the local authority) to the NDC Partnership to meet the costs incurred in delivering the NDC Partnerships delivery plan. The following table shows the NDC grant paid to each local authority in each of the last five years between 2002-03 and 2006-07, (The figure for 2006-07 is a forecast).

NDC is a 10 year programme and the figures only capture part of the full allocations to be paid to each partnership. These figures also exclude expenditure provided by partner organisations such as the police, primary care trusts and local authorities.

[1] Birmingham has two NDCs (Kings Norton and Aston)

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make a statement on the New Deal for Communities programme in (a) Haringey, (b) Walsall and (c) Plymouth. [131685]

Mr. Woolas: All 39 New Deal for Communities Partnerships (NDC) are required to prepare an annual Delivery Plan which sets out the objectives and outcomes proposed by each NDC for the coming year. These plans are assessed and approved by the Government Office for the region.

For the reporting year 2005-06, Walsall was rated as an 'Excellent' performing NDC, while Haringey and Plymouth were both rated as 'Good'.

Parking: Milton Keynes

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many parking spaces per head of population there are in Central Milton Keynes (a) in 2007 and (b) planned for each of the next five years. [132056]

Mr. Woolas: The Local Transport Plan states that there are over 20,000 car parking spaces in Milton Keynes. It is our understanding from Milton Keynes council that (a) in 2007 there are 20,875 parking bays that are publicly accessible in central Milton Keynes; these include those on the public highway and in third party ownership and this works out at 0.09198 of a space per head of population. The Local Transport Plan does not contain the level of car parking over the next five years. The local council have indicated that number of parking spaces planned for the next five years (b) is projected at the 2007 level, but work is underway by council officers to develop a long term parking strategy for central Milton Keynes.

After a lengthy period of public consultation, the approved Milton Keynes and South Midlands Sub-Regional Strategy for this growth area aims to encourage a shift towards more sustainable modes of travel in the future.

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of annual parking revenue for the council in Milton Keynes (a) collected in each of the last five years and (b) projected for each of the next two years. [132057]

Mr. Woolas: The Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government has made (a) no estimate of annual parking revenue for the council at Milton Keynes collected in each of the last five years, or (b) projected for each of the next two years. This is because this is a locally determined matter for Milton Keynes council, whose statements of accounts for previous years and projected calculated position for the next two years are publicly available information from the local authority.

Travelling People

Julie Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many Gypsy and Traveller accommodation needs assessments (a) have been completed and (b) are outstanding. [131234]

Meg Munn: Information collected in March showed that accommodation needs assessments for Gypsies and Travellers were under way, or had been completed, in 90 per cent. of local authorities.

Workforce Efficiency Savings: Milton Keynes Council

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what workforce efficiency savings have been reported to her Department as agreed by Milton Keynes Council for (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09. [132054]

Mr. Woolas: The Department has not yet received final information on councils' plans (including those of Milton Keynes council) for new efficiency gains in 2007-08; they are expected to be published later in the year.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Bible: Anniversaries

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if her Department will commemorate the 400th anniversary in 2011 of the publication of the King James version of the Bible. [132050]

Mr. Lammy: My Department currently has no plans in place to commemorate the 400th anniversary of the King James version of the Bible in 2011.

London Olympics

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when she expects a final budget to be agreed for the 2012 Olympics. [105560]

Tessa Jowell: I refer the hon. Member to my statement to the House of 15 March 2007.

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) pursuant to her oral statement of 15 March 2007, Official Report, columns 450-52, on the 2012 Olympics, if she will break down by area of planned expenditure the £3.1 billion for the building of the Olympic Park; [129383]

(2) if she will break down by area of planned expenditure the £1.7 billion for infrastructure and regeneration. [129384]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 23 March 2007]: Further to my statement of 15 March 2007, I have set out in the following table a breakdown by area of the planned expenditure for the Olympic Park and infrastructure and regeneration.

Item	Cost (£ million)
Venues (inc IBC/MPC and legacy conversion)	1,063
Transport	794
Additional 1 per cent. inflation allowance, support for the Olympic village and insurance	386
Other, including Olympic Delivery Authority (ODA) running costs and site security	838
ODA core costs of Olympics	3,081
Olympic regeneration	1,673
Including:
Enabling works
Landscaping
Roads, bridges and tunnels
Power lines undergrounding
Utilities
ODA programme contingency	500
ODA budget (net of tax)	5,254
Sports, including community sport participation, Paralympics and other non-ODA costs	388
Other provisions
Provision for policing and wider security	600
Tax programme	836
Contingency (including tax)	2,247
Total	9,325

To provide more information at this time could jeopardise current and future commercial negotiations concerning venue and infrastructure contracts. However further information will be available later this year, when the ODA publishes its corporate plan.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assumptions were made of the total level of administrative costs accrued to the body charged with the construction of the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games in the (a) Arup report, (b) Olympic bid document, (c) PriceWaterhouseCoopers' Olympic Games Impact Study, (d) Faithful and Gould analysis of costs and (e) her evidence to the Culture, Media and Sport Committee on 21 November 2006; and if she will make a statement. [128402]

Tessa Jowell: Arup based the initial estimates of the Olympic Delivery Authority (ODA) administration costs on previous games and recommended a sum of £15.6 million at 2002 prices, excluding consultants. PWC advised that core costs of £15 million would be sufficient for the ODA, assuming that they were to be an organisation of the same size and responsibilities as an Urban Development Corporation, but advised that a fuller "bottom-up" analysis of costs was required. This was undertaken by KPMG in 2005. Faithful and Gould were not commissioned by my Department and we are not aware of any estimates they may have made.

Since winning the bid, the work my Department has done has calculated that, as the ODA's scope and functions will increase, the sums of money required for their administration must also increase.

In my response, published on the 26 March 2007, to the Select Committee's report I said the total cost of the ODA's programme delivery budget, would be £570 million. The increase in costs reflects the fact that the ODA was to undertake an increase in responsibilities, delivering not just the necessary venues for the games but the associated legacy and regeneration ambitions set by the Government. This sum represents around 10 per cent. of the total costs of the ODA Programme of £5,254 million, net of tax, and is consistent with industry norms for a project of this scale, complexity and concentration. Of this the combined staffing, accommodation and IT cost of ODA and the Delivery Partner, CLM, is £476 million. The balance of £94 million is to cover the establishment on the Olympic Park site of the necessary provision for up to 9,000 construction workers, including health and canteen facilities and transportation.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Peace Keeping Operations

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when body armour was first provided to Marine forces in Afghanistan for their current deployment; and how long the gap was between deployment and issuance of such armour. [128819]

Mr. Ingram: Since 2004 it has been departmental policy that all troops should be provided with Enhanced Combat Body Armour (ECBA) before they deploy to an operational Theatre, and so all members of 3 Commando Brigade, Royal Marines, who deployed to Afghanistan were issued with this equipment before deployment in autumn 2006.

In addition, Improved Performance Body Armour (Osprey), which has an enhanced fragmentation vest and larger plates, and Enhanced Personal Protective Equipment (Kestrel), which provides even greater protection have been provided to operational Theatres for use against specific threats and for specific roles. Delivery of Osprey to Afghanistan began in February 2006, and delivery of Kestrel in May 2006; all three types of body armour were available to the Royal Marines for the entirety of their operational tour.

Armed Forces: Uniforms

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the cost was of supplying dress uniforms to officers in the (a) Royal Navy, (b) Royal Air Force and (c) Army in the last year for which figures are available. [129361]

Mr. Ingram: Royal Navy and Royal Air Force dress uniforms are provided by a 'supply fit' contract which means units raise demands directly with the supplier to provide and fit uniforms at specific locations. Due to the nature of this contract, it is not possible to provide information on how many dress uniforms were supplied as this information is not held centrally and could only be provided at disproportionate cost. The approximate cost of the uniform is £135.00.

Army officers are given an outfit allowance, with which to purchase all their uniform requirements, and this varies from regiment to regiment. The majority of grants will be around £2,100.00 it is not possible to separate out the costs of dress uniforms from this.

Bombs

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the legal status of dumb cluster munitions. [131015]

Mr. Ingram: There is no treaty which specifically prohibits or restricts the use of cluster munitions; they are legal weapons when used in compliance with International Humanitarian Law.

War Pensions

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many war pensions were awarded under each level of the Armed Forces Compensation scheme in each year since 2001. [131090]

Derek Twigg: War pensions are not awarded under the Armed Forces Compensation scheme which was introduced on 6 April 2005 and applies only to injuries and deaths caused on or after that date. War pensions are awarded under the Naval, Military and Air Forces, Etc. (Disablement and Death) Service Pensions Order in respect of injuries and deaths caused before 6 April 2005.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Departmental Expenditure

16. Norman Baker: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will make it his policy to reduce significantly his Department's budget. [131489]

18. Bill Wiggin: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what plans he has to reduce his departmental expenditure in line with Whitehall efficiency savings targets. [131491]

The Deputy Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Members to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Southend, West (Mr. Amess) this morning.

Travel Budget

17. Stephen Hammond: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what the estimated budget of his Department for travel is in 2007-08. [131490]

The Deputy Prime Minister: All travel is undertaken in accordance with the guidance set out in the Ministerial Code, Travel by Ministers, and the Civil Service Management Code.

Since 1999, the Government have published an annual list of all visits overseas undertaken by Cabinet Ministers costing £500 or more.

The Government have also published on an annual basis the cost of all Ministers' visits overseas. Copies of the lists for previous years are available in the Library. Information for the financial year 2006-07 will be published as soon as it is ready.

Departmental Funding

19. Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how much his Department has been allocated for each of the next three years. [131492]

20. Ann Winterton: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what funding has been allocated to his Department for each of the next three years. [131493]

The Deputy Prime Minister: My Department's Main Estimate for 2007-08 will be published along with those for other Departments. DPMO is participating in the comprehensive spending review in the same way as other Departments.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Households Below Average Income

4. Jo Swinson: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what assessment she has made of the implications of the households below average income report for 2005-06 for social exclusion. [131497]

Hilary Armstrong: This Government have made significant progress in tackling child poverty. Since 1997 we have lifted 600,000 children out of relative poverty. Our drive to meet the challenges raised in the Households Below Average Income Report will be addressed by the recent Budget measures which are anticipated to lift a further 200,000 children out of poverty.

Social Exclusion

5. Mr. Simon: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what assessment her Department has made of the key risk factors associated with falling into social exclusion. [131498]

Mr. McFadden: While the Government have a strong record on reducing poverty and social exclusion, the Social Exclusion Action Plan, published in September 2006, identified a number of risks for a small proportion of households, which included: substance misuse, mental health problems, offending, being in care, teenage pregnancy and lack of basic skills. The Government also recognises that children in families with multiple problems often go on to experience poor outcomes in later life.

The Social Exclusion Task Force is taking forward a range of initiatives to address these risk factors.

6. Mr. Allen: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what responsibilities she has for promoting early intervention as a means of tackling social exclusion; and if she will make a statement. [131499]

Hilary Armstrong: The Social Exclusion Action Plan, published in September 2006, identified a number of guiding principles to inform the Government's approach to tackling social exclusion, including early intervention. The most significant area of current work that links strongly to this principle is the Nurse-Family Partnership pilots, which provide a structured and intensive home visiting programme by health visitors to disadvantaged mothers from pregnancy until the child is aged two.

Third Sector Funding

7. Ann Coffey: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what plans she has to provide micro-grants for small voluntary and community organisations. [131500]

Edward Miliband: In response to the largest ever consultation with the third sector, the Chancellor announced in the Budget a new £80 million fund, spread over four years, to provide core funding to grass-roots community organisations. The fund reflects the vital contribution of small community groups to our society and neighbourhoods.

Charities: Income Tax Cut

8. Bob Russell: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what discussions she has had with: the Chancellor of the Exchequer on the effect on charities of the 2 per cent. cut in the basic rate of income tax from April 2008. [131501]

Edward Miliband: My right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer and I have discussed the impact of the cut in the basic rate of income tax on gift aid and the need to build on the progress made since 1997 which has led to an increase in the resources going to charities through gift aid from £134 million to £750 million.

The Charities Aid Foundation estimate that £700 million is potentially available from more tax effective giving and we aim to come forward with measures at the time of the pre-Budget report, prior to the introduction of the basic rate cut next year.

Vulnerable Parents

9. Jessica Morden: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what steps the Government are taking to support vulnerable parents in the first two years of a child's life. [131502]

Hilary Armstrong: In addition to the universal services provided by health visitors and midwives, the Government have invested over £21 billion on early years and child care services since 1997, with 1,250 Sure Start Children's Centres already in operation. Moreover, on 2 April 10 health-led parenting pilots went live across England, based on the extremely successful Nurse-Family Partnership scheme. These pilots will provide structured and intensive home visiting to disadvantaged mothers from early pregnancy until the child is aged two.

Community Assets Ownership

10. Ms Keeble: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what steps she is taking to increase community ownership of public assets. [131503]

Edward Miliband: The Government are committed to expanding the opportunities for communities to manage or own public assets. On 30 March I announced that the Big Lottery Fund will manage the £30 million Community Assets Fund on behalf of the Government. This new fund will seek to improve the ability of local community organisations to take on the management or ownership of local authority assets in England, by offering capital to refurbish them.

The Office of the Third Sector is now consulting on aspects of how the fund will work, to ensure that it will provide long-term benefits for local communities.

Antisocial Behaviour: Families

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what estimate she has made of the cost of (a) supporting a problem family in the community and (b) early intervention support for such a family. [131170]

Mr. McFadden: There is no archetypal 'problem family'. We are committed to engaging with families who are excluded because they have multiple problems and the costs associated with supporting a family with multiple problems vary according to the number and type of services being used. Recent HMT analysis of published research suggests that a family suffering from five problems (depression, alcohol misuse, domestic violence, short periods of homelessness and being involved in criminality) are estimated to create costs of between £55,000 to £115,000 per year. Illustrative estimates produced by the Social Exclusion Task Force suggest that a family with parental drug problems and experience of prison, care services and unemployment may use services costing around £117,000 per year.

Early intervention is widely acknowledged as a cost effective approach to supporting families at risk of or experiencing multiple problems. Currently, the most robust assessments of the costs and benefits of early intervention have come from international research. For example, US evaluation of the Nurse Family Partnership model demonstrates that high-quality social support alongside antenatal clinical care for the most at risk families from pregnancy to the age of two has a sustained impact on a wide range of longer term outcomes. Independent evaluations show a per family cost of around US$8,000 over two and a half years which accrues downstream savings equivalent to four times the cost of the actual programme for the most at risk families.

To help build the evidence base on the costs and benefits of early intervention in the UK, the Government are developing and rigorously evaluating a programme based upon the Nurse Family Partnership in 10 areas across England. This programme will go live across 10 areas in April. Furthermore, the Social Exclusion Task Force is leading work on analysis of downstream costs associated with social exclusion and savings associated with early intervention.

Departments: Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what measures are in place to limit the amount of money spent on alcohol for hospitality purposes by her Department. [132209]

Hilary Armstrong: All Cabinet Office expenditure on official hospitality including alcohol is made in accordance with published departmental guidance on financial procedures and propriety, based on principles set out in "Government Accounting" and the "Treasury" handbook on "Regularity and Propriety", copies of which are available in the Library for the reference of Members.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Education Maintenance Allowances

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the cost was of education maintenance allowances in (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07; and what the expected cost is in 2007-08. [131576]

Phil Hope: Expenditure on education maintenance allowance in the years requested is shown in the following table.

	Full costs (£ million)
Actual 2005-06	407
Forecast[1] 2006-07	525
Expected cost 2007-08	577

[1] Final end of year figures on the EMA payments for 2006-07 will not be available until 25 April 2007

Higher Education: Gender

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what studies have been commissioned by his Department on the gender gap in university applications; and if he will make a statement. [132155]

Bill Rammell: The Department has not commissioned any research to look at the gender gap in university applications. Figures from UCAS show that there is a higher number of women applying overall to higher education compared to men—in 2006, of all English domiciled applicants who applied to English HEIs, 55.4 per cent. were female (Source: http://www.ucas.ac.uk/figures/ucasdata/sex/index.html).

There are differences between men and women in terms of subjects applied for. More men apply for courses in: Engineering; Mathematical and Computer Science; Technologies; Architecture, Building and Planning; and Physical Science. More women apply for courses in: Education; Medicine; Veterinary Science; Agriculture and Related subjects; European languages; Literature and related subjects; Linguistics; Classics; and Combined Arts.

We do not clearly know the reasons for the differences in the numbers and patterns of applications between men and women; more broadly prior attainment has been seen as the most significant determinant of HE participation. The Department is, therefore, undertaking internal analysis to look at the gender gap in higher education participation and how it has changed over time.

Higher Education: Practical Training

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what estimate he has made of the number of hours of practical skills based training available in degree courses in higher education in each year between 1996 and 2006. [132095]

Bill Rammell: The information requested is not collected or held centrally. Collecting such information would incur disproportionate costs and be overly bureaucratic.

Higher Education: Student Numbers

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how many students were studying for a first degree at UK universities in each of the last five years; [132136]

(2) how many (a) UK nationals, (b) non-UK EU citizens and (c) students from countries outside the EU were studying for their first degree in UK universities in each of the last five years. [132157]

Bill Rammell: The latest available information is given in the table.

Students[1] on first degree courses at UK higher education institution[2] 2001/02 to 2005/06

	Students from[3]
Academic year	UK	Other EU countries[4]	Non EU countries	Total
2001/02	951,800	42,835	54,195	1,048,830
2002/03	985,865	41,025	63,890	1,092,780
2003/04	1,013,710	39,260	75,395	1,128,365
2004/05	1,029,095	44,040	79,510	1,152,645
2005/06	1,061,070	48,100	82,105	1,191,270

[1] Figures are based on HESA's Standard Registration Population, which counts the number of students enrolled throughout the year. Includes students on full-time and part-time courses.
[2] Excludes students at the Open University (OU). Up to 2002/03, the OU did not distinguish students on first degree courses from those on other undergraduate courses. The numbers of OU students on first degree courses since then was 82,415 in 2003/04, 85,015 in 2004/05 and 87,585 in 2005/06.
[3] Based on the student's normal country of domicile.
[4] From 2004/05, includes students from the accession countries.

Learndirect

Mr. Blunkett: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many individuals (a) have been helped to find courses by learndirect advice services and (b) gained qualifications with the help of learndirect. [131158]

Phil Hope: Between February 1998 and February 2007 more than 8.5 million calls were made to the learndirect advice line. The learndirect website hosted more than 40 million information and advice sessions.

Users of this service often make more than one call and use the website more than once. An estimated 7 million people have called the learndirect advice line and more than half go on to do a course in the following six months.

The learndirect advice guidance trial, providing free in-depth careers guidance on the telephone, was launched in January 2007. This service provides people with up to three advice sessions over a month-long period. By February 2007 more than 90,000 people had used the learndirect guidance trial.

Learndirect provision is now the size of about 10 FE colleges, with more than 300,000 learners a year. In the academic year 2005-06, learndirect delivered a quarter of the Learning and Skills Council's target for adult Skills for Life qualifications in England.

Between April 2003 and February 2007, more than 125,000 people have achieved their first Skills for Life (literacy or numeracy) qualification through learndirect. Between August 2005 and February 2007, nearly 3,000 learners have achieved a Level 2 National Vocational Qualification through learndirect. In addition, learndirect 'Learning through Work' has enrolled more than 2,500 students. Of these, more than 600 have gained work-based qualifications from level 3 up to level 8, including foundation degrees, honours degrees, and masters.

Students: Finance

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what proportion of Higher Education Funding Council for England-funded students are on first full Level 4 degrees. [131580]

Bill Rammell: In full-time equivalent terms, 78 per cent. of all HEFCE funded activity in 2005-06 was attributable to students aiming for a first level 4 degree (i.e. those who entered a first degree or foundation degree without a prior qualification at level 4 degree or above).

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture: Subsidies

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether he plans to call for an earlier disclosure of farm payments made by the EU prior to the scheduled date of 2009. [130540]

Barry Gardiner: Details of payments made to beneficiaries of common agricultural policy funding in England are already publicly available. The Government welcome the European Commission's proposals to extend this principle across the EU, but will wish to consider the detailed implementation requirements carefully, including the administrative burdens on paying agencies.

Asbestos

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when guidance on soil values for asbestos is expected to be published. [131206]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 16 April 2007]: The Environment Agency (EA) is working closely with the Health and Safety Laboratory on a number of work streams aimed at overcoming some of the scientific and technical problems associated with assessing the risk to human health posed by asbestos in soils. Work is also ongoing to develop an appropriate health criteria value for asbestos in soils. The end product will be detailed qualitative and quantitative technical guidance which can be used in assessing individual sites against the definition of "contaminated land" established under part 2A of the Environmental Protection Act 1990.

The EA expects to have the material ready for publication by the end of 2007, subject to the outcome of current proposals for other improvements to existing technical guidance in the contaminated land field.

Azurlox

Adam Price: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs why a certificate is needed to purchase Azurlox. [131711]

Ian Pearson: The Control of Pesticide Regulations 1986 requires anyone who sells, supplies or uses a pesticide to have a certificate of competence. There is no obligation for a user to be in possession of a certificate of competence in order to purchase a pesticide product. If a supplier chooses not to sell a pesticide to a person who cannot prove competence to use that product this is entirely at their discretion.

Carbon Emissions

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the UK's carbon emissions were in 2005; and what percentage change they represented from the level in 1990. [131410]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 16 April 2007]: Total net carbon dioxide (CO_2) emissions in 2005 were reported in the 2005 UK climate change sustainable development indicator and greenhouse gas emissions final figures on 29 January 2007. These data show that CO_2 emissions were 554.2 million tonnes, a decrease of 6.4 per cent. between 1990 and 2005.

Eaga Partnership: Home Energy Efficiency Scheme

Dr. Tony Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what rating system the Eaga Partnership uses for inspection of the work of firms undertaking work on the Warm Front scheme; and what score was given to each installer on the scheme following the most recent inspection. [127848]

Ian Pearson: The Warm Front scheme manager, Eaga plc, inspects work carried out under the scheme against an established technical specification for each measure installed. These technical specifications are regularly reviewed by Eaga plc and DEFRA, and updated in line with amendments to legislation and best practice.

In the event that any measure installed under the Warm Front scheme fails an inspection, Eaga plc have robust processes in place for the identification and completion of all required remedial work by the initial contractor. A proportion of these works are then re-inspected to ensure full compliance.

Any installer whose performance under the scheme falls below agreed standards has their work allocation reduced or suspended until such a time that they can demonstrate improvement to the required standard.

Eggs

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what definition his Department uses of free-range eggs; and if he will make a statement. [131322]

Barry Gardiner: "Free range", on an egg or poultry meat product, is a special marketing term (SMT) indicating that the product has been produced in compliance with the criteria set-out in the respective marketing regulations.

All EU requirements for free range systems can be found in Council Directive 1999/74/EC, Commission Regulation 2295/2003/EC, as amended by Commission Regulation 1515/2004/EC, and the Welfare of Farmed Animals (England) (Amendment) Regulations 2002.

Energy: Conservation

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assistance is provided to the owners of mobile homes to improve their energy efficiency. [131055]

Ian Pearson: Details of grants and offers for energy efficiency measures are available, by postcode, on the Energy Saving Trust website, which is funded by my Department to promote and support energy efficiency in the household sector. The trust's Innovation Programme has included two projects relating to the use of energy efficiency measures in mobile homes.

All households eligible under the Government's Warm Front scheme, regardless of property type, are entitled to a package of measures from the full range available under the scheme. These include, for example, central heating, the repair or replacement of an existing heating system, wall or storage heaters and insulation measures including hot water tank jackets, cavity wall, loft insulation and draught-proofing.

As with all properties, the exact package of measures provided is dependent upon a range of factors. These include property size and construction, utility supply, existing heating and insulation measures and customer preference, with the most suitable combination of measures being recommended at assessment.

Warm Front is constantly evaluating the range of measures it provides. In particular, a number of low carbon alternative technologies are under consideration for inclusion under the scheme. Several of these technologies will be applicable to mobile homes and will enhance the assistance provided to 'hard to treat' properties.

Greenhouse Gas Emissions

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what standards have been set for local emissions of oxides of nitrogen in the (a) UK and (b) European Union; and how many UK (i) sites and (ii) airport sites exceed those standards. [131728]

Ian Pearson: There are controls on both emissions of oxides of nitrogen (NOx) and concentrations of nitrogen dioxide (NO_2) in ambient air, through European legislation.

The National Emissions Ceiling Directive 2001/81/EC (NECD) sets ceilings for each member state for emissions of NOx, ammonia (NH3), sulphur dioxide (SO2) and volatile organic compounds (VOCs). These four pollutants are primarily responsible for acidification, eutrophication and ground-level ozone. The ceilings must be met by 2010.

Since 1970, there has been a reduction in total NOx emissions of 47 per cent. The main contributors to UK NOx emissions currently are the transport, power generation and industry sectors. The total NOx emission for the UK in 2004 was 1,621 kilotonnes (kt).

The UK ceiling for NOx under the NECD is set at 1167kt. The UK expects to meet the obligations for complying with the NECD ceilings in 2010.

In terms of ambient concentrations, at a national level there are two provisional Air Quality Strategy Objectives for NO_2 for the protection of human health: (i) a one-hour mean concentration of 200 micrograms per metre cubed (micro $g.m^{-3}$) not to be exceeded more than 18 times per year and (ii) an annual mean concentration of 40 micro $g.m^{-3}$. The target date for both of these to be achieved was 31 December 2005. There are two EU air quality Limit Values for NO_2 for the protection of human health: (a) a one-hour mean concentration of 200micro $g.m^{-3}$ cubed not to be exceeded more than 18 times per year and (b) an annual mean concentration of 40 micro $g.m^{-3}$. The target date for both of these to be achieved is 1 January 2010. There is a further EU air quality limit value for NOx for the protection of vegetation and ecosystems set at 30micro $g.m^{-3}$ to be met by 19 July 2001.

In 2006, two out of 110 operational monitoring sites measured exceedences of the one-hour mean EU Limit Value and Air Quality Strategy objectives. These sites were in London and both were within five metres of roads. The national monitoring network has two sites close to airports: London Harlington and Manchester South. In 2006, there were two exceedences of the one-hour mean nitrogen dioxide concentration of 200micro $g.m^{-3}$ at London Harlington (one kilometre (km) from Heathrow airport perimeter road), and none at Manchester South (2.9 km from Manchester airport).

Also in 2006, 24 out of 110 operational monitoring sites measured exceedences of the annual mean EU

Limit Value and Air Quality Strategy objectives. Of these, 14 were in London and the majority were within 10 metres of roads. The 2006 annual mean at London Harlington was 37micro $g.m^{-3}$ and at Manchester South it was 16micro $g.m^{-3}$.

Data and information from the national air quality monitoring networks are freely available from the National Air Quality Information Archive at:

Pesticides

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will place in the Library copies of the documents on which the decision to prohibit the use of isoproturon and trifluralin was based; and what consultation the Pesticides Safety Directorate carried out on this matter. [130538]

Ian Pearson: Isoproturon and trifluralin have been considered as part of a European Community (EC) review of the safety of active substances used in agricultural pesticides under Council Directive 91/414/EEC.

Isoproturon was approved under the review in 2001, on condition that member states ensure the adequate protection of aquatic organisms when authorising products which contain it. Following an evaluation of data presented by applicants for such products in the UK, the Pesticides Safety Directorate identified an unacceptable risk to aquatic life. The independent Advisory Committee on Pesticides concluded that this risk could not be satisfactorily managed and all authorised uses of isoproturon in the UK should therefore be withdrawn. I have arranged for the draft minutes of the Committee's 323rd meeting to be placed in the Libraries of the House.

A decision was taken, in March 2007, not to approve trifluralin under the review, in particular because of concerns about its toxicity to aquatic organisms, its high persistence in soil, and its potential for long-range transport in air. All authorised uses of trifluralin in the EC will therefore be withdrawn. I have arranged for a summary of the conclusions of the European Food Safety Authority, on which this decision was based, to be placed in the Libraries of the House.

The Pesticides Safety Directorate does not consult on individual decisions made under the review. Decisions about safety are determined on the basis of scientific data presented by applicants and evaluated to agreed European standards. Applicants may submit further applications supported by additional data if they believe they can demonstrate that there are no unacceptable risks to the environment.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan: Drugs

Mr. Malins: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the British Government received a list containing the names of Afghan politicians and Government officials alleged to be involved in the heroin trade from a senior Afghan minister in late 2005; and if she will make a statement. [130318]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 27 March 2007]: We can find no evidence that such a list has been received by the Government.

Holidays Abroad: Death

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many British holidaymakers died abroad in 2006. [132022]

Dr. Howells: In the financial year (FY) 2005-06, there were 4,071 deaths abroad of British nationals requiring action by our consular staff. This figure is derived from our Consular Annual Return (CAR) and the CAR does not provide a breakdown of their status, i.e. visitor or resident. Details for FY 2005-06 are provided as the information from the CAR is captured by FY and not calendar year.

Sudan: War Crimes

Jim Dobbin: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the implications for British foreign policy of the International Criminal Court's (ICC) indictment of Ahmad Muhammad Ali-Al-Rahman (Ali Kushayb), Janjaweed militia leader, for alleged crimes against humanity and war crimes committed in Darfur in 2003 and 2004; and whether she plans further to support the work of the ICC in seeking accountability for crimes committed in Darfur. [132026]

Dr. Howells: On 27 February, the International Criminal Court (ICC) prosecutor asked the court's pre-trial chamber to issue summonses for Kushayb and another individual as a result of investigations into the situation in Darfur. It is a positive sign that the ICC investigation has reached this point. It is now for the ICC judges to decide whether to approve the prosecutor's request.

The ICC will continue to have our full support for its activities, both in Darfur and elsewhere. It must also have the full and unconditional co-operation of the Government of Sudan. We have made this clear to the authorities in Khartoum and will be monitoring their actions carefully.

Progress in the ICC's investigations further consolidate the court as a key part of the international community's efforts to combat impunity for the alleged perpetrators of genocide, crimes against humanity and war crimes. The UK remains at the forefront of those crimes.

HEALTH

Ambulance Services: Emergency Calls

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 23 March 2007, Official Report, column 1189W, on ambulance services: emergency calls, if she will break down the figures by primary care trust. [132308]

Andy Burnham: This information is not held centrally by primary care trust. Information on emergency calls received by each national health service ambulance trust is available in the Library in "Ambulance Services, England: 2005/06", as well as at:

www.ic.nhs.uk

Care Services

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps she is taking to encourage the NHS and social services to increase provision of intermediate (a) care services and (b) beds. [112614]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: As part of the intermediate care funding announced in the NHS Plan, £66 million capital funding was made available to strategic health authorities in 2002-03 and 2003-04 to expand capacity and to support the development of intermediate care services and in particular a growth in bed numbers.

As at 30 September 2006, there were almost 33,000 intermediate care beds and places. Compared to 1999-2000 the number of intermediate care beds has more than doubled, the number of intermediate care places in non-residential settings has trebled and almost three times as many people benefit from intermediate care.

Centrally Funded Initiatives Services and Special Allocations

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the planned Centrally Funded Initiatives Services and Special Allocations budget is for 2006-07; when those budgets were given to primary care trusts; what flexibility there is for changing plans in-year, and what advice she has given to primary care trusts on in-year changes. [129885]

Andy Burnham: Full year 2006-07 information on centrally funded initiatives services and special allocations (CFISSA) is not yet available but the 2006-07 departmental report that has an estimated publishing date of May 2007 will provide a breakdown of the main budget lines. For the 2006-07 departmental report it is proposed to refer to this area simply as the central national health service programme.

The vast majority of the 2006-07 CFISSA allocations were notified to strategic health authorities' (SHAs) directors of finance on 26 July 2006. The aim has always been to allocate the funding as early as possible, but there is always a small proportion allocated late in the financial year. The residual items were issued on 19 January 2007.

To give SHAs the maximum possible flexibility, the funding for the central budget programme was allocated as a single bundle allocation to SHAs. One of the key objectives of the bundle is to enable local decision making by the NHS. Each SHA is responsible and accountable for its agreed share of the bundle, and in consultation with local stakeholders will agree how best to deploy their resources and manage in year changes.

Child Birth

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of births took place (a) at home, (b) in a midwife-led maternity unit and (c) in an obstetrician-led maternity unit in England in the latest period for which figures are available, broken down by NHS trust. [131855]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The "NHS Maternity Statistics, England: 2004-05", copies of which are available in the Library for the last year for which we have figures, shows there were 584,100 hospital births and 13,700 home births. This equates to 97.7 per cent. hospital and 2.3 per cent. home births.

Of the hospital births, 54 per cent. were in consultant wards, 40 per cent. were in joint consultant/midwife/general practitioner (GP) wards, 4 per cent. in midwife led wards and 1 per cent. in GP wards. We are not able to break down these figures by NHS trust.

Colorectal Cancer: Screening

Mr. O'Hara: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment has been made of the suitability of using immunochemical tests for the NHS Bowel Cancer Screening programme. [131050]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The National Health Service Bowel Cancer Screening programme is constantly alert to new methodologies and improved technologies in order to ensure the best quality of services. We have recently completed the second trial of a planned series into the appropriateness and effectiveness of using an immunological test. Data from this early work are currently being analysed and we expect to receive a report in summer 2007.

Departmental Research

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the cost was of government social research in her Department in each of the last five years; how many projects were completed in that period; and how many people are employed in working on such research; [102595]

(2) when she will answer the question 102595, tabled by the hon. Member for Forest of Dean on 21 November 2006, on social research. [110223]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested could not be provided without incurring disproportionate cost.

Departmental Travel

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what her Department's expenditure on hospitality and entertainment was in (a) 1996-97 and (b) 2005-06. [114027]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Expenditure on hospitality and entertaining arises in the context of promoting the Department's business objectives. The expenditure for the periods requested is as follows:

1996-97: £105,192

With the introduction of the Department's new finance system in April 2004, a number of financial codes were combined to include miscellaneous expenditure, which is not classifiable as hospitality or entertaining. Therefore we do not hold an accurate value for the period 2005-06.

Departments: Domestic Visits

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what procedures are in place in her Department to ensure that hon. Members are informed of a ministerial visit to their constituency. [127606]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The diary secretaries of all departmental Ministers inform hon. Members of a ministerial visit to their constituency as soon as the visit programme is confirmed.

Departments: Ministers' Private Offices

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the staff cost is to her private office of keeping her official diary; [127607]

(2) what qualifications are required to work as a diary secretary in her private office. [127608]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: It would not be appropriate to identify the staff cost associated with keeping my official diary, as to do so would reveal an individual's personal salary information. Staff are recruited to my private office on the basis of their experience and expertise.

Departments: Official Visits

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was spent on (a) travel and (b) accommodation (i) in the UK and (ii) abroad by her Department in each year since 1997. [122475]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Information on the Department's expenditure on travel and subsistence in the United Kingdom and abroad in each year since 1997 is as follows.

	UK travel	UK subsistence	Overseas travel and subsistence	Total
1997-98	6,230,714	870,832	575,458	7,677,004
1998-99	5,421,862	852,272	590,089	6,864,223
1999-2000	6,726,111	1,083,664	553,386	8,363,161
2000-01	6,948,398	1,369,780	549,105	8,867,283
2001-02	7,546,829	1,392,948	608,814	9,548,591
2002-03	7,189,396	1,421,354	591,748	9,202,498
2003-04	7,720,637	2,019,014	702,055	10,441,706

The Department's finance systems do not hold information in the format requested. The figures quoted for subsistence include accommodation costs which are not available separately.

The information has not been collected in the requested detail since April 2004, when the Department introduced a new accounting system, as the Department is not required to report in such detail for the statutory accounts. Further analysis to provide the level of detail cannot be undertaken without incurring disproportionate costs.

Departments: Redundancy

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was spent on (a) involuntary and (b) voluntary staff exit schemes in (i) her Department and (ii) each agency of her Department in each year since 1997-98; how much is planned to be spent for 2007-08; and if she will make a statement. [131434]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 16 April 2007]: The total cost of exits (i.e. compulsory redundancies and early retirements/severances) for the Department are:

	Voluntary (£)	Compulsory (£)	Total (£ million)
2004-05	18,808,078	4,334,777	23.1
2005-06	3,560,055	2,981,767	6.5
2006-07	3,013,354	1,713,311	4.7

In 2007-08 a voluntary exit scheme on flexible terms was launched in the Department in March 2007. We estimate costs of approximately £10 million.

For the period prior to the financial year 2004-05, data could only be established at disproportionate cost.

The National Health Service Purchasing and Supply Agency have had no voluntary staff exit schemes in the period 2000 to the present day. The cost of compulsory redundancies from the available information is £225,882 in 2003-04, £89,710 in 2004-05, £1,189,946 in 2005-06, £231,895 in 2006-07 and a forecast of £658,121 in 2007-08.

The Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency has had no compulsory redundancies in the period 2003 to the present day. The cost of voluntary schemes has been £43,000 in 2003-04, £53,000 in 2004-05, £51,000 in 2005-06, £130,000 in 2006-07 and a nil forecast for 2007-08.

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people in her Department participated in (a) involuntary and (b) voluntary staff exit schemes in each year since 1997-98; and if she will make a statement. [131438]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 16 April 2007]: For the period prior to the financial year 2005-06, data could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

In 2005-06, eight people left the Department under compulsory terms and 25 voluntarily. In 2006-07, eight people left the Department under compulsory terms and 31 voluntarily.

Health Care Spending

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was spent by NHS purchasers on (a) beds and (b) furniture in each year since 1997; and what percentage were sourced from (i) the UK, (ii) other EU countries and (iii) elsewhere. [107374]

Andy Burnham: The information is not collected in the requested format.

National health service trusts are not asked to report their spend on beds centrally. Many beds (and mattresses) replaced within the NHS are done so on a planned rental, lease or managed service basis. Therefore the products being replaced are often the property of the supplier or finance provider, not necessarily the NHS.

During the last two years of the previous national framework agreement for furniture, contract sales were running at £24 million and £27 million. These figures do not reflect trusts purchasing direct from suppliers and the NHS Supply Chain estimates that in April 2004 the value of furniture sales to the whole of the NHS was about £60 million per year.

The current framework agreement started in September 2004 and yearly sales have been as follows:

	£ million
2004-05	31
2005-06	36

The contract sales are all from United Kingdom suppliers on the framework agreement. These contracts are not mandatory, and therefore some NHS trusts buy from other sources. As the all trust data are not collected centrally, it is not possible to identify the sources of the suppliers where trusts have entered into purchases separate to the central framework agreement. These figures do not therefore cover the total NHS spend.

In addition, data are available for the amount spent on furniture, office and computer equipment for each year for the period 2000-01 to 2004-05.

	Amount (£)
2000-01	314,328,734
2001-02	250,906,128
2002-03	307,380,747
2003-04	272,513,664
2004-05	[1]228,147,50

[1] Foundation trust figures are not included, as it is not mandatory for them to submit the returns.

The data for 2005-06 are not yet available.

Health Providers

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what steps she has taken to improve the quality of care delivered by (a) health visitors, (b) district nurses and (c) child psychologists in the last five years; [109061]

(2) when she expects to reply to question No. 109061, tabled on 11 December 2006. [131264]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Our vision as set out in the White Paper "Our health, our care, our say", which we published in 2006, depends on strengthening health care outside hospital. The Government have four goals:

to provide better preventive services;

to give patients more choice;

to tackle inequalities; and to improve care for people with long-term conditions.

We have introduced a number of policies aimed at improving care for children and families and developing the role of health visitors. These include the national service framework for children, young people and maternity services and the chief nursing officer's review of the nursing contribution to vulnerable children. We are currently undertaking a review of the role of health visitors as part of Modernising Nursing Careers.

District nurses have a key role to play in enabling more care to be delivered outside of hospital. Modernising Nursing Careers, launched by the Secretary of State last September, pays special attention to nurses caring for people in their own homes, so they can help deliver White Paper goals. Also, many district nurses have received additional training via the cancer networks so they can maximise their input to those with life-threatening, palliative or end of life needs.

"Essence of Care", published in 2001 and updated in 2003 and 2006, is a national system of benchmarking the quality of patient care across a range of fundamental dimensions. It is widely used across the national health service, and enables district nurses and others to assess the care they offer patients against a set of good practice indicators. Local action plans to improve services are designed and implemented, some of which, like the red tray scheme for patients at risk of poor nutrition, have been adopted nationwide.

Child psychologists are playing an increasing role in the services provided by a comprehensive child and adolescent mental health service (CAMHS). Since 2003 the number of child psychologists, both clinical and educational, working in CAMHS teams has increased by 33 per cent. They have a particularly important role in developing mental health services for young people who also have a learning disability.

Healthcare Commission: Inspections

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what mechanisms exist to promote consistency in the decisions of Healthcare Commission inspectors in different areas; and if she will make a statement. [130805]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 16 April 2007]: The Healthcare Commission has confirmed that national consistency in its assessments is a priority and that there are quality assurance and control systems in place to ensure that consistency is maximised.

The Commission has said that all its assessment managers, who carry out inspections, receive national training covering the overall principles of assessment, guidance on acquiring, analysing, and evaluating evidence, making judgments, and summarising assessments in a standardised report. Assessment managers carry out their inspections using a national assessment framework which provides a clear basis for assessing each of the core standards set out in "Standards for Better Health" (Department of Health 2004) and the "National Minimum Standards for Independent Health Care" issued under the Care Standards Act 2000.

The Commission has added that, in the case of the national health service, a national panel considers the assessments made against each standard across the country: assessment managers and their line managers may be required to review assessments in the light of local or national comparisons.

Heart Diseases: Standards

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how her Department plans to meet cardiac rehabilitation standards as set out in the National Service Framework for Coronary Heart Disease; [131743]

(2) how much was spent on cardiac rehabilitation services in each primary care trust area in each of the last five years; and how much is expected to be spent in each area in 2007-08; [131745]

(3) what assessment she has made of the likely effects for (a) coronary heart disease patients, (b) health inequalities and (c) primary care trust spending on coronary heart disease of achieving the standards set out in the National Service Framework for Coronary Heart Disease relating to cardiac rehabilitation services. [131782]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 16 April 2007]: The provision of cardiac rehabilitation services is a matter for the local national health service, working in partnership with stakeholders and the local community. It is for NHS organisations to plan and develop services based on their specific local knowledge and expertise. Data are not collected centrally regarding primary care trust spending on cardiac rehabilitation.

A new National Cardiac Rehabilitation Audit is being developed across England, jointly sponsored by the British Heart Foundation and the Healthcare Commission. This will provide stronger evidence on effectiveness and encourage local areas to appraise and improve their provision of cardiac rehabilitation.

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress has been made towards targets set out in the National Service Framework for Coronary Heart Disease; and if she will make a statement. [131749]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 16 April 2007]: The National Service Framework (NSF) for Coronary Heart Disease published in March 2000 sets a 10-year framework for action to prevent disease, tackle inequalities, save more lives, and improve the quality of life for people with heart disease.

The implementation of this NSF has led to a reduction of premature mortality, improved diagnostic and treatment facilities, faster care and better prevention of heart disease.

This progress is set out in detail in the recent report, "Shaping the future", copies of which have been placed in the Library.

Hospitals: Learning Disability

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions (a) she, (b) Ministers in her Department and (c) officials have had with Mencap on the quality of treatment of people with learning disabilities in NHS hospitals; and if she will make a statement. [129822]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Secretary of State has met with the chief executive of Mencap and the families of those people who were mentioned in Mencap's report, published on 12 March 2007.

Officials have had numerous discussions with Mencap. The Secretary of State will be holding an independent inquiry to look into the cases highlighted by Mencap and to review the quality of treatment of people with learning disabilities in national health service hospitals.

Hospitals: Telephones

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if the Department will place in the Library a copy of its formal response to the letter of 19 January 2006 from the Office of Communications on patient power systems. [131970]

Andy Burnham: The Department's formal response to the Office of Communications' letter of 19 January 2006 regarding the patient power systems has been placed in the Library.

Hospitals: Uniforms

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, pursuant to the answer of 21 February 2007, Official Report, column 832W, on uniforms, what the expected publication date is for (a) the commissioned literature review on the microbiological and social importance of uniforms in relation to hospital acquired infections, (b) the scientific study of the effect of water temperature on the removal of micro-organisms during laundering and (c) draft information on professional appearance, patient confidence and healthcare associated infections. [127604]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Both the literature review and the commissioned research are being prepared for publication in scientific journals, and therefore the date of their publication is not yet known.

Summary information on professional appearance, patient confidence and healthcare associated infections will appear on the Department's website, as part of a package of evidence and good practice that will help trusts establish their own procedures. We expect this to be within the next two months.

The information on the website will contain the broad conclusions from the literature review and commissioned research, to get this information to the NHS in the shortest time possible.

Hospitals: Waiting Lists

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she plans to publish the first sets of data showing referral-to-treatment waiting times for (a) admitted and (b) non-admitted patients. [131850]

Andy Burnham: I refer the hon. Member for South Cambridgeshire to the written answer I gave him on 16 January 2007, Official Report, column 1088W.

Junior Doctors

Jim Dobbin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether she has any plans to provide more careers guidance for junior doctors who may have to change specialties as a result of the recent training reform. [132028]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Yes. We have established a review group led by Professor Neil Douglas, Vice-Chair of the Academy of Medical Royal Colleges, to address the issues and concerns raised as a result of the modernising medical careers recruitment process this year. The review group has asked us to undertake work to develop a support package for doctors who may be displaced because they have not obtained a training post in the specialty they wanted.

We are working with the review group, NHS employers, postgraduate deaneries and local employers to develop such a package.

Maternity Services

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) maternity units and (b) maternity beds there are in each strategic health authority. [129888]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The breakdown by strategic health authority on the number of maternity units and the number of maternity beds is shown in the following tables. Maternity units referred to are either consultant led or midwife led units. This information has been derived from a number of sources and covers 2004-05 and 2005-06. Beds are shown by the average daily number available averaged over the course of the year. This is for 2005-06.

Medicine: Overseas Students

Mr. McGovern: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will consider allowing all non-European economic area medical students who started their studies when the previous immigration rules were in place to complete their studies. [130371]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 28 March 2007]: The studies of undergraduate medical students were not affected by the changes to the immigration rules.

Mr. McGovern: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what support is being provided to non-European economic area medical students to assist them to make alternative arrangements for their postgraduate study following changes to the immigration rules; [130372]

(2) what estimate she has made of the number of non-European economic area medical students who started studying before the new immigration rules for postgraduate training were introduced and who, under the new rules, will be unable to complete their training in the UK. [130373]

Ms Rosie Winterton: A concession has been granted to non-European economic area (EEA) undergraduate medical students who will have the opportunity to complete a two year postgraduate foundation programme without a work permit. Once the foundation course has been completed doctors will need to meet the normal requirements of the immigration rules.

Medical schools are able to admit up to 7.5 per cent. of their students from outside the EEA.

Medicine: Students

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which body is responsible for training doctors and the development of the curriculum for medical education. [131641]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 16 April 2007]: In England the strategic health authorities through their postgraduate deaneries are responsible for managing and organising postgraduate training. The postgraduate curricula are developed by the medical Royal Colleges and their faculties. The Postgraduate Medical Education and Training Board is responsible for approving the curricula submitted by the medical Royal Colleges and also for the approval and quality assurance of the programmes organised by the postgraduate deaneries.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she expects to reply to the letter of 14 February 2007 from the hon. Member for Billericay on the big lottery fund and the Living With Cancer programme. [130723]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 16 April 2007]: I replied to the hon. Member on 29 March 2007.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when the Minister with responsibility for Health Services, the hon. Member for Doncaster, Central (Ms Winterton) will respond to the hon. Member for East Worthing and Shoreham's letter of 8 March on the Mental Health Bill and implications for its Second Reading due on 16 April. [131375]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 16 April 2007]: A reply was sent to the hon. Member on 29 March 2007.

Mental Health Services: Children

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps the Government are taking to reduce the number of young people waiting over 26 weeks to see child and adolescent mental health services staff. [130273]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: In the three years to 31 March 2006 the Department invested over £300 million to improve and expand child and adolescent mental health services (CAMHS). The number of specialist CAMHS staff increased by 35 per cent. between 2002 and 2005. We have also established the National CAMHS Support Service to provide commissioners and providers of CAMHS with expert advice on best practice.

The number of children and adolescents waiting to be seen for over 26 weeks by specialist non-residential CAMHS teams fell from 6,100 in 2004 to 4,000 in 2005, the latest year for which figures are available.

Mental Health Services: Essex

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) on what basis the unit costs set out in table 1, page 11 of the report of the Public Consultation Review of Mental Health Employment Services across South Essex submitted to the South West Essex Primary Care Trust were calculated; and if she will make a statement; [130871]

(2) what the basis was for the conclusion of the report of the Public Consultation Review of Mental Health Employment Services across South Essex submitted to the South West Essex Primary Care Trust that the employment services, with the exception of the SEPT vocational unit, were not achieving satisfactory outcomes in relation to the service level agreement with the three Rethink employment services in South Essex; and if she will make a statement. [130872]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 16 April 2007]: The information requested is not held centrally and can instead be obtained direct from the South West Essex Primary Care Trust.

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on what occasions Mark Tebbs, the Mental Health Commissioner for South West Essex Primary Care Trust, visited the service trainees at Rethink Pet Supplies in Basildon prior to the publication of his report; and if she will make a statement. [130873]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 16 April 2007]: The NHS East of England Strategic Health Authority reports that the South West Essex Primary Care Trust (PCT) has apologised to Rethink Pet Supplies for not visiting them before the initial review stage began. However, the PCT has since visited the company on 22 March to discuss the complaints of service users.

Midwives: Insurance

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the availability of personal indemnity insurance for independent midwives; and if she will make a statement. [130875]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 16 April 2007]: Professional indemnity insurance is currently not available for independent midwives. We understand that this is because they practise in a specialty associated with the highest level of awards arising from litigation. We have been working with the Independent Midwives Association and other independent midwives since 2004 to provide some solutions and suggested alternatives. This process is continuing.

Ministerial Travel

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will list the occasions since she has held her present office when she has used (a) rail services, (b) the London Underground, (c) tram or light railway services and (d) buses in connection with her ministerial duties. [101986]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Secretary of State regularly uses rail services in connection with her ministerial duties. Since taking up her post as the Secretary of State for Health, she has used rail services to travel to the following locations in her ministerial capacity.

NHS: Drugs

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 5 March 2007, Official Report, column 1692W, on NHS: drugs, whether the permissibility of accepting hospitality at meetings under the rules includes transport to such meetings (a) in the UK and (b) overseas. [126965]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 12 March 2007]: Under the Medicines (Advertising) Regulations 1994, hospitality provided to health professionals by the pharmaceutical industry at scientific or promotional meetings may include the payment of travelling or accommodation expenses. This must be strictly limited to the main purpose of the meeting or event.

The self-regulatory Association of the British Pharmaceutical Industry code of practice for the pharmaceutical industry provides further guidance on the appropriate level of hospitality to be offered. This includes a restriction to economy air travel for delegates sponsored to attend meetings.

NHS: Finance

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the savings to (a) the University hospitals of Morecambe Bay trust and (b) the Cumbria primary care trust in the financial year 2007-08 will be as a result of the announcement that trusts in deficit will not be fined in addition to being required to pay back the deficit. [132041]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The income deduction of £6,357,000 applied to the University hospitals of Morecambe Bay in 2006-07 as a result of overspending in 2005-06 will be reversed. At quarter three the trust was forecasting a deficit of £6,357,000; the reversal of the income deduction means the revised forecast is for breakeven.

In 2007-08 national health service trusts will not be subject to income deductions for overspending in 2006-07.

The changes to the resource accounting and budgeting regime apply to NHS trusts only. This is in line with the recommendations in the Audit Commission "Review of the NHS Financial Management and Accounting Regime" published in July 2006.

NHS: Pay

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average pay awarded to (a) GPs, (b) consultants and (c) nurses was in each of the last 10 years; and what the percentage increase was over the previous year in each case in each year. [130042]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 27 March 2007]: Tables one, two and three show general practitioners (GPs) and table four shows consultants and nurses.

Available information on GP pay is as follows:

Table one: Average GP net income (national health service only), Great Britain - intended average net remuneration/income

	Amount (£)	Percentage increase over previous year
1997-98	46,031	3.5
1998-99	48,037	4.4
1999-2000	52,606	9.5
2000-01	54,219	3.1
2001-02	56,510	4.2
2002-03	61,618	9.0

Table two: Estimated average GP net income (NHS only), Great Britain

	Amount (£)
2003-04	72,752

Table three: Estimated average GP net income (all sources), United Kingdom

	Amount (£)
2004-05	100,000
2005-06	[1]
2006-07	[1]

[1] Not yet available.

The concept of intended average net remuneration (IANR) disappeared with the introduction of the new general medical services contract in 2003-04. Figures for future years, including the 2003-04 and 2004-05 estimates, are not comparable with IANR figures so no percentage increases for those years are shown. Since 2004-05 information on GP income is derived from the HM Revenue and Customs tax self-assessment database which relates to income from all sources, NHS and private. Information for 2005-06 will not be available until late 2007.

Table four: Shows information for consultants and nurses

	Average pay for consultants (£)	Percentage increase for consultants (average earnings per fte)	Average pay for nurses (£)	Percentage increase for nurses (average earnings per fte)
1997-98	65,790	1.0	20,760	-8.5
1998-99	69,934	6.3	20,972	1.0

NHS: Private Finance Initiative

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to her Department's press release of 27 February 2007, Mapping the success of NHS building schemes since 1997, when she expects each of the private finance initiative schemes mentioned in the press release to reach financial close. [131931]

Andy Burnham: The table gives the dates that financial close is planned for each of the schemes mentioned in the press release of 27 February 2007, Mapping the success of national health service building schemes since 1997.

	Date
Mid Yorkshire NHS Hospitals Trust	Quarter 2 2007
North Middlesex University Hospital NHS Trust	Quarter 3 2007
Mid Essex Hospital Services NHS Trust	Quarter 3 2007
Tees and North East Yorkshire NHS Trust	Quarter 3 2007
Peterborough Hospitals NHS Trust	Quarter 3 2007
Maidstone and Tunbridge Wells NHS Trust	Quarter 1 2008
North Bristol/South Gloucestershire primary care trusts	Quarter 4 2008

Primary Care Trusts

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) to whom primary care trusts are accountable; and which areas of their operation they are required to account for; [105952]

(2) what the statutory duties are of primary care trusts; and what other duties her Department expects them to perform. [104691]

Andy Burnham: Under the National Health Service Act 2006, schedule 3, paragraph 20, each primary care trust (PCT) must prepare an annual report on its activities during the previous financial year. It must send a copy of the report to each strategic health authority (SHA) whose area includes any part of the PCT's area. It must also send a copy of the report to the Secretary of State. The report must give details of the measures the PCT has taken to promote economy, efficiency and effectiveness in using its resources for the exercise of its functions.

In addition, if any such SHA, or the Secretary of State, requires other reports or information, the PCT must prepare and send such reports or information to the SHA or the Secretary of State as the case may be.

SHAs have certain detailed functions, under the National Health Service (Functions of Strategic Health Authorities and Primary Care Trusts and Administration Arrangements) (England) Regulations 2002, to support and manage the performance of PCTs. The Secretary of State may give directions to any SHA or PCT about its exercise of any functions (under section 8 of the National Health Service Act 2006), and a SHA may give directions to a PCT about its exercise of any function (under section 20 of the Act).

Under schedule 15 of the Act, PCTs must prepare annual accounts in respect of each financial year and send them to the Secretary of State and to any SHA whose area includes any part of the PCT's area. The Secretary of State must prepare summarised accounts relating to PCTs and send them to the Comptroller and Auditor General, who must lay copies of the accounts and his report on them before both Houses of Parliament.

Private Hospital Treatments

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS patients requiring (a) heart transplants and (b) hip replacement surgery have been referred to private hospitals for their treatment in the last five years; and how many were treated in NHS hospitals. [115568]

Andy Burnham: The following table contains the number of procedures for heart transplants and hip replacements for the period 2000 to 2005.

	Hip replacements	Heart transplants
2005-06	88,790	168
2004-05	86,712	203
2003-04	84,974	187
2002-03	80,654	265
2001-02	75,039	268
2000-01	73,065	275

Source:
Hospital Episode Statistics (HES), the Information Centre for health and social care.

It is not possible to identify from HES data whether these procedures took place in an NHS hospital or a private hospital.

Prostate Cancer

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps she is taking to reduce the inequality in experience reported by men with prostate cancer compared to that reported by patients with other cancers. [131687]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Following publication of the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence's (NICE) "Improving Outcomes in Urological Cancer" guidance, strategic health authorities (SHAs) and Cancer Networks submitted action plans to the both the cancer action team and the Department's planning and performance review team in June 2004, which detailed agreed milestones for investment and implementation of the improving outcomes in urological cancer guidance produced by NICE.

The cancer action team has assessed these plans to determine the extent to which the guidance will be implemented between 2005 and December 2007, and feedback was given to networks and SHAs. SHAs are now monitoring key milestones identified in the action plans every six months and then reporting back to the Department on their progress.

This action, together with the National Cancer Peer Review Programme, will enable us to provide a comparative measure of progress on overall implementation of the guidance.

Additionally, at the start of April the cancer action team appointed an Associate Director for Patient Experience, whose responsibilities include improving the patient experience of prostate cancer patients.

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many clinical nurse specialists are working with prostate cancer patients in England; and what her assessment is of the adequacy of these numbers. [131688]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Data on the number of clinical nurse specialists are not collected centrally. The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) has identified clinical nurse specialists as core members of the urology multidisciplinary team in their "Improving Outcomes in Urological Cancers" guidance issued in 2002. It is for cancer networks to work in partnership with strategic health authorities, national health service trusts and postgraduate deaneries to put in place a sustainable process to assess, plan and review their work force needs and the education and training of all staff linked to local and national priorities for cancer, including the implementation of NICE improving outcomes guidance.

Written Questions

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she will answer question 127973, on the End Waiting, change lives initiative, tabled on 14 March by the hon. Member for Harrogate and Knaresborough. [132053]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: A reply was given to the hon. Member on 17 April 2007.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she will answer the question tabled by the hon. Member for Forest of Dean on (a) 21 November 2006, reference 102595, on social research, and (b) 13 December 2006, reference 110223, requesting an answer to that question. [132293]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: An answer has been given today.

ZooBiotic

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many ministerial visits have taken place to ZooBiotic in Bridgend in the last 12 months; and if she will make a statement. [127751]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: There have been no ministerial visits to ZooBiotic in Bridgend in the last 12 months.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Driving Offences: Mobile Phones

Mrs. Riordan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been (a) arrested and (b) prosecuted for using their mobile phones while driving since the legislation banning their use while driving was introduced. [130417]

Mr. Coaker: Information requested on arrests for summary motoring offences of 'use of a hand-held mobile phone while driving' is not collected centrally.

Available information taken from the Court Proceedings Database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform, from 2003 to 2004 (latest available) is provided in the table. As the majority of 'use of hand-held mobile phone while driving' offences are dealt with by the issue of a fixed penalty notice, these are also included.

2005 data will be available later this year.

Fixed penalty notices issued[1] and total court proceedings for the offence of use of hand held mobile phone while driving[2], England and Wales, 2003-04

2003		2004
Fixed penalty notices issued[1]	Total court proceedings[3]	Fixed penalty notices issued[1]	Total court proceedings[3]
1,888	1	73,976	789

[1] Fixed penalty notices paid where there is no further action.

[2] Offences under the Road Vehicles (Construction and Use) Regulations 1986, Regulations 110 (1), 110 (2 and 110 (3), (Offence introduced 1 December 2003).

[3] Includes cases where fixed penalty notices were originally issued but not paid and subsequently referred to court.

Notes:

1. It Is known that for some police force areas, the reporting of court proceedings in particular those relating to summary motoring offences, may be less than complete. Work is under way to ensure that the magistrates courts case management system being implemented by the Department for Constitutional Affairs reports all motoring offences to the Office for Criminal Justice Reform. This will enable more complete figures to be disseminated.

2. Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Female Genital Mutilation

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate he has made of the number of UK citizens who were subjected to female genital mutilation in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [130522]

Caroline Flint: I have been asked to reply.

This information is not collected centrally. The Department has commissioned a study into the prevalence of female genital mutilation (FGM), which will provide information on the likely incidence of FGM in England and Wales. This study is currently being finalised.

National Crime Squad

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 27 March 2007, Official Report, column 458W, on the National Crime Squad, what estimate he has made of the level of (a) Class A drug trafficking, (b) organised immigration crime and (c) hi-tech crime; and if he will make a statement. [131587]

Mr. Coaker: The UK Threat Assessment (UKTA), available on the Serious Organised Crime Agency website, estimates that between 60 to 80 tonnes of heroin and cocaine are trafficked into the UK each year. The UK consumption of ecstasy is estimated at between 500,000 and 2 million tablets per week.

The UKTA describes the modus operandi of people smugglers and human traffickers, as well as offering a description of the nature of the problem but makes no quantitative assessment of the threat.

Hi-tech crime is covered in the chapter of the UKTA dealing with non-fiscal fraud. The UKTA recognises that the scale of non-fiscal fraud is difficult to estimate accurately as not all frauds are discovered and not all discovered frauds are reported.

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 27 March 2007, Official Report, column 458W, on the National Crime Squad, how much funding was provided to each of the four threat areas in each year since 1998. [131588]

Mr. Coaker: Accounting within the National Crime Squad (NCS) was based on the nature of expenditure not the activity to which that expenditure related, therefore, it has not been possible to give details of the funding NCS provided to each of the main threats.

Offensive Weapons

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people were convicted of selling a crossbow to a person aged under 18 in each of the last five years. [131240]

Mr. Coaker: It is an offence under the Crossbows Act 1987 to sell or hire a crossbow or part of a crossbow to person under the age of 17.

Data from the court proceedings database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform on the number of persons found guilty at all courts for this offence in England and Wales from 2001-2005, show that there were no convictions for this offence during those years.

Information for 2006 will be available in the autumn.

Prisons: Genetics

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how prisoners without a DNA profile on the National DNA database were identified for the purposes of the DNA Prisoner Sampling Exercise in 2003. [122907]

John Reid: Data on all the then 72,000 prisoners were taken from the Prison Service Inmate Information System. This was then compared with data held on the Police National Computer and the National DNA Database about these individuals to see whether a DNA sample had already been taken from them. Work was also done comparing Department of Health records with data on PNC and NDNAD, to identify patients held in secure mental health units who had not had DNA samples taken.

Serious Organised Crime Agency

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much funding was provided to the (a) intelligence directorate, (b) enforcement directorate, (c) intervention directorate and (d) corporate services directorate of the Serious Organised Crime Agency for the financial year 2006-07; and what funding projections he has made for each directorate for the financial year 2007-08. [131686]

Mr. Coaker: For the financial year 2006-07 the Home Office delegated a budget to SOCA of £427million. SOCA's 2006-07 Annual Plan, published in March 2006, set out how SOCA intended to exercise its functions during the 2006-07 financial year.

The internal allocation of resources between directorates is a matter for the SOCA Board.

For the 2007-08 financial year the Home Secretary will approve SOCA's overall funding. The final decision on this is expected shortly but the assumption is that funding will be broadly level in real terms with that of 2006-07; however, the internal allocation between directorates will again be a matter for the SOCA Board.

SOCA's 2007-08 Annual Plan was published on 30 March 2007. It sets out how SOCA will exercise its functions in this financial year. The aim is to apportion operational effort broadly as follows against the main threat sectors:

	Percentage
Drugs trafficking, primarily Class A,	40
Organised immigration crime	25
Individual and private sector fraud	10
Other organised crime	15

In addition, broadly 10 per cent. of operational effort should be used in support of law enforcement partners, when their objectives would not otherwise be SOCA priorities.

Serious Organised Crime Agency: Manpower

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many financial investigators were employed by the Serious Organised Crime Agency in the last year for which figures are available. [131609]

Mr. Coaker: Many of SOCA's operational officers will have some involvement in financial investigations, because of SOCA's emphasis on attacking criminal assets.

SOCA came into existence on one April 2006 and it currently employs 209 Financial Investigators, as authorised by the Director of the Assets Recovery Agency, who are undertaking a number of roles.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Digital Broadcasting

Norman Baker: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission which digital television channels are available to hon. Members' offices on the House of Commons estate; and how much was spent on (a) all channels and (b) Sky Sports in each of the last three years. [131062]

Nick Harvey: No digital television channels are available directly in Members' offices at present as they are currently converted to analogue in order to be broadcast with other channels over the annunciator system. In August 2006, however, a working group was set up to investigate options for replacing the current analogue system. A successful trial was carried out in March 2007 which proved that digital channels can be broadcast over the existing annunciator infrastructure and a Project Board will now take these options forward before the 2012 analogue switch-off date.

The House has spent nothing on Sky Sports or any other channel in the last three years as they are provided under a free licence.

The channels currently available are as follows:

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Departments: Redundancy

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many people in his Department participated in (a) involuntary and (b) voluntary staff exit schemes in each year since 1997-98; and if he will make a statement. [131542]

Mr. Thomas: Since 1997, DFID has had no involuntary redundancies, but there have been voluntary early departures as set out in the following table. Selection for a new round of voluntary early departures in the 2007-08 financial year is currently under way and the number of staff accepting early departure offers should be finalised by the end of April.

Year	Total number of approved voluntary early departures
1997-98	3
1998-99	4
1999-2000	4
2000-01	2
2001-02	9
2002-03	24
2003-04	9
2004-05	11
2005-06	35
2006-07	32

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many people in his Department who participated in (a) involuntary and (b) voluntary staff exit schemes in each year since 1997-98 were paid between (i) £0 to £25,000, (ii) £25,001 to £50,000, (iii) £50,001 to £75,000, (iv) £75,001 to £100,000 and (v) over £100,000; and if he will make a statement. [131562]

Mr. Thomas: Since 1997, DFID has had no involuntary redundancies, but there have been voluntary early departures. The following table sets out the number of early departures approved in each year since 1997-98. The totals listed against each year and financial band reflect the total cost of each departure to DFID recorded against the year in which the departure was approved. The total cost, in some cases, is spread over a number of years as annual compensation payments, where appropriate, are paid to staff until they qualify for their normal pension at age 60.

	Total number of approved voluntary early departures	£0-25,000	£25,001-50,000	£50,001-75,000	£75,001-100,000	Over £100,000

Uganda

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether his Department is making a contribution to the UN Consolidated Appeals Process for Uganda; and if he will make a statement. [132304]

Hilary Benn: DFID has committed £18.6 million towards the UN Consolidated Appeal for Uganda this year. The World Food Programme will receive £7 million for emergency food aid. UNICEF will receive £7.4 million to improve water and sanitation provision, provide emergency household items when required and to support child protection services. £4.2 million will be provided to a joint UN health programme in the north and north-east.

Of the £18.6 million committed we have so far disbursed £8.4 million. The remainder will be released in instalments over the next six months.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Community Relations

John Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many (a) walls and (b) locked gates are still in position dividing communities in Northern Ireland; and if he will make a statement. [131122]

Mr. Hain: There are 46 walls or fences and 11 gates of this kind in position in Northern Ireland. The Government are committed to removing barriers between communities. These barriers are only used reluctantly and as a last resort where necessary to protect life and property.

Employment: Young People

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many pupils in Northern Ireland who left school in 2006 (a) have secured full-time employment, (b) have secured part-time employment, (c) are on a training scheme and (d) are unemployed. [132444]

Maria Eagle: The School Leavers' Survey collects data on the qualifications and main destinations of school leavers leaving mainstream education. Destination data are collected by the careers advisors in each of the post primary schools. It should be noted that the School Leavers' Survey does not collect information on part-time employment. Data for the 2005-06 academic year will not be available until the end of May. Therefore the following data relate to the 2004-05 academic year.

Of the 25,298 pupils leaving school in 2004-05:

(a) 2,538 entered employment

(b) Part-time employment data not collected separately

(c) 4,443 entered training[1]

(d) 1,122 left school and were unemployed

In addition 9,633 entered institutions of higher education, 6,953 entered institutions of further education and 609 had their destination recorded as unknown.

[1] Numbers entering training include those entering Jobskills programme, operated by the Department for Employment and Learning.

Equal Pay

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what estimate he has made of the pay gap between men and women in Northern Ireland in the last 12 months. [132279]

Maria Eagle: The median hourly earnings, excluding overtime, for females employed on a full-time basis at April 2006 in Northern Ireland was estimated to be £9.98 compared to £10.00 for males. Female hourly earnings at April 2006 were 99.8 per cent. of males—an improvement in the position at April 2005 when they were 94.7 per cent. of male hourly earnings.

Housing: Low Incomes

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what response he has made to the Semple Report on Affordable Housing; and what funding has been allocated for its implementation. [132046]

Mr. Hanson: Sir John Semple made a series of practical suggestions across a range of policy areas in his final report which was received by the Department for Social Development on 4 April 2007. Housing markets are extremely complex and are influenced by a range of local, national and global social and economic factors. The report has shown that concerted action across organisational boundaries is necessary to improve the delivery of affordable housing across tenures.

The Government are currently considering its response to the report and as I would want the newly appointed Minister to have an input into the response, it will not be until after 8 May devolution restoration that a response will be issued.

Social Rented Housing

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many new houses were constructed by housing associations in each district council area in Northern Ireland between 1 April 2000 and 31 March 2007. [132098]

Mr. Hanson: During this seven year period, housing association house completions were as follows:

	Number
Antrim	79
Ards	142
Armagh	75
Ballymena	127
Ballymoney	63
Banbridge	68

South Eastern Education and Library Board

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will ensure that the financial deficit generated by the South Eastern Education and Library Board is written off prior to the formation of the Education and Skills Authority. [131639]

Maria Eagle: The financial deficit generated by the South Eastern Education and Library Board will not be written off. The make up of the deficit in that Board is such that some of its schools are owed very significant sums of money and there can be no question of that money not being available to schools as and when they need it. The new Education and Skills Authority will therefore inherit that liability, along with the other assets and liabilities that will transfer from all predecessor bodies. It will have to plan its finances in a way that makes sure that schools in the SEELB area have access to the surpluses that they have accumulated and that schools in deficit continue to take action in line with their agreed recovery plans.

South Eastern Education and Library Board: Public Appointments

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what monies have been paid to the four Commissioners who were appointed to the South Eastern Education and Library Board in June 2006. [132214]

Maria Eagle: The chief executive of the South Eastern education and Library Board has advised me that, up to and including 28 February 2007, the four Commissioners who were appointed on 6 July 2006 have been paid a total of £66,742.60. Costs for March 2007 are not yet available.

Suicide

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps he (a) is taking and (b) is planning in relation to combating suicide in Northern Ireland. [131625]

Paul Goggins: The Suicide Prevention Strategy, 'Protect Life—A Shared Vision', was published on 30 October 2006, and its primary aim is to reduce the levels of suicide and self-harm in Northern Ireland. The strategy takes both a general and targeted approach. Recurrent funding of £1.9 million was allocated for the implementation of the strategy in 2006-07, with £3 million identified for 2007-08 onwards. A families forum, which includes members of families directly affected by suicide, plays a crucial role in helping to inform and direct the strategy.

To date a number of pilot schemes and initiatives have been established, including:

a 24/7 suicide prevention telephone helpline pilot for north and west Belfast, which specifically targets young people;

a pilot mentoring scheme for people who self-harm in the Western Health and Social Services Board area;

the development, and roll-out, of a GP depression awareness training programme; the launch of a public information campaign, designed to de-stigmatise mental health, and promote awareness and understanding of issues relating to suicide and self-harm; and a literature review of the "effects of the troubles on the mental health and wellbeing of the population of Northern Ireland".

Funding has also been allocated to health and social services boards to support the development of community-based initiatives that will assist in a reduction of suicide and self-harm.

The strategy will also draw on the experiences of our counterparts across the UK and Ireland, and a Joint Five Nations Forum has been established to share best practice. An All-Island Action Plan has also been developed in conjunction with the National Office of Suicide Prevention in the Republic of Ireland.

Other projects currently under consideration include:

additional research into the underlying causes of suicide in north and west Belfast and Banbridge;

the development of the next phase of the public information campaign;

the establishment of an advisory group to look at ways of improving the existing Northern Ireland suicide recording mechanisms;

an audit and evaluation of suicide related training programmes currently available in Northern Ireland;

the piloting of a self-harm registry in the Western Health and Social Services Board area; and the development of an All-Island media watch facility.

Ulster Scots Language: Education

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps he has taken to ensure equality of funding in Northern Ireland between the (a) Ulster Scots language and culture and (b) Gaelic language and culture; and what impact those steps have had on funding levels. [132430]

Maria Eagle: The two agencies of the Language Implementation Body are funded to carry out their functions as defined in the North/South Co-operation (Implementation Bodies) (Northern Ireland) Order 1999.

The budgets for the Ulster-Scots Agency and the Irish Language Agency, Foras na Gaeilge, are determined in accordance with their agreed annual business plans.

Following on from the commitment made by the Government in respect of Ulster-Scots in the St. Andrews Agreement, the Government and the Irish Government have agreed that additional resources of £0.5 million will be made available to the Ulster-Scots Agency in 2007-08, £0.75 million in 2008-09 and £1.0 million in 2009-10. The latter two years' additional funding is subject to the outcome of the comprehensive spending review in Northern Ireland.

PRIME MINISTER

Armed Forces: Mass Media

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Prime Minister whether the decision by the Ministry of Defence to allow serving military personnel to sell their stories to the media was (a) made known to and (b) authorised by him prior to being made public. [132017]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. member to the statement made by my right. hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Defence (Des Browne) on 16 April 2007, Official Report, columns 23-26.

Departments: Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Prime Minister what measures are in place to limit the amount of money spent on alcohol for hospitality purposes by his Office. [132196]

The Prime Minister: For accounting purposes my office forms part of the Cabinet Office. I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by the Minister, for the Cabinet Office, my right hon. Friend the Member for North-West Durham (Hilary Armstrong), today.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Bankruptcy: Legislation

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the impact of the Enterprise Act 2002 on bankrupt individuals in the last four months. [132058]

Jim Fitzpatrick: In the last four months, The Insolvency Service has continued collating information as part of its evaluation of the Enterprise Act 2002. This evaluation attempts to comprehensively assess whether, to what extent and how the provisions of the Act meets its policy objectives, and will cover the impact of the Enterprise Act 2002 on bankrupts. Full details of the evaluation work being undertaken are set out in the evaluation planning papers which are available on The Insolvency Service's website http://www.insolvency.gov.uk/insolvencyprofessionandlegislation/legislation/Reform.htm.

The Insolvency Service is due to complete the evaluation work in summer 2007, with a final evaluation report being published in autumn 2007.

Energy Supply: Meters

Mr. Donohoe: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) if he will meet the three energy suppliers who continue to back-charge token meter consumers and urge them to end the practice; [131292]

(2) whether the risks of debt associated with the late recalibration of electricity token meter recalibration has been clearly communicated to those token meter users who remain at risk of such debt by those suppliers who continue to back-charge following price rise announcements; and if he will make a statement. [131399]

Malcolm Wicks: The Office of Gas and Electricity Markets (Ofgem) is responsible for regulating gas and electricity supply, including matters related to prepayment meters. My noble friend, the Minister for Energy has no plans to meet with the energy suppliers on this issue. I welcome Ofgem's commitment to working with suppliers to improve their performance in recalibrating and replacing certain prepayment meters. My Department continues to monitor progress.

Ofgem recently published an update in a letter of 21 March from its managing director of corporate affairs. This letter, which included details of the progress on customer communication made by Scottish Power, Powergen and npower, is available from Ofgem's website at:

www.ofgem.gov.uk

Post Offices: Closures

Richard Younger-Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when he expects to make a statement on the outcome of the Post Office closure consultation. [132269]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Government's consultation on the future of the Post Office network attracted over 2,500 responses. We are currently considering these responses with the aim of announcing our decisions in May.

Post Offices: Urban Areas

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate he has made of the proportion of people in urban areas who use post offices regularly. [132640]

Jim Fitzpatrick: This is an operational matter for Post Office Ltd. Alan Cook the managing director has been asked to reply direct to the hon. Member.

Sustainable Development

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much money has been (a) allocated for grants and (b) disbursed by the Clearskies Initiative in each month since the scheme began. [131692]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 16 April 2007]: The information requested is as follows.

Technology: Research

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps he (a) has taken and (b) plans to take to stimulate research and development in low carbon technologies. [131738]

Malcolm Wicks: The DTI is supporting a wide range of measures to stimulate research and development in low carbon technologies throughout the R and D energy innovation chain.

(a) Existing steps taken include:

Expenditure by the Research Councils (which are funded from the DTI science budget) on energy related basic, strategic and applied research and related postgraduate training will rise to over £70 million per annum by 2007-08. Research Council investments cover the full range of energy from renewables, fusion, improving networks and conventional generation, through to research to keep the nuclear option open. Energy research remains a cross-Council priority for future allocations.

Industrial collaborative research and development is funded through the DTI's Technology programme. The Technology programme is designed to stimulate innovation in the UK economy through higher levels of research and development and knowledge transfer. Funding is focussed on projects in strategically important technology areas. The DTI spends around £20 million per annum on low carbon energy technologies as part of this programme.

The UK is also an active participant in the Framework programme, which is Europe's main funding vehicle for research and development. The Government actively encourages UK participation in the Framework programme, and provides help and support to applicants through a dedicated helpline and structured workshops.

In Framework programme 6, which ran from 2002-06, the Energy element was worth €880 million of which the UK was successful in obtaining around €100 million of funding. The "Energy Thematic" within Framework programme 7 is worth €2.3 billion and runs from 2007-2013. The first call is currently underway.

(b) Future steps planned include:

In September 2006 the Secretary of State published a prospectus for a new Energy Technologies Institute, and confirmed that the Government would commit up to £500 million over ten years to this 50:50 public-private partnership. It will provide a focus for industrial collaboration and substantially increase the level of investment in the R and D necessary to identify the most promising energy technologies, and to accelerate their deployment.

Further support is provided by other Government Departments and organisations. (An example is the Carbon Trust, which—among other activities—provides support for innovation into low carbon energy activities.

TRANSPORT

Blue Badge Scheme

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make a statement on changes in enforcement activity for the Blue Badge Scheme since the introduction of changes in regulations in September 2006. [131599]

Gillian Merron: It is too early to make an assessment at this stage, as the powers of enforcement have only been available to local authorities since September. However, the Department for Transport is working with local agencies to improve data collection and promote good practice in this area.

The Department is committed to tackling all Blue Badge misuse as signalled by a three-month strategic review of the scheme, which will report in September 2007. This will culminate in the production of a comprehensive Blue Badge Reform Strategy by April 2008.

Departments: Golden Arrow

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many meetings the Minister of State, the hon. Member for South Thanet (Dr. Ladyman) has attended with representatives of (a) Golden Arrow and (b) Sovereign Strategy since taking office; and if he will make a statement. [131069]

Dr. Ladyman: As part of the consultations on the Department for Transport's review of ports policy, I attended with DfT officials, a lunch on 18 July 2006, organised by Golden Arrow Communications, to hear the views of ports and shipping interests. As Minister of State, I have attended no other meetings organised by Golden Arrow or Sovereign Strategy.

I have attended conferences, receptions and other such events not organised by Golden Acrow Communications or Sovereign Strategy but at which individuals employed by them may have been present. No record is kept of such encounters.

Driving: Licensing

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many people had their driving licences taken away in (a) 2005 and (b) 2006. [132024]

Dr. Ladyman: The information is not readily available from the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (DVLA) and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Milton Keynes Railway Station

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the adequacy of toilet provision within plans for the new platform upgrade at Milton Keynes railway station. [132045]

Mr. Tom Harris: The design and specification of facilities at Milton Keynes Central station is the responsibility of Network Rail.

The hon. Member should contact Network Rail's Chief Executive at the following address for a response to his question.

John Armitt
Chief Executive
Network Rail
40 Melton Street
London NW1 2EE

Milton Keynes Station: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when the platform upgrade of Milton Keynes station is due to be completed. [132329]

Mr. Tom Harris: The modifications to Milton Keynes Central station are due to be completed and commissioned in time for the introduction of the revised timetables for the West Coast Main Line in late 2008 to January 2009.

Motor Vehicles: Safety Measures

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has to require all vehicles on UK roads to be fitted with wing mirrors on both sides. [132051]

Dr. Ladyman: All vehicles greater than 3,500kg total mass are already required to have a rear view mirror on each side.

Passenger cars and small goods vehicles are currently required to have an exterior rear view mirror fitted on the offside and either one interior mirror or an exterior mirror on the nearside. From January 2010 all cars and small goods vehicles will be required to have two external mirrors. However, in practice, most manufacturers have been fitting mirrors to both sides of their vehicles for some years.

Mopeds are required to have one mirror and motorcycles and motor tricycles are required to have two mirrors. We are currently working with user groups to get their views on whether these requirements need amending in the context of the Government's motorcycling strategy.

New heavy vehicles from January 2007 have been fitted with enhanced mirrors that improve driver vision. Similar requirements are being considered for existing vehicles as part of a package of measures being proposed by the European Commission. We are currently conducting a public consultation on the policy options for these proposals and this consultation closes on 4 May 2007. Copies of the consultation have been placed in the Libraries of the House and can also be found at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/consultations/open/retrofittingdevicesmirrors/

Pedestrian Crossings

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the estimated completion date is for the non-motorised user crossings programme. [131199]

Dr. Ladyman: Delivery of new, and improvements to existing, non-motorised user crossings is ongoing. The Highways Agency is making good progress; 188 of the sites listed in 2003 having been investigated and works completed where appropriate. Future delivery is subject to the availability of funding and the Agency will continue to deliver improvements where this can be done cost-effectively. Therefore, it is not possible to provide an estimate of the completion date.

Railway Stations

Mr. Arbuthnot: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the announcement that 1,000 new carriages are planned to be added to the rail network by 2014, what assessment he has made of the capacity of non-suburban station platforms to accommodate longer trains. [132306]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Secretary of State will publish a High Level Output Specification (HLOS) in the summer which will specify, inter alia, the additional rail capacity the Government wish to purchase. The rail industry will respond to the HLOS in October 2007 with proposals for delivering this extra capacity, including platform lengthening and other infrastructural investment, where appropriate.

Roads: Accidents

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has to collate information on the number of foreign vehicles involved in road traffic accidents in the UK. [132052]

Dr. Ladyman: Since January 2005 the Department has collected information on whether vehicles involved in reported personal injury accidents in Great Britain are foreign registered. This information is published on the Department's website in the annual publication "Road Casualties Great Britain: 2005 annual report" at the following link:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/statistics/datatablespublications/accidents/casualtiesgbar/roadcasualtiesgreatbritain2005

Copies of the report are also available in the Libraries of the House.

Rolling Stock

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what consideration he has given to (a) the replacement of the British Rail Class 43 rolling stock and (b) a new generation high speed train. [132215]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Department is currently seeking Expressions of Interest for the development and eventual delivery of a new fleet of Intercity Express trains suitable to replace the present high speed trains.

Speed Limits: Cameras

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what progress has been made in approving time over distance cameras. [131803]

Dr. Ladyman: Average speed cameras were approved at 16 core sites within the National Safety Camera Programme. The National Safety Camera Programme ceased on 31 March 2007. In accordance with DfT Circular 01/2007, highway authorities now have the freedom to deploy type-approved average speed cameras without the Department's approval. The type approval of speed enforcement devices is a matter for the Home Office.

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when the first time over distance cameras are expected to be available for use. [131804]

Dr. Ladyman: The first average speed camera site within the National Safety Camera Programme was established in July 2000.

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the likely effectiveness of time over distance cameras in reducing the levels of (a) fatal, (b) major and (c) minor road injuries. [131805]

Dr. Ladyman: No specific assessment has been made of the effectiveness of time-over-distance cameras. However the independent 4-year evaluation report of the National Safety Camera Programme covered any time-over-distance cameras operating between April 2000 and March 2004. The independent academics concluded that they were equally as effective in reducing collisions and casualties as other fixed and red-light cameras. They also concluded that time-over-distance cameras have been particularly effective at reducing excessive speeds, which are defined as 15mph over the speed limit.

Tractors: Safety

Dr. Blackman-Woods: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what measures are taken to regulate the safety and roadworthiness of farm tractors. [131820]

Dr. Ladyman: The primary responsibility for ensuring the safety and roadworthiness of a farm tractor rests with the person who operates and uses it—exactly in the same way as it does with any type of vehicle. However, the condition of farm tractors is none the less subject to compliance checks by both the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency, and by the Health and Safety Executive during routine farm visits.

TREASURY

Carbon Monoxide: Poisoning

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many deaths there were from carbon monoxide poisoning in each London borough in each of the last five years. [132148]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 18 April 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many deaths there were from carbon monoxide poisoning in each London borough in each of the last five years. (132148)

The attached table provides the number of deaths where the toxic effect of carbon monoxide was the cause of death, in each London borough, from 2001 to 2005 (the latest year available).

Child Trust Fund

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 15 March 2007, Official Report, column 472W, on the Child Trust Fund, how much was paid to Sheree Murphy to promote the Child Trust Fund; and what activities she undertook. [129345]

Ed Balls: In support of Child Trust Fund week, Sheree Murphy was employed by HMRC to participate in interviews, features and photo shoots for national TV, press, radio, parenting and women's magazines. She was also featured in the Child Trust Fund Week pack, which helped partner organisations appeal to parents. The cost was £25,000.

Corporation Tax: Private Finance Initiative

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the effect of the changes in corporation tax allowances announced in the 2007 Budget on the level of Government liabilities in private finance initiative contracts. [132123]

Dawn Primarolo: The effect of the changes in capital allowances cannot be examined in isolation from other changes to corporation tax announced in the Budget; the proposed changes in the rate of corporation tax have a corresponding impact. Overall, the impact of the reforms to corporation tax announced in the 2007 Budget is to reduce the cost of capital for investment.

Departmental Press Office

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many staff are employed in the press offices of (a) his Department and (b) its agencies, broken down by pay band. [110948]

John Healey: The numbers of staff employed in the Press Office of the Treasury and its agencies as at 31 December 2006 are in the following table.

Department	Number of staff
GAD	Nil
HM Treasury	2 Range B
	3 Range C
	2 Range D
	3 Range E
	1 Team Leader
VSAT	3 Range D
	1 Range E
OGC	1 Range B
	2 Range D
	1 Team Leader
OGC Buying Solutions	1 Range C
Royal Mint	Nil

Departmental Travel

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which company provides travel management services to his Department; and what the total value of the contract was in each year since 1997. [115220]

John Healey: Travel management services for air, sea and rail are currently provided under a former Inland Revenue (now part of HM Revenue and Customs) framework contract with Carlson Wagonlit Travel UK Limited. The Treasury has spent the following amounts on travel management services between July 2002 and March 2006.

Period	Fees[1] (£000's)
July 2002-03	35,000
2003-04	60,000
2004-05	86,000
2005-06	123,000

[1] Including VAT

The level of fees paid for travel management services obviously correspond to the level of travel undertaken. As a result, the figures for 2004-05 and 2005-06 reflect the higher levels of travel undertaken throughout 2005 as a result of HM Treasury's international commitments during the UK's dual presidencies of the EU and G7, as well as the visits undertaken by the Chancellor and his officials during that period to Africa, the Middle East and China.

The information prior to July 2002 could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Redundancy

Justine Greening: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many people in his Department participated in (a) involuntary and (b) voluntary staff exit schemes in each year since 1997-98; and if he will make a statement; [131549]

(2) how many people in his Department who participated in (a) involuntary and (b) voluntary staff exit schemes in each year since 1997-98 were paid between (i) £0 to £25,000, (ii) £25,001 to £50,000, (iii) £50,001 to £75,000, (iv) £75,001 to £100,000 and (v) over £100,000; and if he will make a statement. [131553]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave her on 2 March 2007, Official Report, columns 1587-8W. An analysis of the costs between voluntary and compulsory schemes, or broken down by cost bands, could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Silverfish Productions

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what contracts his Department has awarded to Silverfish Productions Limited in each of the last three years; and at what cost. [127821]

John Healey: None.

Employment: Lone Parents

Mr. Gauke: To ask Mr Chancellor of the Exchequer what forecast he has made of the employment rate for lone parents in 2010-11. [132039]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 18 April 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question about lone parent employment rates. (132039)

The Labour Force Survey (LFS) estimate of the proportion of lone parents of working age that are in employment, for the three months ending May 2006, is 56.5 per cent. A historical series of lone parent employment rates is published in the 'Work and worklessness among households' First Release, which is available on the National Statistics website:

http:www.statistics.gov.uk/statbase/Product.asp?vlnk=8552.

As with any sample survey, estimates from the LFS are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

ONS does not produce forecasts of lone parent employment rates.

Gift Aid

Tim Farron: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the likely effect on charities receiving Gift Aid following the reduction in the basic rate of income tax to 20 per cent. from April 2008. [132040]

Dawn Primarolo: The precise impact on charities' income will depend on the behavioural reactions of donors and charities to the recent tax changes, and will also depend on any measures adopted to drive up giving through gift aid as a result of the consultation with the sector, which we will report on at the pre-Budget report. The strong upward trend in donations is however expected to result in consistent year-on-year growth in charities' overall income from giving through gift aid, including in the year 2008-09.

Income Tax: Tax Evasion

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the (a) number of cases of and (b) loss of revenue through income tax evasion by those resident in (i) the United Kingdom, (ii) each region and (iii) each London borough in each of the last five years. [132171]

Dawn Primarolo: There are currently no reliable estimates of the income tax revenue lost through tax evasion.

Inheritance Tax

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the revenue implications of raising the inheritance tax threshold to (a) £350,000, (b) £400,000, (c) £450,000 and (d) £500,000 for each year from 2007-08 to 2010-11; and if he will make a statement. [131117]

Dawn Primarolo: Raising the inheritance tax threshold with effect from 2007-08 would have the following effect on forecast revenue receipts:

Reduction in revenue (£ billions) arising from raising the threshold to

	£350,000	£400,000	£450,000	£500,000
2007-08	0.2	0.4	0.6	0.7
2008-09	0.5	1.0	1.3	1.5
2009-10	0.6	1.1	1.4	1.7
2010-11	0.6	1.1	1.5	1.8

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the revenue implications of extending the seven year rule for exemption of inheritance tax to 15 years; and if he will make a statement. [131836]

Dawn Primarolo: Information to make a reliable estimate is not available.

Minimum Wage

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the number of people receiving the national minimum wage, broken down by level of total annual earnings. [132120]

Jim Fitzpatrick: I have been asked to reply.

The following table shows the number of employee jobs estimated to have been paying the national minimum wage in April 2006, split by gross annual earnings. In total, around 385,000 employee jobs were paid the national minimum wage.

Employee jobs[1] paying the national minimum wage[2]

	Gross annual earnings
	Less than £5000	£5000 to £9,999	£10,000 to £14,999	£15,000 or more
Jobs paying national minimum wage	213,000	126,000	41,000	4,000

[1] Employees whose pay for the survey period was not affected by absence.

[2] 16-17 year-olds earning £3.00 per hour, 18-21 year-olds earning £4.25 per hour, and those age 22 and over earning £5.05.

Note:

Figures may not sum due to rounding.

Personal Savings

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what advice he received on the implications for savings as a consequence of the abolition of personal equity plans and their replacement with individual savings accounts. [132036]

Ed Balls: As part of a package of reforms to be implemented from April 2008 aimed at making the ISA regime simpler and more flexible for savers, all remaining PEPs will be brought within the ISA wrapper, by aligning the rules for the two schemes.

The Government have received representations from the industry and consumer representatives that this change will enable investors to integrate their stocks and shares investments within the ISA wrapper and so manage their funds more effectively, potentially leading to reduced administration costs for providers and lower account charges for customers in future. Existing PEP investors will also benefit from the wider range of investments available under the ISA, such as stakeholder accounts and insurance.

Schools: Cadets

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 20 March 2007, Official Report, column 770W, on schools: cadets, which fundraising (a) events and (b) meetings Rod Aldridge has attended in the last six months as part of his duties. [131370]

Dawn Primarolo: Rod Aldridge engages in fundraising for a wide range of youth volunteering activities through V, but has no specific responsibilities for fundraising for cadets.

Smuggling: Alcoholic Drinks

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the total value was of untaxed spirits intercepted in Northern Ireland in the last 12 months. [132149]

John Healey: HM Revenue and Customs do not record the value of all spirits intercepted. HMRC does estimate the value of each non-UK duty paid spirits seizure however. The total estimated value of spirits seizures made in Northern Ireland during 2005-06 is £13,310. The amount of spirits seized during 2006-07 will be published later this year.

Stamp Duty Land Tax

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the revenue implications of raising the (a) one per cent. stamp duty land tax threshold to £150,000 and three per cent. threshold to £300,000 and (b) one per cent. threshold to £200,000 and three per cent. threshold to £350,000; and if he will make a statement. [131118]

Ed Balls: The estimated cost in 2007-08 of raising the residential stamp duty land tax thresholds to levels indicated by (a) and (b) are given in the following table. The estimates in this table make allowance for expected associated behavioural effects:

	New 1 per cent. starting threshold (£)	New 3 per cent. starting threshold (£)	Cost (£ billion)
Change (a)	150,001	300,001	0.9
Change (b)	200,001	350,001	1.8

Tax Thresholds

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the revenue implications of raising the threshold at which people pay income tax and national insurance to £50,000 in each year from 2008-09 to 2010-11; and if he will make a statement. [131839]

Dawn Primarolo: The cost of increasing the higher rate threshold, upper earnings limit and upper profits limit to £50,000 in 2008-09 to 2010-11 can be found in the following table.

	Cost (£ billion)
	Income tax	National insurance
2008-09	5.3	1.9
2009-10	4.3	1.4
2010-11	3.7	1.2

The estimates are based on the 2004-05 Survey of Personal Incomes projected forward against an indexed baseline which includes the reforms to simplify the income tax and national insurance system announced at Budget 2007.

The figures exclude any estimate of behavioural response to the tax change which could be significant given the scale of the change.

Taxation: Pensions

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the effect on business investment of the abolition of tax credits for pension funds in 1997. [132047]

Ed Balls: The package of business tax reforms announced in the 1997 Budget, including the abolition of payable tax credits, has contributed to a stronger investment climate for UK companies. The investment statistics show this.

In the quarter after the July 1997 Budget, business investment grew by 1¼ per cent. In the quarter after that, it rose by 6.1 per cent., and in the quarter after that, it rose by another 7.1 per cent.

Between the July 1997 Budget and the 1998 Budget, business investment had risen by 16 per cent. This is around three times as fast as it had grown in the run-up to the previous Administration's last Budget in early 1997.

Since 1997, real business investment has risen by 50 per cent.

This year investment growth is forecast to be the fastest in the G7 (according to the OECD).

Whole economy investment has risen in every year since 1997. In the previous 18 years, investment growth was negative over a quarter of this period.

Whistleblowers

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what changes have been made to HM Revenue and Customs' policy on whistleblowing; and if he will place a copy in the Library. [129910]

Dawn Primarolo: The essential difference and change between the policies of the former Inland Revenue and HM Customs and Excise and that of HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) on "Reporting Concerns" ('whistleblowing') is:

a change of emphasis to positively encourage, as well as enable, genuine reporting. Encouragement to raise concerns is clearer and more explicit;

more prominence, better access and an increase in the number (from 13 to 25) of nominated officers, who provide independent advice and guide staff on these issues, and are appointed by the executive chairman; and agreed and clearly stated top management commitment, understanding and support.

The stated purpose of the HMRC policy is to encourage and enable those who work for HMRC who have serious concerns of malpractice, wrongdoing or unethical behaviour at work to raise their concerns within the Department without fear of reprisal.

The HMRC policy and guidance has been placed in the Library of the House.

Working Tax Credit: Castle Point

Bob Spink: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many people are (a) eligible for and (b) claiming working tax credit in Castle Point; [132158]

(2) how many people in Castle Point (a) are eligible for and (b) receive child tax credit. [132244]

Dawn Primarolo: Estimates of child and working tax credit take-up rates for 2004-05 are available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/cwtc-take-up.htm

Take-up rates at United Kingdom level are shown in table 1. Take-up rates for working families with children at country and regional level are shown in table 9. Take-up rate estimates are not available at parliamentary constituency level.

Estimated numbers of families benefiting from tax credits, by constituency, are available only for in-work families. The average number in 2004-05 of such families with positive awards in each constituency, based on final family circumstances and incomes, are published in "Child and Working Tax Credits. Finalised Awards 2004-05 Geographical Analysis". This publication is available on the HMRC website at: http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/cwtc-geog-stats.htm.

Information for 2005-06 awards is due to be published in May 2007.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Big Brother Project

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many unemployed single parents took part in the Big Brother project in each of the last two years for which figures are available, broken down by area. [130001]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Big Brother project is a pilot scheme which is intended to help single parents back to work. The project ran in the Hereford and Worcester Jobcentre Plus district (funded by the European Social Fund) from January 2005 to March 2007; in the South Tyne and Wear Valley and Northumbria districts from November 2006 to March 2007 and has been running in the Manchester East and West district since November 2006 with a projected end date of March 2008.

Information on the number of lone parents who have taken part in the Big Brother project is in the following table.

Big Brother Project starts

District	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07
Hereford and Worcester[1]	11	225	208
Northumbria[2]	—	—	131
South Tyne and Wear[2]	—	—	152
Manchester East and West[3]	—	—	124

Years are financial rather than calendar years.

Council Tax

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the costs of administering council tax benefit were to (a) central government and (b) local government in the last financial year for which figures are available. [130184]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is not available.

Council Tax Benefits: Scotland

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much was paid in each of the last three years to fund council tax benefit in Scotland. [130567]

Mr. Plaskitt: The available information is in the following table.

	CTB subsidy paid to Scottish local authorities (£ million)
2004-05	345
2005-06	354

Notes:
1. Local authorities pay CTB to eligible claimants and central Government funds the payments by way of CTB subsidy paid to the authorities.
2. Benefit which is paid in accordance with CTB rules is subsidised at 100 per cent., but lower rates of subsidy are paid where there has been an overpayment of benefit, caused by, for example, claimant error or fraud.
Source:
Audited subsidy claims submitted to DWP by local authorities.

Social Security Benefits

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate his Department has made of the levels of (a) fraud, (b) customer error and (c) official error in (i) attendance allowance, (ii) carer's allowance, (iii) basic state pension, (iv) bereavement benefit, (v) industrial injuries benefit, (vi) maternity allowance, (vii) severe disablement allowance, (viii) the Social Fund, (ix) widow's benefit, (x) winter fuel payments, (xi) income support, (xii) incapacity benefit, (xiii) disability living allowance, (xiv) jobseeker's allowance, (xv) housing benefit, (xvi) pension credit and (xvii) council tax benefit in each year since 2001 in (A) percentage terms and (B) cash terms; and if he will make a statement. [137960]

Mr. Plaskitt: The Government are committed to reducing fraud and error across the benefits system, and we are succeeding. For example, fraud across the benefits system was down from around £2 billion (2 per cent. of expenditure) in 2001 to an estimated £0.7 billion (0.6 per cent. of expenditure) by 2005-06. And National Statistics estimate that fraud and error loss in income support and jobseeker's allowance are now at their lowest ever—by March 2006, the amount lost had reduced by around half compared to 1997-98.

Estimates of fraud and error in income support, jobseeker's allowance, pension credit and housing benefit can be found in National Statistics reports, and additional tables on the Department's website at:

http://www.dwp.gov.uk/asd/asd2/fraud_error.asp

No estimates are available for attendance allowance, industrial injuries disablement benefit, maternity allowance, winter fuel payments and the social fund.

The available estimates for other benefits are in the tables. These estimates are consistent with the methodology used for those presented for 2003-04 onwards in the Department's resource accounts. For some benefits, estimates before 2003-04 will differ from figures published earlier due to improved assumptions and methodology.

Carer's allowance

	Percentage of overspend	Overpaid (£ million)
Fraud	3.9	40
Customer error	1.0	10
Official error	0.6	10

Notes:
1. Carer's allowance is not reviewed regularly. These estimates are based on the assumption that the percentage of expenditure overpaid has remained constant since it was last reviewed in 1996.
2. Estimates are rounded to the nearest £10 million. The totals may appear different from the sum of the components due to this rounding.

State pension

	Fraud		Customer error		Official error
	Percentage of overspend	Overpaid (£ million)	Percentage of overspend	Overpaid (£ million)	Percentage of overspend	Overpaid (£ million)
2001-02	0.1	30	0.0	0	0.1	40
2002-03	0.1	30	0.0	0	0.0	10
2003-04	0.1	30	0.0	0	0.1	20
2004-05	0.1	30	0.0	0	0.1	30
2005-06	0.0	0	0.1	40	0.1	30

Notes:
1. These estimates are for state pension as a whole. Separate estimates for basic state pension are not available.
2. Fraud and customer error figures up to 2004-05 are based on the assumption that the level of fraud and error in state pension had not changed since it was reviewed in 1995.
3. Fraud and customer error estimates for 2005-06 are taken from the 2005-06 National Benefit Review pilot exercise.
4. All official error estimates are derived from annual measurement of official error for the relevant year.
5. Estimates are rounded to the nearest 0.1 per cent. or £10 million. Figures of 0.0 per cent. or £0 million indicate an estimate of less than 0.05 per cent. or £5 million respectively. The totals may appear different from the sum of the components due to this rounding.

Bereavement benefit and widow's benefits

	Official error
	Percentage of overspend	Overpaid (£ million)
2001-02	0.7	8
2002-03	0.3	3
2003-04	0.2	2
2004-05	0.0	<1
2005-06	1.1	10

Notes:
1. For bereavement benefits and widow's benefits, only official error has been measured.
2. The estimates are based on very small samples. The results for BB and WB cannot be separated, and are subject to a large degree of statistical uncertainty.

Severe disablement allowance

	Official error
	Percentage of overspend	Overpaid (£ million)
2001-02	1.1	11
2002-03	0.4	4
2003-04	0.2	2
2004-05	0.5	5

Note:
For severe disablement allowance, only official error has been measured, and only from 2001-02 to 2004-05.

Incapacity benefit

It is important to note that changes were made to the identification of error in 2004-05. This led to the inclusion of types of official error, valued at an estimated £20 million, which were not previously captured by the sampling.

	Fraud		Customer error		Official error
	Percentage of overspend	Overpaid (£ million)	Percentage of overspend	Overpaid (£ million)	Percentage of overspend	Overpaid (£ million)
2001-02	0.1	10	0.2	20	0.5	30
2002-03	0.1	10	0.2	20	0.6	40
2003-04	0.1	10	0.2	20	0.8	50
2004-05	0.1	10	0.2	20	1.5	100
2005-06	0.1	10	0.2	20	1.3	90

Notes:
1. Fraud and error in incapacity benefit is not measured every year. The last full review was in 2000-01. As there has been no measurement in other years, it is assumed that the percentage level of fraud and customer error have remained constant. All of the fraud and customer error estimates are calculated by applying the percentage overpaid in 2000-01 to the annual expenditure on incapacity benefit.
2. Official error in incapacity benefit has been measured in every year since 2000-01.
3. The official error estimates for 2004-05 and 2005-06 differ from those published in the relevant departmental resource accounts, as up-to-date estimates were not available at the time.
4. As the measurement system is based on the examination of a sample of the incapacity benefit case load, the estimates are subject to a degree of statistical uncertainty. For example, the central estimate of official error in 2005-06 is £90 million, but the range in which we can be 95 per cent. sure that the true value lies runs from £70 million to £120 million.

Disability living allowance

	Fraud		Customer error		Official error
	Percentage of overspend	Overpaid (£ million)	Percentage of overspend	Overpaid (£ million)	Percentage of overspend	Overpaid (£ million)
2001-02	0.5	30	0.6	40	0.7	50
2002-03	0.5	30	0.6	40	0.7	50
2003-04	0.5	40	0.6	50	0.7	60
2004-05	0.5	40	0.6	50	0.7	60
2005-06	0.5	40	0.6	50	0.7	60

Notes:
1. DLA was last reviewed in 2005. Estimates for 2003-04 onwards, as presented in the Department's resource accounts are based on the assumption that the proportion of expenditure overpaid has not changed.
2. The 2004-05 DLA National Benefit Review identified cases where the change in customer's needs has been so gradual that it would be unreasonable to expect them to know at which point their entitlement to DLA might have changed. These cases do not result in a recoverable overpayment as we cannot quantify or define when the customer's change occurred. Because legislation requires the Secretary of State to prove that entitlement to DLA is incorrect, rather than requiring the customer to inform us that their needs have changed, cases in this subcategory are legally correct. The difference between what claimants in these cases are receiving in DLA and what they would receive if their benefit was reassessed is estimated to be around £600 million a year.
3. Estimates are rounded to the nearest 0.1 per cent. or £10 million. The totals may appear different from the sum of the components due to this rounding.

Council tax benefit

	Fraud		Customer error		Official error
	Percentage of overspend	Overpaid (£ million)	Percentage of overspend	Overpaid (£ million)	Percentage of overspend	Overpaid (£ million)
2002-03	1.9	50	1.9	50	1.1	30
2003-04	1.4	40	2.3	70	1.2	40
2004-05	1.3	50	2.7	100	1.0	40
2005-06	1.0	40	3.1	120	1.3	50

Note:
Fraud and error in council tax benefit is not directly measured. As council tax benefit is similar to housing benefit in both regulations and administration, it is assumed that the proportion of expenditure overpaid is the same as for housing benefit.

Social Security Benefits: Acton and Harrow

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many staff from the Acton and Harrow transitional offices in (a) clerical and (b) executive grades will be unable to move to benefit delivery centres due to living outside the daily travelling distance; and what measures have been put in place to minimise the resultant skills gap. [131210]

Mrs. McGuire: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide my hon. Friend with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie, dated 18 April 2007:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking how many staff from the Acton and Harrow transitional offices will be unable to move to Benefit Delivery Centres due to living outside the daily travelling distance, and what measures have been put in place to minimise the resultant skills gap. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

There are 25 clerical staff (14 from Acton and 11 from Harrow) and 8 executive grade staff (4 from Acton and 4 from Harrow) who are unable to be redeployed to a Benefit Delivery Centre. Our aim is to redeploy all these staff within Jobcentre Plus, the Department for Work and Pensions or another Government Department. We are currently working with those affected to find suitable redeployment opportunities.

The Benefit Delivery Centres are manned by experienced staff from across London. These staff have become available as local benefit processing sites have been closed as part of the Jobcentre Plus roll-out process. In addition the movement of work takes into account any training needs these staff may have, to enable us to have training in place to support the migration.

I hope this is helpful.

Social Security Benefits: Fraud

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will estimate the number of fraudulent applications for benefits in each of the last four years; and if he will make a statement. [132089]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is not available.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Compensation

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what measures her Department is taking to discourage the compensation culture and promote sensible risk management. [130819]

Mr. Woolas: This Department is represented on the cross-government Ministerial Steering group which is promoting sensible risk management as part of its work on tackling perceptions of a compensation culture. Officials are working with colleagues from the Department for Constitutional Affairs, Local Government Employers, and the Health and Safety Executive, on a workshop "Risk and Redress—The way Forward for Local Government", which will look at approaches to managing risk sensibly. The workshop will involve local government stakeholders.

In addition the Department is taking a number of specific steps to promote good risk management. The Department will shortly bring forward revised guidance under the How To programme, which aims to raise the quality of town centres, residential areas, and parks and green spaces by encouraging and supporting a climate of good practice. The new guidance will provide advice on how local managers of the public realm, and parks in particular, should assess and manage risk and the perception of risk.

The Department has also tasked the Commission for Architecture and the Built Environment (CABE) with undertaking research and producing good practice guidance on how risk affects the design and management of the public realm. This work will be disseminated in partnership with other relevant organisations later this year.

Councillors: Conflict of Interests

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether restrictions may be imposed upon local councillors to prevent them taking part in public debate on land sale decisions by local authorities. [130212]

Mr. Woolas: There is no legislation preventing local councillors from discussing issues of concern with their constituents or other members of the public. However, in any such discussion about matters such as a land sale, councillors, if they are to be involved in the final decision, must avoid giving the impression of having a predetermined view, or otherwise risk that decision being challenged in the courts. It is a matter for each member to ensure that, in the circumstances of particular cases, such an impression is not given. Members may wish to seek advice on their position from their authority's monitoring officer. The Local Government Association has published guidance on avoiding predetermination in "Probity in Planning: The role of councillors and Officers".

Departmental Travel

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answers of 4 December 2006, Official Report, column 172W, and 19 January 2007, Official Report, column 1352W, on departmental travel, what the costs were of the staff trips to (a) the Far East and (b) North America. [129431]

Ruth Kelly: The cost of staff trips to the Far East and North America during this period were £23,664 and £43,544 respectively.

Home Information Packs

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 19 January 2007, Official Report, column 1353W, on Home Information Packs, what the timetable is for producing the new estimated costs in the revised regulatory impact assessment. [129458]

Ruth Kelly: A regulatory impact assessment was published alongside the Home Information Pack regulations, which were laid before Parliament on 29 March 2007.

Housing: Castle Point

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many (a) individuals and (b) families were in housing need in Castle Point in each of the last 10 years. [132246]

Mr. Woolas: The Department does not make estimates of housing need as any such estimates would be unlikely to adequately reflect the diversity of needs and priorities at the local level. Instead local authorities are required to assess housing need assessments as part of their Strategic Local Housing Market Assessments.

The Department has a variety of strategies for addressing housing need, including concentrating efforts and resources on homelessness prevention activities, increasing investment in the provision of new social housing and improving the stock of existing social housing through the Decent Homes programme.

Housing: Flood Control

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the acreage of land prone to flooding which will be developed with housing during the next five years. [132366]

Yvette Cooper: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer given on 27 March 2007, Official Report, column 1419W.

Housing: Sustainable Development

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what effect her Department expects the Code for Sustainable Homes to have on environmental performance. [132374]

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what effect her Department expects the Code for Sustainable Housing to have on environmental performance. [132354]

Angela E. Smith: The Code for Sustainable Homes (the Code) came into effect in the beginning of April 2007 as a voluntary assessment and rating system. All homes built with Housing Corporation and Communities and Local Government housing growth programme funding, and all housing developed by English Partnerships will be built to Code Level 3 from April 2008. These new homes will be 25 per cent. more energy efficient than current Building Regulations, use less water than the average home and have an improved environmental performance overall. In the longer term it is expected that the Code will drive up environmental performance of new homes.

IPPR

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what funding the Commission for Racial Equality provided to (a) the IPPR and (b) IPPR Trading Ltd in each year since May 1997; and for what purpose. [125716]

Ruth Kelly: The Commission for Racial Equality (CRE) has provided funding as follows:

Body	Year	Amount (£)	Purpose
IPPR	2002-03	6,525	Donation in support of a Delivering Race Equality in the Public Sector event; and for a Race and Governance Project (to cover extra administrative support to organise the event, catering and publication).
IPPR	2003-04	5,875	Sponsorship of an IPPR fringe event at the 2003 Labour Party conference, which covered a lunch time public debate.
IPPR Trading Ltd	2006-07	28,350	Research and policy work on new migration and conflict resolution.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what funding her Department, and its predecessor, provided to (a) the IPPR and (b) IPPR Trading Ltd in each year since 2002; and for what purpose. [125717]

Ruth Kelly: The following table sets out the expenditure incurred by the Department and, prior to May 2006, the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister, on the procurement of goods and services from the IPPR and IPPR Trading Ltd in each year since 2002.

Financial year	IPPR (£)	IPPR Trading Ltd (£)	Service
2002-03	0	0	—
2003-04	74,385	0	Policy and research work for the Social Exclusion Unit
2004-05	18,148	0	Policy and research work for the Social Exclusion Unit
2005-06	27,917	19,153	Policy and research work for the National Community Forum on community participation
2006-07 (to date)	44,806	4,935	Policy and research work for the National Community Forum on community participation and cities
Total	165,256	24,088

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what funding the Housing Corporation has provided to (a) the IPPR and (b) IPPR Trading Ltd in each year since May 1997; and for what purpose. [125736]

Ruth Kelly: The Housing Corporation is a non-departmental public body funded by Communities and Local Government. Through its innovation and good practice grants programme, which aims to facilitate the development of innovative approaches and promote good practice in the housing sector, the Corporation has provided the following grant to IPPR Trading Ltd. (Institute for Public Policy Research Trading Ltd.). All payments were given as grants and are VAT inclusive.

31 May 1999 to 31 May 2000	Holding Policy Forums, Interim	10,000
1 June 2000 to 31 May 2001	Holding Policy Forums, Final	10,000
31 May 2002 to 31 May 2003	"A New Regional Policy for the UK", Interim	10,000
	"Not for Profit Public/Private Partnership"	40,000
1 June 2003 to 31 May 2004	"Home Ownership Task Force Report", Final	11,500
	"A New Regional Policy for the UK"	10,000
31 May 2005 to 31 May 2006	"HA tenants attitude to tenure", Interim	5,875
1 June 2006 to 31 May 2007 (to date)	"HA tenants attitude to tenure", Final	5,875

The Housing Corporation has not provided any funding to IPPR.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what funding English Partnerships has provided to (a) the IPPR and (b) IPPR Trading Ltd in each year since May 1997; and for what purpose. [125738]

Ruth Kelly: English Partnerships is a non-departmental public body funded by Communities and Local Government.

English Partnerships has made the following payments to the Institute for Public Policy Research:

May 2005—£20,000 for research into sustainable communities growth areas;

December 2006—£6,500 for mixed income communities project;

January 2007—£6,000 for mixed income communities project (second instalment).

No payments have been made to IPPR Trading Ltd.

Local Government: Reform

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on what basis she took the decision to implement no more than eight proposals for local government restructuring; and what (a) research and (b) consultation her Department undertook in relation to that decision. [129759]

Ruth Kelly: A decision has not been taken to implement no more than eight proposals for local government restructuring. We are now consulting on the proposals which in our judgment deliver the outcomes specified in our "Invitation to Councils". We will take final decisions following consultation. Proposals will proceed to implementation if, and only if, when we take our final decisions, we remain satisfied that they meet the criteria, and that the overall use of reserves is affordable, having regard to the prevailing fiscal position and risk around the costs of implementation.

Non-Domestic Rates

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the presence of (a) solar panels and (b) small-scale wind turbines is taken into account by the Valuation Office Agency when assessing the rateable value of a business premises for business rates purposes. [129202]

Mr. Woolas: Both solar panels and wind turbines (of whatever size) are named items in Table 1 to Class 1 of the Schedule to the Valuation for Rating (Plant and Machinery) (England) Regulations 2000 [SI 2000 No. 540]. As such the Valuation Office Agency is required to take the presence of such plant into account when assessing the rateable value of business premises. The question as to whether the presence of such plant is likely to have a significant impact, or any effect at all, upon the rateable value of a particular property is a valuation matter which will depend upon the facts in each case.

Unitary Councils

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the cost of the establishment of unitary authorities were all 16 bids to be approved. [131165]

Mr. Woolas: The 16 unitary proposals, now subject to consultation, cover 13 areas, for three of which there are two alternative proposals. Each proposal contains a detailed financial analysis of costs and savings which show that if unitary structures were implemented in all 13 areas the costs would range from some £190 million to £200 million depending on the alternative chosen.

Valuation Office

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans the Valuation Office Agency has to amend the type or number of (a) dwelling house and (b) value significant codes. [128544]

Mr. Woolas: None.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Bailiffs: Certification

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what guidance she has issued on the disclosure by local authorities of the terms of contracts with bailiffs for the enforcement of debt and collection of arrears under the provisions of the Freedom of Information Act 2000 relating to (a) greater transparency and (b) specific requests. [130860]

Vera Baird: My Department has not issued any guidance to local authorities on this issue.

Census: Freedom of Information

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many applications for Freedom of Information Act access to extracts from the 1911 Census were received by the National Archives (a) between 1 January 2005 and 31 December 2006 and (b) between 1 January and 31 March 2007; and how many of those applications were successful in each period. [131973]

Vera Baird: The National Archives received 264 requests for information from the 1911 census under the Freedom of Information Act between 1 January 2005 and 31 December 2006, none of which were successful and 456 requests for information from the 1911 census under the Freedom of Information Act between 1 January 2007 and 31 March 2007 of which 424 have been successful.

Employment Tribunals Service

Philip Davies: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what assessment she has made of the compatibility with the European Convention on Human Rights of the practice of employment tribunals in discrimination cases of placing the burden of proof on employers to prove there has been no breach of the principle of equal treatment. [125887]

Vera Baird: The UK introduced provisions to reverse the burden of proof in domestic discrimination cases (where a prima facie case has been established) to implement its obligations under the Burden of Proof Directive (97/80/EC), as extended to the UK by Directive (98/52/EC), the Race Directive (2000/43/EC) and the Framework Directive (2000/78/EC). These provisions apply only when a claimant has proved, at a hearing, facts from which the tribunal or court could conclude that an act of discrimination had taken place. In such circumstances, the respondent is required to prove that he did not commit an unlawful act.

The UK implemented the above provisions with respect to sex discrimination cases by way of the Sex Discrimination (Indirect Discrimination and Burden of Proof) Regulations 2001 SI 2001/2660. The provisions with respect to Race Discrimination were implemented by means of the Race Relations Act 1976 (Amendment) Regulations 2003 SI 2003/1626 (regs. 41 and 43).

The Government informed Parliament at the time that each set of regulations was compatible with the European Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms as incorporated in the Human Rights Act 1998.

Freedom of Information

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs pursuant to the answer of 12 March 2007, Official Report, columns 113-14W, on freedom of information, if she will publish in full all responses to the consultation on the draft Freedom of Information and Data Protection (Appropriate Limit and Fees) Regulations 2007; and when her Department expects to make public the responses to the consultation. [130843]

Vera Baird: On 29 March 2007 my Department issued a supplementary paper to the consultation on draft Freedom of Information and Data Protection (Appropriate Limit and Fees) Regulations 2007. Responses to the supplementary paper and any further comments on the draft regulations contained in the consultation paper are invited by 21 June 2007. We will publish the responses to both papers within three months of this date.

Legal Aid Scheme

Anne Milton: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many people had charges levied by the Legal Services Commission on their property in respect of legal aid they had received in each year since 2001; and how frequently such people were sent statements of the initial value of the charge and the interest accrued. [131992]

Vera Baird: The number of new registrations of land charges securing civil debts recorded by the Legal Services Commission since 2001 are:

	Number
2001-02	6,833
2002-03	5,846
2003-04	4,649
2004-05	4,943
2005-06	5,004
2006-07	3,989

Owing to changes to the system for managing the production of statutory charge statements, the Commission is unable to provide information on their frequency pre-2003. From September 2004, the Commission has, where possible, sent clients an automated statement annually.

In line with the LSC's corporate target for 2006-07, by 31 March 2007 all customers that had an LSC registered charge against their property had been sent a statement informing them of their liability.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Departments: Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what measures are in place to limit the amount of money spent on alcohol for hospitality purposes by her Department. [132206]

Mr. Lammy: In the Department for Culture, Media and Sport the Gifts and Hospitality Guidance stipulates that any claims for alcoholic beverages with lunch/dinner must be limited to a half a bottle of wine per person. Claims for alcoholic drinks at any other time must have the Group Director's approval. The monetary value of the overall lunch/dinner is subject to a limit of £30 per head.

Gambling: Advertising

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much her Department has allocated to spending on advertising the dangers of problem gambling ahead of the implementation of the Gambling Act 2005. [131974]

Mr. Caborn: The Responsibility in Gambling Trust is currently developing a strategy for a national public awareness campaign to include signposting to help and information on responsible gambling.

The Trust has already funded an awareness campaign aimed at young people. The campaign is currently being rolled out to schools and youth clubs through children's charity Tacade.

Gambling: Orders and Regulations

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will list the Orders under the Gambling Act 2005 that have yet to be laid before Parliament; and what her Department's planned timetable is for doing so. [132229]

Mr. Caborn: The following table sets out which subordinate legislation making powers the Department currently expects to be exercised under the Gambling Act 2005, and the provisional dates by which relevant Statutory Instruments are currently expected to be laid.

27	Sections 358(4) to (6)	Transitional provisions for the Tote and Levy	[1]

[1] Date to be decided.

Gaming Machines: Regulation

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what her Department's most recent estimate is of the costs to industry of complying with the gaming machine regulations to be made in accordance with sections 240 and 241 of the Gambling Act 2005 and the new machine technical standards; [132217]

(2) what representations her Department has received from industry regarding the lead times necessary to convert existing machines and to build new machines to comply with the new technical standards required under the Gambling Act 2005 and the new gaming machine regulations to achieve the planned implementation date of 1 September; and if she will make a statement. [132230]

Mr. Caborn: The Department is consulting industry and other groups on proposals under sections 240 and 241 of the Gambling Act 2005, including on potential compliance costs and lead times, and within the context of the licensing objectives to keep gambling crime free, to make sure that gambling is fair and open and to protect children and vulnerable adults from harm. In the course of doing so the Department has received written representations from a number of organisations.

The proposals have been drafted to ensure that the vast majority of gaming machines as defined by Part III of the Gaming Act 1968 will comply with the regulations at minimum cost.

The Gambling Commission is responsible for setting gaming machine technical standards and is currently engaged in a similar consultation process with the industry.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when she expects to lay before Parliament the statutory instrument implementing the gaming machine regulations to be made under sections 240 and 241 of the Gambling Act 2005. [132228]

Mr. Caborn: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State is currently consulting with industry and other groups on draft proposals under sections 240 and 241 of the Gambling Act 2005 and currently expects to lay the relevant statutory instruments in August 2007.

Sports: EC Countries

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will make a statement on the progress of the European Sports Review. [132613]

Mr. Caborn: The Independent European Sport Review was instigated under the UK Presidency following the expression of concerns about the state of football by both UEFA and FIFA. The Review, conducted by an independent review team, undertook an examination of the challenges to the future stability and success of the game posed by commercialisation and the place of sport within the wider EU legal framework. Its publication in final form in October has triggered a wide-ranging debate both within sport and at EU level.

The Review contains recommendations aimed at football's governing bodies, the European Commission and member states. Sport is autonomous and much of the responsibility for taking forward the issues raised lies with sport itself. It is for football to agree what it wants to achieve, develop more detailed proposals and engage with the political authorities. My Department has been encouraging this process and there is a well developed debate taking place among the numerous clubs, leagues and governing bodies across Europe.

UEFA has made good progress and already implemented a range of the Review's recommendations aimed at it. These include putting in place a new Strategic Council to involve clubs, leagues and players in top-level decision-making, a range of enhancements to its Club Licensing system, the launch of a feasibility study into a European Supporters Direct, based on the highly successful UK model, and enhancement of anti-racism disciplinary measures.

The key issue the Review raises for the Commission and member states is how the 2000 Nice Declaration can be effectively implemented to ensure the special nature of Sport is recognised in policy-making and in the application of EU rules. Doing so will help overcome the current uncertainty facing those involved in the game and help enable them to find the right balance between its commercial and sporting sides.

The UK has been working closely with the Commission and other member states to take this forward. The Commission will publish a White Paper on Sport this summer that will address this issue and respond to the Review's recommendations aimed at it. I would like to see this set out clearly how the Commission plans to "sports-proof" its decision-making and thus fulfil the commitments made in the Nice Declaration. I strongly welcome indications that it will also recommend the development of an ongoing structured dialogue between sport and the EU aimed at finding a way forward on the kind of issues raised by the Review.

There is widespread support across Europe to help sport tackle the challenges facing it. The European Parliament issued a Report on the future of Professional Sport on 28 March (the Belet Report) which welcomes the Review and asks the Commission to establish an action plan based upon its recommendations. The Council of Europe has, at the UK's instigation, agreed to consider the issues raised by the Review as part of its new Enlarged Partial Agreement on Sport.

The Review is one of a number of recent initiatives that have acted as a catalyst to the wider debate that has been going on in football, and other sports, about where the right balance between its commercial and sporting sides lies and how it can best secure its future stability and success within the wider EU framework. I look forward to the Commission's White Paper as the next key milestone in taking forward the debate on how the political level can help football, and sport more widely, to achieve this within the wider EU framework.

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what representations she has received from (a) the Premier League and (b) individual Premier League clubs on the European Sports Review. [132614]

Mr. Caborn: Regular discussions have taken place around the issues raised by the Independent European Sports Review with a wide range of professional sports stakeholders. The review covers a substantial number of subject areas that have long been of interest to professional sports and therefore regularly forms part of the backdrop to discussions and correspondence on a variety of issues.

There has been an ongoing dialogue with the Premier League since the review's publication. The Premier League, along with other stakeholders, were invited to set out their thoughts on the review in writing following its publication and took this opportunity to present a written submission to me. I have subsequently met the chief executive and chairman of the League on a number of occasions and recently attended a meeting of Premier League chairs, at which individual clubs had the opportunity to put forward their views and engage in the debate.

Following an earlier invitation to all Premier League clubs to do so, Sheffield United, Wigan, Charlton and Everton have all written to me setting out their thoughts on the review.

Television: Telephone Services

Mr. Mark Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what measures her Department plans to take to ensure transparency in the conduct of those television operators employing telephone voting in their programme; and if she will assess the merits of introducing a code of conduct for such operators. [131822]

Mr. Woodward: Responsibility for regulation rests with the independent regulators, Ofcom and ICSTIS. Following a consultation with broadcasters ICSTIS has set out a range of actions to restore public trust. This includes introducing a licensing regime for all premium rate service providers, operating participation TV services. Ofcom has also recently announced an inquiry into the compliance of broadcasters.

Written Questions

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when she will reply to question numbers 129383 and 129384, on expenditure on the 2012 Olympics, tabled by the hon. Member for Faversham and Mid Kent on 20 March. [132657]

Tessa Jowell: I can confirm that the questions referred to were answered on 18 April.

DEFENCE

Armed Forces: Council Tax

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on progress on discussions between his Department and the Department for Communities and Local Government on council tax exemption for members of the armed forces serving overseas. [132443]

Derek Twigg: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave on 16 April 2007, Official Report, column 130W, to the hon. Member for Forest of Dean (Mr. Harper).

Armed Forces: Deployment

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether current (a) commitments and (b) planning assumptions include capacity for urgent operations in (i) the UK and (ii) overseas. [131092]

Des Browne: The Joint Rapid Reaction Force comprises force elements available at very short notice for rapid commitment to overseas operations.

The MOD also maintains the ability to support the Home Office and the police, who have the lead responsibility for security in the UK through the provision of air defence and other specialist capabilities, such as explosive ordnance disposal.

Armed Forces: Housing

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how frequently the quality of single living accommodation is reviewed for the purposes of assessing grade for charge; how this process is performed; and if he will make a statement. [128187]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 19 March 2007]: The assessment of all Defence accommodation is undertaken by grading boards consisting of a mixture of service officers and technical experts. The process of grading involves assigning deficiency points against a predefined checklist of assessment criteria. The number of deficiency points awarded, if any, then determines the grade for charge, on a scale of one to four, and hence the level of accommodation charge. Normally accommodation is graded on a four year rolling programme. A grading board may also convene on completion of a refurbishment or if the grade for charge is challenged by the occupant shortly after move in.

Armed Forces: South Africa

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether he plans to take steps to enable South Africans serving in the British armed forces to be offered British citizenship. [131703]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 16 April 2007]: We are currently looking at a range of options for personnel should the South African Prohibition of Mercenary Activities and Prohibition and Regulation of Certain Activities in Areas of Armed Conflict Bill be enacted so that we can support those who may be affected.

Under current rules eligible South Africans serving in the British armed forces can apply for British citizenship if they have been resident in the UK for a five year period, or three years if married or in a civil partnership to a British citizen. Service in the armed forces, at home and abroad, counts towards the residential qualifying period.

Active engagement with the South African Department of Defence is on-going and we hope to secure a date for the officials' visit at the earliest opportunity.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the impact of the South African Prohibition of Mercenary Activities and Prohibition and Regulation of Certain Activities in Areas of Armed Conflict Bill on the ability of South African personnel (a) to serve in and (b) to deploy with the British armed forces. [131712]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 16 April 2007]: The proposed Bill, if enacted as currently drafted, would mean that South African personnel would need to apply for permission to serve in a foreign armed force, but that such permission would lapse if the person to whom it has been granted takes part in an armed conflict.

We are urgently investigating the potential consequences for South African personnel currently serving in the UK armed forces, should the legislation be enacted, so that we can support those who may be affected.

Bombs

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the failed destruct rate is of smart cluster bombs; and if he will make a statement. [131398]

Mr. Ingram: There have been a number of trials of the 155mm L20A1 extended range bomblet shell, which contains M85 bomblets. When the totality of test and acceptance firings is analysed over the life of the munition, the average bomblet failure rate is approximately 2 per cent. As part of its ongoing quality and performance regime the MOD continues to actively monitor the performance of this system and explore ways of reducing the failure rate still further in partnership with the supplier.

Iraq: Detainees

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether it is still official practice to hood and handcuff Iraqi prisoners and to make them adopt the stress position; and if he will make a statement. [132414]

Des Browne: UK forces are expressly forbidden from hooding any prisoners or making them adopt stress positions under any circumstances. During the transit of prisoners, however, the use of blindfolding (usually with blacked out goggles) is permitted when necessary to prevent compromise of operational security or the safety of detainees through identification by other detainees. Handcuffing of prisoners is permitted when necessary to prevent escape and for the protection of UK troops and/or other detainees.

Iraq: Peace Keeping Operations

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many members of the Territorial Army (a) were killed and (b) were injured in action in (i) Iraq and (ii) Afghanistan in each of the last five years. [131633]

Derek Twigg: The number of Territorial Army personnel killed and wounded in action (WIA)[1] in Iraq and Afghanistan in each of the last five years is as follow:

[1] Prior to 2005 the WIA statistics may not contain all instances of the lowest severity (unlisted) classification of injury.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Adult Education: Basic Skills

Mr. Blunkett: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many adults in each (a) parliamentary constituency and (b) Learning and Skills Council area have gained basic skills as a result of the Skills for Life programme. [131157]

Phil Hope: The following table shows the total number of adults (aged 19 and above) achieving at least one Skills for Life/basic skills learning aim in the period August 2005 to July 2006 by Local Learning and Skills Council (LSC) area. (It is important to note that many learners achieve more than one SFL aim and these data are not discounted for repeat learners.) These data are not currently available by parliamentary constituency.

Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the budget for the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service is for each of the next three years; and what it was for each of the last three years. [132119]

Mr. Dhanda: At a time of budget restrictions the Government have maintained the budget for the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service (CAFCASS) and it was increased to £106,698,000 (net of receipts) in 2007-08. The CAFCASS budget for future years has not yet been finalised. The resource budgets in previous years are as follows:

2006-07	106,003,000
2005-06	[1]107,000,000
2004-05	[1]107,000,000

[1] Includes the budget for CAFCASS Cymru

These are the latest agreed budgets for each year and some include increases for specific activity in that year.

Classroom Assistants: Qualifications

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the minimum qualification requirements are for learning support assistants. [132579]

Jim Knight: There are no general minimum qualification requirements for learning support/ teaching assistants in schools. It is for schools to determine the suitability of individual candidates for posts. However, there are a range of qualifications and professional standards that support staff can undertake to develop their depth of skills and abilities. These range from bespoke Vocational Qualifications (VQ) such as the Support Work in Schools VQ, through to Level 2 and 3 National Vocational Qualifications and the professional standards for Higher Level Teaching Assistants.

Education: Assessments

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how much was spent by the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority on the key stage 3 and 4 review supplement in The Guardian newspaper on 3 April; [132232]

(2) which employees within the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority contributed to the key stage 3 and 4 review supplement in The Guardian newspaper on 3 April; [132233]

(3) if he will place in the Library a copy of the brief the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority agreed with Guardian Professional in relation to the key stage 3 and 4 review supplement in The Guardian newspaper on 3 April. [132234]

Jim Knight: The Qualifications and Curriculum Authority spent £66,975 (including VAT) on The Guardian, 'Freedom to Learn' supplement on 3 April. The sponsored supplement package included the hardcopy format (editorial, design and print) and an online version, with web chat facilities. Part of QCA's role is to communicate curriculum changes effectively to teachers, head teachers, and the wider subject community.

Those from the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority who contributed to the supplement were the Director of Curriculum, the Head of Curriculum Development, members of the Curriculum Development Team and members of the Communications and Marketing Division.

A copy of the brief agreed with Guardian Professional for the 3 April is to be placed in the House Library.

Education: Sight Impaired

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what strategies are in place to increase the availability of approved educational materials that are accessible for the visually impaired; [131994]

(2) what assistance his Department (a) provides and (b) plans to provide to increase the availability of educational materials to the visually impaired; [131995]

(3) what funding his Department provides for educational resources that are accessible to visually impaired schoolchildren; [131996]

(4) what discussions he has had with educational publishers on increasing the availability of educational materials available in formats more accessible by those with disabilities. [131997]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department's SEN Strategy "Removing Barriers to Achievement" sets out our vision for giving children with special educational needs (SEN) and disabilities the opportunity to succeed. Provision for children with SEN and disabilities, including support for those with a visual impairment is made by schools and local authorities through the SEN and disability frameworks.

In particular Part 4 of the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 requires schools and local authorities to plan to improve access to the curriculum and written materials for disabled pupils over time. Additionally the new Disability Equality Duty introduced by the Disability Discrimination Act 2005 requires all public bodies including schools and local authorities to promote disability equality more widely. We also continue to invest significant resources to support the education of children with SEN and disabilities, some £4.5 billion in 2006/07.

To assist the provision of materials in accessible alternative formats for children with a visual impairment, the Government supported the Copyright (Visually Impaired Persons) Act 2002 which reduces delays in gaining copyright clearance to produce books and other printed materials in formats accessible to visually impaired people. The Department of Trade and Industry is also working on a feasibility study to look at opportunities for publishers to provide education material in accessible formats more quickly and the Department for Education and Skills is involved in the process.

Foster Care: Vetting

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what Criminal Records Bureau checks take place before someone can qualify as a foster parent; and what criteria are used to determine a person's suitability for fostering following such checks. [131998]

Mr. Dhanda: The approvals process for prospective foster carers is set out in the Fostering Services Regulations 2002. Paragraph 13 of schedule 3 of the regulations requires that, before any person can be approved as a foster parent, an enhanced disclosure check must be obtained. Adult members of the prospective foster carer's household are subject to a standard disclosure check.

In assessing any person whom it considers may be suitable to become a foster carer, the fostering service provider is required to obtain the range of information prescribed in schedule 3 of the regulations as well as any other information it considers appropriate. On the basis of this information, the fostering service provider is required to prepare a written report which is referred to the fostering panel for consideration; the fostering panel then makes its own recommendation about the individual's suitability to foster. The final decision is made, taking into account this recommendation, by the fostering service provider. Subject to paragraph 27(6), a person would automatically be considered unsuitable to become a foster carer if he/she, or any other adult member of the household, had committed a specified offence under the terms of the regulations. If this is not the case, the decision as to whether or not to approve an individual as a foster carer is made by the fostering service provider in line with the process outlined above.

Further Education: Standards

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many times the power to intervene in further education colleges under section 57 of the Further and Higher Education Act 1992 was exercised in each year since 1997; and what the circumstances were of each intervention. [133089]

Bill Rammell: The Department's records indicate that the powers under section 57 of the Further and Higher Education Act 1992 have never been used except where, following the resignation of the governing body, the Secretary of State has been required to appoint new governors. We consider that the existence of these powers does contribute to better outcomes in resolving cases where institutions get into difficulties.

We expect these powers to be used only in exceptional circumstances—where all other options have failed. We believe that having the power available and the possibility of it being exercised, has been the trigger in some cases for governing bodies to act themselves.

Geography: Curriculum

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills where in the revised geography programme of study produced by the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority as part of the secondary curriculum review he expects pupils to learn about (a) tectonic processes, (b) geomorphological processes, (c) weather and climate, (d) ecosystems, (e) population distribution and change and (f) the growth and development of settlements. [132175]

Jim Knight: The proposed key stage 3 programme of study for geography requires that pupils develop an understanding of the physical and human characteristics of real places, and how physical and human processes shape places, landscapes and societies. They are also required to study people-environment interactions and their consequences.

These requirements give the opportunity to cover all the topics identified in the question for instance, tectonic and geomorphological processes are physical processes; ecosystems are studied by learning about specific places; and population distribution and change, and the growth and development of settlements are influenced by the interaction between human and physical geography. The supporting text to the programme of study emphasises that weather and climate should be included in physical geography.

Teachers will use the national curriculum planning guidance to ensure appropriate coverage of these topics, while taking full advantage of the flexibility offered by the new programme of study.

Higher Education: Applications

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many applications were received by universities for each discipline in the last 12 months, broken down by (a) gender, (b) ethnicity and (c) age group. [132156]

Bill Rammell: Information showing the final numbers of applicants who applied for entry in autumn 2006 are shown in the tables. The figures are taken from data collected by the Universities and Colleges Admissions Service (UCAS) which are limited to students who apply to full-time undergraduate courses via the UCAS application system. The figures do not therefore cover part-time students, nor those full-time students who apply directly to Higher Education Institutions. Comparable data for students applying for autumn 2007 entry will not be available until January 2008, but early figures published by UCAS show that, by January 15, applicants from England had risen by 7.1 per cent. to 291,000, which is the highest ever number of applicants at this point in the application cycle.

Qualifications and Curriculum Authority: Overseas Visits

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many overseas visits have been made by each member of the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA) executive in the past 12 months; and how many of these were funded by (a) the QCA and (b) an overseas organisation. [131236]

Jim Knight: The executive members of the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA) who have made overseas visits in the last 12 months are the chief executive (one), director of curriculum (four) and director of regulation and standards (four). None of the visits were funded by the QCA. Five of the visits were funded by overseas organisations.

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many visits the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA) received from representatives of overseas curriculum setting bodies in the last 12 months; and how many were funded by (a) the QCA and (b) an overseas organisation. [131237]

Jim Knight: The Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA) received 69 visits from representatives of overseas organisations in the last 12 months, including many with an interest in curriculum issues. None of these visits were funded by QCA.

Refuges: Pilot Schemes

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will place in the Library a copy of the evaluation of community-based flexible refuge pilots commissioned by his Department. [132643]

Mr. Dhanda: The Barnardo's report on the six community-based refuge pilots, and a separate "Lessons Learned" summary, are currently in draft form. Officials are working closely with Barnardo's to revise and finalise these, to extract the maximum learning from the pilots. Copies of the final versions will be placed in the Library.

School Day: Lancashire

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many schools in (a) Lancashire and (b) Ribble Valley offer extended hours; and if he will make a statement. [130739]

Jim Knight: There are 43 primary schools, 11 secondary schools and two special schools in Lancashire providing access to the extended schools full core offer of services, one of which, Harris Primary School, is located in the Ribble Valley. The core offer includes primary schools providing access to child care from 8 am-6 pm all year round in response to demand, all schools offering access to a range of activities beyond the school day, parenting support, swift and easy referral and opening up facilities to the wider community.

A number of schools in Lancashire are offering the extended hours elements of the core offer as shown in the following table:

Phase	Number of schools delivering the child care element	Number of schools delivering the menu of activities element
Primary	120	212
Secondary	—	48
Special	2	9
Total	122	269

The following table shows a breakdown of schools by type in the Ribble Valley offering the extended hours elements of the core offer:

Phase	Number of schools delivering the child care element	Number of schools delivering the menu of activities element
Primary	13	10
Secondary	—	6
Special	—	—
Total	13	16

By 2010 all schools in England will be offering the extended school core offer of services.

Schools: Construction

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many new schools were built in each local authority area in each year since 1997; and which of these schools have a source of energy provided by on-site renewables. [132307]

Jim Knight: We do not currently have the data on how many new schools have been built in each local authority area in each year since 1997. We therefore do not know all of the schools which have a source of energy provided by on-site renewables but we do know of a few hundred schools that have a source of energy provided by on-site renewables.

Secondary Education: Curriculum

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what alterations were made to the secondary curriculum programmes of study and level descriptions produced by the Qualifications and

Curriculum Authority (QCA) secondary curriculum review between their approval by the QCA board on 14 December 2006 and their publication. [131720]

Jim Knight: The Qualifications and Curriculum Authority made minor alterations to a number of programmes of study and level descriptions between 14 December 2007 and 18 January 2007. The substantive alterations included:

Revisions to the mathematics programmes of study and level descriptions following consultation with a small group of mathematics experts;

Revisions to the science level descriptions following consultation with a small group of independent scientists;

An amendment to the Key Stage 3 science programme of study to include 'conception' as something which can be affected by diet, drugs and disease;

Revisions to the list of pre-twentieth century authors contained in the English programmes of study;

Adding a reference to the development of international institutions, including the European Union, in the Key Stage 3 history programme of study;

The inclusion of other major spoken world languages as well as European Union languages in the Key Stage 3 Modern Foreign Languages programme of study;

Adding a reference to the importance of marriage in family relationships the qualities of good parenting and its value to family life in the personal well-being programmes of study.

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to the answer of 21 February 2007, Official Report, columns 1817-18W, on Bishops Park college, what the evidential basis was for the statement that Bishops Park college's approach to the curriculum has been shown to be effective in (a) helping to improve staying on rates, (b) reducing the number of exclusions and teenage pregnancies and (c) increasing parental satisfaction. [131722]

Jim Knight: Bishop's Park college is part of a study from the National College of School Leadership Research Associate programme on staying-on rates, student pregnancies, exclusions and parental satisfaction. The college is one of over 1,000 schools that the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority is working with to promote the use of a broad range of measures in judging the effectiveness of the curriculum.

I have requested a copy of the research from this programme and I will write separately to the hon. Gentleman with data about Bishop's Park college on receipt.

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills whether he plans for pupils to be taught all the topics listed in the range and content sections of the revised National Curriculum programmes of study produced by the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority as part of the secondary curriculum review. [132176]

Jim Knight: The range and content sections in the revised programmes of study will be presented in two parts.

There will be one list of statutory content and a second list of recommended content. Pupils will be taught all of the topics in the statutory list. It will be for teachers to decide whether they will also teach some or all of the content from the recommended list.

Special Educational Needs

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the minimum qualification requirements are for special educational needs co-ordinators. [132578]

Mr. Dhanda: There are no specific minimum qualification requirements in relation to special educational needs co-ordinators. School-based SENCOs are selected and appointed by head teachers, and the expectation is that heads will appoint someone with a proven track record of working successfully with children with SEN and disabilities. Training arrangements for SENCOs are currently determined locally, having regard to the knowledge, skills and experience of the person concerned, and the range and complexity of SEN and disabilities represented within the school.

The Department's SEN Code of Practice, published in November 2001, contains guidance on the role and responsibilities of SENCOs. The Teacher Training Agency, now the Training and Development Agency for Schools, also published a set of National Standards for SENCOs in 1998.

In our response to the Education and Skills Committee report on SEN, published 11 October 2006 (Cm 6940), we declared our intention to require, through regulations, all newly appointed SENCOs to undertake nationally accredited training. These regulations would be made pursuant to section 173 of the Education and Inspections Act 2006.

The TDA are undertaking associated development work, beginning with establishing a clear statement of the key components of the role, knowledge, skills and experience required of those leading SEN and disability provision in schools.

Special Educational Needs and Disability Tribunal

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what guidance was issued by his Department to the Special Educational Needs and Disability Tribunal in each year since 1997; and if he will place in the Library copies of that guidance. [132381]

Mr. Dhanda: Apart from the usual financial and administrative guidance that is given to non-departmental public bodies by central Government Departments and guidance that is available to all those who have duties under the special educational needs (SEN) statutory framework, such as the SEN Code of Practice and "Inclusive Schooling", the Department published Stage 1 of a "Quinquennial Review of the Special Educational Needs Tribunal" in August 2000. This included recommendations to the tribunal. Stage 2 of the review was a Financial Management Survey. Again recommendations were made to the tribunal. Copies of Stages 1 and 2 have been placed in the Library. No other formal guidance has been given to the tribunal.

Responsibility for the Special Educational Needs and Disability Tribunal transferred to the Department for Constitutional Affairs on 1 April 2006.

Teachers: Pay

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the average starting salary is for a teacher in an (a) maintained primary school, (b) maintained secondary school and (c) academy. [131607]

Jim Knight: The average salary of newly qualified teachers in full-time regular service in local authority schools in England in March 2005 was £19,550 in nursery and primary schools and £19,930 in secondary schools. This is the latest information available. Teachers included are those who attained qualified teacher status in 2004.

No information is available for academies.

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many maintained schools paid their head teachers (a) more than £80,000, (b) more than £90,000 and (c) more than £100,000 in the latest year for which figures are available. [131608]

Jim Knight: Information is not available in the format requested.

The following table provides the number of local authority maintained school leadership teachers paid more than £80,000, £90,000 and £100,000 in March 2005 the latest information available.

Local authority maintained schools leadership[1] teachers by annual salary, in England and Wales, March 2005[2]

	Leadership group
£80,000 to £90,000	320
£90,000 to £99,999	120
Over £100,000	20
Total	460

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Environmental Policies

2. Kitty Ussher: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the contribution that supermarkets can make to helping reduce carbon dioxide emissions by adopting more stringent environmental policies. [132353]

David Miliband: We have recently consulted on cost-effective ways to reduce carbon dioxide emissions from large, non-energy intensive commercial and public sector organisations, including supermarkets. The results will be published shortly.

In addition, work is already being done to improve the environmental performance of products sold by supermarkets, for example through the development of milk, fish and clothing roadmaps, a 'green standard' for food, encouraging supermarkets to reduce waste, and promoting energy efficiency products.

Tax Changes

3. Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations he has received from environmental organisations in response to tax changes announced in the Budget. [132355]

David Miliband: We have received no specific representations from environmental organisations on this matter. However, we are in regular contact with such organisations on this and a range of other issues.

Agriculture: Subsidies

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 8 March 2007, Official Report, columns 2181-82W, on agriculture subsidies, (1) what definition he uses of the UK's interests; [127969]

(2) when he expects a figure for disallowances of payments made by his Department to be available; [127970]

(3) when he expects the European Commission to complete its audit of the 2005 Single Payment Scheme. [128050]

Barry Gardiner: If the European Commission's audit of the 2005 Single Payment Scheme (SPS) in England follows normal patterns, we would expect to be informed of the final conclusions relating to it during the course of 2008. Only at that point will a definitive figure on disallowance, if any, be available. In the intervening period, the Department will, through its contacts with the Commission, continue to defend the UK's interests with the aim of ensuring that any disallowance proposals are minimised to the fullest possible degree.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what estimate he has made of the contingent liabilities for disallowances arising from Common Agricultural Policy schemes in each month since January 2006; and if he will make a statement; [128047]

(2) pursuant to the answer of 8 March 2007, Official Report, column 2181W, on agriculture subsidies, to which years the estimated £305 million for disallowance arising from Common Agricultural Policy schemes applies; when the final disallowance will be (a) finalised and (b) announced in public; and if he will make a statement; [129660]

(3) what estimate he has made of the disallowance arising from Common Agricultural Policy schemes, with particular reference to the single farm payment and related contingent liabilities for each month since January 2006; and when he was first informed that the total disallowance in this respect may be up to £305 million; [129661]

(4) what definition he uses of a prudent and reasonable estimate, in the context of the claim on the reserve to cover provision for disallowance arising from Common Agricultural Policy schemes and the single farm payment and the possible financial correction the European Commission may apply; [130095]

(5) what his most recent estimate is of the disallowance resulting from Common Agricultural Policy schemes. [130944]

Barry Gardiner: The level of potential disallowance relating to all CAP schemes and all UK Paying Agencies is subject to ongoing review by officials and is based on an assessment of the payments process, communications received from, and negotiations with, the European Commission. These prudent, i.e. careful and cautious, assessments are brought together and reported to Ministers as necessary, as was the case for the provisions made in the Department's Resource Accounts for 2005-06 and for the claim on the reserve included in the Spring Supplementary Estimate for £305 million estimate cover, which related to potential provisions in respect of SPS 2005, SPS 2006 and other CAP schemes dating back to 2004. In each case, the overall estimates were based on the latest assessment of potential disallowances at the time. An exercise will be undertaken in relation to the Department's Resource Accounts for 2006-07, at which time a revised assessment will be made of the level of provisions required and what disclosures need to be made in respect of contingent liabilities.

Detailed discussions will take place with the Commission over a number of years before a final figure is reached on any disallowances and the outcome will be disclosed in the Department's Resource Accounts in the year in which they are imposed.

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the conclusions and recommendations of the report by the Environment, Food and Rural Affairs Committee on the Rural Payments Agency and the implementation of the Single Payment Scheme. [132358]

David Miliband: I am grateful to the right hon. Member for Fylde (Mr. Jack) and his colleagues on the EFRA Committee for their work to produce this report. My Department is currently considering it and will publish a response in the usual way in due course.

Carbon Emissions

Richard Ottaway: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what progress is being made in meeting the Government's environmental targets for the reduction of carbon dioxide emissions. [132360]

Ian Pearson: Emission of carbon dioxide fell by 6.4 per cent. between 1990 and 2005. Adjusted to include the European Union Emission Trading Scheme UK carbon dioxide emission in 2005 were approximately 11 per cent. lower than 1990 levels.

Provisional 2006 figures indicate that carbon dioxide emissions were about 5.25 per cent. below their 1990 level. This does not include the effect of the EU Emissions Trading Scheme.

Climate Change

Ms Katy Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department is taking to communicate to the public the causes of climate change and the actions that can be taken to tackle it. [132369]

David Miliband: We are supporting a range of communications activities and campaigns to enable individuals to think about changing their behaviours to adopt lower carbon lifestyles and help tackle climate change.

Coal Fired Power Stations

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions his Department has had with the Department of Trade and Industry on the environmental impact of new coal-fired power stations. [132359]

Ian Pearson: DEFRA Ministers and officials regularly meet their DTI colleagues to discuss a wide range of energy and environmental issues, including the greenhouse gas impact of different forms of power generation.

Departments: Advertising

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much his Department spent on (a) sponsoring newspaper and publication supplements and (b) funding advertorials in newspapers or publications in the last year for which figures are available; and what the topic was of each. [130011]

Barry Gardiner: During the financial year 2006-07, DEFRA's Communications Directorate has spent £42,316 on advertorials in newspapers and other publications. All this expenditure has been in relation to the Department's Personal Food Imports campaign.

During the financial year 2006-07, DEFRA's Communications Directorate has not spent any funds sponsoring newspaper or publication supplements. However we have spent £26,213 on including our own supplements or inserts with newspapers or magazines (£15,000 on a DEFRA supplement with Farmers Weekly, and £11,213 on a DEFRA insert with Fishing News).

Detail of any expenditure incurred by the wider Department is not available.

Departments: Postal Services

Mr. Fraser: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which postal companies handle mail dispatched by his Department and its agencies. [128243]

Barry Gardiner: Royal Mail handle mail dispatched by DEFRA and its agencies.

Environment Agency

Mr. Leigh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the Environment Agency's cost data from its management information systems. [132367]

Ian Pearson: The Agency uses these data to generate monthly reports, which are monitored by the EA Board. The same information is used to produce the Agency's annual accounts, and these are audited by the National Audit Office.

Marine Environment

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with the devolved Administrations on the drafting of legislation to protect the UK's marine environment. [132376]

Mr. Bradshaw: Ministers and officials have held very constructive discussions with the devolved Administrations. I hope the Administrations in Wales and Scotland after the forthcoming elections are equally committed to the marine environment.

Recycling

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the Local Government Association on the setting of targets for recycling. [132356]

Mr. Bradshaw: We have regular discussions with representatives of local government and others to discuss recycling and other waste matters.

The Local Government Association submitted a formal response to our consultation on a revised Waste Strategy for England. We are planning to publish the strategy shortly.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Bangladesh

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports she has received on recent bombings in Bangladesh co-ordinated by Jamaatul Mujahideen Bangladesh. [132567]

Dr. Howells: We are not aware of any bomb attacks in recent months which have been confirmed as having been co-ordinated by Jamaatul Mujahideen Bangladesh.

Bangladesh: Politics and Government

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports she has received of the murder charges laid by the authorities in Bangladesh against Sheikh Hasina, leader of the Awami League party. [132301]

Dr. Howells: We are aware that serious criminal charges have been brought against Sheikh Hasina and other political leaders in Bangladesh. We expect the caretaker Government to act in the best interests of the people of Bangladesh, to act with integrity and to respect human rights and the rule of law. We have reminded the Bangladesh Government of their responsibilities towards all those accused and urged them to ensure that due process is followed.

British Embassy: Washington

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which Cabinet Ministers stayed at the British embassy in Washington between (a) 3 and 9 February 2004 and (b) 14 and 17 December 2004. [131351]

Mr. McCartney: According to official records, no Cabinet Ministers stayed at our embassy in Washington on the dates in question.

Burma: Aung San Suu Kyi

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent reports she has received of the welfare of Aung San Suu Kyi. [132001]

Mr. McCartney: We remain concerned about the welfare of Aung San Suu Kyi, who has been detained by the Burmese Government since May 2003.

The conditions of her detention are very restrictive. Her doctor is allowed to visit her occasionally. On 24 November 2006, our Ambassador in Rangoon formally requested authority from the Burmese Ministry of Foreign Affairs to pay a courtesy call on her. The request was refused.

I discussed the situation of Aung San Suu Kyi when I met the UN Under Secretary-General for Political Affairs, Ibrahim Gambari, on 15 November 2006. Mr. Gambari met her during his visit to Burma in November 2006. We understand that Aung Sang Suu Kyi assured Mr. Gambari that she was in reasonably good health. Mr. Gambari raised concerns about her welfare with the Burmese Government.

We have repeatedly called for the release of Aung San Suu Kyi and all other political prisoners in Burma.

Burma: Human Rights

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations the Government has made to the United Nations Human Rights Council on (a) conditions of political prisoners, (b) freedom of the press and (c) food provision in Burma. [132604]

Mr. McCartney: I raised the human rights situation in Burma when I addressed the Human Rights Council on 13 March. I expressed our concern that the people of Burma did not enjoy the most basic of human rights, including the rights to freedom of speech and association; and that the fundamental tenets of good governance and the rule of law were not upheld. I also drew attention to ongoing serious human rights abuses, particularly in areas of armed conflict. The European Union Presidency and our Permanent Representative to the United Nations in Geneva also set out our concerns in statements to the Council on 23 March.

Burma: Politics and Government

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress she has made in persuading the Government of Burma to improve their observance of human rights. [132000]

Mr. McCartney: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office identifies Burma as a country of concern in our 2006 Annual Report on Human Rights. The Government's policy is to promote full respect for human rights in Burma encouraging the rule of law, democracy and good governance, and the freedom of association and speech in accordance with international human rights law.

We have been at the forefront of international efforts over many years to bring pressure to bear on the military regime to re-establish democracy and to respect human rights. We take every opportunity to raise human rights issues with the regime and remind them of their obligations to adhere to international human rights law. Our Embassy in Rangoon also delivers capacity building assistance through our Global Opportunities Fund in support of these objectives.

I have raised the human rights situation regularly with the Burmese regime and other Governments in the region. On 16 June 2006, I called in the Burmese Ambassador and on 5 July 2006 I wrote to the Burmese Foreign Minister, highlighting our many concerns. On 18 September 2006, I raised the serious human rights situation with the Association of South East Asian Nations (ASEAN) Ambassadors, including the Burmese Ambassador, and on 4 December 2006 with the ASEAN Secretary-General. I have also raised Burma with the Governments of China, India, Japan, Thailand, Malaysia and South Korea. I have discussed the human rights abuses taking place in Burma with Juan Mendez, the UN Special Adviser on the Prevention of Genocide. I discussed Burma in detail with Ibrahim Gambari, the UN Under Secretary-General for Political Affairs, on 15 November 2006, following his visit to the country. Most recently, I raised the human rights situation in Burma in my address to the Human Rights Council in Geneva on 13 March and at the EU/ASEAN Ministerial Meeting in Nuremberg on 15 March, in the presence of the Burmese Deputy Foreign Minister.

In addition, our Ambassador in Rangoon regularly raises human rights with the regime, most recently when he met the Burmese Ministers for Planning and Immigration and the Burmese Deputy Foreign Minister on 5 January.

The UK works closely with the EU and other international partners, including the UN and ASEAN, to promote human rights in Burma, and fully supports the efforts of the UN Special Rapporteur for Human Rights in Burma, Professor Sergio Pinheiro.

We supported the efforts to have Burma added to the UN Security Council agenda in September 2006 and co-sponsored with the US a UN Security Council Resolution on Burma. This was put to the vote on 12 January. Nine members of the Security Council supported the Resolution. However, three States, including two Permanent Members of the Council, voted against and as such the Resolution was not adopted. While the result was disappointing, it is important to note that all Security Council members agreed that there were serious issues of concern in Burma. This, and the positive votes from the majority of Security Council partners, reflected the international community's deep concern over the plight of Burma's people. Burma remains on the UN Security Council agenda.

Departments: Recruitment

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many (a) men and (b) women failed the Band C Assessment and Development Centres in 2005-06, broken down by age groups (i) 20 to 29, (ii) 30 to 39 and (c) 40 plus. [132226]

Mr. Hoon: Our Management Information system records 71 per cent. (52 out of 73) male candidates failed the Band C Assessment Development Centre (ADC) in financial year 2005-06. The age group breakdown is: 20 to 29 year olds, 67 per cent. (14 out of 21 in this age group); 30 to 39 year olds, 78 per cent. (32 out of 41); and 40 plus year olds, 55 per cent. (six out of 11).

The system records 67 per cent. of women (36 out of 54) failed the Band C ADC in financial year 2005-06. The age group breakdown is: 20 to 29 year olds, 36 per cent. of candidates (five out of 14 female in this age group); 30 to 39 year olds, 71 per cent. (20 out of 28); and 40 plus year olds, 92 per cent. (11 out of 12).

Iraq: Death

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the estimated Iraqi death toll for (a) civilian deaths and (b) all other deaths is for each month since March 2003; and what methods were used for the collation and presentation of the data. [132262]

Dr. Howells: All deaths in Iraq resulting from military and terrorist attacks are a tragedy. The Government of Iraq are best placed to monitor the numbers of Iraqi casualties, but we continue to believe that there are no comprehensive or reliable figures for deaths since March 2003. Estimates vary according to the method of collection.

According to figures released by the Iraqi Ministry of the Interior on 2 January 2007, 12,320 civilians were killed during 2006. The UN Assistance Mission for Iraq estimates that 34,452 civilians were killed in 2006, on the basis of information obtained through the Iraqi Health Ministry, hospitals and the Medico-Legal Institute in Baghdad. No further figures are currently available.

Nepal

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports she has received on recent ethnic unrest in the south and east of Nepal. [132590]

Dr. Howells: The UK was deeply disturbed by the events in Gaur, southern Nepal on 21 March during which 27 people were killed. This shocking display of violence is unacceptable in a democratic society and does not help Nepal or the peace process. Nor does it help address the legitimate grievances of the Madhesis and other disenfranchised groups in the Terai region who have been demonstrating for greater inclusion in the interim constitution and wider political process. We have urged the Government of Nepal to take prompt action to bring the perpetrators of this violence to justice and welcomed the statement by the UN High Commissioner for Human Rights, Louise Arbour, which also called for the Government of Nepal to launch an investigation into the killings in Gaur. The full text of the statement is available at:

http://nepal.ohchr.org/resources/Documents/English/pressreleases/MAR2007/2007_03_22_HC_GAUR_E.pdf.

We were concerned to read of threats against human rights defenders and journalists in the Terai. The UK has long supported the work of Office of the UN High Commissioner for Human Rights and other human rights groups in Nepal and will continue to support calls to tackle human rights violations and impunity.

The continuing violence in the Terai reinforces the urgent need for the Government of Nepal to address Madhesi grievances and to work towards a more democratic and inclusive system. During his visit to Nepal on 2-4 April, my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for International Development met with a wide range of politicians from all parties, including Maoists. He urged all parties to refrain from violence and stressed the need for an inclusive political process.

Nepal: Elections

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assurances she has received that elections to a special assembly to rewrite the Nepalese constitution will be held in June. [132589]

Dr. Howells: Nepal's Chief Election Commissioner told the media on 13 April that elections on 20 June are no longer possible. The Commissioner has also written to the Government of Nepal to say that, in order to prepare for an effective election, he requires 110 days from the date that all necessary election legislation has been passed. With the interim Parliament still debating the necessary legislation, the Election Commission has not yet been able to finalise procedures, manuals, training and voter education materials.

In addition, the Electoral Constituency Delimitation Commission and Government have yet to agree on the delimitation of an additional 24 territorial constituencies.

These have been introduced, mostly in the Terai, to add to the existing 205 throughout Nepal, in an attempt to address Madhesi concerns. The deadline for this exercise has been extended to 29 April.

During his visit to Nepal on 2-4 April, my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-secretary of State for International Development urged all parties to work towards free, fair and credible elections in an atmosphere free from violence and intimidation. He called on the Government of Nepal to ensure that voters were able genuinely and freely to express their will.

The Government of Nepal have yet to react to the Chief Election Commissioner's letter. However, the eight parties are due to meet to discuss the announcement and consider next steps. In the meantime, we will encourage the Government to use any delay in the election process to create a transparent and properly sequenced plan for elections later this year. In addition, we will continue to work with the EU, the UN and our other international partners and non-governmental organisations to ensure that the political and security environment in Nepal is appropriate to allow free, fair and credible elections to take place.

Nuclear Non-proliferation Treaty

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what plans she has for proposals to take forward the UK's multilateral disarmament commitments in the run up to the May 2007 Preparatory Committee meeting for the 2010 nuclear non-proliferation treaty review conference; and whether she has had any discussions with her United States counterparts on such proposals; [131817]

(2) what initiatives she is planning to take forward the UK's multilateral disarmament commitments in the run up to the Preparatory Committee meeting for the 2010 nuclear non-proliferation treaty review conference in Vienna in May; and whether she has had any discussions with her United States counterpart on such proposals. [132289]

Dr. Howells: The Government are strongly committed to the nuclear non-proliferation treaty (NPT), which is the cornerstone of the nuclear non-proliferation regime and the framework for nuclear disarmament. The UK is determined to make every effort to ensure that this review cycle results in a positive and substantive final document at the 2010 Review Conference that moves forward all aspects of Treaty implementation, including disarmament. We are working with allies, including the US, to lay the groundwork for this at the April-May 2007 NPT Preparatory Committee. We believe we have already made a contribution by announcing, in the White Paper on the Future of the UK's Nuclear Deterrent, a further 20 per cent. cut in our warhead stockpile.

Mr. Blizzard: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what matters she plans to raise at the meeting of the nuclear non-proliferation treaty Preparatory Committee starting on 30 April; and if she will make a statement. [132572]

Dr. Howells: The United Kingdom will work with the EU, with its allies in the Western European and Others' Group and with the other nuclear weapon states towards strengthening the nuclear non-proliferation treaty (NPT) and the wider nuclear non-proliferation regime. There are a number of issues on which useful work could be undertaken, many of which were set out in the EU Common Position agreed for the 2005 review conference and remain outstanding. It will be important to build consensus on these areas, and any new workstreams, in this and future Preparatory Committees. We hope that this process will culminate in a substantive final document being agreed at the 2010 NPT review conference.

Post-conflict Reconstruction Unit

Richard Younger-Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make a statement on her Department's input to the Post-conflict Reconstruction Unit. [132268]

Dr. Howells: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) is actively engaged in all aspects of the Post-conflict Reconstruction Unit's (PCRU) work. The FCO, Ministry of Defence and Department for International Development provide strategic direction to the PCRU through quarterly meetings at director-level. The FCO also works closely with the PCRU on overarching issues such as security and rule of law, and on the PCRU's international deployments. The FCO has encouraged its staff to apply for positions in the unit: it currently has five working there.

HEALTH

Advertising

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much her Department has spent purchasing space in The Guardian newspaper in each of the last five years. [105621]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Childbirth: Deaths

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the death rate per million maternities from puerperal sepsis and other forms of septicaemia was in each year since 1999-2000; and if she will make a statement. [132480]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Deaths from puerperal sepsis are very rare. The Department-sponsored confidential enquiry into maternal deaths "Why Mothers Die" report for 2000-02 only identified five women who died of puerperal sepsis in the United Kingdom for the three years 2000 to 2002. This gives a maternal death rate of 2.5 per million maternities. The next report is due to be published later this year and will contain the figures for the three year period 2003-05.

Colorectal Cancer: Screening

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment she has made of the change in numbers of colorectal nurse specialist posts on the effectiveness of the National Bowel Cancer Screening Programme; and if she will make a statement. [130801]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The number of colorectal nurse specialists is not collected centrally and the Department has not undertaken an assessment of current numbers. It is for cancer networks to work in partnership with strategic health authorities, national health service trusts and postgraduate deaneries to put in place a sustainable process to assess, plan and review their work force needs and the education and training of all staff linked to local and national priorities for cancer including the implementation of the National Bowel Screening Programme.

Dentistry

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether her Department has sought to recruit dentists from India. [107492]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Our Project 1,000 recruitment campaign, undertaken in 2004-05, extended to India. With the agreement of the Indian health department, the Department made arrangements for dentists to sit Part A of the General Dental Council's International Qualifying Examination in India.

Educational Psychology

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what arrangements are being considered for the (a) regulation and (b) training of educational psychologists following the proposals set out in the Regulation of Health Professionals White Paper, Cm 7013; what discussions she has had with local authorities on this matter; and if she will make a statement. [129571]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Government have decided that the Health Professions Council (HPC) should manage the regulation of applied psychologists, including educational psychologists. This will help to foster consistency of approach across the regulated professions while meeting specific professions' educational, practice and conduct needs within a common framework. It is anticipated that their training arrangements will remain as they are now. Any changes made following regulation will be subject to consultation by the HPC.

This decision was made following a consultation in 2005 on proposals for the statutory regulation of applied psychologists, which made clear that initial standards of proficiency for applied psychologists would be very similar to those required by the British Psychological Society. The 2005 consultation included all local authorities and a number of local authority educational psychology services responded to it. Their responses have been taken into account.

Exercise

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what progress is being made by the Government on reaching their target of getting 70 per cent. of the population physically active by 2020; and what projects there are in place to reach the target; [132509]

(2) how much the Government have spent on reaching their target of getting 70 per cent. of the population physically active by 2020 in the last 12 months; and how much is planned to be spent over the next five years. [132510]

Caroline Flint: "Choosing Activity: a physical activity action plan" set out a plan to promote physical activity for all in accordance with the evidence and recommendations set out in the Chief Medical Officer's report "At least five a week". "Choosing Activity" summarised how we would deliver the physical activity commitments in the Public Health White Paper 'Choosing Health' and other Government announcements prior to its publication in March 2005. By January 2007, 57 of the 99 commitments had been achieved. Projects support physical activity and sport in schools, workplaces, and in the community.

The Government's physical activity priorities were published in public service agreement targets to halt the year-on-year increase in obesity among children under 11, increase the take up of cultural and sporting opportunities by adults and young people aged 16 and above, and to enhance the take up of sporting opportunities by five to 16-year olds through physical exercise and school sport.

The Government remain committed to building upon this progress and in transforming the population into a fitter and more active nation in the run up to the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games.

The Government have invested and continue to invest millions in supporting physical activity and sport, nationally and across the NHS and local government. The Department does not collect detailed breakdowns of individual expenditure on physical activity by all local agencies such as primary care trusts and local authorities. Spending allocations for the next five years are subject to the current comprehensive spending review.

General Practitioners

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many general practitioners in (a) Bedfordshire and (b) England have become GPs with a specialist interest in each year since 1997, broken down by primary care trust; and if she will make a statement. [122815]

Ms Rosie Winterton: A table showing the number of general practitioners with a special interest has been placed in the Library. This information is only available since 2000-01. The 2006-07 information is the latest information available to quarter 3.

General Practitioners: Dermatology

Mr. Bruce George: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the General Practitioners with a Special Interest (GPwSI) Working Group's forthcoming guidance on the accreditation of GPwSI in dermatology and skin surgery will be a mandatory national standard; and if she will make a statement. [129013]

Ms Rosie Winterton: We are planning to publish "National Guidelines for the Accreditation of GPs and Pharmacists with Special Interests" shortly. This document will set out a process for local accreditation of such practitioners and will be supported by competency frameworks for a range of specialities, including dermatology. The Department is currently considering options to mandate primary care trust compliance with the guidelines.

Hammersmith Hospital and St. Mary's NHS Trusts

Mr. Martlew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what resources her Department has allocated to facilitate the take-over of Hammersmith and St. Mary hospital trust by Imperial College, London. [131349]

Andy Burnham: The Department has not allocated any specific resources to facilitate the proposed integration of St. Mary's national health service trust, the Hammersmith hospitals NHS trust and the Imperial College into the Academic Health Sciences Centre which is subject to the outcome of local public consultation.

Hartlepool Primary Care Trust: Health Visitors

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many health visitors were employed by Hartlepool Primary Care Trust in each year since the trust was established. [129786]

National health service hospital and community health services: Health visitors in the Hartlepool Primary Care Trust as at 30 September each specified year

Health Professionals: Foreign Workers

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what checks are made on the validity of the medical qualifications of (a) doctors and (b) nurses who are recruited to the NHS from outside the European Union. [128943]

Ms Rosie Winterton: All doctors and nurses from outside the European Economic Area (EEA) who wish to work in the UK must register with the General Medical Council (CMC) or Nursing and Midwifery Council (NMC).

Doctors:

The following documentary evidence is needed by the CMC to support their application.

primary medical qualification; specialist medical qualification;

licence to practise medicine;

certificate of good standing from a regulatory body of the country where they are practising;

proof of nationality—passport or national identity card;

curriculum vitae;

International English Language Testing System (IELTS) certificate (if applicable); and current registration fee.

As part of the process all overseas doctors must visit the GMC London office in person to undergo a pre-registration identity check. A photograph of the doctor will be taken and this will be made available to employers so they can be assured of the doctor's identity.

Full registration enables doctors to work in any form of professional medical practice in the United Kingdom. Doctors must, however, also hold specialist registration to take up a consultant post (other than a locum consultant post) in the national health service. General practitioners (GPs) must be on the GP register.

NHS trusts who recruit staff from abroad should carry out the necessary pre-appointment checks in accordance with NHS Employers safer recruitment guidance.

These checks should include :

verification of identity;

qualifications;

registration;

Criminal Records Bureau (CRB) checks;

alert letters;

Protection of Children Act (PoCA) check;

references; and occupational health checks

Nurses:

The NMCs new standard for applicants trained outside the European Union (EU) was launched in September 2005. From 1 September 2006 the only route to registration with the NMC will be through the "Overseas Nurses Programme" (ONP).

All applicants who apply for nurse registration and who meet NMC minimum requirements will be required to undertake all or part of the ONP. The ONP sets out common entry standards, a compulsory 20-day period of protected learning for all nurses trained outside the EEA and, where appropriate, a period of supervised practice. Every applicant will have to pass the specified IELTS before they can apply to go onto the ONP.

From 1 February 2007 all applicants to the nurses or midwives parts of the register, who trained outside the EU, must complete and provide evidence of the British Council IELTS before submitting their application to the NMC.

Health Professions: Training

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the Modernising Medical Careers and Medical Training Application Service process has been formally quality assured; and if she will make a statement. [129699]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Medical Training Application Service (MTAS) processes have been developed following extensive consultation which included both paper based and workshop based reviews within a formal project quality management framework. The MTAS information technology system is provided by an ISO9000 accredited supplier and has been reviewed and found fit to be for purpose.

The Modernising Medical Careers programmes itself has been subject to scrutiny by the Office of Government Commerce Gateway Review process in both 2005 and 2006.

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps she is taking to encourage more people to train as (a) doctors and (b) nurses. [107676]

Ms Rosie Winterton: In order to encourage applicants to medicine, nursing and other healthcare training, the Department established the NHS Careers service in 1999. NHS Careers provides comprehensive information to the public about careers in healthcare. It promotes the national health service as an employer and attracts potential employees to the NHS. NHS Careers provides a 24-hour helpline (0845 60 60 655), website (www.nhscareers.nhs.uk), literature and supporting services for the public, NHS employers, schools, colleges and careers advisers. The service is now operated by NHS Employers.

In addition, the Department provides non-repayable NHS bursaries for nurses and pays the tuition fees in full for the majority of NHS professional students undertaking programmes leading to professional registration. A means-tested bursary is available to medical students for the latter years of their undergraduate training.

Medicine

Mr. McGovern: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether she plans to provide all medical students with free copies of each edition of the British National Formulary in (a) 2008, (b) 2009 and (c) 2010. [130420]

Ms Rosie Winterton: There is no allocation to fund the provision of free copies of the British National Formulary to medical students in England from 2007-08 onwards.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when her Department will respond to the letter of 14 March from the hon. Member for Billericay on the planned Independent Sector Treatment Centre for Basildon. [132512]

Andy Burnham: I regret the hon. Gentleman's letter was not received by the Department. A copy has now been obtained and a reply will be sent shortly.

Milton Keynes Hospital: ICT

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps are being taken to ensure that the Care Records Service computer system at Milton Keynes hospital is fit for purpose; and when this work will be complete. [132466]

Caroline Flint: Urgent and priority action is being taken to manage resolution of the operational difficulties which have been experienced with the new acute patient administration system (PAS) at Milton Keynes general hospital national health service trust since it went live on 24 February. This is being implemented by a joint Fujitsu and Cerner technical specialist team on behalf of the local service provider and the main subcontractor respectively. The team is in attendance daily at the trust, supervised by a senior Fujitsu management presence on site full time to lead the resolution process. Progress in tackling and overcoming the problems which have arisen, the majority of which have already been resolved, is being monitored daily.

In addition, the Department's NHS Connecting for Health agency's senior deployment manager for the south of England is for the time being stationed permanently on site to ensure the work of the Fujitsu/Cerner team is completed to the satisfaction of the trust, and that it is managed through to resolution.

Work that is now in hand is likely to result in effective operation of the PAS system within the next two to three weeks.

NHS Derriford Hospital

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many non-clinicians employed by NHS Derriford hospital are paid in excess of £80,000 per annum. [129816]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department does not hold this information as decisions on the amount of salary that national health service staff receive are made by the local NHS organisations which employ them.

NHS: Ancillary Staff

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which patient and public interest groups responded to her Department's review of the regulation of non-medical healthcare professions. [122126]

Ms Rosie Winterton: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for North-West Leicestershire (David Taylor) on 5 March 2007, Official Report, column 1686W.

NHS: Equal Opportunities

Michael Jabez Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the (a) gender, (b) age and (c) ethnicity is of (i) chairmen and (ii) non-executive directors appointed during the last 12 months to NHS trusts in (A) England and (B) South East Coast Strategic Health Authority. [128991]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Information about the gender, age and ethnicity of chairs and non-executive directors of national health service trusts and strategic health authorities in England, is held by the Appointments Commission. I have asked Sir William Wells, Chair of the Commission, to respond to the query directly.

NHS: Tolls

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what cost was incurred by all London hospital NHS trusts in reimbursing staff for the London congestion charge in the last financial year. [131598]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This information is not collected by the Department. However, a national health service reimbursement scheme run by Transport for London (TfL) ensures that the NHS is not financially disadvantaged by the congestion charge scheme. Staff on NHS duties are reimbursed by the relevant NHS organisation which is then reimbursed by TfL.

In the last financial year, TfL paid £166,740 to reimburse NHS organisations in London for staff journeys made while engaged in the following activities: transporting bulky, heavy or fragile equipment or supplies; transporting patients' notes or other clinically confidential material; transporting controlled drugs; transporting clinical waste, radioactive materials, contaminated sharps or non-medical poisons; transporting prescription only medicines or waste medicinal products; transporting clinical specimens, body fluids, tissues or organs; or on call—and providing services that are required in consequence of an emergency or other extraordinary circumstance.

Non-medical Vacancies

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how often the non-medical vacancy rate is surveyed; and when the next such survey will be published; [129899]

(2) how many vacancies there are for each non-medical profession in (a) England and (b) each strategic health authority; and what vacancy rate this represents in each case. [129902]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The vacancy survey is carried out as at 31 March each year by The Information Centre and defines a vacancy as one which has lasted three months or more and which the employer is actively trying to fill. The next survey will be carried out at the end of March 2007 and the results will be published in July 2007.

The results of the 2006 vacancy survey showing the number of vacancies and vacancy rates in the non-medical professions, nationally and by each strategic health authority have been placed in the Library.

Northern Lincolnshire and Goole Hospitals NHS Trust: Midwives

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) full-time midwives and (b) midwife assistants were employed by Northern Lincolnshire and Goole Hospitals NHS trust as at 31 September in each of the last five years. [129333]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information requested is set out in the following table.

NHS hospital and community health services: qualified midwifery staff and support staff in the maternity services area of work in the Northern Lincolnshire and Goole national health service trust as at 30 September each specified year

Three month vacancy notes:
1. Northern Lincolnshire and Goole Hospitals NHS Trust did not supply a valid return for the 2005 vacancies survey. Vacancy data for this trust for this year are not available.
2. Three month vacancy information is as at 31 March each specified year.
3. Three month vacancies are vacancies which trusts are actively trying to fill, which had lasted for three months or more (full-time equivalents).
4. Three month vacancy rates are three month vacancies expressed as a percentage of three month vacancies plus staff in post.
5. Three month vacancy rates are calculated using staff in post from the Non-Medical Workforce Census.
6. Percentages are rounded to one decimal place.
7. Vacancy and staff in post numbers are rounded to the nearest whole number.
8. Calculating the vacancy rates using the above data may not equal the actual vacancy rates.
9. Due to rounding, totals may not equal the sum of component parts.

Patients: Barnet

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many patients in Barnet received (a) in-patient and (b) out-patient treatment in (i) 1996-97, (ii) 1997-98 and (iii) 2005-06; how many have received each type of treatment in 2006-07; and if she will make a statement. [129815]

Andy Burnham: The information requested is shown in the following tables.

Since 1998-99, in-patient data have been collected on first finished consultant episodes (FFCEs). This is not directly comparable with the data collected before 1998-99, which were on the more widely defined finished consultant episodes (FCEs).

Enfield Primary Care Trust run a specialist clinical assessment service, which triages outpatient referrals and is redirecting a significant proportion to alternative services in primary care.

In-patients—elective and non-elective general and acute activity

	Definition	Finished consultant episodes in Barnet
1996-97	FCEs	83,276
1997-98	FCEs	73,005
2005-06	FFCEs	72,048
Part-year April 2006 to January 2007	FFCEs	64,345

Out-patients—total out-patient attendances—all specialties

	Finished consultant episodes in Barnet
1996-97	353,979
1997-98	315,553
2005-06	278,641

Department of Health Monthly Monitoring and KH09/QMOP/QM08 returns

School Nurses

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many school nurses are employed by each primary care trust; and how many carry out vision screening of (a) primary school children and (b) secondary school children. [121470]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information on school nurses employed by primary care trust (PCT) has been placed in the Library.

Although 100 PCTs do not employ any school nurses, this does not necessarily mean that there are no school nurses working in that area. The data taken from the Information Centre workforce census record who employs school nurses rather than where they actually work. For example, some of the 41 school nurses who were employed by the former Leeds East PCT worked within other PCT boundaries in Leeds where none were employed.

Information is not collected centrally on how many of these carry out vision screening.

Sexually Transmitted Diseases

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much the Government has spent on the (a) treatment and (b) prevention of sexually transmitted diseases in the last 12 months; and how much will be spent over the next five years. [132511]

Andy Burnham: Sexually transmitted infection testing and treatment is funded through general allocations to primary care trusts (PCTs) and is not separately identified. In addition, PCTs received funding for implementing the targets in the White Paper "Choosing Health: making healthy choices easier", a copy of which is available in the Library. PCT revenue allocations separately identify funding to support the implementation of "Choosing Health". It is for PCTs to determine how to use the funding allocated to them to commission services to meet the healthcare needs of their local populations.

Funding for prevention of sexually transmitted infections (STI) is focused on the "Condom Essential Wear" campaign, which targets some of the hardest to reach young people who are at risk of contracting an STI. £6 million funding was provided for the campaign in 2006-07 and £4 million for the financial year 2007-08. It is too early to say what the funding levels will be beyond this.

In addition to the funding for the "Condom Essential Wear" campaign, the Department has also funded/agreed to fund the following:

£4 million to fund the two Department for Education and Skills' campaigns aimed at reducing teenage pregnancy and sexually transmitted infections, 'R U Thinking and Want Respect? Use a Condom' in 2006-07 to 2007-08;

£2.2 million to fund the work of the fpa (formerly Family Planning Association) in 2006-07 to 2007-08; and

£5.4 million to fund work campaigning to prevent the spread of HIV conducted by the Terrence Higgins Trust and the African HIV Policy Network in 2006-07 to 2007-08.

Speech Therapy

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the employment prospects in NHS trusts for newly-graduated speech and language therapists; and if she will make a statement. [130215]

Ms Rosie Winterton: It is the responsibility of primary care trusts and strategic health authorities (SHAs) to analyse their local situation, develop plans and take action to recruit the appropriate staff required to deliver high quality speech and language services.

SHAs are working proactively with employers to support graduate opportunities. NHS Employers published guidance recently to support local national health service organisations, to help them maximise employment opportunities and to ensure the health and social care services do not lose the skills of newly qualified graduates.

On 7 February, NHS Employers hosted a summit which brought together representatives from SHAs, trade unions, the independent healthcare sector, social care, the higher education sector and Job Centre Plus. The outcome of the day was a jointly agreed action plan to help newly qualified graduates find jobs. The action plan will be taken forward by local partnerships working together to develop the best solutions for their area.

Surgery: Waiting Lists

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many operations were cancelled within three months of the date of the operation being given to the patient in the last 12 months. [131120]

Andy Burnham: The data collected cover cancellations for non-clinical reasons on the day the patient is due to arrive or after arrival in hospital, and for non-clinical reasons on the day of surgery. There were 54,682 such cancellations in the last 12 months (taken from Department of Health dataset QMCO).

Under the 18-week target, maximum waits of 18 weeks from referral to treatment will include any periods of delay caused by cancellations.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Cross Border Co-operation: EC Countries

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what his Department's policy is on the proposed transposition of the Treaty of Prüm into EU law; and if he will make a statement. [123501]

Joan Ryan: The current German presidency of the EU has put forward a draft Council Decision on the stepping up of cross-border co-operation, particularly in combating terrorism and cross-border crime. This draft Council Decision aims to incorporate into EU law some of the elements of the Prüm Convention. The Government are broadly supportive of the draft Council Decision because it provides the potential to improve between EU member states the exchange of DNA, fingerprint and vehicle registration data, which will help British police forces prevent, prosecute and investigate serious crime and make it harder for criminals to escape justice.

The draft Council Decision has been submitted to Parliament for scrutiny. In addition to the written evidence provided to Parliamentary Scrutiny Committees by the Home Office I also gave oral evidence to the Lords European Committee on 7 March.

Roadside Breathtesting

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what progress has been made in approving evidential roadside breathtesting devices. [132032]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 18 April 2007]: We are currently finalising a type approval guide for evidential roadside breathtesting devices. Once the guide is available it will be for manufacturers to prepare devices in accordance with the guide and submit them for approval. We hope this will happen later this year.

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he expects the first evidential roadside breathtesting device to be used by a constabulary. [132031]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 18 April 2007]: We hope that manufacturers will be able to submit devices for approval later this year. The necessarily detailed tests for approval might then take around nine months. Once a device or devices are approved, it will be for manufacturers to market and police forces to purchase as they consider appropriate.

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the likely impact on roads policing of the use of evidential roadside breathtesting devices. [132033]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 18 April 2007]: At present only screening tests can be conducted at the roadside; a person must be taken to a police station for an evidential test. Evidential testing at the roadside will save time and enable more enforcement. It will also catch those who fall below the drink-drive limit in the time taken to get to an evidential test.

Emergency Calls: Standards

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department in respect of how many 999 calls the target response time was missed in 2006. [119924]

Mr. McNulty: Incidents reported to the police on 999 are graded by priority in accordance with the Police National Call Handling Standards and target response times are set accordingly by individual police forces appropriate to their geographic and population profile.

The data in respect of how many incidents reported to 999 were responded to by individual police forces against their respective target times in 2006 is not compiled centrally by the Home Office.

Identity Cards

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether biometric data of children aged 11 to 16 years captured for biometric passports will be transferred to the new Identity Cards database. [130013]

Joan Ryan: It is intended that British citizens aged 16 and over will become registered on the National Identity Register and receive an identity card alongside an application for an adult passport.

It is only once such an application is received that biometrics will be recorded on the National Identity Register as part of the application process for a passport and identity card package.

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to the answer of 1 February 2007, Official Report, column 519W, on identity cards, how penalties under the Identity Cards Act 2006 will be communicated to those who incur them. [131354]

Joan Ryan: A formal notice will be issued under section 31 of the Identity Cards Act to inform a person of a decision to impose a civil financial penalty for failure to comply with a specific requirement, such as a failure to notify a change of circumstances (under section 10) or to surrender an ID card when required (under section 11). The notice will set out the reasons for deciding to impose the penalty and the amount of the penalty as well as explaining the steps that the person may take to object to it. In addition, prior to the issue of a penalty notice, a warning letter will normally be issued to an individual to alert them that they appear to be liable to a civil penalty, explaining why this is the case and how they can meet the particular requirement in question and thus avoid the need for any penalty to be imposed.

Offensive Weapons

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what percentage of people were convicted of an offence of the (a) manufacture, (b) importation, (c) sale and (d) hire of (i) flick knives and (ii) gravity knives under section 1 of the Restriction of Offensive Weapons Act 1959 in each of the last five years, broken down by age group. [131179]

Mr. McNulty: Data from the court proceedings database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform on the number of persons proceeded against at magistrates courts and found guilty at all courts for offences in connection with dangerous weapons under the Restriction of Offensive Weapons Act 1959 Section 1 in England and Wales from 2001-05, by age group, are provided in the following table.

Information on the individual circumstances of offences is not held centrally and therefore information on the offensive weapons involved in these cases is not available.

Number of persons proceeded against at magistrates' courts, found guilty at all courts and convictions as a proportion of prosecutions for 'offences in connection with dangerous weapons' under the Restriction of Offensive Weapons Act 1959, by age group, England and Wales—2001-05[1,2]

[1] These data are provided on the principal offence basis.

[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by police forces and courts. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Note:

Prosecutions are counted by date of final outcome in the magistrates court. Guilty figures are counted by the date of sentence in both magistrates courts and Crown courts. Hence guilty figures can exceed prosecutions where they reflect cases of people being found guilty in the magistrates court and committed for sentence to the Crown court, the two events being counted in two different years.

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people were convicted of selling knives to under-18s in 2006. [131218]

Mr. McNulty: Information on defendants convicted of offences in 2006 will be available in the autumn.

Data from the Court Proceedings Database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform show that 19 persons were found guilty at all courts for the offence of selling to a person under age of 16 years a knife; knife blade, razor blade, axe and any other article which has a blade under section 141A(i) of the Criminal Justice Act 1988 which was inserted by section 6 of Offensive Weapons Act 1996 in 2005 in England and Wales.

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many (a) arrests were made and (b) convictions were secured under section 1 of the Prevention of Crime Act 1953 in each of the last five years; [131178]

(2) how many (a) arrests were made and (b) convictions were secured under section 139 of the Criminal Justice Act 1988 in each of the last five years. [131183]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Information on arrests for recorded crime offences under s139 and 139A of the Criminal Justice Act 1988 (as amended by s4(1) of the Offensive Weapons Act 1996) and s1 of the Prevention of Crime Act 1953 (as amended by s2(1) of the Offensive Weapons Act 1996) are not separately identifiable within the arrests collection held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform. The collection is based on persons arrested for recorded crime (notifiable offences) by main offence group (i.e. violence against the person, robbery, burglary, criminal damage etc) only.

Information on the number of persons found guilty for the offences requested in England and Wales for the years 2001-05 is provided in the following table.

Number of persons found guilty at all courts for certain offences[1, 2, 3], England and Wales 2001-05

[1] These data are on the principal offence basis.
[2] Data for "having an article with blade or point on school premises" exclude convictions for West Mercia PFA, until clarification of these cases is obtained.
[3] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by police forces and courts. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Sexual Offences: Hartlepool

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people in Hartlepool broke the terms of their sentence and order relating to child sex offences in each of the last five years; and what action was taken against those people who breached their order and condition. [131388]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The specific information requested is not held centrally and could be obtained locally only at disproportionate cost.

War Crimes

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to the answers of 21 March 2007, Official Report, column 975W, on war crimes, for what reasons the issue of arrest warrants in each of the cases listed necessitated a review of the legal and practical issues raised by the issue of arrest warrants in international cases. [132127]

Joan Ryan: It is appropriate to consider whether in principle it is right that persons may be arrested and detained for international offences such as war crimes, genocide and torture on application by a private individual to a court before there is an opportunity for the Attorney-General to reach a view on the merits of the case and decide whether a prosecution should proceed.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Bicycles: Parking

Norman Baker: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission how many bicycle parking spaces are available on the House of Commons estate for (a) hon. Members, (b) staff and (c) visitors. [131064]

Nick Harvey: There are currently 143 bicycle parking spaces on the House of Commons estate. They are situated as follows:

Colonnade: 69, (of these seven are reserved for Members only and 14 are reserved for members of the House of Commons Cycling Club).

Star Chamber Court: 48.

Norman Shaw North Inner Courtyard: 32.

Canon Row Courtyard: 12 (to be in place after Easter 2007).

The provision of parking on the estate for non-passholders is not currently compatible with maintaining a secure perimeter. Further discussions have taken place regarding the provision of additional bicycle parking outside in the vicinity of the estate. I understand that six additional bicycle parking spaces have been agreed on Victoria Embankment near Portcullis House and that Transport for London, the highway authority, has been requested to install them as soon as possible. Other potential sites for on-street cycle parking around Parliament are being investigated by Westminster City Council and other relevant authorities.

Palace of Westminster: Temperature

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what the temperature setting is for the Palace of Westminster; and if he will arrange for the temperature to be reduced. [131389]

Nick Harvey: The normal temperature setting for the Palace of Westminster is 21° C, in line with guidance from the Chartered Institution of Building Services Engineers (CIBSE) guide for office spaces, but this can be adjusted according to demand from the occupants. There are many heating zones in the Palace of Westminster which have their temperatures controlled independently, therefore temperature settings may differ from area to area. The existing controls are currently being replaced with more modern ones which should enable better control and energy efficiency to be achieved.

Recycling

Norman Baker: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission if he will estimate what percentage of packaging and delivery containers of goods purchased by the Refreshment Department is (a) made from biodegradable or recycled materials and (b) recycled. [131063]

Nick Harvey: The information requested is as follows.

(a) The Refreshment Department does not collect any information that enables it to estimate the percentage of packaging and delivery containers made from biodegradable or recycled materials. However, returnable crates, containers or trolleys are used for most meat, dairy, and sandwich deliveries. Draught beer kegs and a small percentage of other drinks delivery containers are also returned to the supplier.

(b) The monthly total quantity of waste collected for incineration in a power plant is monitored for the entire parliamentary estate, as is the quantity of each material collected for recycling. The waste materials currently being recycled include cardboard, paper, glass, wood and metal, with 41 per cent. of waste currently being recycled. However, at present this information is not broken down by building or by Department. The Refreshment Department is actively working with Works and Estates to increase the amount of cardboard and other waste sent for recycling and a proposal to run an environment champions programme on the estate is being considered. This would require the waste arising to be monitored for each building but it is uncertain whether it would be possible to monitor the waste being collected from the Refreshment Department alone.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

China

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development which (a) hon. Members, (b) Ministers and (c) officials participated in the recent parliamentary delegation to China organised by his Department; who arranged the visit; which organisations or individuals were consulted beforehand; whether the delegation was given permission by the Government of China to visit all areas of China; whether (i) the one child policy and (ii) coercive abortion was discussed; what the cost was to his Department of the visit; whether a report on the trip was produced; whether the United Nations Population Fund provided any (A) direct funding, (B) informal support and (C) personnel; what recent representations he has received on the visit; what assistance was provided by the British embassy in China; and if he will make a statement. [132654]

Mr. Thomas: No parliamentary delegation has recently visited China to discuss family planning issues. Neither the DFID office in Beijing, the embassy or the local United Nations Population Fund (UNFPA) office are aware of any such visit.

Developing Countries: Maternity Services

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent assessment he has made of the progress in meeting the fifth Millennium Development Goal, to improve maternal health. [131250]

Mr. Thomas: The millennium development goals (MDGs), including the fifth goal on improving maternal health, enables countries and international development partners, including DFID, to work together towards a common end. The United Nations produces an annual progress report "the Millennium Development Goals Report", outlining the progress made against each of the MDGs, including maternal health, at global and regional levels. At country level, the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) works with countries to track their progress against the MDGs.

DFID supports these global assessment processes and does not try to replicate them. However, DFID does track the progress of UK development investments. For example, we produce an annual report on progress in implementing our maternal health strategy "Reducing maternal deaths: evidence and action". The second annual progress report is due to be published shortly and copies will be placed in the Library of the House. The report will provide details on what we have achieved, areas where we have made less progress and what more we need to do. The report covers both our efforts in supporting Government and non-government efforts to improve maternal health (MDG 5) in countries, as well as what we have done internationally and at the policy level.

In addition at country level, a framework for annual assessment of performance is included in DFID's country assistance plans (CAP). These CAPs set out details of how DFID aims to contribute to the achievement of the MDGs.

In 2006, the international community agreed a new target under the maternal health millennium development goal (MDG 5) for "Universal Access to Reproductive Health by 2015". This is in addition to the existing target under MDG 5 to "Reduce the maternal mortality ratio by three quarters between 1990 and 2015". The new target means that access to reproductive health information, services and supplies should be available to all who need it. And it means that Governments and the international community will be held accountable for providing them. We are proud that the UK fought hard for this target and has supported subsequent work to agree appropriate monitoring indicators. One of the new proposed indicators is 'unmet need for family planning' which is an important indicator because family planning is one of the most cost effective interventions we can make towards the achievement of not only the new reproductive health target, but to the achievement of all the MDGs.

Developing Countries: Renewable Energy

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department is taking to encourage the use of renewable energy in developing countries. [132506]

Mr. Thomas: DFID is committed to increasing access to reliable and affordable energy for reducing poverty and increasing economic growth in developing countries. Renewable energy has an increasingly important role to play in helping developing countries make progress towards the millennium development goals.

We are also encouraging the World Bank and other development partners to give renewable energy greater attention as part of their efforts to improve access to energy. At Gleneagles in 2005 the G8 called on the World Bank and Regional Development Banks to create a new Clean Energy Investment Framework. They have now developed their plans and are beginning to demonstrate progress.

The World Bank has scaled up its financial support for renewable energy and energy efficiency projects. In August 2006, it announced a rise to $680 million in commitments in the year to June 2006, an increase of 48 per cent. compared to the previous year. This figure excludes large hydropower projects and covers solar, wind, geothermal, biomass and small (less than 10 MW) hydropower technologies.

These figures exceed the commitment they made in 2004 to increase their renewable energy and energy efficiency investments by 20 per cent. per annum over the next five years. We very much welcome this increased investment by the World Bank on clean energy. We now think that the bank needs to set out a high level of ambition for funds flowing through the Clean Energy Investment Framework over the coming years. At the recent spring meetings of the World Bank the UK called on the bank to set a range of new investment and outcome targets, including a higher target for renewable energy.

As announced in the 2007 Budget Statement, a new £800 million Environmental Transformation Fund will finance overseas development projects that deliver both poverty reduction and environmental benefits in developing countries, and help developing countries respond to climate change. This fund will support climate change adaptation, provide access to clean energy and help tackle unsustainable deforestation.

DFID is funding international networks such as the Global Village Energy Partnership (GVEP) and the EU energy initiative (EUEI) to promote access to affordable energy services, drawing on the full menu of technology options, including renewable energy.

DFID has supported the creation of a new €220 million EU energy facility, which will start funding projects this year. This fund aims to improve access to energy, especially in Africa, and encouraged viable renewable energy proposals.

DFID is also increasing research funding for the energy sector to reflect the growing interest in clean energy for development. This year DFID launched a new five year, £3.75 million energy research programme on renewable energy and is currently scoping areas for further work.

Sudan: Armed Conflict

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his estimate is of the number of people who have returned to live in the South of Sudan following the end of conflict there. [132505]

Hilary Benn: The UN estimates that since the signing of the comprehensive peace agreement (CPA) in January 2005, around 1 million people have returned to their homes in the South. UNHCR predicts a further 100,000 refugees will return home in 2007, in addition to 500,000 internally displaced people. The majority of the refugees will come from Ethiopia, Uganda and Kenya.

DFID has channelled all its funding for the returns process through the UN-administered common humanitarian fund (CHF). Of the £68 million allocated so far by the CHF in 2007 (of which the DFID contribution makes up 60 per cent.), £6.6 million was given to support the returns process.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Accident and Emergency Departments

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what measures the Government plan to provide to improve the security of staff in casualty departments in Northern Ireland hospitals, with particular reference to the Downe hospital, Downpatrick. [132097]

Paul Goggins: My Department is fully committed to improving health and safety protection for all health and social care staff and has taken extensive measures to minimise risk in the workplace.

Following consultation with staff in the Downe hospital the trust introduced additional security measures from March 2007. These include security patrols within accident and emergency unit from 9 pm until midnight on Monday to Thursday and every week-end from 12 midnight to 3 am. Security staff patrols operate within both the Downshire and Downe hospital sites.

Arts: Finance

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much funding he plans to provide for the arts in the Province in 2007-08; and how much funding was provided in each of the last five years. [130700]

Maria Eagle: Total funding provided for the arts in Northern Ireland in each of the last five years along with planned expenditure for 2007-08 is shown in the following table:

	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07	£ 2007-08[1]

[1] Planned expenditure.
[2] Provisional.
[3] These figures relate to the calendar years 2006 and 2007. The Department for Social Development has also provided funding under Peace II for various other arts-based projects amounting to £565,600 for the period 2002 to date. This amount is not included in the table.

Bus Services: Carrickfergus

Sammy Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the average daily passenger numbers were for each bus route to and from Carrickfergus in each month over the last three years. [131983]

David Cairns: Data are not readily available by individual bus routes from Translink. The following tables set out the daily average passenger numbers based on monthly patronage figures for those travelling to (alighting) and from (boarding) Carrickfergus in each of the last two years. Figures have not been provided in respect of 2004-05 as I am informed by Translink that data held for that year are incomplete.

Hospitals: Waiting Lists

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the (a) target and (b) actual waiting times for (i) surgery, (ii) first outpatient appointment and (iii) a diagnostic test at Northern Ireland hospitals were at the end of March (A) 2007 and (B) 2006. [132285]

Paul Goggins: Ministers set a target that, by 31 March 2006, no patient should be waiting more than 12 months for in-patient or day case treatment. No targets were set at that stage regarding waiting times for a first out-patient appointment with a consultant or a diagnostic test.

Targets were also set that, by 31 March 2007, no patient should be waiting more than six months for either a first out-patient appointment with a consultant or for in-patient or day case treatment. There were no targets set for diagnostic waiting times at 31 March 2007.

I have set new targets that, by the end of March 2008, no patient will wait more than 13 weeks for a first out-patient appointment, no more than 13 weeks for any diagnostic test, and no more than 21 weeks for surgery.

The number of patients waiting, and the length of time they were waiting in months, for (i) in-patient or day case treatment and (ii) a first out-patient appointment with a consultant, at 31 March 2006, is contained in the following table.

Timebands (months)	In-patients	Out-patients

Departmental returns CH1 and CH3

Official statistics relating to the number of patients waiting at 31 March 2007, for either a first out-patient appointment with a consultant or for in-patient or day case treatment, will not be published until June. On the basis of provisional information available to the Department at the beginning of April, with the exception of a very small number of breaches reflecting local administrative errors, no patients were waiting more than six months for in-patient or day case treatment, or for a first out-patient appointment with a consultant.

Official figures for the number of patients waiting for a diagnostic test in Northern Ireland are not available for either March 2006 or March 2007.

Portadown School

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland when he plans to publish the economic appraisal of the proposed capital building project at Portadown Integrated Primary School; and what the reasons are for the time taken to conclude this study and make it available. [132048]

Maria Eagle: The Department of Education is aware of the accommodation deficiencies at Portadown Integrated Primary School and an initial feasibility study was produced for the school which is a stage prior to the production of the economic appraisal. Following the Bain review new capital projects should in future be considered in the context of a more co-ordinated and consistent area-based planning approach and this will need to be reflected in the appraisal. The Department will be in contact with the school as the work develops though I cannot confirm at present when the appraisal will be completed.

Sewers

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) if he will list the maintenance work carried out at Millisle Sewage Pumping in each of the past three years; and what the (a) nature and (b) duration was of the maintenance carried out on each occasion; [133021]

(2) what assessment has been carried out by his Department of the health and safety implications of raw sewage leaks from Millisle's sewerage system; [133059]

(3) on what occasions since January the screens at Millisle Sewage Pumping Station were checked; and what the outcome was of the review of the adequacy of the current screen checking arrangements; [133060]

(4) if he will bring forward the project to upgrade Millisle Sewage Pumping Station scheduled to start in 2011; [133071]

(5) when he expects the Drainage Area Studies for the North Down and Ards area to be completed; and what funding has been allocated to ensure the prompt implementation of its recommendations. [133072]

David Cairns: The Water and Sewerage Services (NI) Order 2006 transferred responsibility for the delivery of water and sewerage services from the Department's Water Service Agency to a statutory water and sewerage undertaker. A Government-owned company, Northern Ireland Water (NIW) has been appointed as the undertaker and the issues raised are operational matters for it. I have asked the chief executive of NIW (Mrs. Katharine Bryan) to write to the hon. Lady in response to these questions.

South Eastern Education and Library Board: Public Appointments

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what significant decisions have been made by the four commissioners appointed to the South Eastern Education and Library Board since their appointment in 2006. [132213]

Maria Eagle: The commissioners have taken many significant decisions since their appointment in July 2006 including decisions related to financial allocations and budgets, school development proposals, youth centre provision, leasing proposals and transfer of land, and procurement contracts. All decisions that have been taken are minuted and published in the normal way in accordance with Standing Orders and details of the relevant minutes are available on the South Eastern Education and Library Board website: http:/www.seelb.org.uk

Theatres: Finance

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much public funding was granted to theatres in Northern Ireland in each of the last five years; whether there are proposals to increase funding for such theatres in 2007-08; and if he will make a statement. [130541]

Maria Eagle: Public funding granted to theatres in Northern Ireland in the last five years is shown in the following table. Decisions on revenue funding to theatres for 2007-08 have already been made by the Arts Council of Northern Ireland and the total amount awarded is the same as the 2006-07 figure. The level of funding available to theatres in future years will depend on the outcome of the 2007 comprehensive spending review.

SCOTLAND

Departments: Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what measures are in place to limit the amount of money spent on alcohol for hospitality purposes by his Department. [132195]

David Cairns: Scotland Office expenditure on hospitality, like all other departmental expenditure, is conducted in accordance with the principles of "Government Accounting" and the Treasury handbook on "Regularity and Propriety".

Departments: Pressure Groups

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will list the meetings between Ministers from his Department and outside interest groups which took place between 1 January and 31 March. [132439]

David Cairns: Ministers and civil servants meet a large number of people and groups in the course of their official duties.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Bankruptcy

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many businesses went bankrupt in each month of the last 10 years in (a) the United Kingdom, (b) each region and (c) each London borough. [132173]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Business (self-employed, or trader) bankruptcies are only readily available on a quarterly basis and for England and Wales (EandW). These statistics are provided in the following table. The provision of corresponding monthly data would incur disproportionate cost. A breakdown of Scottish sequestrations and Northern Ireland bankruptcies by trading status of the individual is not available. For EandW, the provision of any sub-national level business bankruptcy figures would incur disproportionate cost.

Broadband

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what service obligations are placed on broadband providers to extend their coverage nationally; how such obligations are regulated; and if he will make a statement. [131145]

Margaret Hodge: The Universal Service Obligation (USO) in the UK covers voice and data telephone services up to 56kbps, sufficient for dial-up internet, but not for broadband.

The UK telecommunications market is regulated by Ofcom. Ofcom has designated BT and Kingston Communications (in the Hull area) as the Universal Service Providers in the UK. Ofcom report that 50 per cent. of UK adults now have broadband at home—up from 39 per cent. a year ago and a seven-fold increase over the last four years. More than 13 million UK homes and small and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs) are now connected to broadband, compared with 9.9 million a year earlier and 330,000 in 2001.

The European Commission is reviewing the scope and future of universal service in the EU later this year and we expect a Green Paper to be published in the autumn. The DTI will consult widely in preparing a response to the Green Paper.

Business Support

Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the accessibility of Government support for small business. [117363]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 22 January 2007]: The latest Annual Small Business Survey found that 51 per cent. of small businesses with employees surveyed would like support from Government but experience difficulties in determining what is available.

The DTI-led Business Support Simplification Programme is driving work across all levels of Government to tackle the confusion caused by the number of business support services available. By 2010 the Programme will deliver Government support for business which is easier to access, which is targeted where it will have greatest impact and which is delivered to get best value for money.

Corporate Social Responsibility Academy

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) how many times the Corporate Social Responsibility Academy's management committee has met in each calendar year since its inception; [132544]

(2) what the cost of the Corporate Social Responsibility Academy to the public purse was in each financial year since its inception; and if he will make a statement; [132545]

(3) how many staff are employed by the Corporate Social Responsibility Academy; [132546]

(4) if he will list the events which the Corporate Social Responsibility Academy has held in each calendar year since its inception. [132547]

Margaret Hodge: The CSR Academy was a web-based service provided as a DTI business support scheme and did not employ staff. It was run by a project director who worked with five organisations appointed as Academy programme partners:

Business in the Community;

AccountAbility;

Association of Business Schools;

Chartered Institute of Personnel Development; and British Chambers of Commerce.

The project director completed his contract in August 2006 and the Academy transferred to Business in the Community in March 2007.

The Academy's programme partners were contracted to provide a number of services which included organising events on behalf of the Academy as follows:

Year 1—24 events

Year 2—19 events

The Academy Project Director also spoke at numerous other CSR related events.

The DTI provided funding for the CSR Academy as follows:

2004-05	200,000
2005-06	250,000
2006-07	100,000

The CSR Academy did not have a management committee. The project director reported to DTI and the Academy chairman through quarterly reports and met with DTI on a regular basis.

Low Carbon Buildings Programme

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many private businesses in the UK (a) applied for and (b) were awarded grants under the Low Carbon Buildings Programme in (i) 2006, (ii) January 2007 and (iii) February 2007. [126722]

Malcolm Wicks: The following table shows the number of applications received from private businesses under the Low Carbon Buildings Programme in 2006, January 2007 and February 2007.

Period	Number of applications received	Number awarded grants
April-December 2006	57	0
February 2007	0	0

Private businesses can only apply to the Low Carbon Buildings Programme Phase 1 Stream 2. This stream is a competitive process, with a number of application call deadlines planned through to March 2008. We recently completed our assessment of applications received in the first call, however no grant awards have been made as yet.

Stream 1 of the Low Carbon Buildings Programme Phase 1 is solely for household applicants, and therefore is not applicable for a private business applicant.

David Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the value of grants paid to householders under the Low Carbon Buildings Programme was in each month since May 2006. [127252]

Malcolm Wicks: The following table shows the value of grant paid to householders under the Low Carbon Buildings programme Phase 1 since May 2006.

Ports: Great Yarmouth

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what representations his Department received, and from whom, in support of the prospective composite package of public funding which has subsequently been granted to East Port Great Yarmouth. [131247]

Margaret Hodge: The Department of Trade and Industry gave consent to EEDA to fund the project in March 2005, having considered the views of the Department for Transport the then Office of the Deputy Prime Minister (now Communities and Local Government), HM Treasury and the Government Office for the East of England.

The Government Office for the East of England collated representations received in relation to the project. There were 151 letters of support: 17 from stakeholders, seven from local authorities (one of the letters also listed the names of 36 companies who supported the project), four from MPs and 123 from local businesses.

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry who sat on the awarding committee for the composite package of public funding which was granted to East Port Great Yarmouth. [131249]

Margaret Hodge: There was not a single awarding committee that jointly gave consent to the different strands of public funding proposed for the Great Yarmouth Outer Harbour project.

The East of England Development Agency (EEDA) commissioned a detailed economic appraisal of the proposed Outer Harbour project. This confirmed a public sector funding requirement comprising funding from the European Regional Development Fund (ERDF) Objective 2 programme for the East of England and from EEDA, alongside funding from Norfolk county council and Great Yarmouth borough council.

The Department of Trade and Industry considered EEDA's application for consent to use its Development Agency funds to support the project as part of the proposed public funding package. The DTI gave its consent to EEDA in March 2005, having considered the views of the Department for Transport, the then Office of the Deputy Prime Minister (now Communities and Local Government), HM Treasury and the Government Office for the East of England.

Allocation of the ERDF funds from the East of England Objective 2 programme was then approved by the regional ERDF programming committee, chaired by the Government Office in partnership with regional agencies including EEDA, the East of England Regional Assembly (EERA), the Learning and Skills Council, the Environment Agency, the Voluntary and Community Forum and the eligible local authorities, and by the European Commission in compliance with state aid and major project notification procedures.

Small Businesses

Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry pursuant to the answer of 19 March 2007, Official Report, column 637W, on small businesses, what estimate his Department has made of the number of people working in family businesses in the UK. [131662]

Mr. Darling [holding answer 16 April 2007]: It is not possible to provide precise estimates of the number of people working in family businesses in the UK from statistical data on the total business population.

Under-represented Groups

Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the Small Firms Loan Guarantee Scheme in reaching under-represented groups. [117324]

Margaret Hodge: The purpose of the Small Firms Loan Guarantee (SFLG) is to enable lending to any eligible small business that satisfies the accredited lender's commercial criteria for lending apart from being able to provide the security normally required. It is designed to be accessible to all qualifying small businesses, including those from under-represented groups.

Among the accredited lenders there are two Community Development Finance Institutions (CDFIs), which focus on lending to businesses, in disadvantaged communities, with viable business propositions but which are unable to access some or all of the finance they require from mainstream sources.

The Graham Review of SFLG recommended that the number and range of participating lenders be increased. That recommendation has been taken forward, with further lenders joining the scheme during 2007.

TRANSPORT

Aviation: Carbon Emissions

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the cost-effectiveness of different abatement measures for reducing carbon dioxide emissions from the aviation sector. [132361]

Gillian Merron: As set out in the Air Transport White Paper (2003) and its progress report (2006), the Government believe that aviation's climate change impacts are best addressed through a Global Emissions Trading scheme. This approach is endorsed by the Stern Review on the economics of climate change which strongly supports carbon pricing to ensure that economic decisions fully reflect social and environmental costs. Until a truly global solution can be found, the inclusion of aviation in the existing EU Emissions Trading scheme represents the best multilateral option available.

The UK Government have led the debate within Europe for aviation's inclusion in the EU ETS since the UK presidency of the EU in 2005. The UK welcomed the publication of the European Commission's proposal on 20 December 2006 to include aviation into the EU Emissions Trading scheme (EU ETS) and now looks to the German and Portuguese presidencies of 2007 to give this issue priority so prompt progress can be made with negotiations.

Emissions trading and other economic instruments form part of an overall strategy which includes using operational measures and new technology to minimise the environmental impact of aviation.

Biofuels: Imports

Angela Watkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what proportion of domestic biofuel consumption is met by imports; and if he will make a statement. [132363]

Dr. Ladyman: Total sales of biofuels in the UK in 2006 were around 264 million litres, of which around two thirds were biodiesel and one third bioethanol. The Government do not hold precise data on the country of origin of these biofuels. Our understanding is that the great majority of the biodiesel sold in the UK in 2006 was produced domestically, but all of the bioethanol was imported.

The total amount of UK-produced biofuel is set to increase significantly in future years as a result of the Renewable Transport Fuel Obligation (RTFO). Once the RTFO comes into effect in April 2008, the Government will also have much better data on the provenance of all biofuels sold on the UK market. This is because in order to receive any credits under the RTFO suppliers of renewable transport fuels will be required to provide information, where possible, on, among other things, the country of origin of the feedstock used to produce their biofuels.

Bus Services: Accidents

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many accidents involving passengers on bus services were reported in each of the last five years, broken down by (a) constituency and (b) service provider; and if he will make a statement. [132637]

Dr. Ladyman: Tables showing the number of reported personal injury road accidents involving bus/coaches by constituency in each of the last five years have been placed in the Library of the House. 2005 is latest year for which data are available. Many of these accidents include buses/coaches which had no passenger casualties. Additionally some of the buses/coaches may have had no passengers at all. The information requested broken down by service provider is not collected.

Bus Services: Subsidies

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what limits on minimum commercial return his Department has placed on local bus routes qualifying for subsidies; and if he will make a statement. [132025]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 18 April 2007]: Under the Transport Act 1985 local authorities have power to secure by means of subsidy contracts the provision of bus services which are necessary to meet the transport needs of their area and which would not be provided other than by subsidy. It is for individual local authorities to decide which bus services should be provided in their area under this power. It is also for them to decide the terms of contracts, and to which operators they should be awarded, after undertaking any necessary competitive tendering exercise. There are no specific limits relating to minimum commercial returns.

In best practice guidance for local authorities published in 2005 we have emphasised the importance of authorities having clearly defined criteria when procuring subsidised services, to ensure they achieve best value for money. This would include the need to take account of the overall market for bus services in their area, including services being provided commercially. A copy of this guidance is on the Department's website.

Departments: Pressure Groups

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what meetings took place between Ministers in his Department and outside interest groups between 1 January and 31 March; and what the date was of each such meeting. [131039]

Gillian Merron: The information is as follows:

Driving: Licensing

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will estimate the number of fraudulent applications for driving licences in each of the last four years; and if he will make a statement. [132993]

Dr. Ladyman: I am not able to estimate the number of fraudulent applications for driving licences. DVLA report suspect documents to the police and the following are the statistics available since July 2005 for such reports. We have no accurate data for reports prior to that date:

Between 1 July 2005 and 31 March 2006: 1,484 cases were reported. Between April 2006 and 31 March 2007: 2,463 cases were reported.

Eurotunnel

Richard Ottaway: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps he is taking to protect the rights of minority shareholders in the restructuring of Eurotunnel plc. [132405]

Mr. Tom Harris: Eurotunnel is a private sector entity, owned by its shareholders. Any restructuring proposals are a private matter for them.

Northern Rail

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the increased passenger numbers using Northern Rail; and what actions his Department is taking to ensure the extra capacity needed to accommodate these passengers is available. [132508]

Mr. Tom Harris: Passenger journeys on the Northern Rail network were estimated at nearly 61 million in 2004-05 and passenger numbers have grown at approximately 10 per cent. per annum in each of the past two years.

The Department continues to work closely with Northern Rail and other local stakeholders to identify and secure value for money opportunities to provide additional capacity. In recent months, Northern Rail has introduced an additional six trains to provide additional capacity in West Yorkshire, has announced an additional six trains to strengthen services into Liverpool and, in conjunction with the Department and other partners has secured the retention of eight vehicles in trains serving Leeds that otherwise would have been removed this month.

The High Level Output Specification (HLOS), to be published in summer, will set out the additional rail capacity the Government propose to buy to meet the recent and forecast growth in demand for rail travel.

The Secretary of State has already announced his intention of specifying 1,000 extra carriages to come into service between now and 2014.

It is too early to say precisely where the additional rolling stock will be used: the rail industry's October 2007 response to the HLOS will identify this. However, the most congested routes are likely to be early priorities.

Railways: Birmingham

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the likely effect of terminating and beginning services at Birmingham on (a) passenger numbers and (b) average travel times for passengers travelling from Warrington or Glasgow to the South and South West. [132507]

Mr. Tom Harris: The specification for the New Cross Country franchise does not significantly change the number of trains terminating and beginning at Birmingham. The specification will lead to new through journey opportunities and, overall, the Department for Transport expects that the changes proposed will result in broadly the same passenger numbers. Journey times from Warrington or Glasgow to Birmingham will reduce and hence average travel times to the South and South West will be broadly similar to today.

Railways: Timetables

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport for how many years ahead rail timetable plans are made. [132327]

Mr. Tom Harris: Rail timetable plans that make significant adjustments to the permanent service are normally planned 18-24 months in advance.

Rail timetable plans associated with major projects to enhance capacity, such as infrastructure upgrades, may need to be planned up to five years in advance.

All rail plans including pre-planned disruption alterations, (e.g. engineering blockades), are targeted to be published 12 weeks in advance.

Transport: Great Yarmouth

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations his Department received, and from whom, in support of the prospective composite package of public funding which has subsequently been granted to East Port Great Yarmouth. [131248]

Dr. Ladyman: The Department for Trade and Industry, Department for Transport and Government Office for the East of England received in total 151 letters in support of the Eastport project: 17 from stakeholders, seven from local authorities (one of the letters also listed the names of 36 companies who supported the project), four from MPs and 123 from local businesses.

Wolverton Station: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport for what reason the budget allocated to Wolverton station for an upgrade of station buildings has been reduced. [132324]

Mr. Tom Harris: A grant was awarded from the Community Infrastructure Fund for both the enlargement of Milton Keynes station and provision of a new building at Wolverton station. There has been no reduction to the total amount.

TREASURY

Average Earnings

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the average hourly pay of the lowest duo-decile of working age people in employment was in each quarter since 1997. [132411]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 19 April 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking what the average hourly pay of the lowest duo-decile of working age people in employment was in each quarter since 1997. (132411)

Quarterly estimates are not available. Average levels of earnings are estimated from the Annual Survey of Hours and Earnings (ASHE) and are provided for all employees on adult rates of pay whose pay for the survey period was not affected by absence. This is the standard definition used for ASHE. The ASHE does not collect information on the self employed and people who do unpaid work.

I attach tables showing the 5th percentile of Gross Hourly Pay, for all employees, for the years 1997-2006.

The ASHE, carried out in April each year, is the most comprehensive source of earnings information in the United Kingdom. It is a one per cent. sample of all employees who are members of pay-as-you-earn schemes.

Gross hourly earnings for all employee [1] jobs

UK	5th Percentile
1997	3.35
1998	3.50
1999	3.75
2000	3.96
2001	4.08
2002	4.35
2003	4.55
2004 excl.	4.77
2004 inc. [2]	4.75
2005	4.99
2006	5.15

[1] Employees on adult rates whose pay for the survey pay-period was not affected by absence.

[2] In 2004 additional supplementary surveys were introduced to improve the coverage of the Annual Survey of Hours and Earnings. Figures are presented both excluding and including the additional surveys for comparison purposes.

Child Tax Credit

Stephen Williams: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what the cost was of child tax credit for families with children aged 16 to 19 years in full-time education and training in (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07; and what the cost is expected to be in 2007-08; [131573]

(2) what the cost was of child benefit paid to children aged 16 to 19 years in full-time education and training in (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07; and what the cost is expected to be in 2007-08. [131574]

Dawn Primarolo: The latest information on finalised child tax credit awards is for 2004-05. It is estimated that the entitlement for families with one or more children aged at least 16 at the previous 31 August was about £1.8 billion. This includes families receiving the equivalent level of support via income support or income-based jobseeker's allowance.

In 2005-06, around £.9 billion was paid in child benefit to families in respect of children aged at least 16 at the previous August.

Estimates and forecasts for later years are not available.

Civil Servants: Location

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many civil servants have been moved from London since the Lyons review. [132005]

Mr. Timms: As part of the Lyons relocation programme, by December 2006 11,068 posts had been relocated out of London and the south-east to every nation and region in the UK.

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many civil servants have moved to Yorkshire and Humberside region since the Lyons review. [132006]

Mr. Timms: Of the 11,068 posts that had been relocated out of London and the south-east by December 2006, 2,287 had been moved to Yorkshire and Humberside.

Debts: Developing Countries

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what steps the Government are taking to protect heavily indebted poor countries and other indebted developing countries from litigation by vulture funds in British courts; [132061]

(2) what options have been discussed for Government action to pre-empt litigation by vulture funds and other commercial creditors against heavily indebted poor countries and other indebted developing countries, including within the Paris club; [132062]

(3) what steps the UK Government have taken to prevent the exploitation of developing countries by vulture funds since May 2002; [132063]

(4) what sums have been received from the Exchequer through taxation of awards made to vulture funds which have successfully sued developing country governments in British courts; [132064]

(5) if he will make a statement on the principles on fair debt restructuring, in relation to vulture funds. [132065]

Ed Balls: The Government have made clear its concern over the activities of so-called vulture funds and the problems they case for those countries that have received debt relief under the heavily indebted poor countries (HIPC) Initiative.

The Government's action to date has focused on preventing vulture fund litigation through the elimination of commercial debts and on strengthening debt management in HIPCs. The Department for International Development (DFID) co-funds a debt management capacity building programme that, through better debt management, should help to avoid debts being sold on to potential litigators. DFID also supports the World Bank's Debt Reduction Facility, which provides grants to enable countries to buy back their commercial debts at very significant discount (on average over 90 per cent. reduction), thereby removing the potential for litigation. Since its establishment, this facility has helped eliminate around $8 billion of debt in low-income countries.

The UK has assisted HIPCs in fighting aggressive creditors. We are also encouraging the African Development Bank to develop a Legal Assistance Facility, which will offer advice to HIPC countries facing litigation. DFID has also been working with partner Governments to tackle the corruption that can make it easier for vulture funds to purchase distressed debts in the first place.

All Governments and companies have a responsibility to ensure that debts of vulnerable countries are not sold to vulture funds. The UK is working with our international partners to agree a Charter on Responsible Lending. The G20 agreed a set of Principles on Fair Debt Restructuring in 2004 and the UK fully supports this.

The Paris Club group of sovereign creditors recognise the importance of tackling vulture fund activity against HIPCs and press for comparable debt relief treatment from all creditors. The UK is an active member of this group.

HMG does not hold a record of the awards made against developing country Governments in UK courts or the identity and/or country of residence of the parties involved. Some information on existing lawsuits is published by the IMF in their HIPC Status of Implementation Report. This is available at:

Poverty: Children

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what total Government expenditure has been on policies aimed at reducing child poverty since 1997. [132542]

Mr. Timms: The Government have invested significant resources since 1997 in our commitment to halve and eradicate child poverty.

Budget 2007 announced £1 billion for the child element of the child tax credit, and £1.3 billion for the working tax credit. Along with the package of reforms to the personal tax and benefit system announced at the Budget, this will help lift around 200,000 children out of poverty.

However it is not possible to provide a complete figure for all spending aimed at reducing child poverty as this would include a large but undefined proportion of numerous Government programmes, including social housing, welfare to work, and the tax and benefit system.

As a result of personal tax and benefit measures introduced since 1997, by April 2009, families with children will have benefited from around £13 billion additional spending per year.

Suicide

Norman Baker: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many (a) men and (b) women aged between 55 and 59 years of age committed suicide in 2003, broken down by method of suicide chosen. [132469]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 19 April 2007:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many (a) men and (b) women aged between 55 and 59 years of age committed suicide in 2003, broken down by method of suicide chosen. (132469)

Numbers of suicides (deaths from intentional self-harm and injury or poisoning of undetermined intent) of those aged 55 to 59, which occurred in 2003 in England and Wales, are shown in the table below by sex and method.

Number of suicides[1] by sex and method[2] for those aged 55-59, England and Wales, 2003[3]

Method	(a) Men	(b) Women
Drug-related poisoning	37	45
'Other' poisoning	19	4
Hanging, strangulation and suffocation	106	22
Drowning	11	6
Firearms and explosives	13	1
Sharp objects	11	0
Jumping/falling from a high place	2	6
Jumping/lying/falling before moving object	11	6
Smoke, fire and flames	5	1
Other specified and unspecified means	21	6
Total	236	97

[1] In routine statistics, ONS defines suicides as deaths from both intentional self-harm and 'injury or poisoning of undetermined intent'. It is likely that most of these latter deaths are cases where the harm is self-inflicted but there was insufficient evidence to prove that the deceased deliberately intended to kill themselves. The cause of death for intentional self-harm was defined using the International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision (ICD-10) codes X60-X84, and the cause of death for injury or poisoning of undetermined intent was defined using ICD-10 codes Y10-Y34 excluding Y33.9 where the Coroner's verdict was pending.

[2] Suicides were grouped by method using the following ICD-10 codes. These categories are based on an article which was published in Health Statistics Quarterly 20*.

Drug-related poisoning—X60-X64, Y10-Y14
Other poisoning—X65-X69, Y15-Y19
Hanging, strangulation and suffocation—X70, Y20
Drowning—X11, Y21
Firearms and explosives—X72-X75, Y22-Y25
Sharp objects—X78, Y28
Jumping/falling from a high place—X80, Y30
Jumping/lying/falling before moving object—X81, Y31
Smoke, fire and flames—X76, Y26
Other specified and unspecified means—X83-X84, Y33-Y34

[3] Figures are for deaths occurring in the calendar year.

Taxation: NHS

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether he has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated research on the public's willingness to pay a hypothecated NHS tax. [131958]

Mr. Timms: No such research has been undertaken.

The Chancellor set out the Government's position on hypothecation of tax to the NHS in his evidence to the Treasury Select Committee on 11 December 2001 (Treasury—Minutes of Evidence, 11 December 2001, Session 2001-2002, HC 430ii:

http://www.publications.parliament.uk/pa/cm200102/cmselect/cmtreasy/430/430toc.htm#evidence).

Tote

Mr. Swire: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what correspondence his Department has had with the Department for Culture, Media and Sport on the sale of the Tote and what progress has been made with its sale; [132559]

(2) what the procedure is for his Department's approval for the sale of the Tote. [132556]

Mr. Timms: An announcement on the sale of the Tote is expected to be made shortly. The Government remain committed to proceeding with its objectives of removing the Tote from public ownership, promoting horserace pool betting and benefiting racing.

Welfare Tax Credits

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much additional income (a) a single parent and (b) a married couple with one child are entitled to if each such household has a single worker in part-time work earning their income support entitlement, assuming that each household had its rent covered in full and claimed its full entitlement to tax credits. [132656]

Mr. Timms: A single parent with one child earning the same amount as their income support entitlement is £20 a week better off than on income support in 2007-08, both before and after housing costs are taken into account. A couple with one child earning the same as their income support entitlement is around £65 a week better off before housing costs and around £18 a week better off after housing costs are taken into account.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Advertising

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much his Department spent on (a) sponsoring newspaper and publication supplements and (b) funding advertorials in newspapers and publications in the last year for which figures are available; and what the topic of each was. [129958]

Mrs. McGuire: Spend on newspaper supplements, advertorials and Featurelink in 2005-06 is in the following table.

	Supplements	Advertorials	Featurelink
Jobcentre Plus—services to employers	—	15,000	—
Office for Disability Issues (Extending boundaries)	50,926	—	—
Targeting Benefit Fraud	—	—	45,231
Winter Fuel Payments	—	—	133,755
State Second Pension	—	—	187,357
Pension Credit	—	—	30,176
State Pension Deferral	—	196,154	—

Notes:
1. Figures are for 2005-06, which is the last financial year for which figures are available.
2. All costs are shown in pounds sterling and are exclusive of VAT.
3. Jobcentre Plus does not hold centrally details of what each of its Regions and Districts may have spent sponsoring or funding advertorials. We could obtain this information only at disproportionate cost.
4. The Department purchased branded advertising features which included advertorials using the commercial 'Featurelink' service.

Child Support Agency

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many (a) total and (b) full-time equivalent staff were involved in processing clerical Child Support Agency cases in each month since January 2005; and if he will make a statement. [122888]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the hon. Lady with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 19 April 2007:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many (a) total and (b) full-time equivalent staff were involved in processing clerical Child Support Agency cases in each month since January 2005; and if he will make a statement. [122888]

The number of fulltime equivalent staff working on clerical cases between January 2005 and January 2007 is provided in the attached table. Unfortunately we are unable to provide the total number of individual people involved in progressing clerical cases, as this information is not recorded.

In September 2006 the Agency transferred all of its clerical cases to the CSA Bolton site, managed by Vertex. By progressing clerical cases together in one location the Agency expects to deliver a much more efficient service to clients. CSA Bolton is currently processing over 26,000 Agency cases, and has delivered more than £7.5m in maintenance payments since its launch in September 2006.

A number of Agency people continue to be involved in clerical case progression. Their roles include the transferral of clerical cases to the CSA Bolton office, aiding in clerical case complaint resolution, and sharing best practise with the Bolton office to ensure Agency clients receive a consistent level of service.

Unfortunately we are unable to provide information concerning the number of people employed by Vertex for the clerical progression of Agency cases. As such, the information provided covers only those Agency employees engaged in clerical case progression.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Departments: Internet

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps he is taking to improve the user-friendliness of his Department's website. [130929]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department for Work and Pensions (DWP) has a complete set of standards and guidelines on usability and accessibility on its websites. The standards are for information published on DWP internet and intranet sites. The guidelines are on strategic requirements, use of cascading style sheets, page length, the importance of accuracy, usability, accessibility and design when developing content.

DWP is committed to improving the accessibility of its own websites. All its sites are working towards complying with the World Wide Web Consortium's Web Content Accessibility Guidelines (W3C WCAG) at Level AA, in line with Cabinet Office guidance. Guidelines have been developed for site managers, and a testing and improvement programme is now in place. In a recent audit, 45 per cent. of DWP's information sites passed automated checks for level AA.

User testing of the DWP site www.dwp.gov.uk will take place in May 2007 and the results will be fed into making further improvements to the site.

Departments: Public Appointments

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will list the former hon. Members who left Parliament in 2005 who have since been appointed to public bodies by his Department, broken down by party; and who was responsible for making each appointment. [130144]

Mrs. McGuire: Information about the political activity of appointees is recorded and publicised in accordance with the Independent Commissioner for Public Appointments' Code of Practice. This shows that no former hon. Members who left Parliament in 2005 have since been appointed to public bodies sponsored by the Department.

Lone Parents

Mr. Rooney: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many lone parents have had a benefit sanction for failure to attend a work focused interview in each of the last four years; what proportion of booked work focused interviews for lone parents resulted in a sanction in each of the last four years; and what research his Department has undertaken on the impact of sanctions on lone parents on their subsequent moves into employment. [116900]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 19 January 2007]: The available information on the number of lone parent work focused interviews booked, and number and percentage of benefit sanctions applied, is in the table.

Lone parent work focused interview (WFI) benefit sanctions

Year WFI was first booked	Number of WFIs booked	Number of sanctions applied	Percentage of booked WFIs sanctioned
April 2002-March 2003	338,800	5,600	1.7
April 2003-March 2004	603,100	14,300	2.4
April 2004-March 2005	770,100	31,800	4.1
April 2005-March 2006	908,300	40,300	4.4

Note:
Data exclude quarterly WFIs which were introduced nationally from October 2005 for lone parents whose youngest child is aged 14 and over as this administrative data are not yet available for analysis.

We plan to carry out research into the impact of benefit sanctions on lone parents on their subsequent moves into employment.

CHURCH COMMISSIONERS

Church Commissioners: Licensing

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the hon. Member for Middlesbrough, representing the Church Commissioners how many special licences were granted in each year since 1997. [133131]

Sir Stuart Bell: These figures are not held by the central Church institutions but I understand from the Office for National Statistics that the figures for 1997 to 2004 (the latest year for which figures are available) are as follows:

	Total number of Special Licences in England and Wales
1997	1,952
1998	1,878
1999	1,861
2000	1,877
2001	1,805
2002	1,784
2003	1,966
2004	2,226

Churches: Gift Aid

Robert Key: To ask the hon. Member for Middlesbrough, representing the Church Commissioners what assessment he has made of the impact on church income from the gift aid scheme of a reduction in the basic rate of tax following the Budget statement. [132575]

Sir Stuart Bell: We estimate that the reduction in the basic rate of tax will reduce the income of parishes up and down the country by about £7.7 million.

We do, however, welcome the fact that the Chancellor will consult the charitable sector about measures to increase the take-up of Gift Aid. We also welcome his undertaking to consider in the run-up to the Spending Review what other financial help could be given to churches.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Buildings: Greater London

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to revise planning guidance, regulations or circulars on tall buildings in London. [129193]

Yvette Cooper: There is no Government planning guidance, regulations or circulars specifically on tall buildings in London, though the Mayor of London sets out policies on tall buildings in his London Plan. In addition, the Government are currently consulting on draft directions for 11 protected vistas being proposed by the Mayor in his London Views Management Framework.

Council Housing: Colchester

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many people living (a) in Colchester local authority area and (b) outside the Colchester local authority area are on the Colchester housing transfer list; and what the figures were in 1997. [133373]

Yvette Cooper: Information regarding housing transfers is not held centrally. However, local authorities in England report the numbers of households (not people) on their housing waiting list as at 1 April in their annual Housing Strategy Statistical Appendix returns. I refer the hon. Member to my reply given today UIN 133374.

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many people living (a) in Colchester local authority area and (b) outside the Colchester local authority area are on the Colchester housing waiting list; and what the figures were in 1997. [133374]

Yvette Cooper: Local authorities in England report the numbers of households (not people) on their housing waiting list as at 1 April in their annual Housing Strategy Statistical Appendix returns. However, the information is not broken down by whether the household is living within or outside the local authority district.

The number of households on Colchester borough council's housing waiting list, as at 1 April each year, is published on the Communities and Local Government website in Table 600. The link for this table is given as follows:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/embedded_object.asp?id::= 1163853

Not everyone on the waiting list is necessarily in urgent housing need. The waiting list includes those who consider social housing as their preferred or one of a number of housing options, and those who decide to get on to the waiting list ladder before they need or want to move house—particularly where the priority system is heavily based on waiting time.

Council Housing: Property Transfer

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many and what percentage of those voting in each large scale voluntary transfer ballot voted (a) for and (b) against transfer in each of the last three years. [131052]

Yvette Cooper: The information requested is as follows.
